DAUGHERTY JURY IS TIED UP

NEW LIGHTS TO CROWN EPIC OF STATE STREET

White Way Festival Opens Thursday.

During three days this week—Thursday, Friday, and Saturday—an effort will be made to bring out the full significance of State street. The climax will be the illumination festival, arranged to mark the completion of a new $100,000 lighting system, making State street the brightest thoroughfare in the world.

The last of the seventy new lights, extending from Lake to Van Buren streets, will be installed tomorrow and they will be officially turned on Thursday evening. That will be the signal for the celebration to begin.

The lamps, according to the engineers, will dazzle Chicago eyes. Unlike ordinary lights, they are designed to throw a flood of brilliance to the tops of the buildings.

Stores to Keep Open House.

Stores and theaters during the three days will keep open house to the public. Final plans for the entertainment have not been made, but it will be climaxed by a parade of floats on flat cars depicting the progress of illumination. Special exhibits, music, refreshments and other attractions are promised.

The street will dress up for the festival in its best holiday garb of drapes, flags and pennants. Two great arches, illuminated with colored searchlights, will be built around the elevated platforms at Lake and Van Buren streets as a court of honor.

To heighten the effect of the colored lights the faces of the arches will be studded with 30,000 imitation jewels, imported from Austria. Each of the gems will be the size of a silver dollar. The amount of crystal by weight is five tons.

Start Contest for a Title.

As a preliminary feature of the carnival, the State Street Lighting association, which is sponsoring it, has announced a contest among store owners, managers, and employes of business houses on the street for the suggestion of an appropriate title for the thoroughfare following its illumination.

Prizes totaling $440 will be given for the best titles, combining terseness with alliteration and expressiveness. "The Path of Gold" and "The Chicago White Way" are samples of the kind of titles sought.

All these features of the celebration, glittering as they will be for the throngs expected to participate in them, will provide only the setting for the real State street—greatest retail center in the world, doing a business of $400,000,000 a year.

There have been nearly a hundred years of great builders, great merchants, great civic leaders in the history of State street. Its transformation from waste land on the shore of Lake Michigan is a story fully as thrilling as the carnival itself.

FOR NEARLY A CENTURY

Miss Mabel Mellvaine, an authority on early Chicago, at the request of the directors of the festival, has gathered the threads of the story into a connected history, which was made public yesterday.

It begins back in the 1840's, when the first building was erected on the thoroughfare. It was located between Randolph and Lake streets and contained a market on the first floor and quarters for the city clerk and commissioner above.

Around it in the immediate vicinity of what is now the highest priced property in Chicago, in the '40's and '50's there sprang up all manner of modest little homes and boarding houses, while on State street north of the river a similar development was going on.

Site of Two Estates.

Further south, between the present Adams and Quincy streets, then known as "way out in the country," lived in two fine estates John R. Case, dry goods merchant, and George W. Snow. They were palaces with flowers, fruits, fishpond and fountains. To the townsfolk this was a sort of suburban paradise, where little girls played "race horse" on the lawn, clad in white dresses and large leghorn hats.

State street in the early '60's presented a motley appearance, according to the historian. At Washington street, where the Columbus Memorial building now stands, was a tombstone yard. Near it were guidehouses turned into business houses, butcher shops, restaurants, stores and many saloons.

It was about this time that the enterprising merchants of State street on the principal thoroughfare of the city was chal-

TWINS, JOINED AT BIRTH, DIE WHEN ONE IS STRICKEN

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Lucy and Bessie Medich, four months' old "Siamese twins," died tonight at a local hospital where they had been brought for treatment when Lucy contracted bronchial pneumonia.

Lucy failed to survive the attack and Bessie died a few minutes later. Bessie had been in good health almost until the death of her sister.

The twins, born to Mr. and Mrs. N. S. Medich at South Bend, Ind., May 22, were brought to Minneapolis several weeks ago.

Physicians of the Hennepin County Medical society said there was no other case on record of twins joined in such a manner. They were joined at the hips so that the body of one was a prolongation of the body of the other.

Although Lucy's condition had become critical this afternoon, Bessie remained normal in every way until 4 p. m., when Bessie showed first signs of becoming affected.

Lucy sank rapidly during the evening and shortly before 11 o'clock her breath ceased entirely though her heart continued to beat faintly. Shortly afterwards Bessie's heart slowed up and five minutes after the death of her sister Bessie died.

Train Crashes Auto; Mother, Daughter Die

Mrs. I. W. Prestorius, 34 years old, of 439 Glencoe avenue, Highland Park, and her 13 year old daughter, Sally, were killed yesterday afternoon when an automobile in which they were riding was struck by a North Shore train at the Deerfield avenue crossing in Highland Park.

Renaldo Dunn, watchman at the crossing, who is alleged to have given a signal for the automobile to cross the tracks, is being held by the police. I. W. Prestorius, driver of the car, saved himself by leaping out while the train, the Metropolitan limited of the Skokie line, hurtled down upon the car.

Husband Blames Watchman.

Prestorius declared the watchman halted him as he drove up to the crossing and that he waited until a north bound train had passed. Then, when he had received the signal to proceed, he moved on, he said. Several box cars on a side track prevented him from seeing the south bound train, he added. Prestorius is traffic manager of the General Box company, 500 North Dearborn street.

Four other deaths yesterday as a result of automobile accidents raised the motor fatality toll in Cook county to 663 since Jan. 1.

Mrs. Anna Manner, 60 years old, of 845 Elmwood avenue, Evanston, was fatally injured, and her husband, George S. Manner, was hurt when they were struck by an automobile on Ridge avenue near Seward street. The driver of the car, Julius Ehrhardt, 901 Washington street, Evanston, was arrested.

Boy, 12, Fatally Injured.

George Winestery, 12 years old, colored, of 9218 South State street, was fatally injured when he was struck by a car driven by William Rowley, 113 West 103d street. Rowley was held by the police.

Douglas Kellen, 4 years old, 1220 West Jackson boulevard, died of injuries received when he was struck by an automobile driven by John Steinmetz, 8546 North Avers avenue. Miss Florence Peboda, 45 years old, 4356 Langley avenue, who was struck on Friday by an automobile driven by Maurice Stein, 1846 West 13th street, died yesterday.

FIRE TRUCK SPEEDING TO PLANE WRECK HITS AUTO; FOUR ARE HURT

Two aviators whose engine stopped yesterday afternoon while they were 2,000 feet in the air near the Northwestern university stadium had a narrow escape from death. Their plane was wrecked against the bank of the drainage canal at Brown avenue and Grant street, Evanston, in a forced landing.

The pilot, Adolph Korsgen of 517 Madison avenue, Glencoe, and his passenger, John Luka of 4901 Broadway, leaped from their seats without injury as the machine rolled down the bank into the water.

A fire truck, speeding to the scene, collided at Ridge avenue and Church street with an auto driven by John A. Lindquist, 1512 Lake street, Evanston.

Herman Peters, a fireman, 24 years old, was hurled from the truck and internally injured. Lindquist and his guests, David Ostman, who lives on Lill avenue in Chicago, and Eric Bryggair, 1822 Laurel avenue, Evanston, were cut and bruised. All were taken to St. Francis' hospital.

The two aviators, Korsgen and Luka, had been distributing campaign literature to the football crowd in the stadium. They were taken to the Evanston police station and Korsgen was charged with disorderly conduct for riding too low. He was released on bonds.

DECAPITATED BY TRAIN; ROBBERY IS POLICE THEORY

The decapitated body of a man about 36 years old, identified by papers in the pockets of his clothing as Joseph Arch McCandless of Ottawa, Kas., was found early this morning in the Illinois Central switching yards near the Randolph street viaduct.

There was no money in the pockets and the police theory is that McCandless may have been robbed and then tossed, unconscious, from the viaduct to be run over later by a train. One paper found with the body showed that he had checked out at the Hotel Sherman on Oct. 6. McCandless was a salesman employed by the Anderson-Tulley company, manufacturers of butter and egg crates.

STATE KEEPS PRISON GAG ON KLAN SECRETS

Disobey Court Order for Stephenson.

Michigan City, Ind., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Warden Walter Daly of Indiana state penitentiary, today refused to honor a writ issued by Superior Judge Sidney Miller of Indianapolis ordering D. C. Stephenson, former ruler of the Ku Klux Klan in Indiana, and now a prisoner at the institution, to appear as a witness in a receivership hearing in Indianapolis.

Stephenson has made amazing charges from his cell against Indiana city and state officials. He has promised to substantiate them by documentary proof if given an opportunity outside the prison. It was hoped by those investigating his charges that the court order summoning him to Indianapolis would afford this opportunity.

Can Take His Deposition.

In refusing to permit Stephenson to leave the penitentiary, where the former klan chieftain is serving a life sentence for the murder of a girl, Warden Daly followed the opinion issued last night by Attorney General Arthur L. Gilliom. The attorney general declared that he "knows of no authority whereby a court could order the return of a prisoner to testify in a civil suit."

"But," added the warden in a public statement outlining his position, "no objection to the taking of a deposition at the institution will be raised at any time."

Sheriff Jacob Hahn of Laporte county, arrived at the prison with the court order at 10:30 o'clock this morning. The sheriff was accompanied by Attorney Jacob Morgan and Herbert E. Wilson, the latter being the receiver of the Hoosier Tailors, Inc., of Indianapolis. Sheriff Hahn was conducted to the cell of Stephenson and permitted to serve the writ. Attorney Morgan and Wilson remained in the warden's office.

"How does it look, Sheriff?" Stephenson asked him. Sheriff Hahn reported.

Visited by Federal Agent.

A hint of possible federal activity in the case developed with a visit to Stephenson's cell of a man who identified himself as Jack Maroney, and who declared he was connected with the United States department of justice. He said he talked to Stephenson for an hour and a half, but was reticent as to the nature of his visit and declared that the prisoner declined to answer most of his questions.

GOVERNOR PROMISES QUIZ.

BY ORVILLE DWYER.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—The struggle over the actual possession of D. C. Stephenson, former grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan of Indiana, supposed holder of secrets and documents that will expose political corruption and hooded super government in the state, continues with the political group in power holding their man in his cell.

This was the situation today as the federal government indicated a tendency to step again into Indiana's political morass. Promises of a cleanup announced by Gov. Ed. Jackson and Clyde Walb, chairman of the Republican central committee, were traced directly to a conference these two had last Thursday night in Goshen, Ind., with Col. Theodore Roosevelt. Col. Roosevelt met Gov. Jackson and Chairman Walb at a meeting at which both the governor and the colonel were to talk. And although widely advertised, Col. Roosevelt did not appear on the platform with the governor.

Refused to Go on Platform.

It is now generally known in political circles that Col. Roosevelt, having read about Indiana's scandal in Chicago before going to Goshen, flatly refused to go on the platform and that he forced from the governor and Walb a promise of immediate official action by the Republican administration of the state.

It placed the governor and state chairman in a peculiar and paradoxical position. They had flatly blocked every move toward a temporary release of Stephenson from his prison cell; they had been dodging and evading all demands for an airing of Indiana's politics for months. And now they were forced to do something.

It was then that Gov. Jackson made his first public announcement. The governor now purposes that "an impartial investigating committee" go into the whole mess. He says—without referring back to the "impartial"—that he will appoint such a committee on Monday.

The governor states that his committee

Out 25 Hours; Cannot Agree on Verdict

New York, Oct. 9.—[Special.]—When the jurors in the trial of former United States Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty and former Alien Property Custodian Thomas W. Miller, for the second time tonight, reported to Judge Mack in federal court that they were unable to agree, the court refused to discharge them and ordered them locked up to resume their deliberations tomorrow morning.

Daugherty and Miller were charged with conspiracy to defraud the government in the transfer of $7,000,000 assets of the American Metals company, impounded during the war, from German to Swiss interests.

Judge Mack was summoned to court at 11 o'clock to be informed by a United States marshal that the jury foreman had reported that the jury was unable to agree on a verdict.

Judge Advises Jurors.

"I understand that you have been unable to reach agreement," said Judge Mack. "I understand that you believe that you can't agree on the evidence. I have had that statement made to me many, many times before. I regret it is my duty to compel you to deliberate further."

Then the judge repeated parts of his charge referring especially to the duty of the jurors to endeavor to reach an agreement.

"I must ask you to deliberate much longer before I can accept your conclusion," continued Judge Mack. "I shall adjourn your deliberations until tomorrow morning. You may go to your hotel and have a rest."

Talks with Judge.

William Rand, counsel for Miller, stepped up to the bench and engaged Judge Mack in conversation in low tones. They were talking a few minutes when Federal Attorney Emory R. Buckner stepped nearer the bench and asked if the jurors might start for their hotel.

"Yes, of course," replied Judge Mack, and the jurors wearily arose from their seats in the box and started for the street. The jury had been out on the case for more than 25 hours when they were brought to the courtroom.

From the nature of questions asked by jurors, lawyers deduced the jury was perplexed over whether the conspiracy count—the basis of the government's case—had been proved.

May Get Verdict Today.

The court made arrangements for receiving a Sunday verdict if the jury should agree. He instructed United States Marshal William G. Hecht and his deputies that if the jury reached a verdict they are to return to the federal court building at 10 o'clock Sunday morning to report.

When that arrangement was suggested the question as to the legality of a Sunday verdict was raised. Judge Mack said he would not be positive, but he assumed that it was all right. United States Attorney Emory R. Buckner, who has prosecuted the case against Daugherty and Miller, likewise did not know, but said he was of the opinion that a Sunday verdict would be regular in the eyes of the law.

Daugherty Asks Score.

The first question that Mr. Daugherty asked after the jury was sent out to dinner this afternoon was:

"What's the score?"

"Ten to two," said some one nearest him.

"That's too bad," said the former attorney general with a yawn. "I lost a dollar."

As Miller was leaving court an acquaintance suggested that it had begun to look like "a hung jury."

"Well, it's better to have the jury hung than to be hung yourself," said Miller.

BRITAIN MASSES FORCES TO CURB CHINESE MENACE

Plans Drastic Move; Gobs Enter Hankow

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

(Copyright, 1926, By The Chicago Tribune.)

LONDON, Oct. 9.—Drastic action in China is contemplated by the British government unless there is an immediate improvement in the situation. The Tribune learns today that the admiralty has just informed the government that on Oct. 15 all the necessary reinforcements will arrive at Canton. It is believed a landing force of 2,000 marines will be available with the other forces if found necessary.

LAND BLUEJACKETS

BY CHARLES DAILEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HANKOW, China, Oct. 9.—(Delayed)—Bluejackets landed in the British concession today at the request of the British consul, who fears attempts to invade the concession on Sunday, the anniversary of the revolution. The other consuls are not concerned, believing the celebration will be purely patriotic.

Two more British gunboats are arriving at Chungking, where the situation is easier. American, French and Japanese gunboats also are there.

The announcement by the Cantonese army leaders, who have been besieging Wuchang, across the Yangtse, that the Cantonese government will be removed to Wuchang within two months is received with great enthusiasm in Wuchang. This promise will accentuate Sunday's demonstration in Hankow. The terms for surrender of Wuchang are still being negotiated. Meanwhile, the armistice continues, the gates remaining closed. The city is quiet.

AROUSED BY VICTORY

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Oct. 9.—Police reserves and special protective forces are being mobilized in anticipation of possible disturbances tomorrow in the student and labor celebrations on the anniversary of the revolution. The excitement is highly intensified owing to news of the Kuomintang [Cantonese] victories at Wuchang and Kiukiang.

The Cantonese successes are profoundly affecting student and labor circles at Shanghai, causing a tightening of the police and military restrictions owing to the fear of an outbreak similar to last year's, which inflamed the whole country.

Advices from Hankow indicate the Wuchang evacuation is proceeding following the agreement on the terms of surrender, whereby the defeated defenders of the city, who were allies of Marshal Wu Pei-fu, are incorporated into the forces. The vanquished northerners must pay the Cantonese $300,000.

Besieged More Than a Month.

The surrender ends the most dramatic siege in modern China, the northerners holding out more than a month behind medieval walls, against the modern machine guns, artillery, airplanes, and bombs of the southerners.

In addition to obtaining the surrender of Wuchang, the southerners are further clinching the control of the Yangtse valley, with the reported evacuation of Kiukiang and Kiangsi province by Marshal Sun Chuang-fang, ally of Wu. Telegrams received by naval authorities say Marshal Sun is removing his troops down the river to make a final stand at Nanking, Kiangsu provincial capital.

Canton Taxes Worry Powers.

Reports from Peking and Canton say the powers are perplexed regarding the Cantonese announcement regarding new taxation on foreign goods which was put into effect today. The Canton government declares its intention to levy special taxes amounting to 2½ per cent on general products and 5 per cent on luxuries, similar to the Washington conference provision, but the action is taken independently of the powers; the Cantonese regarding the collections and keeping the proceeds.

The British notify their allegations that they have extended financial support to Marshal Sun Chuan-fang in order to offset the Cantonese advance which are circulated in the Japanese press.

Troops Seize U. S. Professor.

Joseph W. Hall, a professor of the University of Washington, Seattle, arrived in Shanghai this morning after being held prisoner by Chinese militarists for nearly ten days on the charge of being a soviet spy. Mr. Hall, who formerly was a newspaper man in China, was making a trip to China, chow, Honan province, to interview Marshal Wu Pei-fu, central China leader.

After that he started for Shanghai, when he was arrested by agents of Gen. Sun Chuan-fang, ruler of eastern China, and detained ten days at Hsuchowfu, Kiangsi province, while the military made investigations, despite Mr. Hall's possession of an American passport and his attempt to communicate with American consuls.

Kellogg Asks Aid for City.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Impelled by humane considerations, Secretary of State Kellogg directed the American legation in Peking today to suggest an armistice to the warring Chinese factions so that remaining noncombatants might evacuate the besieged city of Wuchang.

The suggestion will be relayed by the legation to Consul General Frank Lockhart at Hankow, across the river from Wuchang. The aid of foreign relief agencies will be extended to the city's residents.

Graphic reports of extreme suffering among the civilian population in Wuchang prompted the secretary's action. A report from Mr. Lockhart, sent from Hankow on Thursday, reached the state department shortly after the secretary had cabled his instructions to Peking. This report said accounts of the situation in the besieged city had been greatly exaggerated and there had been "practically no deaths from starvation."

Should fighting at Wuchang be terminated by agreement, Mr. Lockhart said there would be no occasion for American diplomatic and consular intervention in the name of humanity.

The message today reported all Americans in Wuchang and Nanchang safe and well.

PREACHER BACK, FINDS HIS HOME HAS BEEN LOOTED

The Rev. Walter C. Scott, D. D., who lives at 924 Castlewood terrace, found when he returned from Rock River conference, which he attended at Freeport, Ill., early this week, that his residence had been entered by robbers during his absence. He estimated his losses at $2,000.

"One of the surprising and distressing features of the robbery," Dr. Scott said, "was the cutting out of oil paintings, leaving the frames hanging on the wall. These paintings were scenes from the picturesque Rock river near the home of Frank O. Lowden. The pictures were painted by the artists' colony of the section near Oregon, Ill.

"The robbers also stole a radio, three valuable rings belonging to Mrs. Scott, clothing and even electric light fixtures. Guess the robbers were trying to furnish a flat of their own."

Illinois A. C. Out of Debt; Destroys Bonds

With solemn formality the members of the Illinois Athletic club last night burned the bonds that had represented their last bit of indebtedness. The club is now entirely free of debt and is said to be one of the few athletic organizations in the country in the same strong position. The ceremony was held at the end of a dinner in the club house, attended by 700 members and their womenfolk.

SILAS STRAWN IS HOME; TELLS OF CHAOS IN CHINA

Mission Failure Because of Endless War.

Disgusted with China's countless wars, which have kept him waiting in vain for eleven months to complete negotiations for a tariff treaty, Silas Hardy Strawn, noted Chicago attorney, returned home yesterday to await the time when China is ready to talk officially.

Mr. Strawn went to China as the American delegate to the special conference on Chinese customs tariff and as the American commissioner to the commission on extraterritorial jurisdiction in China. His work in the latter was a success, and his report on this is now in the hands of President Coolidge; but his work on the former amounted to nothing, he said.

Will Meet Coolidge Tuesday.

Mr. Strawn will leave Tuesday for Washington, D. C., where he will be in conference with President Coolidge and Secretary of State Kellogg for discussion of the report, the contents of which are being kept secret.

When Mr. Strawn went to China he met with eleven Chinese representatives on their tariff commission. One by one these commissioners were forced out due to the constant changes in government until only two were left, and these without any power, he said.

Others of the eleven nations represented at the tariff conference began to drop out, he said, until he was the last of the foreign representation remaining. U. S. Ambassador to China John MacMurray will continue Mr. Strawn's work at this conference unless Mr. Strawn is ordered back.

Mrs. Strawn Back, Too.

Mrs. Strawn accompanied her husband on the trip and returned with him yesterday. They told of being in territory on several occasions where actual fighting was in progress, although they were not in danger at any time.

The internal outlook in China is very gloomy, Mr. Strawn declared. The entire nation is so torn by civil wars that should peace be restored and a central government established, it will be years before China can take her place among the leading powers of the world, he declared.

HARRY MITCHELL, TAILOR, DROPS DEAD IN THEATER

Harry Mitchell, proprietor of a tailoring establishment in the Chicago downtown district since 1890, died suddenly yesterday, presumably of heart disease, while witnessing a performance in the new Orpheum theater, Randolph and La Salle streets. He was 65 years old and lived at 6714 East End avenue.

Mr. Mitchell was stricken without warning. Irving Kihn, 2216 South Racine avenue, and Irving Schulman, 1620 South St. Louis avenue, seated near him, carried him to the lobby of the theater with the aid of ushers. He was taken to St. Luke's hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

Born in Duluth on March 13, 1871, Mr. Mitchell was apprenticed to a tailor when 16 years old. He moved to Chicago in 1896, opening a tailor shop here. Later he moved back to Duluth, and then to Minneapolis, returning to Chicago in 1912. The Mitchell shop is at 18 East Jackson boulevard. He is survived by his widow, three sons, and two daughters.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 11 a. m. from the chapel at 936 East 47th street.

'MOTHER' OWENS, EARLY CHICAGO RESIDENT, DEAD

Mrs. Ida Owens, native Chicagoan, and known to her friends and acquaintances as Mother Owens, died yesterday at her home, 9411 Oglesby avenue. Mrs. Owens was the widow of Thomas Owens, well known during his life as a Chicago music teacher. She was 66 years old.

Her father, Benjamin Killham, came to Chicago in 1837 in a prairie schooner from Canada. She is survived by seven children and twenty grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at St. Bernard's church. Mrs. Owens' six sons are to serve as pallbearers. Burial will be at Calvary cemetery.

FRENCH DOCTOR PREDICTS SERUM FOR CURE OF T. B.

Dr. Edouard Rist of the Pasteur institute of Paris, authority on the treatment of tuberculosis and co-director of the Laennec hospital and dispensary, arrived in Chicago yesterday as the guest of the Chicago Tuberculosis Institute. He outlined recent revolutionary discoveries in the way of research for the prevention and cure of tuberculosis.

As a result of experiments conducted by Prof. Albert Calmette, assistant director of the Pasteur institute, science predicts a time when tuberculosis may be prevented by means of innoculation similar to the treatment for preventing diphtheria and smallpox, Dr. Rist declared. Prof. Calmette, he said, has lately succeeded in permanently attenuating a certain strain of tubercle bacilli which may be innoculated alive into animal species without them contracting the disease.

DRAFTING COPS SOON TO TALK, U. S. PREDICTS

Gamblers Next to Be Called On for Evidence.

Policemen who were never allowed to get in on the big money are going to turn informers and lay bare the whole gigantic conspiracy by which millions in bootleg graft were collected by Chicago police officials, it was predicted yesterday at the federal building.

Government investigators who announced previously that they expected indictments against five district police commanders asserted that the steady flow of tips from the squealing element in the department had already made it probable that fifteen captains would be named in true bills by a federal grand jury.

Expect Police to Confess.

The government is not depending entirely, however, on the inside information from the disgruntled policemen. It was said that such well known figures in the underworld as "Lovin' Putty" Anixter, Jack Zuta, Joe Glaser and "Jew Kid" Grabiner, reputedly the holders of concessions for a long chain of gamblers in certain districts, will be called to tell the grand jury what they know about grafting policemen, if any, and whether beer and hooch are sold in their resorts.

The huge pay roll of the Genna brothers, once the alcohol kings of the city, will be only one of the matters to be investigated by the grand jury which starts its work tomorrow. When henchmen of the Gennas killed Policemen Olson and Walsh more than a year ago raids were made on the Genna headquarters at 1022 Taylor street and numerous documents were seized. Included were records showing payments to policemen. One of the allegations is that the raiders destroyed this evidence against their own comrades by dumping the documents in the river.

May Bring Back Genna.

Efforts are being made, it is admitted, to bring back Jim Genna, who fled to Italy after three of his brothers had been killed. His testimony, it is believed, would result in a speedy exposure of the widespread activities of the alleged graft ring.

Strange stories are leaking into the offices where A. P. Madden, director of the government's intelligence unit, is gathering his evidence. One is to the effect that one group of policemen were real Jekyll-Hyde characters, shaking down bootleggers in their own districts when on duty and peddling alcohol in other sections on their off time.

List of Graft Payers.

Among the places which paid definite amounts in graft, it was disclosed by a tipster, is an office in the London Guaranty building. The operator picked in with $1,000. In the Gunther building, a bootlegger's office, it is said, paid over another $1,000. A cutting plant on Ogden avenue was nicked for $2,000 and an additional $250 a month. Near Roosevelt road and Kedzie avenue, a bootlegger kicked in with $350 a month, which seems to have been a favorite figure. Three places in a single block on West Division street, it is related, put in a total of $3,500.

One of those most often mentioned as a possible witness is Al Capone, alias Scarface Al Brown, the ex-vice lord of Cicero. But Brown denied last night that he knew anything to tell or would tell anything if he knew it.

"I will never squeal on anybody," he asserted. "Get that right. I am not after any coppers and I am not friends with any."

Reports Alarm Among Captains.

Intelligence Agent Patrick Roche, one of the government forces, declared last night that there was great alarm among the captains who have been taking heavy money for protection.

It was indicated that Chief of Police Collins, who has offered to aid the investigation, will be called as one of the first witnesses before the grand jury. He may be asked, it was said, to explain the liberties enjoyed by district commanders under rulings which allowed them to hold prisoners under the "open booking" system. It is asserted that this system permitted the grafters to collect from the wealthy victims and turn them out without leaving any marks on record books.

FIRE TRUCK SPEEDING TO PLANE CRASH HITS AUTO

Scene at Church street and Ridge avenue, Evanston, yesterday when fire truck, speeding to airplane crash on bank of drainage canal, crashed into automobile, injuring four, one a fireman. The plane had been flying over the Northwestern university stadium and fell when engine trouble developed.

The aviators in the Evanston plane crash, John Luke (left) and Adolph Korsgen, who were not injured. They were being held by Evanston police. They had been distributing literature at a football game.

LOOP SPACE FOR PARKING FOUND FAR TOO SMALL

Only 15 per cent of the automobiles which seek to park in loop streets during the day can be accommodated, according to estimates announced by the Chicago Association of Commerce, following a survey conducted by Miller McClintock, traffic engineer. The total curb length of the loop district, excluding alleys, was found to be 57,958 feet.

"This would seem to permit of the parking of 3,963 vehicles, averaging 16 feet to the car," says the report. "But various restrictions cut down the available curb space so that 1,157 vehicles may be accommodated at one time."

Strict enforcement of the parking rule would take care of 27,768 vehicles per twelve hour day, but actually, on account of restrictions against parking on certain streets, only 18,000 cars are taken care of.

"Curb parking in Chicago is reducing the capacity of streets from 35 to 50 per cent," says the report. "Thus roadways capable of carrying two lines of vehicles are being converted into two lane streets and roadways." Double line parking is the most serious feature of the entire parking problem. Many thousands of dollars are lost annually through "chaotic" parking conditions, the report declared.

SALVATION ARMY HAS $97,722 OF $319,000 SOUGHT

For the first week of the Salvation Army drive for $319,999 the campaign committee announces through its chairman, John F. Gilchrist, vice president of the Commonwealth Edison company, that it has raised a total of $97,722 which is $51,115 more than it raised last year on the same day.

The campaign officials, who meet daily for report luncheons at the Sherman hotel, feel most optimistic about the success of the campaign. There are 57 trade groups each headed by a chairman. These chairmen represent thousands of lumbermen, butter and egg men, bankers, members of the Board of Trade, lawyers, contractors, insurance men, doctors, tradesmen, and workers of all kinds.

Each group is given a quota to raise and for this the chairman is responsible. The chairmen who have made outstanding reports in ratio to their respective quotas during the first week of the campaign are: David McDougal, representing the banks; A. C. Cronkrite of the contractor's group; Fred H. Scheel, representing both the Board of Trade and stock and bonds division; E. M. Hughes, stock yards, and Rush Butler, chairman of the legal group. The campaign ends on Oct. 24.

WE COULD TELL THIS BETTER IF WE KNEW ESPERANTO

[Copyright: 1926: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Oct. 9.—London's much heralded first wedding in Esperanto was duly celebrated today. Neither bride nor bridegroom lost nerve at the last moment, though many supposed they would, in view of the fact that the name for the former in Esperanto is "edzigontino" and of the latter "edzigonto."

Nor was the best man scared from attending the ceremony, though in Esperanto he is called "edzigkunolo"; and the bridesmaid was addressed by the ardent Esperantists present as the "edzigkunolino."

The edzigonto on this unprecedented occasion was S. Jackson Coleman of London, who took as his edzigontino Miss Mimza Schonau of Salzsburg, Austria. The edzigkunolo was an old friend of the edzigconto, while that of edzigkunolino, was taken by Miss Irma Stephana Suranyi. The Rev. A. J. Ashby, vicar of the church in Yorkshire, who has a knowledge of Esperanto, officiated.

"Cu vi deziras havi tiun virinon kiuvian langegan edzin on?" he solemnly inquired of the edzigontino.

"Mi tion volas," she replied without hesitation, thus becoming 100 per cent unafried. Then all hands adjourned to a restaurant.

Lamp Factory Bombed; Labor Trouble Blamed

Labor trouble was blamed for the bombing early today of the lamp manufacturing plant of the Rindsberger corporation at 18 East 24th street. A black powder bomb, tossed in the rear of the building, smashed several windows. About a week ago nonunion employes of the concern, hired after a strike had been called by organized workers, were fired on at Clark and Erie streets and two were slightly wounded.

DECLARES WAR DEBTS ALREADY CANCELED TO AN UNREALIZED EXTENT

European war debts to the United States have been canceled to a greater extent than most people of Europe and this country realize, Harold G. Moulton, director of the Institute of Economics in Washington, D. C., yesterday told the Chicago Council of Foreign Relations at the Palmer house.

"Taking the debts of continental countries in the aggregate, approximately 58 per cent have been canceled, running from 19.3 per cent in the case of Finland and Latvia, to 75.4 per cent in the case of Italy," Dr. Moulton declared. "The unratified agreement with France provided for cancellation of 52.6 per cent, while the Belgian settlement provides a 53.5 per cent cancellation."

Such easy settlements shame European countries demanding further cancellation, Dr. Moulton asserted. Funding of debts has made possible the obtaining of huge loans in the United States, he pointed out

PREACHER LAUDS YOUNG PEOPLE; CITES OLD FEARS

Fears of many of the older generation that the younger one is too much interested in dress, and too little of that, risque novels, magazines and movies, hip flasks and fast autos were discounted last night by the Rev. F. L. Oberschutle of St. Paul, Minn. He spoke at the Lutheran exposition at the Hotel Sherman.

Talking to 1,500 young people, he declared that their generation has a lively interest in the churches. Then so that they might get some perspective, he read the following from a circular letter of the Lutheran clergy of 1789:

"We perceive with pain and fearful apprehension the general dereliction of religious principles among our fellowmen; there is a visible and prevailing impiety and contempt for the laws and institutions of religion. Profaneness, luxury, lewdness and every species of debauchery and loose indulgence prevail."

CHARGES JAIL PRISONERS PLOT BOMB ESCAPE

Scott Hanging Signal, Ex-Inmate Says.

As a protest against the hanging of Russell Scott, scheduled for sunrise next Friday morning, prisoners at the county jail had planned to touch off a bomb and stage a riot during which some of them might gain freedom, it was reported yesterday to Sheriff Peter M. Hoffman.

Immediate measures were taken by the sheriff and Warden Edward J. Fogarty to block any such conspiracy. The jail was searched for explosives and all guards were ordered to be constantly on watch for suspicious actions on the part of prisoners. The six policemen, armed with shotguns, stationed outside the jail, were given instructions to shoot to kill, if through any mishap any prisoner should succeed in breaking out.

Inquiry Seeks Plot Leaders.

While an inquiry was under foot to ascertain, if possible, what prisoners were responsible for the plot, Warden Fogarty expressed doubt of the story of Sergt. Thomas F. Joyce of the North Robey street station, whose report to Sheriff Hoffman caused the investigation.

While acting lieutenant in his station, Sept. 30, Joyce had occasion to meet John Kelly, 1729 Linder avenue, arrested for speeding while intoxicated. Kelly was sent to the county jail until he had a hearing last Thursday before Municipal Judge Schulman. He was put on probation for six months.

"I'm sure glad to get out of that county jail," Kelly remarked to Sergt. Joyce, according to the latter's story. "They're a tough crew and I was scared to death all the time."

"What do you mean?" Joyce asked him.

Tells of Bombing Plan.

"One day in the bull pen I overheard some of them plotting to bomb the jail the morning Russell Scott was to be hanged," Kelly replied, according to Joyce. "Nitroglycerine was to be smuggled in and an hour before the hanging the bomb was to be set off. They thought it would be a good time to stage a riot and perhaps escape."

Kelly told Joyce he was so frightened that the men would become aware that he was eavesdropping that he slipped away without having a good look at the plotters. He was doubtful of his ability to identify them. It was deemed likely that he might be brought in and a showup arranged whereby he might be able to point out the plotters.

Scott Appeals to High Court.

Attorney William Scott Stewart, representing Scott, will leave for Springfield tonight to appeal to the Supreme court for a writ of supersedeas, which will allow a review of the murder case and will postpone the hanging. He will base his plea on the fact that Judge Marcus Kavanagh refused Scott a change of venue and also called in alienists to give impartial testimony on Scott's sanity.

Scott was convicted of the murder of Joseph Maurer, a drug clerk.

PORTER SEES LITTLE CHANCE OF AMERICA ENTERING THE COURT

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Returning from Europe, where he participated in the sessions of the Interparliamentary Union at Geneva, Rep. Stephen G. Porter [Rep., Pa.] chairman of the house foreign affairs committee, today made it clear that there is little chance for American entrance into the world court at this time.

Mr. Porter called at the White House and conferred with President Coolidge. He told the President that there is little hope that material results will be obtained from the preliminary arms conference, which is still holding sessions in Geneva. With the world court apparently shoved aside, he announced that at the next session of congress he will urge the passage of the Tinkham resolution calling for another international conference at The Hague for the codification of international law.

HALTS LAUNDRY MACHINERY FOR SMOKING STACK

City Gets Pledges, Lets Plant Start Again.

Losing patience yesterday, Health Commissioner Herman N. Bundesen stopped the machinery of the Hyde Park hotel laundry, Lake Park avenue, near Hyde Park boulevard, by putting out the fires in its boiler room.

It was the second time in the anti-smoke campaign recently that the commissioner has invoked that drastic method of compelling plant owners to prevent their stacks from smoking. Two weeks ago he took similar action against the Mid-City State bank.

The hotel laundry is an old offender, Frank A. Chambers, head of the smoke bureau, informed Dr. Bundesen. After warnings last July, however, it cleaned up its furnaces and stopped smoking for nearly three months.

Laundry Manager Summoned.

Then, a week ago, six successive violations were reported by the inspector of the district and the laundry manager, George A. Lewis, was cited before the smoke abatement board Monday. He promised to be more careful.

Yesterday morning, however, at 9:30 the inspector noticed the laundry's stack belching black smoke for ten minutes. He notified Dr. Bundesen, who ordered him immediately to put out the fires. He did. All machinery stopped.

Two hours later Mr. Lewis appeared in the commissioner's office and asked for another chance. A new fireman had been hired, he said, and the smoking was due to carelessness. Dr. Bundesen, after this explanation, agreed to restoking of the fires, but warned that they would be pulled without notice if further smoking was observed.

Says Fair Notice Is Given.

"We can't stand over the firemen all the time with a club," the commissioner declared. "When we have showed them how to prevent smoke and given them due warning our duty ends. If they ignore the warning they must take the consequences."

Dr. Bundesen left last night for a four day trip to Buffalo, N. Y. There he will speak at a convention of the American Public Health association. He left instructions with Mr. Chambers to continue the anti-smoke fight.

WOMAN'S DEATH HELD SUICIDE.

A coroner's jury returned a verdict of suicide yesterday in the case of Mrs. Veronica Lambur, 36 years old, 4903 Lake Park avenue, whose body was found in her apartment early yesterday. A bottle of poison lay near the body.

CLINNIN ASKS COOLIDGE TO RUSH HOSPITALS FOR VETS MENTALLY ILL

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—John V. Clinnin of Chicago, national commander of the Disabled American Veterans, today called President Coolidge's attention to the constantly rising number of mental and nervous cases among world war veterans and urged the completion of the permanent hospital program for mental cases at emergency speed.

"A shortage of beds for the mentally disabled has produced an acute situation," Mr. Clinnin said.

"I told the President that, while we believe Gen. Hines is intelligently and sincerely attacking the problems of the veterans' bureau, there is still much to be improved and that there is a shortage of beds for the disabled men. While the number of tubercular men hospitalized is on a steady decrease, there is a constantly rising curve of mental and nervous diseases."

Mr. Clinnin said the President promised his help.

KEEP PRISON GAG ON STEPHENSON; WRIT DISOBEYED

Governor Promises Klan Scandal Inquiry.

tee will probably get to work some time next week, Tuesday or Wednesday, and that it will go to the prison with two public stenographers. He says that Stephenson will be questioned in some room at the penitentiary, and that he will make the answers public.

Chairman Thomas H. Adams of the Indiana Republican Editorial association's probe committee sent telegrams during the day to every member of the state senate asking each whether he would join in demanding a special session of the legislature to conduct an investigation of the charges Adams says he can prove.

The Vincennes publisher does not want any such private investigations as Gov. Jackson proposes. Adams says such an inquiry will serve no purpose, got nowhere.

Calls Move Ridiculous.

"It is foolish to think any committee the governor appoints would do anything honestly constructive," he declares. "Here we have the spectacle of a governor who has been doing everything in his power to gag this investigation trying to pretend that, after months, he has suddenly sprung into action and wants the truth brought out.

"It is ridiculous. The Indiana Republican officials are trying simply to throw up a smoke screen for the benefit of Col. Roosevelt and the Republican national committee. And that is the sum and total of all they intend to do toward getting at the truth and exposing it."

Erskine Offers Aid.

A. R. Erskine of South Bend, Ind., president of the Studebaker corporation, telegraphed Adams, congratulating him on his service to the state and offering to help finance the investigation Adams declares has so far cost $10,000 of his own money.

Erskine declared he had telegraphed the attorney general urging him to cooperate with the Adams committee. The South Bend manufacturer's offer to head a committee to raise funds for the klan régime investigation was accepted by Adams.

Justice Department Interested.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Charges of political corruption in Indiana made by D. C. Stephenson, former klan leader now in the state penitentiary at Michigan City, have drawn the attention of the department of justice, it was disclosed here today.

Department officials admitted their interest in charges made by Stephenson in connection with the sale of war surplus supplies to the Indian state highway commission. The declaration alleged to have been made by Stephenson that he could explain "framed indictments" against members of the commission is one of the subjects of investigation. Officials denied, however, that they were interested in any other phase of the Indiana situation.

QUEBEC PREMIER TO ATTEND PRIVY COUNCIL HEARING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Montreal, Quebec, Oct. 9.—Premier Taschereau of Quebec, with Mrs. Taschereau, is on board the Empress of Scotland now en route to England. The premier, as attorney general of the province, will be present at the Canadian Labrador hearing before the privy council, scheduled to open on Oct. 19. The province will be represented by Charles Lanctot, assistant attorney general, and Aime Geofrion.

While in England the prime minister will confer with the agent general of the province, Dr. L. J. Lemieux, in connection with the bureau reorganization, which has been in progress for some time. In November Premier and Mrs. Taschereau will proceed to Paris. There are rumors that the premier will study the advisability of appointing a representative of the province in France. The next visit will be to Brussels.

Later Premier Taschereau will go to Rome. An audience has been arranged with the pope, and some of the members of the Sacred college, of which Premier Taschereau's uncle, the late Cardinal Taschereau, was a member. The Taschereaus are expected to return by way of New York early in December.

STEPHENSON'S LIFE MOSAIC OF FOOLISH WOMEN

Banished from Klan for His Immoralities.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 9.—[Special.] Five causes led to the political and social fall of David Curtis Stephenson, former Ku Klux Klan boss in the middle west, now in a prison cell at Michigan City, Ind.

The first was his ambition for political power, which led him even to the length of announcing his candidacy for the United States senate at a private dinner at the Lincoln hotel here in 1924. He exercised klan sway in twenty-two states at one time, including Illinois, Indiana, and Ohio.

Saw Self as Warwick.

He tried to take over the national organization, reaching into Washington and forming a plan in klancraft that was to cover the nation. He was even to be a president maker. At this period, it is said of him, he remained incognito and conducted himself in such a manner that thousands of good men were attracted to his banner. He was a flaming evangel—a dynamic center of power. There were about 300 members in his following at one time, it is claimed.

"I have seen him kneel down at his bed and pray as innocently as a child," said one of his former intimates.

But his strange dual personality was split. The repressions burst the dam. He began drinking again.

"And no woman was safe from him then," said this same informant.

Struck at His Weakness.

The national organization had to crush this man who had such delusions of grandeur that some considered him a paranoiac. His senatorial candidacy died in infancy. And they struck at his weakness. Throughout this career runs the sinister thread of reckless disregard of womanhood. It was the profound resentment of Indiana women against him that led to his conviction in the Madge Oberholtzer case. His past contains a picture gallery of women playthings, lovers, wives, and friends. Hardly a one is left. They are in his pathway now to mock him, all the way from his obscure days in Oklahoma, where he had run away from his wife, through Ohio and Indiana. They have a cumulative revenge, perhaps, for it is this same woman resentment, still existent in the state, that is depended upon by the new political rulers to keep Stephenson where he is.

"Would you believe Stephenson?" is to be one of the cryptic slogans of this campaign.

Klan Has Thumbs Down.

And the high klan powers that he defied, that turned him out, still have thumbs down toward the evangelist-orator. His threats, which they believe to be empty, have killed, they say, any chance of pardon or parole he might have had.

So, through women, he has lost his freedom, his automobiles, his yacht and airplane, his mansion and servants and riches.

The trial of Stephenson before the Evansville Klan on June 23, 1924, furnishes illuminating chapters of his history. A minister, former worker for Stephenson, had disclosed Stephenson's immoral practices to Dr. H. W. Evans, the imperial wizard. This minister, it is told, had become horrified by seeing Stephenson in a hotel room in Indianapolis with a woman lecturer for the klan sitting in his lap with her arms about his neck.

Evidence Easy to Get.

Evidence was easy to get, for the national organization had determined to get rid of Stephenson, and much of this was presented at his trial. Charge No. 2, in the transcript gives the following:

"In that, on or about the 15th day of July, 1923, at Buckeye Lake, Ohio, David Curtis Stephenson, while in a drunken and debauched condition, and clothed in his underwear, came into the bedroom, in the night time, of ——— ———, a virtuous young lady of Evansville, Ind., who was then an employe of David Curtis Stephenson and the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan. That David Curtis Stephenson did then and there insult the said ——— ———, and demean himself in a disrespectful manner toward her; that he did then and there attempt to force his affections upon her. And so on.

Columbus Hotel Episode.

"In that on the 5th day of January, 1924, in the city of Columbus, in the Deshler hotel, David Curtis Stephenson requested ——— ———, a virtuous young lady of Columbus, O., who was then a manicurist at the said Deschler hotel, to come to his bedroom in said hotel, for the purpose of giving him a manicure; that she did go to his room as requested; that David Curtis Stephenson was then and there in a drunken and debauched condition, which condition was unknown to the said young lady; that almost immediately upon her entrance into the room David Curtis Stephenson did then and there insult her, and demean himself in a disrespectful manner toward her; that he then and there attempted to assault her.".

Charge number 5 states:

"In that, on or about the 10th day of June, 1923, in the city of Columbus, O., and in the night time, David Curtis Stephenson, in company with a young lady, was in an automobile, and had parked said automobile near the city of Columbus, O., on a prominent public highway, without displaying proper lights on said automobile, that at the said time, he and the said young lady were apprehended, and then seen in the said automobile by a certain deputy sheriff of Columbus, in a disgraceful and immoral, compromising position.

Convicted and Fined.

"That, as a result of which said conduct, the said David Curtis Stephenson was arrested and upon a plea of guilty before a certain justice of the peace of the city of Columbus, was convicted and fined, on the 11th day of June, 1923."

Detailed testimony of the stenographer, the manucurist, and the arresting officer in the automobile case, was then given to the klavern judges.

There is also in existence an affidavit by a former Logansport girl detailing a trip with Stephenson to Atlanta, Ga., in 1924. On this trip, it is stated, Stephenson and this girl and another couple, occupied a drawing room together, and there was much drinking of absinthe.

Mexicans Frame Law to Cut Off Legislators' Graft Jobs

BY JOHN CORNYN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Mexico City, Oct. 9.—The majority group in the chamber of deputies has prepared a bill which is intended to reduce grafting by members of congress. It has long been the custom in all branches of the government for those in power to draw several salaries for several positions. Members of congress hold as many as three jobs, including that of deputy, which pays about $500 a month.

The new bill proposes to increase the salaries of senators and deputies $100 a month and to make positions in congressional commissions and the like purely honorary.

The newspapers here are exposing cases of the holding of three jobs by senators and deputies by the simple expedient of slightly changing the initials of the office holder, as, for example, Jose Maria Moreno, deputy; Jose M. Morena, health commissioner, and Jose Moreno, traffic inspector.

Retain Pani on U. S. Protest.

Thomas W. Lamont, New York financier, has taken a hand in the resignation of Alberto J. Pani, minister of finance, which was presented five weeks ago, and Señor Pani's resignation will not be accepted until the end of the year, because Mr. Lamont considers the acceptance would be unfavorable to the agreement between Mexico and the international bankers' commission, negotiated by Minister Pani.

Mr. Lamont also objected to the appointment of Luis Montes de Oca to replace Señor Pani. This explains why Señor Pani still holds the office notwithstanding the repeated assertions that he had resigned over a disagreement with Luis Morones, minister of industry, commerce and labor, and that President Calles had accepted his resignation.

Warns of Peril to Finance.

Mr. Lamont is said to have pointed out that Señor Pani was agreeable to New York financiers and his removal would endanger the negotiations between them and the Mexican government. Mr. Lamont's objection to Señor Montes de Oca is that he is too close to the more radical element of the Mexican government and avowedly unfavorable to American activities in Mexico.

In financial circles here it is said Mr. Lamont favors Alberto Mascarene, head of the national finance commission and former Mexican financial agent in London and New York, as Señor Pani's successor when the latter steps out.

Silver Drop Alarms Mexico.

Financial Mexico is greatly concerned over the continued drop in the price of silver. Owing to the low value of silver, most owners of houses and stores are demanding payments of rents in gold, raising rents 5 per cent and tending still further to decrease the value of silver and increase the value of gold. Closing of many silver mines is threatened.

Harrison, N. J., Oct. 9.—(AP)—A load of live coals from a furnace fire kindled in 1847 and never allowed to go out was carried from the public service gas works in Market street, Newark, to the new plant in Harrison. The new plant was put into service today.

Dry Who Tried to Search Auto Dies from Wounds

Burlington, Vt., Oct. 9.—(AP)—E. E. Webb of St. Albans, who was shot yesterday while attempting to search an automobile for liquor, died here tonight. Walter Mason, a hotel proprietor, and Alpheus White, both of Fort Ann, N. Y., will face charges growing out of the shooting.

BROOKHART WILL NOT HIRE UNION LABOR, CHARGE

Albia, Ia., Oct. 9.—[United Press.]—Charging that Col. Smith W. Brookhart is unfair to union labor in his personal affairs, Claude R. Porter, Democratic candidate for the United States senate, used a signed statement from labor officials at Washington, Ia., to substantiate his charge before a labor meeting here today. The letter, which Porter says was presented him and signed by J. A. Simpson, president of the building trades central body, and organizer for the American Federation of Labor, recites that Brookhart has been the owner of a residence and business properties in Washington, Ia., for ten years and that "he has never employed union labor, and we regard him as unfair to union labor."

SHOOTS BANDIT, ROUTS PALS TO WIN HERO PRIZE

$100 Tribune Award to Policeman Wm. Burke.

Three bandits with drawn revolvers walked into a restaurant at 323 West 51st street the night of Sept. 25. Four patrons sitting at a table playing cards threw up their hands. It looked like an easy job.

But that was where trouble, swift and disastrous, overtook them. A moment later one of the bandits, his gun shot from his hand and wounded twice, was a prisoner and his two pals were scrambling for the door.

The cause of their retreat was the quick thinking, accurate aim, and courage of Patrolman William Burke of the Englewood station. For his commendable action the policeman is awarded the $100 TRIBUNE bravery award for September.

Ou Furce for Four Years.

Patrolman Burke is 31 years old, single, and lives with a sister at 5143 South Wells street. He has been on the police force four years, all of which he has served in the Englewood district.

The story of Patrolman Burke's fight with the bandits, as told in an official report from Capt. Michael Lee, might well have been a chapter from one of Nick Carter's dime novels.

Burke, according to the report, was passing the time until he was to report for duty at midnight in a card game with Frank J. Huber, Henry Neumann, and Michael Ryan, three neighborhood friends, when the holdup men entered and ordered them to "shell out."

The four and Daniel McGrath, proprietor of the place, stood up and backed toward the wall with their hands raised. Burke edged toward a stove in the corner and leaped behind it, whipping out his revolver, but not before the holdup men had fired several shots.

Burke returned the fire. His first bullet struck the cylinder of the revolver of one of the three, the second taking effect in his forearm. At that the other two ran for the door, the wounded man surrendering. The patrolman then pursued the two but they had made their getaway.

The wounded bandit, who gave his name as Peter Kusma, 4436 South Artesian avenue, was taken to the Bridewell hospital. An investigation later disclosed that he is an ex-convict out on parole.

Two other policemen and two firemen receive honorable mention for acts of bravery in September.

The policemen are Patrolmen Frank J. Spurney and Herbert Schoenbeck, 19th district, who on Sept. 21 took into custody an insane man swinging a scythe at Madison and Halsted streets.

Firemen Get Honorable Mention.

Lieut. James Gibbons of hook and ladder company No. 29 rescued a crippled man by assisting him down three flights of stairs in a burning building at 245 West Marquette road on Sept. 12.

A similar act was performed by Fireman Edmond Harper, hook and ladder company No. 28, who carried Mrs. J. L. Graham out of a burning house at 3457 Jackson boulevard on Sept. 27.

COURT FORBIDS WGES TO HINDER W-G-N PROGRAMS

Writ May Set Precedent on Wave Lengths.

THE TRIBUNE company, representing the radio broadcasting stations W-G-N and WLIB, filed suit yesterday in the Circuit court against the Oak Leaves Broadcasting station, the Coyne Electrical School, and J. L. Guyon, owner of Guyon's Paradise ballroom, owners of station WGES, charging that station was using a broadcasting wave length which interfered with W-G-N's and WLIB's broadcasting.

Circuit Judge Francis S. Wilson issued a temporary injunction after arguments by Attorney Weymouth Kirkland. The order restrained the defendants from using any meter length which will interfere with the broadcasting by W-G-N and WLIB.

Last Sept. 7 the Guyon station began using a wave length which interfered with the complainants' broadcasting, their petition for an injunction charged. This caused a serious loss to THE TRIBUNE station, as listeners were unable to tune out WGES and listen to programs upon which THE TRIBUNE has spent $135,000 so far in 1926, according to the bill.

Case May Set Precedent.

Should the injunction be made permanent it will serve as a precedent for other stations suffering from such interference.

THE TRIBUNE, through its radio station, W-G-N, is making the following announcement concerning its action to its listeners:

"W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel, has an announcement to make which should prove of great interest to listeners who have been unable to hear our programs owing to interference from other stations. THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE took first steps to correct this evil today when it obtained an injunction restrain WGES, the Coyne Electrical School and Guyon station from interfering with W-G-N's programs or broadcasting on a wave length that will interfere with W-G-N's programs.

"A temporary injunction was granted this morning in the Circuit court before Judge Francis S. Wilson. The injunction does not ask that WGES cease broadcasting; it merely protects W-G-N's priority right to the wave band it occupies, and a band fixed by law on either side of that wave length keeps it clear from interference. WGES has been encroaching on this protective band. It also serves to protect the rights of W-G-N's listeners and the tremendous investment THE TRIBUNE has made in an endeavor to furnish the finest program possible.

Affects Listeners' Interests.

"That we will meet with opposition in attempting to establish our rights in the air cannot be doubted. In this fight our listeners can be of great help to us, should they desire, by signifying their willingness to testify that their enjoyment of W-G-N's programs was spoiled by interference from WGES. Such action on your part will be of assistance to radio broadcasting, since it will help to fix the rights of stations broadcasting before the era of wave jumping. It will insure you radio programs without chaos until congress takes action.

"Should listeners care to assist us, they are asked to write to W-G-N, giving their name and address, the time of evening at which they noticed interference from WGES, what W-G-N program was interfered with, and how long the interference continued. We thank you for the splendid manner in which you have helped us in the past. We shall continue to do everything in our power to provide for your enjoyment the finest programs on the air."

One Good Landlord Gets Reward in Actress' Will

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Oct. 9.—Good landlords do not have to wait for rewards until they go to heaven. This was proved by the will of Mme. Mary Jasqui, Hungarian tragic actress, who died at the age of 76. She left $5,000 to her landlord, who had raised her apartment rent only 30 kroners. The actress left all her papers and diaries to a friend, instructing her to arrange for their publication at once, for the "theater public likes to read about actresses and murderers for a short time only."

AMERICAN FILMS IN GREAT FAVOR IN SOUTH AFRICA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 9.—American literature and movies hold dominant places in South Africa, according to Dr. Rosalie Slaughter Morton, an American who returned to Paris today from a tour of the dark continent.

"I was surprised to find the people there enthusiastic about Americans, American books, American periodicals, and American society," she said.

"They seem to think the American ideas interpret the realities of their lives better than the British."

Hunt Firebug After Blaze Wrecks Two Lumber Yards

Search for a possible pyromaniac was begun yesterday by Shakespeare avenue police following a fire of mysterious origin which destroyed most of the stock of two lumber companies at 1302-14 North Central Park avenue. The loss was estimated at $50,000. Chief Arthur Seyferlich of the fire department took personal charge of the inquiry.

INDIA WILL GET 6,000 MILES OF NEW RAILROADS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 9.—About 6,000 miles of new railway lines are to be opened in India in the next five years. The new lines will cost $500,000,000 according to new details of the Hindenburg way expansion scheme, showing the vast progress the country has made for quick transport of raw materials. The government has sanctioned the expenditure.

India possesses 40,000 miles of railways, which carry 600,000,000 passengers yearly and 100,000,000 tons of goods. These lines were constructed at a cost of $5,000,000,000. Last year the railroads made a profit of $250,000,000, employing 750,000 persons.

The new lines are intended to serve areas to be brought under cultivation in Punjab and elsewhere. North Punjab great electrification developments are planned. A dozen schemes are under way, among them a northwestern railway. Power stations will be built at Peshawar and Rawalpindi.

'THEY GAVE YOU SMALL; I, DEVER,' BRENNAN SAYS

Replies to Taunt He's Boss After Senate Seat

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

From his hospital cot, George E. Brennan, Democratic nominee for senator, yesterday lambasted those of his opponents who are attacking him as a "political boss" and a devotee of "bipartisanship."

Mr. Brennan's injured knee still is sealed in a 50 pound plaster cast, but it didn't seem to cramp his style much. After a good night's rest he called in a relay of stenographers and proceeded to tell the world.

He said his record of "bipartisanship" embraced the indorsement of Gov. Lowden, war time governor in 1918, the fusion bench movement in 1921 which prevented a raid by Lundin-Thompson & Co. on the judiciary, and present control of the south parks, under which more great improvements have been made than in the last half century. All this Mr. Brennan argued, was something of which any politician might be proud. As to being a "boss," he elaborated the old epigram, "They gave you Small; I gave you Dever."

Dry League Divides Drys.

Meanwhile the controversy among the drys over the Anti-Saloon league methods tacked on a new chapter. In reply to Hugh S. Magill's challenge to submit to daily inspection of the ledgers and other books, George B. Safford, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, wrote that the league is reporting its campaign expenditures to the Washington authorities. This the Magill camp held was an evasion, a sidestepping of the challenge to permit full publicity of the intimate details of the financial end of the fight daily while the campaign is in progress to give the public enlightenment.

Mr. Brennan, in opening his remarks from his hospital bed, said he went into the campaign as an opponent of "Volsteadism." As the campaign reaches a state of ebullition, however, he remarks, his opponents are now switching their attack to his personality and public record.

"I do not like to talk about myself," Mr. Brennan says. "I would not do so now except for the peculiar circumstances under which I am obliged to wage this campaign.

He's Much in the Ring.

"Among other things which are being said of me is that I am a political boss. I admit that I possess considerable political power and that I have played an important part in public affairs. What power I possessed was acquired openly and it has been used openly and for the public good and not for my own enrichment.

"Nor have party lines or party considerations prevented me from using what power I possess for the benefit of the entire community, and not for the members of my own party alone.

"Permit me to cite a few instances.

In 1918, as a delegate to the Democratic state convention at Springfield, it was my pleasure to present to that assemblage resolutions which indorsed the patriotic and efficient conduct of the state's affairs by a Republican governor—Frank O. Lowden. I have been called a bipartisan. If that is bipartisanship I am proud of it.

"I was bipartisan again in 1921, when the then Republican city administration in Cook county, drunk with power, sought to supplant ten Republican judges of long and faithful service with ten pliant tools of the machine. The integrity of the Cook county judiciary was threatened. I believed then as now that the bench should be free from partisan political control.

Upheld Well Known Judges.

"Therefore, in the face of much opposition in my own party, I became in large measure responsible for having these ten Republican judges nominated by the Democratic convention, along with ten Democrats. They were all elected by more than 100,000 majority in a county that had given 300,000 Republican majority a few months before and were saved for further honorable service to the people.

"Again, in 1923 I was accused of being a boss when I argued and debated with the Democratic leaders of the city of Chicago for the nomination of Mayor William E. Dever.

"I am proud of the part I took in bringing about Mayor Dever's election, and if I acted as a boss in doing it, I am proud of being a boss.

"I have also been accused of being a bipartisan and a boss in connection with the management of the south parks, which are in control of my friends.

"During the time that my friends have controlled the park board the great stadium on Soldiers' field has been built, the outer drive in Grant park constructed from Twenty-third street to Randolph street, and its extension to Thirty-ninth street is almost accomplished. In fact, more has been done in the way of improving the park system since they have been in office than was accomplished in the previous fifty years.

"Nor during the time I have been concerned in public affairs am I conscious of having been narrow minded. Office holding has never been one of my ambitions. Politics is not the means of my support. I am the Chicago manager of the United States Fidelity and Guaranty company. I am the oldest manager of that kind of an insurance agency in Chicago save one. My office handles more business than any other agency of its kind in the world. This business is in no sense the product of politics."

Safford Writes to Explain.

"In reply to your communication of Oct. 8," Mr. Safford wrote to Mr. Magill, "permit me to say that following its custom of carefully complying with the law, the Anti-Saloon league is reporting its campaign expenditures to the proper authorities at Washington. We have no doubt you will do the same. These are official records and are accessible to the public.

"In regard to the big fund of $400,000 gathered in advance of your announcement, I only quoted the exact language of one of the leading promoters of your campaign.

"May I assure you again the Anti-Saloon league is fighting Mr. Brennan and not yourself. We are convinced the only way to do this successfully is to support the opposing party candidate, Col. Smith, who is dry. No independent candidate coming in at the eleventh hour, as you have done, can possibly succeed in defeating the other two candidates, supported as they are by their respective powerful political party machines. If you become a real factor at all, which I doubt, you can only succeed in splitting the dry vote and helping to elect Mr. Brennan.

Says All Wets Aid Brennan.

"In this connection may I call your attention to a sentence which occurs in the same column that your letter appears in this morning. 'Meanwhile George E. Brennan, Democratic nominee, continued to receive letters from Republicans pledging support on account of the issue of Volsteadism.'

"This shows that the wets of both parties are concentrating behind Mr. Brennan. If he is to be defeated the drys of both parties must concentrate behind Col. Smith."

As to Supt. Safford's declaration that his information of a $400,000 fund came from the Rev. Robert E. O'Brien of the West Pullman Methodist Episcopal church, the Magill men point out that O'Brien insists it was Safford who did the talking about a Magill war chest and that O'Brien was merely a listener. It is a question of veracity, Magill men argue.

BOY, 13, ELECTROCUTED.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 9.—(AP)—With five boys looking on, thinking he was "playing," Bernard Elias, 13, hung for five minutes on a guy wire of an electric pole carrying between seven and eight thousand volts of electricity. Then his limp and lifeless body fell to the ground.

N. U. CLINIC FOR MENTALLY ILL TO BE ENLARGED

Arrangements have been made to increase the facilities of the Northwestern university psychology clinic, which last year received and treated more than 200 individuals, according to a report yesterday to President Walter Dill Scott by Dr. John J. B. Morgan. To further the work of the clinic, which will be open two days a week this year instead of one, the Junior league of Evanston has offered its coöperation.

"A large proportion of the individuals who develop mental diseases become criminals or fail to get along with other people," says the university announcement. "If such persons are helped in time and trained to develop different attitudes toward life their progress toward a mental break can be checked. This is the function of the clinic."

CHARGES SECRET GOVERNMENT IS COOLIDGE POLICY

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Huston Thompson, former Democratic member of the federal trade commission, whose radical tendencies caused President Coolidge to refuse to reappoint him when his term expired recently, opened fire on the Republican administration tonight in a radio speech.

"Are you for government by secrecy?" asked Mr. Thompson. "Are you for control of prices by colossal combinations? Do you favor closing the doors of opportunity to your children? If you're for these things, then you will be for President Coolidge's policies."

The secrecy rule, Mr. Thompson said, had applied to cases involving the so-called bread trust, the aluminum trust and beet sugar interest, with which Charles B. Warren, Coolidge nominee for attorney general was identified.

LIQUOR DIVIDING REPUBLICAN VOTE IN THREE STATES

Senate Race in Doubt in Ill., N. Y., and Mass.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—[Special.] With only three weeks of the congressional election campaign remaining, popular attention now centers upon spectacular political contests being waged in three great states—Illinois, New York, and Massachusetts.

SENATOR WADSWORTH. [K. & E. Photo.]

In all of these normally Republican states the Republicans have been divided by various issues, prohibition principally, the Democratic candidates for the senate are conceded to have an excellent chance of winning.

The eyes of the nation are riveted upon the outcome of the elections in these states not only because they are seen to be close and therefore exciting but because the results will have a profound bearing upon the fortunes of candidates and parties in 1928.

Control Would Pass.

There are other states, too, in which the results are in doubt, among them being Maryland, Kentucky, Missouri, Oklahoma, Arizona, Nevada, Idaho, and Oregon, in each of which a Republican senate seat is at stake. If the Democrats should win in all these doubtful states, Republican control of the senate would pass to the Jeffersonians.

Illinois has been in the limelight ever since Hugh S. Magill became an independent candidate for senator in opposition to the regular Republican candidate Frank L. Smith and the Democratic candidate, George Brennan. Magill is being supported by those Republicans whose faith in Mr. Smith was shattered by his acceptance of $100,000 or more of campaign contributions from Samuel Insull and other public utility owners while he was head of the state commission regulating such utilities.

Shocked By Slush Scandal.

The Smith candidacy has been greatly injured also by the attitude of President Coolidge. The President is known to have been greatly shocked by the Illinois slush fund scandal and to have made no secret of his abhorrence of a conscience that would permit a public official to accept favors from persons subject to the exercise of the power invested in him.

There is reason to believe that the President at one time hoped Mr. Smith would retire from the contest from regard for the best interests of his party and indications are not wanting that persons close to Mr. Coolidge made some effort to induce the candidate to withdraw. These efforts were unsuccessful.

Smith also has been deserted by another element, the wet Republicans, who are reported to be prepared to support Brennan in large numbers. Polls made by Republican managers in Chicago indicate that the Democratic candidate will carry the city overwhelmingly on the question of modification of the Volstead act to permit individual states to authorize nonintoxicating beer and wine.

Hope to Draft Wet Platform.

If Magill should be the beneficiary of a considerable Republican bolt, it would not be surprising if Brennan were to win with his wet Republican support. Brennan has been campaigning on a single platform plank—modification of the Volstead act—and if he should achieve the victory, the outcome would give the modification movement great impetus and strengthen the cause of the wet Democrats.

The liveliest contest in the country is that taking place in New York, where the Anti-Saloon league is fighting to scotch in its incipiency the suggestion of repeal of the 18th amendment. Senator Wadsworth, who is seeking reflection, had the temerity to propose this repeal and the establishment of the Quebec system of government liquor dispensaries. Being unable to prevent the renomination of Wadsworth, the Anti-Saloon league set out to beat him with an independent candidate, Franklin W. Cristman.

Without any organization, Ella Boole of the Women's Christian Temperance union polled 160 000 votes running against Wadsworth six years ago. The dry leaders figure that Cristman, with his organization and large campaign fund, will poll not less than twice that many and encompass either his own election or that of Justice Bob Wagner, the Democratic candidate for senator.

Wagner is as wet as Wadsworth, but the drys are not worrying about that. They will be happy if they can beat Wadsworth.

In Massachusetts, Senator Butler is seeking to capitalize the prestige of the Coolidge administration in his effort to retain his seat. He is chairman of the Republican national committee and a close friend of the President. Mr. Butler and his friends are shuddering daily at the thought of Massachusetts' repudiating and humiliating its adopted son, Calvin Coolidge, by sending David Walsh, Democrat, to the senate in place of Mr. Butler.

The people of Massachusetts, however, do not seem to be so concerned over the sensibilities of Mr. Coolidge as they are over the fate of prohibition. Mr. Walsh is advocating modification of the Volstead act.

WARN FRANCE NOT TO TAX TOURIST OUT OF COUNTRY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 9.—Warning France that it will drive out its American tourists to her misfortune, the same as Germany did during the fall of the mark, the French national hotel men's organ prints a vigorous protest against the projected taxes on foreigners.

"Germany attacked the foreigners, but soon discovered her error cost her dearly," says the article.

A general council of the Seine and Oise departments just outside of Paris has adopted a motion for taxing all the words of foreign language in public signs.

Emile Massard Horis, a councilman, said, "It is an outrage the way foreign words are supplanting French on all signs, advertisements, and billboards. Menus on the railway trains are even printed in foreign languages for our visitors. I dined at a restaurant and asked for a bottle of Bordeaux. They served wine bearing an English label."

MURDER JURY FAILS.

Mason City, Ia., Oct. 9.—The jury trying Everett Burdette on the charge of murdering Morris Van Note, Lime Creek township school officer here, failed to agree on a verdict and were dismissed after being deadlocked 72 hours.

VOTERS WARNED TUESDAY IS LAST DAY TO REGISTER

BY FRANK BUTZOW.

"Old poll books have been destroyed. Tuesday is your last chance to register. If you did not register Oct. 2 and fail to do so Oct. 12 you cannot vote on Nov. 2."

This was the warning issued yesterday by various political groups interested in a heavy registration next Tuesday and a subsequent big turnout at the polls on election day. Republican county headquarters has sent out 700,000 chasers warning many voters they are not yet on the lists.

Voters in Chicago and other Illinois cities where registration is required seem to be apathetic toward the Nov. 2 election, now only a little more than three weeks distant, political leaders say. The Oct. 2 registration here and in some of the downstate cities was light even for an off year election it was pointed out.

Only Third of Voters Registered.

About one-third of the Chicago vote is registered now, 411,051 names having been put on the new lists Oct. 2. That is 157,518 less than the 568,869 who registered on the corresponding day two years ago and 659,414 less than were on the 1924-'26 books.

With 1,060,465 names on the registry lists only 597,563 people voted in the April 13 primaries in Chicago—423,333 Republicans and 174,230 Democrats. The total vote in the county was only 700,705. The new registration applies to Cicero, Chicago Heights and Summit also, those towns being under the jurisdiction of the election commission.

Hot Campaign for Treasurer.

The rival candidates for county treasurer—Martin J. O'Brien, Democrat, and George F. Harding, Republican—are seeing to it that the county campaign does not lag. On quiet days when the generals are charting strategic moves Harding and O'Brien keep their own guns roaring.

Both these candidates refer to their own and each other's records as city comptroller for campaign issues.

"Under the guidance of George F. Harding the finances of the city of Chicago fell into a state of confusion never before equaled here or in any other city," the Democrats say.

And Harding replies that he had to borrow money to run the city because the county treasurer held back millions without distributing collections promptly. Then he says he will save $2,500,000 a year by distributing revenue where it belongs immediately after it is collected.

Take a Year and a Half to Pay

BACK in 1865, when our new-born nation was bravely recovering from the effects of the Civil War, an enterprising man in the city of Baltimore began some reconstruction work of his own that was destined to become a source of boundless benefit to millions of American homes. This pioneer merchant was the first Martin L. Straus, and his epoch-making venture was the foundation of the Hartman organization—today a 16-store retail furniture business, nation-wide in its service and influence.

¶ At the time of the beginning of Hartman's, the middle west was just awakening, and Chicago, now the headquarters of this mammoth business, was a city of but a few hundred thousand. Today, in 1926, Chicago is the third largest metropolis in the world, and Hartman's, faithfully adhering through 61 years to the ideals and business policies laid down by its Founder, has become the Largest Retail Furniture Institution in the World.

THE TAX AMENDMENT.

The debate before the City club on the tax amendment to the state constitution, which the voters are to pass upon at the November election, brought out some of the more cogent points on both sides. Max Murdock, general counsel for the Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards, speaking in favor of the amendment, reminded his hearers of the indisputable fact that much of the wealth of the state escapes direct taxation under the present tax laws.

"The present law permits intangible assets to escape the tax burden," Mr. Murdock said. "The man of average income has to bear more than his share. More than half the values in Illinois are intangible and untaxable under the present constitution. For the lack of taxes from these properties the workingman must make up by paying high taxes on real estate and high rent."

The evil of which Mr. Murdock complains is a real one but its importance can easily be exaggerated, for the tendency of almost all taxation is to sift through the population. If wealth escapes paying directly to the government, it will pay indirectly. We do not intend this as a defense of the present tax laws which in many respects are indefensible on theoretical grounds, but we are convinced the evils of the present system are susceptible of exaggeration. If half of what the friends of the tax amendment say is true, the ordinary wage earner today would be in a desperate situation.

The voters must choose between evils. The faults of the present system are well known. What we might expect in the way of tax legislation from an administration at Springfield such as the present one, if the amendment becomes law, is something we do not care to contemplate. At present there are definite constitutional limitations on the freedom of the legislature to pass tax laws, but under the amendment the assembly would have a relatively free hand. John H. Camlin of Rockford, president of the Illinois chamber of commerce, emphasized one aspect of the matter when he pointed out that the legislature is eagerly awaiting the opportunity to devise new ways of raising money to meet an ever growing state budget. He views the amendment as an invitation to the legislatures to loot the pockets of the citizens.

Before we alter the legislature's taxing powers we must clean up the state government. Our present system is full of inequities, but at any rate we have been able to do business and prosper under it. We may look forward to a more opportune time to modify the tax provisions of the constitution.

GOOD MANNERS.

The board of south park commissioners has introduced a novel number in its program of community service—a "charm school," which held its first session attended by some two hundred pupils at the Hamilton park field house. "Charm school" is another name for a course of instruction in good manners. We do not prefer the shorter title.

No matter; it is an interesting experiment the commissioners are undertaking, a unique one, as far as our knowledge of Chicago park history extends.

Good manners is a commodity of which no one can possess too much. A critic will find fault with that statement, but we reiterate it. The possessor of good manners is one person; the mannered individual is another. We asserted before, that good manners must have a backbone of sincerity.

By good manners is not meant that studied and commercialised term borrowed from the French and sold in book form as "Etiquette." "Etiquette" or "etiquet" is but a codification of certain of the more traditional manifestations of good manners. Etiquette is as stiff and without personality as all codes must be. Good manners are pliable, versatile, and personal. Etiquette is a card index, labbed according to special occasion. Good manners are adequate to the need of every occasion.

It is unfortunate that there must be schools of good manners. Good manners should be acquired at home; they should be obtained by a youth process of steady accretion and so become as natural a part of the individual as his skin. Since all, however, have not been so fortunate as to grow into good manners, it is well that, later in life and outside the home, there should be places where good manners may be acquired by a teacher and pupil method.

Good manners mean, of course, a social polish and a knowledge of how to perform the apt duty at the right time. Polish and timely knowledge are, however, but superficial attributes of good manners. Good manners depend on much more fundamental qualities. The first of these is the quality of tolerance, understanding, and sympathy. The second is the natural outgrowth of the first; it is to refrain from hurting or offending another. And the third is the positive phase of the second—to set others at their ease, to give others pleasure.

Good manners are not the prerogative of silk hats and automobiles. They are displayed with equal advantage by calloused palms and reseled shoes.

Brusqueness is a national American characteristic. This has its advantage. It means that the American is alert and ambitious. It also has its disadvantage. It means that Americans do not always understand each other and are not always understood by foreign visitors. American brusqueness needs an application of good manners. Good manners is the oil that makes the machinery of society run smoothly. America clatters a bit.

Parenthetically, let us say that whereas the south park's school for teaching good manners should prove a valuable civic enterprise, at the same time let the commissioners remember that their first duty is to teach the subject to their park employés. This, not because the employés of the south park board do not possess good manners, but because all persons placed by office in positions of control over their fellows should be the ones, above all, to display good manners. A private citizen without good manners may be no more than a boor; a policeman without good manners is a tyrant and a bully.

Said that apostle of good breeding, the earl of Chesterfield, "Manners must adorn knowledge, and smooth its way through the world." Said Tennyson,

> For manners are not idle, but the fruit
> Of loyal nature and of noble mind.

And Spenser,

> For a man by nothing is so well bewrayed
> As by his manners.

And in conclusion let us borrow two texts unearthed by Sir Arthur Quiller-Couch. He was speaking of style in writing, but style is nothing but literary good manners. Sir Arthur quotes from William of Wykeham, who said, "Manners makyth Man," and from Coventry Patmore:

"There is nothing comparable for moral force to the charm of truly noble manners. . . ."

There, "charm" is used in its true, meaningful sense.

THE PRESIDENT AND HIS PARTY.

President Coolidge has refused to take part in the congressional campaign this year. The semi-official justification for his aloofness is that it is not customary for a President to take part in off-year campaigns. President Wilson ignored the tradition in 1918 with disastrous results for himself and his party.

Politicians say the real reason lies not in tradition but in the fact that Mr. Coolidge cannot consistently indorse eighteen of the twenty-eight Republican candidates for the senate because they are opposed to him on important issues. In Indiana, for example, both Watson and Robinson, candidates for reelection, favor the McNary-Haugen bill which the President opposed and are against the world court which he favored.

The two explanations, it appears to us, come to pretty much the same thing. Traditionally our Presidents do not take part in off-year campaigns because at such times they have quite commonly been confronted with the situation which now faces Mr. Coolidge though generally, it may be admitted, in a less extreme form. Our party system divides the nation into two or at most three large groupings. Within these groupings there must be many shades of opinion. There are radical and conservative Democrats and Republicans. Some Democrats belong to the urban wing of the party and some to the agrarian wing, and the same division runs through the Republican party. Our political theory permits a man to run as a Republican though he has little in common with many other Republicans. The differences are ironed out within the party after election rather than before.

In this respect our system is the reverse of the European scheme of a multitude of parties welded into a parliamentary majority after election. On the ground of successful operation, which is the true ground for judging political forms, we think the advantage is all on our side.

It follows from the nature of our party government that the official head of the party must be at odds on some issues with many of its representatives before election, and particularly before off-year elections when the President himself is not actively laying down party doctrine in his election speeches. If Mr. Coolidge were to enter the campaign on behalf of some of the Republican candidates today, he would make more difficult the task of bringing about compromises on the party program after election because he would have lost the friendship of those Republican candidates who were elected in spite of his indifference to them. As matters stand, he can, after election, play the part of arbitrator between opposing opinions; he will be in a far stronger position to enforce party discipline which is the basis for party responsibility.

WHEN THE QUEEN TRAVELS.

When the queen of Roumania comes to America she is going to have a whole deck of the Leviathan for herself and her suite. She will dine with her own party and her deck chair will be surrounded by the deck chairs of her old pals, most of whom have beards, and start their sentences with "Woof." Nobody not of the court will be allowed to set foot within a ship's length of the queen.

We feel sorry for Queen Marie. She will never know the strange delights of social life aboard ship. These delights, by the way, are habit forming and explain, we have long suspected, the trotting of many globe trotters, somewhat as the delights of the buggy ride explain the large number of mourners at some funerals.

Life on the ocean, except as it is led by seafaring persons with whom we are not at the moment concerned, is a kind of house party. The guests are generally more numerous than at house parties on land, but the chief point of distinction follows from the fact that everybody knows practically everybody else at a party on land before it starts. Experienced guests, indeed, will discover truly extraordinary ailments to prevent attendance if they do not know who their fellow guests will be. How different upon the sea! Here you live crowded among strangers, some of whom have built bridges, written poems, juggled, or given birth to twins. You are free to choose the better conversationalists as your companions.

Your style is in no sense cramped. You may feel free to disclose the secrets of your bosom if you are the disclosing kind of person, and if you are not you may make up the most fantastic tales about yourself and your friends whom you may name by name with complete confidence that the one to whom you speak does not know them and never will meet them. You may revive all your most successful conversational inventions of a decade, knowing that to your new companions they will be fresh and sprightly. In short, you may have the time of your life.

Queen Marie will know nothing of all this. All she can hope for to relieve the tedium is seasickness.

A PROTESTANT VIEW OF ST. FRANCIS OF ASSISI

By the Rev. C. Copeland Smith, D. D.
[Pastor Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, Chicago.]

On Saturday, Oct. 3, 1226, died John Bernadone, known to all the world as St. Francis of Assisi. There is some doubt about the date of his birth, but the probable year is 1182. He was the son of Pietro Bernadone, a wealthy cloth merchant of Assisi in Perugia of the hill country of northern Italy. The child was baptized John. His father, besides being a cloth merchant, was also a banker, loaning large sums to the king of France and others. The child was baptized in his absence, the mother choosing the name. When the father returned he insisted that the name should be changed to Francis, and Francis was the name he bore ever after. Husbands were kings in those days.

It has become the custom to speak of St. Francis as the "Troubadour of God." This is a description he himself never used. He would, however, call himself the "Jongleur of God." Here is a distinction that is important if we are to grasp the significance of his character and work. Everybody knows the troubadours were strolling singers wandering through the villages and towns of northern Italy and southern France singing the songs of passionate but chivalrous human love. They were the fathers and progenitors of our modern ballad and romantic music and literature, just as Dante in the same period was the founder of epic poetry, the precursor of Milton, Byron and the rest of that school. The troubadours were the master-mummers and singers of their time, but there was an exuberance of life and romance which it seemed beneath their dignity to depict and express, an exuberance which could not be expressed merely by the voice or the lute but needed all the dancings and caperings of all the limbs of a man to express itself. The troubadours were accompanied by the jongleur, half-acrobat, half-jester, and altogether a merry mad fellow, and St. Francis called himself "Jongleur de Dieu," or the "Jongleur of God." Thus he chose for himself the obscurest place in the divine service, but at the same time claimed that service required great exuberance of soul.

It is the fashion to speak of the century that preceded him as the "dark ages." It would be more correct to call them the academic ages. Religion had become a stiff and stilted thing walking on high heels in withdrawn places. The idea had become prevalent that in order to worship God one must become monastic and ascetic. Francis was the lark who by the exuberance of his song heralded the new day of the renaissance, out of which all that is fair, progressive, and joyous in our modern civilization was born. Francis taught that no monastery cell was big enough to dance out all the ecstasies that belong to a full life in God. The gladness and madness and fullness of life could only be expressed by living it whole. The sun was his brother, even as the birds were his sisters, though these were not the only members of his family. Besides these, Brother Wind, Brother Fire, Brother Ass, which was the name he had for his own body. Francis found himself related by family ties to everything that lived either in the vegetable or the animal kingdom. He was a man drunk with life, which is the same as saying that he was intoxicated with God.

I have said he was a rich man's son. Let that fact never be forgotten nor the further fact he was a rich man's only child. When he turned his back upon his father's business and all the glitter and splendor that belonged to the life of the Perugian cities he was making a sacrifice that today would be represented in millions, but to him it was no sacrifice. He had discovered, as Richard Whiting says in "No. 5 John St.," "A man's possession of his own soul depends on the fewness of his other possessions." It is a long time now since Jesus said, "Ye cannot serve God and mammon," but men still confuse mammon with man. Mammon is wealth and all those absorbing and soul-attenuating things which go with wealth, which rob the inner spirit of its victory and joy. Francis wanted to serve both God and man, so he cut himself adrift in the most absolute way from mammon, and in his bare feet and his little brown habit of homespun cloth lived the richest life of service and of gladness that has glorified the world since the days of Jesus of Nazareth. With no pillow save the earth, no comrade save those who had taken the same vows with him of completest poverty, with little education of the classical kind and having sacrificed all things earthly, he started a movement which made him within twenty years the most powerful teacher of essential Christianity the world has ever seen since the days of the gospels. How swiftly the Franciscan order grew may be indicated by the fact that within seventy years of his death, at the time of the black death, no fewer than 60,000 members of the order gave their lives as the price of their devotion to the service of the people. The influence of God's little acrobat upon the generations immediately succeeding him was enormous, or so tremendous as to be almost beyond calculation. Savonarola, who was temperamentally his complete antithesis, was nevertheless his spiritual child, and in the world of literature and art Dante, Leonardo da Vinci, Raphael, Michael Angelo, Giotto and others were all swayed by the magic of his life.

What shall we say about the Stigmata? Everybody knows the legend, how that a few days before his death the wounds of the Lord Jesus became visible on his own hands and side, and that Francis really died of this great honor and glory. It is the fashion now for the materialists to decry such stories are mere fruits of a somewhat hysterical devotion. I am not so sure. It is characteristic of materialism to be dogmatic, but the rest of us may still wonder whether it is not possible for a soul wrapped up in the contemplation of his redeeming Lord to ultimately print upon the body the marks of its own contemplation. We do not yet know the ultimate power of the subconscious. At any rate it is clear that this man would in a very striking sense bear in his body and through all his life the signs of the Lord Jesus. He made the spiritual seem more human, and the human still more human as it became more spiritual. He shot life through with God and made it joyous with that touch. Like his master he proclaimed among the religionists of his day that life is a wedding, not a funeral, and taught them to face its duties and its sorrows not resignedly but as a swimmer breasts the wave.

This is what Francis Bernadone, whom all men, Protestant and Catholic unitedly, call saint, taught the world seven hundred years ago. There are not many dates in history that really matter, the births and deaths of kings being only relatively important, but Oct. 3, 1226—seven hundred years ago last Sunday—must ever remain one of the important dates of history, for on that day Francis died, and on that day modern civilization with all its high hopes and passion of life began to be born.

GUARDING AIR SUPPLY.

MANUFACTURERS of ventilating devices who talk glibly about washed air, and air cleaned by fans, will have to prove their claims. Perhaps they can. But whether they succeed or fail, the public should be the gainer because of the established facts that may come out of the controversy.

Drinker and his associates have been trying to find out what were the effects of oscillating fans, sprinklers and such on the dust, fumes and smokes in the air. One conclusion arrived at is that different dusts and gases act differently with respect to dust, fumes and smoke.

In his experiments he used a closed room and threw very fine sand dust into the air at times. At other times, zinc fumes. And in still other experiments, tobacco smoke.

In one series of experiments he had a couple of ordinary oscillating electric fans going in the room. He found that these fans had no especial effect on the air content of very fine sand. The fan currents had marked effect on the zinc fumes and considerable effect on tobacco smoke. Just how these observations fit in with common observations remains to be seen.

A windy day is a dusty day: that everybody knows. The soldiers camped at Fort Bliss were pretty certain that they had to eat dirt in their rations on windy days.

We are greatly in need of facts as to air currents. We remember how the ax grinders put exhaust hoods and fans over the grinding wheel, and found that doing so made the condition worse. Then some one told them that iron dust was very heavy and that the exhaust hood and fan should be below the grinding table. When the change was made the danger was greatly lessened.

Manufacturers of radiators know practically everything about the best shapes, sizes and arrangement of coils to get heat into a room. They know very little about the best way of using air currents to distribute the heat throughout the room.

The effect of adding moisture varied with the way moisture was added and with the different agents of pollution.

What might be compared to air washers had a very marked effect on sand dust and on zinc fumes. Tobacco smoke was affected differently. General humidification of the atmosphere caused the zinc fumes to settle out rapidly, but the effect on sand dust and tobacco smoke was questionable. One conclusion was that most smokes and fumes clear up if the air is stirred.

The inspiring angle to this agitation of the ventilation question is the accumulation of facts. The science and art of protecting the food and water supplies has been developed until conditions are reasonably satisfactory. The science and art of protecting the air supply is still primitive.

MUCH SICKNESS IN AFRICA.

J. W. writes: Dr. Saxton Pope says there are no sick people in Africa. They are all well or dead. This truth I can vouch for after twenty years' residence among Zulus, Basutos, Kaffirs, and Dutch; their healthiness and longevity I could not but observe. In America and England the situation is the reverse. I wager 20 per cent of working class Americans are organically sick.

REPLY:

I do not think such figures as we have sustain Dr. Pope and you. The death rate and the sickness rates are high in Africa wherever and whenever figures are available. There are good figures for natives who work in the English mine districts. These show fearfully high pneumonia rates and other disease rates. The answer is that life is abnormal in these groups.

Yellow fever, sleeping sickness, and some other diseases have their natural home in Africa. It is contended that yellow fever, typhoid, malaria, and some other diseases came originally to the United States from Africa. A gentleman who has hunted in Africa many times tells me that there is much disease among African natives living in native villages.

There are many reasons why illness among such people should be overlooked. The sick American tells his troubles; he may tell about them when they are trivial; he has higher standards of health than the African; he commences complaining at a lower level; after he gets sick he is cared for and, therefore, he may hang on a long time; there being many hospitals, he may be much in evidence; he even breaks into statistics. The sick African is apt to quietly die and that ends it.

IT CAN BE DONE.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—My cousin, who is a resident of Illinois, wants to marry at Crown Point, Ind., on Sunday. Can he obtain a license on Sundays, as he works week days? And can he be married on the same day? MRS. S. L.

Yes. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

TRY AND GET IT.

Chicago, Oct. 2.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—In moving a piano recently the moving men damaged same, and left it standing all night on the landing of the rear stairway, which is exposed. They promised to have somebody return the next day to move the piano up, but the owner, becoming skeptical, informed the man that he would have somebody else take the piano up, which was agreeable to him at that time. He also promised to send a man out to give an estimate on the damage. However, he now says that he is not liable because the job was taken out of his hands.

Can the mover be held for the amount of damage? W. A. R.

Yes, if the damage was due to his [or his employés'] failure to use the care and skill that they undertook to use.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 10, 1861.

EDITORIAL.—If the Chicago Times has any doubt about the receipt at this office of the special dispatch from Louisville, published in THE TRIBUNE of Tuesday, its editor, who supervises our affairs, will do well to inquire at the telegraph office, and after becoming satisfied that he has made an ass of himself, retract his charge that we are imposing upon the public, and next time withhold his bray until he is sure that he has come upon a mare's nest.

ST. LOUIS.—There are reports in town tonight, by the train, that Gen. Sigel had had a battle with the rear guard of Price's rebels and had taken six cannon and several dozen prisoners. It is claimed the news could not be sent from Jefferson City, owing to the refusal of the authorities to send it without consulting Gen. Fremont.

WASHINGTON.—Gen. Hancock's brigade, which is a part of Gen. W. F. Smith's division, advanced in the direction of Lewinsville, Va., meeting no opposition. There are no official advices confirmatory of the telegram from New Orleans to the Richmond Examiner, announcing the presence of the Vincennes, Water Witch, and several other national vessels at the head mouth of the Mississippi. It is not improbable, however, as orders were long since given to seize the position and erect three batteries there so as to blockade effectually all five mouths of the river.

CAIRO.—Advices from Paducah represent the Union troops as prepared for the reception of the rebels, who, in heavy force, are said to be advancing on that place. Women and children are being sent away, and everything augurs an approaching struggle. Gen. Grant and staff visited Cape Girardeau. Everything there is in good condition and work on the fortifications is progressing rapidly.

CHICAGO.—Alderman Colby sued Mayor Rumsey for $50,000 damages, alleging libel. The suit grows out of charges made by the mayor in connection with the Controller Ward investigation.

CHICAGO.—Charles Manny of this city and Miss Mary Bloom of St. Joe, Mich., were married in the latter city.

CHICAGO. — Consideration of the terms of the ordinances extending the soon to expire franchises of the street railway companies was begun by the council committee on local transportation. The matter was brought up by the reading of a report by Secretary Sikes giving a plan for such extensions, the outlines for which are: A joint use of tracks and universal transfers in the territory bounded by 35th street, Fullerton, and Western avenues; electricity to be the motive power and the underground trolley to be used in the territory above mentioned; in lieu of the underground in the district mentioned permission to construct a subway may be granted between Halsted street, 16th street, and Chicago avenue; minimum rates of wages for street car employes to be fixed; 4 cent fares when no seats are provided; franchises to be for 20 years with a right to the city to take over the lines if service is not satisfactory; provisions for ultimate municipal ownership.

WASHINGTON.—The slate for Chicago offices was agreed upon by the two Illinois senators and was submitted by them to President Roosevelt today. It follows: Collector of customs, Graeme Stewart; pension agent, Charles Bent; assistant treasurer, William P. Williams; appraiser, H. H. Thomas; marshal, John C. Ames; district attorney, Sol H. Bethea; collector of internal revenue, Henry L. Hertz; postmaster, F. E. Coyne.

JOLIET, Ill.—At the second day's session of the State Federation of Labor the possibility of appeals for federal edicts to compel Gov. Yates and the officials of the Joliet penitentiary to enforce the convict labor law in the institution and against W. B. Conkey as retalitatory measures was discussed by delegates on the floor and approved by their hearers. The removal of all labor saving machinery from the prison also was demanded and will be asked of the next legislature.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 10, 1916.

CHICAGO.—Eugene P. McKinney, after boasting to a friend that "there never was a storm big enough to make me get off the lake," went out in a rowboat off Lincoln park in a storm and was drowned.

NEWPORT, R. I.—The wholesale raid on foreign shipping near Nantucket lightship on Oct. 8 was the work of one submarine, according to reports of American naval officers. This boat was presumably the German U-53. The known list of the victims remains at six, four British and two neutral ships. Among the 230 rescued are 33 women and 10 children.

PARIS.—The steamship Gallia, an auxiliary cruiser carrying 3,000 Serbian and French soldiers, was torpedoed and sunk on Oct. 4 by a submarine off the southern coast of Sardinia. A French cruiser picked up 1,342 men. The rest are missing.

LONG BRANCH, N. J.—It was announced that Secretary of State Lansing will come here at once to confer with President Wilson on the German submarine raid off the American coast. At the same time it was made clear there is nothing in the reports so far received to show that international law or the earlier promises of Germany have been violated.

BOSTON.—Boston Red Sox won their second victory over Brooklyn in the world's series, 2 to 1, in a fourteen inning game, the longest in innings ever played for the big hunting. It was a pitchers' battle between Babe Ruth for Boston and Sherrod Smith for the Robins.

THE JOYS OF WAR.

Chicago, Sept. 30.—A Mr. Wallace, ex-service man, disparages H. L. Mencken for his contention that Americans enjoyed the war.

Whether or not the war was rotten and degrading is, I think, outside the question. Mr. Mencken spoke of the stay-at-home-and-grow-fats who sat in Pullman smokers enjoying choice brands while carrying on punitive campaigns with their jaws. That was pleasant enough. Surely he must concede to Mr. Mencken that the bombasts, the hot air magnates and the whoop-la patriots throve mightily throughout the realm.

For those who stayed at home, war had a certain verve. It was uniforms, bands, bunting, and hurrahs. Something big, something to get excited over. Patriotism made a delightful hobby. Everyone knitted, gardened, or wore pins.

It is true, as Mr. Wallace alleges, that there was much that was disgusting and beastly. Certainly having smut and profanity dinned into your ears, hearing that "O, mademoiselle—!" on the Paris boulevards, and seeing men lie shattered, bloated, and stinking where they had fallen, was, well—unpleasant, anyway. Yes, war is much a matter of lousy shirts and not-so-good grub. Just the same, the boys who slopped around through the mud of northern France found a change, even an adventure of sorts. It was different, was the Big Show. To hear them talk, they enjoyed much of it. It was the outstanding event, the one great achievement of many otherwise uncolored lives.

WILLIAM RITCHIE.

WERE THEY DEAD!

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 28.—Government enforcement officers raided a still in Pittsburgh. The mash captured was sent to the government chemist to make sure whether it was intoxicating. It was. In addition to wood alcohol, ether, iodine, and other poisons, such "light intoxicants" as rats, mice, lizards, toads, and a sufficiently varied assortment of insects to start an entomological laboratory were found in the pickle. No wonder bootleg hootch comes high!

A. R. HARE.

THEY WEAR THE PANTS.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—The letter signed "Irene" under the caption "Insulted," wherein she denounces the opposite sex for their "stares and remarks in sizing up the feminine sex as a favorite sport," is undoubtedly true. However, it is the cause for such "behaviorism" between the sexes which is much more important.

Now, it is my contention, and it is borne out by the best authorities on the subject, that the fair sex must shoulder at least 80 per cent of the blame for such crude behavior. How they vie with each other in the daring flimsy half skirt, actually above the knees, to say nothing of the sleeveless and reckless open blouse, which taken altogether weighs barely 3 ounces. But apparently this flimsy display is not daring enough, so they have the hardihood to enter man's domain and rob him of his exclusive rights as to having the hair cut short. Not even satisfied with knickers they are now actually wearing the full pants. And all this for what? Simply to attract the male. Yet, if some weak or embarrassed male dares to say "boo" the gentle fair sex will toss their heads in the air and affect insulted dignity.

Mussolini, more power to him, made short work of the so-called "lady's privilege" as to dress in Italy, and I believe it is coming to the time when only an honest dictatorship can save the United States from a lot of false liberty.

JOSEPH M. FLEMING.

AT WABASH AND RANDOLPH.

Chicago, Sept. 27.—Cannot something be done to help that gentleman at Wabash and Randolph who wears a policeman's uniform, who does his darndest every evening to cover the four corners all at once, while postcard females, automaniacs, and cab drivers jam autos and things to their hearts' content, run past red lights, through the safety zones, and make life miserable for the poor guy who walks?

And the unlucky street cars! Gosh! Last week the one I was on waited through three green lights before it could turn the corner. Tonight the same thing happened. A short time ago a cab driver drove through a safety zone. Every one jumped for their lives except an old Yankee. He stood still, sprained his wrist, and the driver lost two teeth. It's hard to make a Yankee run. Last week the night it rained so hard, an old Yankee and a lady were in the safety zone. Along comes a cab at good speed, one set of wheels on the yellow mark of the zone and the other set on the car tracks, thus taking up the whole zone. I ran toward him to protect both myself and the lady, and not until I had reached for my hip pocket as though to pull a gun did he turn out, and then only to barely miss my foot.

He certainly did get mine what I told him about himself. The only thing I am sorry about is that the lady also heard me. Perhaps the police department can borrow a couple of Boy Scouts if they cannot afford to hire another man to run that corner. And the mounted cops, posing in the middle of the block, waiting to pinch some parker! When the corner got jammed tonight one of them rushed up as though he was going to lick the world in two seconds. Gosh!

J. P. I.

HANDS ACROSS LAKE ERIE.

Chatham, Ont., Sept. 28.—I believe that behind every statement and every action there is a motive or object, and surely papers like yours who advocate hate must have some object in doing so, and it would seem to me that it would be only fair that you come right out openly and honestly and state what your object is. Can it be that it appeals to the ignorant foreigner who has bettered his condition by coming to the United States and gets it into his head that it is encumbered upon him to hate everybody else? I would be very glad indeed to know just what is your idea.

R. L. PATTINSON.

FROM VIRGIL.

Chicago, Sept. 30.—Even the lion seeks. Mr. Bennett undoubtedly referred to Virgil's famous line, "Sunt lacrimæ rerum et mentem mortalia tangunt," when he quoted an expression as from Horace in today's story. But give him an article to write in which he can put his heart. Let him do for "Variety" what he did for "Quo Vadis" and "The Last Laugh."

Emil Jannings is great. I think he is the greatest personality I have ever met on stage or screen. In this picture he surpasses everything he has done previously. Hating, loving, vacillating, puzzling, quarreling, vexing, defying, lecherous, gay, laughing, perplexed—he is invariably a distinct personality and always a very powerful one. He overwhelms you by the more expressiveness of his personality. He does not impress you as being a great actor necessarily, nor as being true to life, but he touches something in you that makes you want to cry out: "O, this is great! I have never been so thrilled before! What a power the man has!"

Give the job to Jannings. Otherwise Bennett. He will make a much better piece of apprenticeship.

Don't Let the SCARECROW

Keep You From Having The Kind Of Furniture You Want

It will cost a great deal.
We aren't rich.
We can't afford it.
What if our earnings should lag?

IT was such thoughts and a hundred others, like "a scarecrow flapping patched and sinister arms" before him, that tried to block the author, Joseph Hergesheimer, whenever the insistent desire came upon him to have inside as well as outside the kind of a home he wanted. You probably have met the same scarecrow more than once yourself. Well, in the case of Mr. Hergesheimer, he went right ahead in spite of the flapping. And nothing happened except that everything got paid for and, as far as history is concerned, the Dower House has become as perfect in its Early American furnishings as a home could be dreamed.

The Home Is The Thing

In the Dower House

"A Long While Ago, I Remembered

. . . . . before I had even thought of marriage, I had walked down a rough and narrow lane and seen above me on the left the grey and retiring stone dwelling . . . a small obviously old house out of repair . . . my writing was at its lowest ebb, it never occurred to me that I'd have a place—that place least of all—for myself. I couldn't have seen how I'd ever manage a wife. And yet it's in my mind that even then . . I said that I should like to live here."

From Joseph Hergesheimer's story of himself and his home—"From an Old House," published by Alfred A. Knopf, New York, 1925. If you ever wanted a home of your own, if you ever wanted an all engrossing hobby, just read this book.

"THE blanched ruffled curtains at the open windows of the Dower House swayed in a moving air too soft almost to be felt; the spring came fragrant and palpable into the rooms" . . "There was no hall but only rooms and stairs and open doorways, white plaster and a whiter paneling for the blackness of iron latches and hinges."

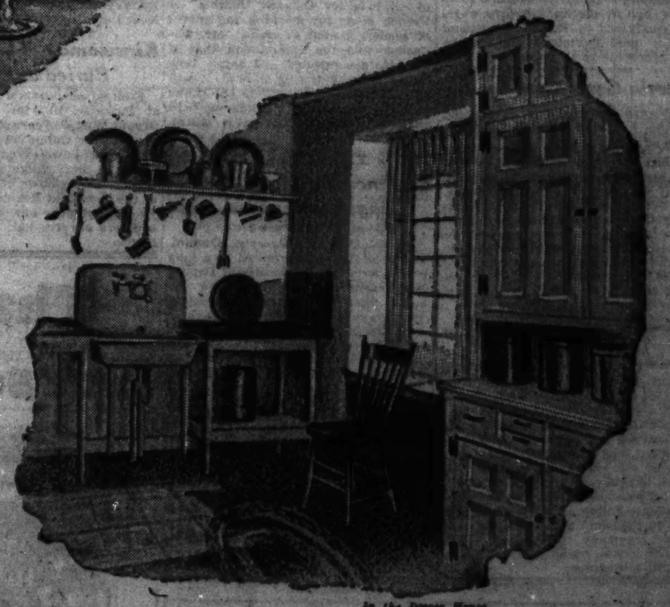

In the Dower House

In the Dower House

"THE bed in the curly maple room had a canopy like a film, a suspended tracery of frost . . ;" The poetic loveliness of the beautiful old furniture in the Dower House, the perfection of setting and arrangement—the old Pennsylvania Dutch farm house itself, begun in 1712 and now so carefully rebuilt—are ideally American!

"WRITING and buying early Americana kept me in desperate supplementary activities. . . A paper on the clothes of Tao Yuen became a set of chairs in my dining room: one day I was writing furiously, the next the chairs stood at my table and then I proceeded to forget them for another paper and a Chippendale sofa."

In the Dower House

In the Dower House

"I CAME into the house, as mine, for the first time at dusk" . . "Yes, I reached, at last, a place of my own for supper; Dorothy had gone on ahead in the interests of a thousand preparations; . . . It was not an ordinary occasion." And, their first supper over, together they washed the dishes.

"WINTER was the time for books . . . though there was never a season when Dorothy hadn't flowers for a blue Jersey pitcher." This was a home of flowers, beautiful things and calm, to which a man could pay such a tribute as to say "It might mean nothing to others but to me it was nearly everything."

JEWS MAY ASK $25,000,000 FOR THEIR CHARITIES

Meet Here to Plan for National Drive.

Under the chairmanship of Brig. Gen. Abel Davis of Chicago, 500 representative Jewish men and women from all parts of this country gathered last night at the Standard club to hear reports of the leaders of the united Jewish campaign on past work and to consider future plans and programs.

Aside from an address of welcome by Julius Rosenwald on behalf of the Jewish community of Chicago, the meeting last night confined itself to the reports, on which action will be taken at the closing meeting today.

May Raise $25,000,000.

Decision also will be made at today's session as to whether it is advisable to ratify the proposal of David A. Brown of Detroit, national chairman, at whose call the Chicago gathering convened, to raise the goal of the campaign from $15,000,000 to $25,000,000.

Felix M. Warburg, New York banker and philanthropist, chairman of the American joint distribution committee, reported that the committee had already expended $62,190,565. This sum, Mr. Warburg explained, has been spent in over forty countries, including not only all of eastern and central Europe but also Palestine, Syria, Turkey, and other near eastern lands, for every form of ameliorative and reconstructive relief.

Dr. Joseph A. Rosen, noted American agricultural expert, who will make a report to the conference today, and Dr. Bernard Kahn, who came from Berlin to tell his story at the conference, were lauded by Mr. Warburg. It was the scientific attainments of Dr. Rosen and his statesmanlike relations with the soviet government, the chairman declared, that obtained the assistance of that government for the work in Russia, where up to July 1 of this year a total of $1,600,000 has been expended for farm settlement work.

Helps Jews in Poland.

Dr. Kahn has supervised in Poland the relief of over one million starving Jews, where 800,000 are still suffering, but the crisis has been passed. The work done there includes supporting kitchens, feeding school children, establishing summer colonies, making loans to artisans and traders through cooperative loan and credit associations, maintaining religious schools and seminaries, and by medical sanitary work. The conditions in Poland at present are far more optimistic than in the past, according to Dr. Kahn.

STUDENTS IN NEW YORK COLLEGE EARN TOTAL OF 13 MILLION A YEAR

New York, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Annual earnings of students in New York university resemble the income figures of a great corporation.

The university's bureau of employment announced today that the aggregate annual earnings of the students exceed $13,000,000. More than 18,000 of the 26,813 students worked last year at the same time they were getting an education. This average of $722 for each working student represented income from vacation as well as school year work. The employment bureau also finds jobs for graduates, obtaining one alumnus a $20,000 a year position last year.

Many of the students finance their education by serving as substitute actors in Broadway theaters.

ORPHANS' NEEDS IN NEAR EAST CALLED ACUTE

Need of immediate assistance for 35,000 orphans in Asia Minor was stressed yesterday at a meeting of church organizations by members of the Illinois committee of the Near East Relief.

Harry C. Moffett, formerly director of relief work at Ismidt, the Nicodemia of Roman days, asserted that American funds had reduced the number of destitute children in the war torn countries of the near east from 150,000 to the present 35,000. They are concentrated in camps in Syria, Palestine, Egypt, Turkey and Greece and are being educated in line with modern American customs.

Thomas A. Swayze, of Tacoma, Wash., reported that the authorities in all the countries except Turkey were well disposed toward the relief organization. He added that the French rule in Syria had brought on conditions that were almost intolerable for the natives. "Europe hates us," he continued. "The Near East Relief party that toured London and Paris a few weeks ago was stoned, hooted and spat upon by street urchins and adults. But the Geneva conference showed that our funds saved the lives of 2,000,000 persons since 1918."

SOCIETY THRONGS TO WEDDING OF MISS NORCROSS

Miss Sarah Bennet and Mr. McKeldin Married.

BY MILDRED JAKLON.

Many leaders of fashionable Chicago were present at the wedding yesterday afternoon of Miss Catherine Norcross, daughter of Frederick P. Norcross, to Stephen Y. Hord, son of Mrs. Francis Hord of the Ambassador hotel, one popular members of the younger smart set. The ceremony was read at 4 o'clock at St. Chrysostom's church by the Rev. Norman Hutton, and was followed by a reception at the Norcross residence at 1201 Astor street.

The bride's gown was in effective taste, bearing every indication of its Parisian origin. It was fashioned of white satin and embroidered at the neck and sleeves with tiny pearls. Its skirt was full, and the court train falling from the shoulders was lined with blush pink. From a rosepoint cap descended a fluffy tulle veil edged with lace.

Attendants Prettily Garbed.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Richard Bentley, wore cosmos colored crepe trimmed with velvet of a deeper shade and a velvet hat banded with brown fur. The bridesmaids, Miss Elinor Barnard, Miss Louis Tyler, Miss Edith Fairbanks, Miss Buford Richardson, Miss Sarane Otis, Miss Grace Wrenn, and Miss Lucille Wylie of New York City, and Miss Mary Pillsbury of Minneapolis were in orchid with orchid hats. The attendants all carried gladioli of a soft pink that blended with their costumes. The flower girl, Miss Eleanor Ray, was in pale pink.

Evergreens entwined the tall candelabra lining the church alsle and two large urns of snowberries and Burrum lilies marked the beginning of the chancel. Mr. Hord and his bride are to reside at 43 Bellevue place after a honeymoon through the west.

Miss Bennet Weds Mr. McKeldin.

Miss Sarah Bennet's lace veil worn for her wedding yesterday afternoon at the First Presbyterian church, to Gordon McKeldin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. McKeldin of Athens, Tenn., belonged to Mrs. Noble T. McFarlane of New York City, one of the bridesmaids, and has been worn by five of the bride's Vassar classmates before her. Her gown of white satin was simply made with a yoke of family lace. Two strands of orange blossoms bunched with clusters of the same flowers formed the bridal cap, from which hung a tulle veil edged in lace.

Miss Bennet carried white gladioli and sweet peas. The maid of honor, Miss Florence Bennet, wore pale green velvet, a blonde velvet hat, and carried flame colored gladioli. The bridesmaids, Miss Grace Bennet, Mrs. Edward S. Clark, Mrs. Albert S. Gardner, Mrs. Noble T. McFarlane of New York City, and Mrs. Richard F. Warren of Devon, Pa., were in green georgette trimmed with a deeper shade of velvet ribbons. They, also, wore blonde hats and slippers and carried gladioli.

The church, where the ceremony was performed at 4:30 o'clock, was decorated in gladioli and autumn leaves. A reception at the Evanston Country club followed the service.

BARONESS WHO REJECTED THRONE WEDS 5TH TIME

New York, Oct. 9.—[Special.]—The marriage of George W. McCarter of Newark and Redbank, N. J., to Baroness D'Erlanger, formerly Mrs. Peter Cooper Hewitt, was reported today by the Newark Star-Eagle.

Representatives of the McCarter family refused to discuss the report.

McCarter is the fifth husband of the baroness. He is a son of Robert H. McCarter, former attorney general of New Jersey and now chief of defense counsel in the Hall-Mills case.

The baroness is rumored to have rejected no less than seventeen times the proffered hand and throne of the "Boy Shah" of Persia, now deposed.

JUDGE ORDERS ARCHE CLUB TO MEET IN PEACE

Nearly a hundred members of the Arché club, fashionable woman's organization on the south side, crowded the courtroom of Circuit Judge Francis S. Wilson yesterday and heard the judge enter an order restraining any member from interfering with the orderly conduct of the club's affairs.

The judge first dissolved an injunction obtained by Mrs. Virginia Headberg, president, on the ground that it had been obtained illegally. But his order was in effect a renewal of that injunction, pending a settlement of the club's internal dissensions.

Meanwhile, the fight as to who shall preside as president will be continued before a master in chancery who will decide on the legality of Mrs. Headberg's dismissal a few weeks ago by the vote of 100 of the 600 club members.

NEW LIGHTS TO CROWN EPIC OF STATE STREET

White Way Festival Will Open Thursday.

lenged by Lake street, which was developing along Parisian lines with marble fronts, of almost uniform height, and shopping places which drew the elite, especially among the women.

Growth of Marshall Field's.

Prominent among the merchants in Lake street was Potter Palmer. In 1865 his firm became Field, Palmer & Leiter, and in 1867 it was renamed Field, Leiter & Co., with Marshall Field and Levi Z. Leiter owning two-thirds of the stock.

Then the firm took the momentous step of removing to the northwest corner of State and Washington. The boldness of the move, in the face of the advanced development on Lake street and the heterogeneous condition of State, created a profound stir. Thus it was that these three advance scouts of a business army, Palmer, Field and Leiter, "took" State street.

Palmer purchased about a mile of State street frontage, moved back the buildings, erected a dozen new ones, including the first Palmer house, and invited the Lake street business men to come in and take possession. From Madison to 12th streets there was now a wide, new thoroughfare.

Fire Wrecks Bright Hopes.

The future of State street at that time seemed bright, for with the advent of new buildings came better lighting, more paving and the patronage of a better class of citizens.

Then the great fire of 1871 swept over the district and left it in ruins. It is here that the history rings with the stories of the pluck of these early merchants, who, drawn closer by the disaster, would not give up their city.

Scattered temporarily, they managed to start up somewhere. Field's, having camped out in the car barns at 22d street, found lodgment in the Exposition building, and soon afterward was back at the present site at State and Washington streets.

With the return of Marshall Field a number of other merchants drifted toward the center, rather groping about than having a definite idea of what directed them to State street.

The Mandel brothers—Simon, Leon, and Emanuel—in 1872 erected a building at State and Harrison, and in 1875 came up to 121-23 State street. In 1884 they extended their building to include their present corner at State and Madison.

Samuel Carson and John T. Pirie, after establishing retail stores in several towns in Illinois from 1854 to 1864, came to Chicago and founded a wholesale business at 20 Lake street in 1866. They moved to Randolph and Wabash in 1870 and in 1904 established their retail business at its present location at State and Madison. They now control the entire State street frontage between Madison and Monroe.

The Boston Store, which grew out of the business founded by Charles and E. W. Partridge, was on the west side of State between Madison and Washington. Charles Netcher, who later became the owner, died in 1904, but his widow, Mrs. Mollie Netcher and her sons, Charles, Townsend, and Irving, carried on the business, and she still remains president of the company.

The Fair store, at the northwest corner of State and Adams, was opened in 1875, in a little one story frame building with a 16-foot frontage. Within four years it was extended to Dearborn, and in 1886 was incorporated. On the occasion of its 51st anniversary the Fair sold over $1,000,000 worth of merchandise in three days. D. F. Kelly is now president and general manager.

Miss McIlvaine relates in her history how Otto Young, walking down State street one day in the '80's, said to a friend that they might not live to see it, "but some day this property will be worth $100 a square foot." That was the limit of imagination in those days. Young's friend lived to see the property reach a value of $500 a square foot and will probably live to see it reach half as much again.

And now a new State street is coming into being. A business volume of $1,500,000 a day is concentrated in an area of seven blocks. There is shopping floor space equal to a 1,000 acre farm, and the shoppers have $100,000,000 worth of merchandise to choose from.

AT THE ENDS OF THE GREAT WHITE WAY

Sketch of the huge arches to be erected on State street at Lake and Van Buren streets as a part of the new white way, which will be put into operation Thursday night. Searchlights will play on each arch. They will be studded with jewels imported from Austria, each the size of a silver dollar. About 30,000 will be used in the two arches.

MARINE BAND TO PLAY 4 CONCERTS HERE OCT. 19-20

President Coolidge has given permission for the United States Marine band to play four concerts in Chicago on Oct. 19 and 20, it was announced by the Lions clubs of Cook county yesterday.

Requests that Illinois be included in the band's fall itinerary were made by Vice President Charles G. Dawes and United States Senator Charles S. Deneen. It was announced that one of the numbers to be played by the band will be the "Melody in A Major," a composition by the Vice President, who has been invited, with Mrs. Dawes, to head the list of patrons for the occasion. The band will give its concerts at Medinah temple, marking its first playing engagement in Chicago for fifteen years. Proceeds of the concerts, after expenses are paid, will be turned into the charity funds of the 31 Lions' clubs in the county.

WIFE SLAYER GETS LIFE.

Council Bluffs, Ia., Oct. 9.—(AP)—District Judge Ratcliff today denied a motion for a new trial for Clayton Van Doran, 23, who was convicted of slaying his wife, and sent him to prison for life.

Death of City Employe Called Suicide by Jury

A verdict of suicide was returned yesterday by a coroner's jury investigating the death of Paul Thompson, 54 years old, 1014 West 49th street, driver of a city garbage wagon. The body of Thompson, with bullet wounds in the back of the head, was found in his home by members of the family. Near by lay a shotgun, both barrels discharged. For a time it was thought he had been murdered, but the widow declared Thompson had been despondent, and Dr. Joseph Springer, coroner's physician, said he believed the man could easily have shot himself.

BROWNING TELLS LOVE OF PEACHES IN CASH TERMS

Produces Bills; Cites Her Gain in Weight.

New York, Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Edward W. Browning, real estate dealer, today reaffirmed his devotion to his sixteen year old bride, "Peaches" Heenan Browning, who left him on Oct. 2 and returned to her mother, Mrs. Catherine Heenan, and said he would take her back.

"I love my wife more than my own life," he said, "and I married her because of my love and because I wanted to have a home and children of my own. I gave up everything for this marriage. It has estranged me from my relatives and none of them have spoken to me since it took place."

Peaches Used Car.

Browning denied that his wife had led a "bird-in-a-gilded-cage" existence since her marriage. "I spent about three-quarters of each day at my business," he said, "and she practically had the car for her use all that time. The day before she left me, I rode on the subway and elevated, and even walked, so that she and her mother could ride around in the car.

"I thought by my marriage I would get a little happiness and have a child of my own. I tried to make Peaches happy to the best of my ability."

Browning displayed also a large envelope of doctor's bills he had paid which, he said, exceeded $1,000.

"My wife had one doctor after another," he said, "for all kinds of things, and I was charged from $25 to $100 a visit. She went to about fifteen doctors altogether after she had been burned by acid.

Gained in Weight.

"My wife weighed 135 pounds when I first met her, and then she lost fifteen pounds during her illness. When she left me she weighed 165 pounds without her coat. Her mother weighs over 204 pounds now."

Before she left him, Browning said, she owned 65 dresses. On Sept. 27 he said she purchased $5,599.50 worth of clothes for which he paid.

TWO TAXI DRIVERS ROBBED.

Glenn Sullivan, 8014 South Elizabeth street, a Checker taxicab driver, was robbed of his cab and $20 early yesterday morning by two bandits. The car was recovered. Two armed gunmen took $17 away from Edward Kratochovil, 2247 Warren avenue, a Yellow cab driver at 17th and Wood streets.

LAY CORNERSTONE FOR MASONIC TEMPLE

TAG CHICAGOANS TOMORROW FOR CHILDREN'S SAKE

Dever Urges City to Give; $150,000 Is Goal.

Mayor William E. Dever, a strong personal advocate of the cause of charitable institutions caring for juvenile dependents, yesterday took official cognizance of the annual tag day of the Children's Benefit league, which will be held tomorrow, when he issued a proclamation concerning it. The proclamation said:

"One day in each year is customarily set aside as tag day, on which representatives of established children's charities collect money under auspices of the Chicago Children's Benefit league, whose membership comprises fifty charitable institutions representative of all creeds and races in Chicago.

Set Goal at $150,000.

"Therefore I proclaim Monday, Oct. 11, as tag day, and because the Chicago Children's Benefit league and the charities which benefit under its auspices are worthy ones, I urge on all citizens to contribute generously.

Plans for the tag day this year have been made with the goal set at $150,000, and workers declare they are confident of reaching that quota. Twenty thousand women and girl taggers will be on the street in relays of 5,000 each.

The charities and institutions benefiting from the day are:

Ashland avenue St. Elizabeth's day nursery, Augustana nursery, Bethseda day nursery, Bethlehem Creche, Bohemian Orphan's home, Catholic Social Center nursery, Central Baptist Children's home, Charity Alliance, Chase House day nursery, Chicago Foundling home, Children's Receiving Home of Lutheran Women's league, Danish Lutheran Orphan's home, De Paul day nursery, Emerson House kindergarten and day nursery, Englewood hospital children's ward, Ephpheta School for Deaf, Erie Chapel institute, Evangelical Lutheran Home Finding Society of Illinois, Evanston day nursery.

MUSSOLINI RULE OF ITALY'S ARMY MADE ABSOLUTE

Names Self Commander of Fascist Militia.

BY JOHN CLAYTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
(Copyright: 1926: By The Chicago Tribune.)

ROME, Oct. 9.—Premier Mussolini today took over supreme command of the "national militia," the black shirted army of fascism, which is the finest military body in Italy. Sig. Mussolini now has all the armed forces of Italy in his hand as commander in chief or responsible minister.

The Italian premier issued the following order of the day to the Fascist militia:

"Officers and Black Shirts: Today I take over chief command of the militia. You will understand the importance of this gesture. Obey orders with absolute devotion, be ever ready, wherever and however needed, to protect the régime which today is the fatherland. Greet the brave commander, Duke of Gonzaga, who leaves you today. Lift flags and muskets with the cry of our unconquerable faith: 'Long Live Fascism.'"

Pledges Allegiance to King.

To the king Premier Mussolini telegraphed:

"Assuming active command of the national militia today, my devoted and obedient thoughts address themselves to your majesty, the supreme chief of the armed forces of the nation. The black shirts of all Italy, made up of 150 iron legions, renew in the hands of your majesty, with the same faith, their oath of service, and I beg to extend to your majesty my own and their respectful homage."

Reorganize Fascist Party.

A general housecleaning within the Fascist party will be one of the results of the sitting of the grand council of the party, which concluded its work at 5 o'clock this morning.

From today no Italian who is more than eighteen years of age can become a member of the Fascist party. Its membership lists have closed. The recruits will be obtained entirely from organizations for the Fascist youth, the new members growing up in the traditions and precepts of Fascism.

Under the new régime the child enters the "Balilla," or "Wolfcubs of Fascism," at the age of seven, remaining in the Balilla until he is twelve, then he passes to the "advanced guard," or boy scouts. On his eighteenth birthday he is eligible to become a full fledged member of the Fascist party.

Obey Orders Without Discussion.

On becoming a member he must take the following oath: "I swear to follow without discussion the orders of my leader with all my strength and, when necessary, with my blood, to serve the Fascist revolution."

The organization of the Fascist party today is as follows: The leader or duce, Premier Benito Mussolini; the grand council of the party, of which Premier Mussolini is chairman; the general secretary; a ten member party directorate named by the grand council; provincial secretaries named by the grand council; secretaries of the local Fascist groups.

Has 1,000,000 Members.

In addition the party has its own army, "the national militia," with Premier Mussolini as commander in chief.

The graduates from the advance guard will be received into the Fascist party on March 23 of every year with appropriate ceremonies.

The Fascist party now has nearly 1,000,000 members, while 20,000,000 already are inscribed in the Fascist syndicates, or union of capital and labor. Each member must maintain the spirit of discipline of the party in the exercise of his private profession.

Has Two Husbands; Loves Neither; Divorce Asked

Marie A. Koch, 19 year old high school graduate, has two husbands and loves neither, according to her statement to Judge John Lupe in the Morals court yesterday when she was arraigned before him. Her first husband, Edward Brosch, has filed suit for divorce. The marriage to the second, Walter D. Seydowitz, 23, 2201 Washington boulevard, is illegal. Judge Lupe sentenced Seydowitz, who, Dr. William J. Hickson testified, is a cocaine user, to six months in the Bridewell and continued the case of the girl until Oct. 11.

SHERIFF TO CALL ON GOVERNOR TO PROBE LYNCHING

"We Want You or the Negro," Mob Said.

Dover, Tenn., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Authorities tonight planned to request Gov. Austin Peay to aid in the investigation of the lynching of Herbert Bell, Negro, last night, near Parkertown, ten miles from here, it was announced by Sheriff L. L. Ellis.

Bell was taken from the jail here last night by a mob of 75 unmasked and armed men who overpowered the sheriff.

"We want either you or the Negro," Sheriff Ellis said he was told by the mob when he urged them to "listen to reason."

The sheriff said the mob then forced him and Bell to cross the Cumberland river, 300 yards away, while the prisoner prayed. After crossing the river the mob permitted the sheriff to return to the jail.

The Negro then was taken to a spot near Parkertown and hanged and shot to death.

Bell was held on a charge of first degree murder for the slaying of Rufus Joyner, farmer, of Parkertown. The theory of officers was that Joyner was beaten to death with a club as the result of a dispute over a crap game.

FAIL TO FIND TWO CONSERVATION MEN, GONE WEEK

Marquette, Mich., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—State police, conservation officers and a large posse of men today failed to find any trace of Emil Skoglund and Arvid Erickson, conservation officers who have been missing for more than a week and who are believed to have been murdered.

John Baird, state director of conservation, directed the search in the vicinity of Gwynn, where the men were last seen, and J. A. Vizena, his assistant, was in charge of the men combing the woods.

Capt. Archie Downing, Michigan state police; Capt. T. E. Degan of the United States coast guard service, and sheriff's officers were supervising the dragging of Pickerel lake, 50 miles from Gwynn. Skoglund's car was found on the road to the lake the morning after they were last seen. Blood found in a boat on Pickerel lake and in a pool near Sands, a short way from Gwynn, has been found to be that of humans.

ASKED KAISER TO QUIT; MADE HEAD OF GERMAN ARMY

Gen. Heyse Named to Take Place of Von Seeckt.

BERLIN, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Lieut. Gen. Wilhelm Heyse, a general staff officer under Field Marshal Von Hindenburg during the world war, today succeeded Gen. Von Seeckt as commander in chief of the reichswehr. Gen. Heyse has been commander of the Koenigsberg division of the reichswehr.

The appointment was made by President Von Hindenburg, who accepted yesterday the resignation of Gen. Von Seeckt, which followed the criticism of the latter's action in permitting participation of young Prince Wilhelm, son of the former crown prince in recent army maneuvers.

Gen. Heyse, it was made clear, will be "military adviser to the minister of defense." This is the same status which Gen. Von Seeckt had held since the autumn of 1925, when the allied powers insisted that, under the treaty of Versailles Germany should place the supreme command of the army in the hands of the minister of defense. Gen. Von Seeckt, however, had so long been identified in the public mind with the army leadership that the altered capacity hardly was noticed.

As a sugar pill to his being placed in a position of subordination to the defense minister, Gen. Von Seeckt has been made a colonel general, as from Jan. 1, 1926, ranking second only to a field marshal. The subordination of Gen. Heyse to the minister of defense is felt to emphasize that the army must be only a defensive arm of the government, without interfering with the country's politics.

Gen. Heyse headed the group of officers who went to the then Emperor William in 1918 and suggested that he abdicate.

MOTHER AND SIX CHILDREN FLEE BURNING HOME

Waukegan, Ill., Oct 9.—[Special.]—Awakened early this morning by part of the roof falling over bedrooms occupied by her and six children, Mrs. Charles Osterburg fought her way through the smoke with her two babies in her arms. Her hair was ignited by a burning piece of the roof as she left the house. The older children escaped and she, laying the babies on the ground, used her hands to smother her burning hair.

The mother and children, the oldest 13 years, were clad in nightgowns and were unable to save any of their clothing or household effects. The house, valued at about $10,000 and located a mile west of Waukegan, was burned to the ground. Farmers living nearby organized a bucket brigade and fought the blaze, but could accomplish little.

SEES POINCARE VICTORY IN FIGHT FOR DEBT PACT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 9.—Provided he can keep the exchange from slipping before parliament reconvenes, Premier Raymond Poincare will muster a majority in favor of the debt ratification with the reservations he has outlined, Deputy Marc de Chappedelaine, reporter of the budget in the chamber of deputies, predicted today.

"At present there is no doubt that Premier Poincare holds a majority on this question," he declared, "but with the growing agitation for opposition and the tendency of the public of France to believe they have been skinned by the shrewd Yankees, the majority could not survive a sudden fall on the exchange."

HUNT NEW JERSEY BOYS HERE.

Chicago police yesterday were asked to aid in the search for two Newark, N. J., boys, missing since Tuesday and believed by their mothers to be in Chicago. Their names were given as Ralph Kidder, 15 years old, and Edward Skokna, also 15, each about 5 feet 6 inches tall and weighing about 135 pounds.

The 3rd Year Tells the Story of Hupmobile Value

Any moderately priced six can be expected to deliver fairly economical service in its first year. A few will pass the year-and-a-half mark before visits to the repair shop become routine.

It is the third year that tests the quality of a motor car. Then you begin to realize the vast difference between Hupmobile Six endurance and the maintenance costs of other cars.

In the Hupmobile Six, as in all Hupmobiles built in the past 18 years, strength has been united to surpassing performance by Hupmobile's high standards of engineering and manufacture.

The fact that Hupmobile piston pins are held to limits of one ten-thousandth of an inch—the 30th part of a human hair—may not mean much to you in theory. But this is only one of the extra-precise operations which distinguish Hupmobile manufacturing; and all of them contribute to that fine performance and long life that set Hupmobile apart from all other sixes.

It is essential of such fine engineering, that only the highest grade materials can be employed.

Hupmobile, for example, is one of the two manufacturers to import a special Cuban iron ore for making its cylinder blocks. Rich in nickel content, this ore insures a metal unmatched for resistance to wear.

Hupmobile's ability to stand up to punishing service, year after year, long after other cars have reached the "trade-in" stage, is the logical result of such painstaking methods.

These methods mean that to flexible, agile six-cylinder performance, you may now add the sterling Hupmobile qualities of long-lived usefulness and dependability.

Supplementing the fundamental value of the Hupmobile Six are many advance features of equipment and beauty that place it in the front rank of fine motor cars. The co-ordination of these features of luxury and beauty with Hupmobile mechanical excellence is responsible for the public's record-breaking buying of the Six in the past twelve months.

Hupmobile Six a Leader, Also, in Complete, Modern Equipment

What goes into a motor car is vastly more important than what goes on it. You will not buy, of course, on mere external and non-essentials, but on proven performance, dependability, long life, and low cost of maintenance. To superiority in these fundamentals, however, the Hupmobile Six also joins the latest and most complete equipment to be found on any car in its price class.

Sedan, five-passenger, four-door, $1385. Coupe, two-passenger, with rumble seat, $1385. Roadster, with rumble seat, $1385. Touring, five-passenger, $1325. Equipment includes 30x5.25 balloon tires, four-wheel brakes.

Home Is What You Make It

You have seen some homes which, to put it mildly, are unattractive. The rocking chair is on the verge of collapse. The springs sag in the davenport. Walls are streaked with dirt. Carpets are almost threadbare. Is it any wonder that the owners of these ugly and deformed antiques flee to more cheerful environment at every opportunity?

There are other homes, however. The rooms are pleasant and cozy. There are deep, soft chairs and cheery lamps, pictures and other lovely articles which make a real home atmosphere within four walls. In such homes, guests are always welcome and charmed, and the younger generation is tempted to loiter around the fireside. Such homes, certainly, are an aid and incentive for right thinking in both the personal and the business life of a community.

Home is what you make it. Of the two types, which do you prefer?

BOMBS, SCRUPLES HOLD STAGE IN TRIAL OF SALTIS

Judge to Take Hand in Completing Jury.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Several incidents figured yesterday in the present predicament of Mr. Joseph Saltis, who for an extended period was able to regulate the sale of beer on the south side. Now Joe is under the necessity of defending himself of the charge of the murder of John (Mitters) Foley, who contested for certain beer customers with Saltis and came to an untimely death. In Judge Harry B. Miller's court yesterday morning an effort was being made to complete the jury.

But Mr. Con Scruples, by no means a stranger in the Criminal Court building, but an unwelcome visitor, made too many trips in and out of the courtroom to please Judge Miller.

And there were the echoes of two south side bombs which exploded yesterday morning and which telephone reports from police at the scene ascribed to the neglect by two saloonkeepers to contribute to Saltis' defense fund.

O'Brien Wears Red Tie.

And Special Prosecutor James C. O'Brien was wearing the red necktie [perhaps not the same one] that made him famous in other days when it was said he always obtained a death penalty when he wore it while prosecuting a murder case.

Con Scruples was the first disturber of the otherwise orderly procedure of justice. The law recognizes two kinds of citizens in considering the merits of prospective jurors, those who believe in the death penalty "in a proper case" and those who do not believe in it in any kind of a case—sort of pacifistic person.

Eight jurors had been obtained in two days and the struggle of yesterday was to get the other four. But each man who paraded into the jury box was accompanied by one of the scruples, conscientious, or con.

"Have you conscientious scruples against the death penalty?" each and every one of them was asked and to the last man they said they had—and so they were permitted to depart.

"I'm convinced these are con scruples," Judge Miller said. "It will be different Monday. I'm going to examine those scruples and see if they are conscientious or con. Con will not go out the front door any more, but may go out the rear exit, which is really the entrance to the county jail."

Then came the bombs. One exploded in the soft drink parlor owned by Joseph Kepka, 5358 South Lincoln street—Saltis territory. Damage was estimated at $10,000—no one harmed.

Capt. James Fleming and Lieut. Michael McFadden said Kepka had not heeded the command to "kick in" for Saltis.

Bomb in Soft Drink Parlor.

The second bomb did its stuff in the soft drink parlor of Fred Martinek, 4801 South Honore street—Saltis territory—ten minutes after the first blast. "Same thing," reported Capt. Fleming and Lieut. McFadden.

"No such thing," Attorneys W. W. O'Brien and Frank A. McDonnell, who represent Saltis, replied. "Our clients don't need a defense fund and they have no interest in either of those soft drink parlors."

"Why the devil don't you get a different necktie?" Saltis said to Prosecutor O'Brien as Saltis was being taken back to the county jail.

"I'm depending on this one to do its stuff," O'Brien retorted.

LILA LEE VISITS HOME TOWN

Lila Lee, movie actress, and her mother, Mrs. Charles Appel, at the Blackstone hotel yesterday after the former's return from a six weeks' trip abroad. The actress grew up in Chicago, the daughter of Charles Appel, long identified with the North Side Turner hall. Appel has been missing for many months. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

MOTHER GREETS LILA LEE AFTER TRIP TO EUROPE

Lila Lee came home yesterday from a six weeks' trip in Europe, where she visited London and Paris having what she described as a rip-roaring good time. The actress, who is the wife of James Kirkwood, is a Chicago girl, and was greeted on her arrival here yesterday by her mother, Mrs. Charles Appel.

Miss Lee is on her way to Hollywood where she will complete interior work on her next picture, "One Increasing Purpose," a sequel to "If Winter Comes." Exterior work was done while she was abroad, she said.

Miss Lee stopped at the Blackstone hotel, and received several of her childhood friends before leaving for Hollywood at 3 o'clock.

DIES OF FALL DOWN STAIRS.

Fred Krumholz, 53 years old, 5001 South Elizabeth street, died at the County hospital early yesterday of injuries received Oct. 6 when he fell down stairs at his home.

LINK CHICAGO LAWYER WITH AIMEE'S STORY

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Charges that Mrs. Aimee McPherson called up Attorney Edward H. S. Martin, Chicago, by long distance and conducted arrangements which resulted in Martin drawing up the famous Kenneth Ormiston affidavit of exoneration for Mrs. McPherson, were submitted to District Attorney Asa Keyes today.

Mr. Keyes said these charges will be used in next week's resumption of the preliminary hearings of Mrs. McPherson, her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, and others accused of a conspiracy to commit perjury.

The charges were made today by Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman-Seliaff, a codefendant with Mrs. McPherson. She said she was in Mrs. McPherson's home and heard the evangelist call up Martin in Chicago.

Many restaurants have one or two specialties which they advertise at low prices in order to attract business. NASH

Leads the World in Motor Car Value

Greatest September Sales in Nash History

—and if it had been possible to build all the cars ordered September would have smashed all Nash records for a single month's business.

OCTOBER! At this writing it is a practical certainty that October sales and production will surpass by more than 50% the largest previous October on our books.

Announcement of new models—all powered with 7-bearing crankshaft motors, the world's smoothest type—sent Nash demand racing toward new heights.

September clicked the 25th consecutive month and October will register the 26th—with three exceptions—that Nash sales have exceeded the record set by the same month of the previous year.

The three months noted above as exceptions were months when production was deliberately restricted to enable bringing new models into manufacture.

• • • • •

The three new Nash series—Light Six, Special Six and Advanced Six—include sixteen models distinguished with important new engineering attractions and dressed in colorful new body finishes.

"Man works from sun to sun but woman's work is never done!"

—An Old Proverb

THIS advertisement is written to women who think they would like to trade their dishpans for a stenographer's note book. Just for diversion. ¶ A man's home is his castle. A woman's home her workshop. The advent of labor-saving appliances has permitted her to get out once in a while. But until recently the monotonous task of dishwashing has assailed her three times a day, for an average of more than two and a half hours. But that has been changed. See the column at the right.

Let

CONOVER

Electric Dishwasher WASH the DISHES

See the Conover Electric Dishwasher at the Sesqui-Centennial Exposition, Philadelphia, Liberal Arts Building the most monotonous of household drudgery

DISHWASHING

has been mastered by machinery

The pushbutton has a new significance. Particularly for women who have wanted some of man's labor-saving conveniences.

Now the little button summons a new kitchen servant. He answers the call instantly. And gladly busies himself with the most menial task of the household—dishwashing. He is Conover—the electric dishwasher.

Give him the dishes—and press the button. In a swirl of hot sudsy water he flushes them sparkling clean. Then let him rinse them with clear boiling water. They dry themselves. The job is done!

Women say Conover is the greatest work saver that ever came into the home. He eliminates that three-time-a-day monotony of the dishpan. He gives back wasted hours and keeps hands pretty and white. And he does it without pay.

This marvellous little fellow is just waiting for a chance to come over to your house and show you what he can do. You will find him at your nearest dealer. Look through the list below. Find your dealer's name. Ask him to bring Conover over tomorrow to wash your dishes. It won't cost you a cent.

If your dealer isn't listed here, mail the coupon and we will see that you have a call from Conover—the electric dishwasher. And we will send you a book on Dishes and their correct use.

LEGIONNAIRES OF CHICAGO LEAVE FOR CONVENTION

Woodlawn Post Vets Will Drill at White House.

Hundreds of Chicago members of the American Legion joined other hundreds from other midwest cities yesterday in the trek to Philadelphia, where the eighth annual national convention will open tomorrow. The Woodlawn post sent its drill team of 175 members, while the Stockyards post and the Cook county chapter of the Forty and Eight also dispatched delegations.

The Woodlawn team will drill on the White House grounds at Washington later in the week, under command of Maj. Hamlet C. Ridgeway.

Howard P. Savage, past commander of the Illinois Legion and present national committeeman from the state, will be a candidate for national commander at the convention.

PARIS SETTING FOR VETS.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 9.—[United Press.]—Bunting, flags, and other patriotic decorations were being flung to the breeze today as Philadelphia prepared to welcome the 100,000 veterans who will attend the American Legion convention here next week.

French billboards, signs, and posters are being arranged throughout the downtown section to create a French atmosphere that will bring back to the vets the "good old days." A picturesque feature of the convention will be the appearance on the streets of a battered Parisian taxicab, one of those that on the night of Sept. 6, 1914, rushed the division of Gen. Gallieni's army from the city to turn back the German invasion at its high water mark on the Marne.

Members of the Forty and Eight society will travel about the city in the French boxcars which carried them on their journeys to the front during the war.

Ma Ferguson Refuses to Resign Her Office

Austin, Tex., Oct. 9.—[United Press.]—Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson has no intention of resigning her office and will hold the executive reins until the expiration of her term on Jan. 11, 1927, Representative Reuben Loftin of Henryetta, house floor manager for the Ferguson administration, stated today. The Texas house of representatives on Thursday voted to ask Mrs. Ferguson to resign.

RAID HOME OF HENRY STEVENS, TAKE KNIVES

New York, Oct. 9.—(AP)—The home of Henry Stevens, one of four persons under indictment for the murder of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, and his choir leader, Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills, was raided for evidence today by Assistant Attorney General Alexander Simpson and his investigators, the New York Herald Tribune will say tomorrow.

According to the paper, Senator Simpson declined to explain the purpose of the raid, made at Lavelette, N. J., but announced he had taken two fish scaling knives he had found on the premises. Mrs. Stevens was not at home when the investigators entered. Mrs. Stevens said that besides the two knives, an old razor and a small saw were missing.

QUEEN'S VOYAGE DRY; SPURNS U.S. OFFER OF DRINK

Boards Leviathan for U.S. Tuesday.

BY LORIMER HAMMOND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1926: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Oct. 9.—The special liquor dispensations offered by the United States government through the United States lines for the Roumanian royal party's voyage aboard the American liner Leviathan were refused today by Queen Marie. During the entire trip from Cherbourg to New York the royal party will adhere strictly to a wineless, beerless, liquorless régime. It was explained that abstention will be no hardship because Queen Marie and her son, Nicholas, and daughter, Ileana, are all teetotalers.

The voyage aboard the Leviathan will maintain a nice balance between exclusiveness and democracy. The queen and her party will be provided with a private deck overlooking the other passengers' decks and they will also dine for the most part in a private dining salon, but the queen has announced her intention of going down into the first class dining room once or twice during the voyage, occupying a place at the captain's table.

The queen has also expressed a wish to taste all the American dishes prepared by American cooks in an American way. She will not take with her a Roumanian chef, but will have Roumanian servants, waiters, maitre d'hotel, and maids, so it is unlikely the American staff of the Leviathan will have any direct contacts with the royal party, with the exception of the captain and officers.

Admiral Roger Wells, commanding the American flotilla in French waters, will greet the queen's party on its arrival in Cherbourg Tuesday. A navy tender from the Memphis will carry the queen to the liners.

Commander Artley, skipper of the Leviathan, has had his own radio, which is said to be one of the finest in the world, set up in the royal apartment in order to provide entertainment for Queen Marie, who is particularly fond of listening in on the radio.

Queen Gets Permanent Wave.

Queen Marie spent three hours today under the expert fingers of a famous Paris hairdresser, who applied the queen's first permanent wave. Her hair was cut fairly short—between a bob and shingle—parted slightly in the middle, and brushed straight back, with points at the temples and curls following the contour of her cheek bones.

Princess Ileana also underwent her first permanent waving ceremony. Ileana is wearing hers swept down from the forehead in an oblique wave, giving a youthful effect.

The hairdresser who designed the coiffeurs of the Roumanian royalty has also served the queen's daughter, who is the present queen of Serbia, and also Infanta Helenie of Spain, as well as many wives of American millionaires and other noted women from the United States.

Clean Up Imperial Suite.

SOUTHAMPTON, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Immediately the trans-Atlantic liner Leviathan arrived today decorators and painters were rushed to the imperial suite which will be occupied by Queen Marie of Roumania and her party on the voyage next Tuesday for New York and commenced to furbish the rooms preparatory to the queen's embarkation. Queen Marie will be served with the same food as other passengers, but orders have been given by the Leviathan's commissary department for selected choice viands and fruit.

27 CHICAGO UNIONS INDORSE FETZER FOR RE-ELECTION TO BENCH

Twenty-seven local unions, with a total membership of more than 22,000, have indorsed Municipal Judge William R. Fetzer for reelection. He is one of the Republican nominees and in the April primary received the second highest number of votes cast for any candidate for the Municipal bench.

JUDGE FETZER.

Practically all branches of the teamsters' and wagon drivers' organizations have given Judge Fetzer's candidacy their approval. The latest body to indorse him is the egg inspectors' union. The judge was once an alderman and has served as an assistant state's attorney.

FORMER HUSBAND OF OLGA IS SUING FRANK L. WRIGHT

Frank Lloyd Wright, architect, was made defendant in a new kind of alienation of affections suit yesterday. Valdemar Hinzenberg, former husband of Mme. Olga Milanoff, dancer with whom Wright is said to have left the United States, asked $250,000 damages, charging that the architect alienated the affections of his daughter, Svetlana.

"Please make it clear that I'm not asking for money for the loss of my former wife's affections," Hinzenberg pleaded. "But my little daughter has lost her love for me because of Wright. I never gave consent for the child to live with Mme. Milanoff and Wright. I understand she has not been in school and has been their companion on their travels."

Attorney Harold Jackson, who filed a praecipe in the suit, was confident he could get service on Wright. He said he did not believe the report that Wright never would return to this country.

British Negotiate with Germans for Ruhr Coal

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 9. — International trade conditions, particularly the problem of supplying British industry with Ruhr coal without crippling German industry, were discussed today by twenty-three German and British captains of industry, who are guests of Col. Wilfred Ashley, minister of transport. It was denied that the conference negotiated an Anglo-German dye industry pact or that Great Britain is joining the continental steel trust. THE TRIBUNE learns authoritatively that these questions were privately discussed.

KEWANEE

The Key to Boiler Economy

A boiler which can't consume coal thoroughly is not economical. It's wasteful. Black smoke issuing from the smokestack proves that the fuel is not being consumed properly, because smoke is nothing but unconsumed fuel.

The reason Kewanee Smokeless Boilers are Smokeless is that they consume all the gases, and give you the full worth of every ounce of fuel you use. None of the cost goes up the chimney in smoke. That's real and continuous economy.

Another important element of the Kewanee Boilers' guaranteed economy is that it will burn any type of fuel without smoke. Even the poorest grades of soft coal are burned in the Kewanee Boiler without smoke. Figure what your savings would be between cheap, soft coal and the high-priced smokeless coal.

Imagine what this means to you if you are large users of coal. The saving will pile up into so much money that it will surprise you. And the facts have been demonstrated so often that you who ignore them are unwise.

Write to The Old Man Behind the Boiler for details and proof of Kewanee's Economical History.

SURVIVORS TELL HOW FIRE OF '71 SWEPT CHICAGO

They Want Water Tower Kept as Relic.

An inferno of flame, running with the speed of a swift horse, leaping from block to block, belching clouds of smoke and cinders. A stiff wind carrying millions of firebrands and hundreds of burning boards from houses and lumber yards, to set scores of new fires. Streets choked with panic-stricken people, abandoning their homes. Death near, and destruction everywhere.

Thus many of the survivors of the great Chicago fire of 1871 attempted yesterday afternoon, at the Chicago Historical Society's observance of the fifty-fifth anniversary of the conflagration, to describe the catastrophe.

Each Tells What He Saw.

Many and various were the conversational chapters added to the historic tale. None of the speakers during the afternoon had a more vivid story to tell than had Wallace Rice, son of one of the former proprietors of the Sherman house, who was a schoolboy at the time of the fire. Mr. Rice gave his auditors some idea of the rapidity with which the fire advanced, when he related that the old Sherman house was ignited by flames from the old home of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, in the Ashley block, and that in just eight minutes, it had been destroyed.

Dr. Homer Thomas told of the privations endured by Chicagoans as the result of the burning of the waterworks, and of the generosity of those who escaped, mainly west side residents, in caring for the victims. William Thomas and Mrs. Charles Dana were among others who recounted their experiences in fleeing from their homes. It was Obediah Sands who likened the pace of a racehorse to the onrush of the flames.

Wants Water Tower Preserved.

Dr. Otto L. Schmidt, president of the Historical society, introduced Harry Frost, who in a letter to the Voice of the People column, in THE TRIBUNE, had suggested the preservation of the old water tower at Chicago avenue and Michigan as a memorial of the fire. The audience was unanimous in favor of carrying out the plan.

A comment that Michigan avenue should be widened at that point to accommodate traffic was met with the declaration that the widening should come on the east side of the street, so as not to disturb the original location of the water tower, the only building in that district to survive the fire. Wallace Rice advanced the suggestion that the old Chicago courthouse, erected on the site of the present city hall, should be reproduced on the McKinlock campus, as a new home for the Historical society. Both the architecture and the size of the building would lend themselves admirably to the purpose, he declared.

Two "creations," of Worth of Paris, designed in 1871, were worn by Mrs. Mariam Pleak and Mrs. Leroy Kellogg, who impersonated the former owners of the gowns, Mrs. Augustus Harris Burley, mother of Clarence Burley, a former president of the Historical society, and Mrs. T. B. Carter. Dwight Hubbart impersonated Clarence Eddy, a famous organist of that period.

ENJOIN KRESGE FROM DIVORCE SUIT IN DETROIT

New York, Oct. 9.—(AP)—The long drawn out litigation between Sebastian S. Kresge, head of the S. S. Kresge five and ten cent stores, and his wife, Mrs. Doris Mercer Kresge, took a new turn today when Mrs. Kresge obtained a Supreme court order restraining her husband from prosecuting his action for divorce in Detroit.

Immediately after the order had been signed by Justice Levy, a messenger was sent to Detroit with certified copies to be served on Mr. Kresge.

Mrs. Kresge, in seeking to enjoin the Michigan suit, maintains that Mr. Kresge is a resident of New York City and that the Michigan courts have no jurisdiction.

Last March Mrs. Kresge sued her husband for 17,500 shares of stock in the Kresge corporation, valued at $7,000,000. She later reduced her claim to $1,000,000. A settlement was effected through which Mrs. Kresge was reported to have received a "substantial amount." Mr. Kresge later instituted divorce proceedings in Detroit.

Tom Brown, Music Firm Head, Sued for Divorce

Thomas Brown, president of the Tom Brown Musical company, 34 West Lake street, was accused of habitual drunkenness in a suit for divorce filed yesterday in the Superior court by Mrs. Theresa Brown. Mrs. Brown said her husband has an income of $5,000 a month and she requested large alimony. Brown is now in Seattle, it was said.

LABOR PLEDGES TO BATTLE FOR SHORTER HOURS

Federation Hopes to Win Over Employes.

BY THOMAS WREN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Discussed from all phases and economic angles, with the keynote of the five day work week being sounded on the revolution of modern industry by the ever increasing use of machinery the American Federation of Labor convention today avoided making any definite indorsement of the shorter work week in industry.

The federation, however, went on record as favoring a progressive shortening of the work day and week when industry and the organized workers themselves are educated to accept it. The discussion of the forty-hour week occupied the morning session. It was brought on the convention floor through a report made by the committee on shorter work week on a resolution presented at the opening of the labor meeting by the international union of millinery workers.

Campaign on Every Industry.

The delegation of this organization requested the federation to inaugurate a vigorous campaign in every industry for the introduction of the five day work week. It averred that under present methods of modern machinery the workers continually are subjected to the strain of mechanicalised process, which saps their vitality and injures their health and sometimes jeopardises their lives.

C. B. Vandusen, president of the Detroit Y. M. C. A., today wrote William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, that the withdrawal of the invitation to Mr. Green to address a Y. M. C. A. meeting did not imply a refusal to permit labor's side of this controversy to be heard.

"Upon any occasion," writes Mr. Vandusen, "when an acute controversial question such as the present does not exist, you will be a welcome speaker at any of our Sunday afternoon meetings that will best suit your convenience."

The controversial question referred to by Mr. Vandusen is the open or closed shop.

The report of the shorter work week committee read by M. J. Keough, chairman, recommended that the executive council of the American Federation of Labor to continue its educational campaign among the wage earners of the organized labor movement, the purpose being the establishment of a progressive shortening of the present work hour day and week.

"Modern industry of today is being revolutionised by the introduction of machinery, a change which places a more severe strain on the nervous systems of the working classes," asserted Delegate Keough, in making the report.

"With the establishment of machinery and the increased efficiency of management of industry, production has increased tremendously in the United States during the last decade. It is well known that the American Federation of Labor originally set its goal for the inauguration of the eight hour day in industry. This has been established in many industrial fields, where the productivity of the employe is greater than in fields in which the workers have to toil ten and twelve hours.

Production Is Increased.

"But the introduction of machinery has increased the productivity of the manufacturers in this country, an advent which also made it imperative for wage earners to higher standards of efficiency. The result is that according to statistics of the United States government the employers in certain industries have to slacken up production from time to time, the burden, of course, being carried along in the form of unemployment for the workers. These statistics show that in the event the manufacturers speeded up the wheels of industry for six or eight months the production would be sufficient to care for consumption."

Delegate Keogh's report pointed out that markets are governed by the wages paid the workers, citing the fact that the prosperity of the wage earners is reflected in the purchasing power of the merchants and the healthy conditions of business in general.

"Inauguration of the forty hour week in industry is inevitable and will be established just as soon as industry and the workers themselves are educated into accepting it," said Mr. Green.

"There has been," he said, "an economic change taking place silently in the industrial life of the country, and it is no more than fair that the great economic movement of the land should have a voice in the transition."

President Green referred indirectly to the recent establishment of the five day work week for employes of the Ford Automobile company when he said there are some people outside of the labor movement who have shown to the world they believe in the soundness of labor's argument for a shorter work week.

Making Better Citizens.

"How can man's cultural and spiritual self be elevated to the plane intended by his Maker if his whole body is to be shattered by the grind of spending long hours watching over the operation of machinery in a modern factory? Some employers express apprehension as to what the wage earners would do with the extra time off in the event of a shorter work day and week being established. They need not fear, as the extra time would be devoted to making the workers better citizens of the United States."

John H. Walker, president of the Illinois Federation of Labor, spoke on the shorter work week and urged the federation to extend its efforts toward making it possible for farmers to reduce their working hours.

George Hedrick, international president of the painters' organization, said the five day work week has been established for union painters in New York, Boston, and in a number of smaller cities. He said the employers have expressed complete satisfaction with the forty hour week.

Jack Durand's Plea for Parole Up This Month

The effort of Mrs. Scott Durand to secure the release from the penitentiary on parole of her foster son, Jack Durand, convicted of robbery, will come before the board of pardons and paroles at Springfield next week, according to an announcement made yesterday of the cases to be considered this week. The board will meet on Tuesday and Durand's case is second on the docket.

The board also has listed for hearing the pleas of seven murderers asking their release on parole.

CALLS KILLING JUSTIFIED.

Cosmo Zerasit, owner of a poolroom in Chicago Heights, who shot and killed Allen Davis, Negro, was exonerated by a coroner's jury yesterday. The jury decided that the shooting, which occurred during a fight, was justified.

OFFICIALS TALK PLAN FOR COUNTY NURSES' SCHOOL

Plans for the establishment of a school to train nurses for the county hospital were considered at a meeting in the county building of a committee appointed by Anton J. Cermak, president of the county board.

The Illinois Training School for Nurses, which previously supplied nurses to the hospital, is to be affiliated with the University of Chicago and the county hospital must get its nurses elsewhere after December, 1927.

Dr. Karl A. Meyer, head of the county hospital; Commissioner Emily Wheaton and Miss Edna L. Foley, superintendent of the Visiting Nurse association, were appointed to study plans for the new school. Dr. W. A. Evans, health editor of THE TRIBUNE, presided at the meeting.

Liners Collide in 60 Mile Gale Off British Coast

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 9.—A sixty mile an hour gale sweeping Great Britain today caused a collision at Greenock between the liners Caledonia and Ausonia, both outward bound. The Caledonia suffered considerable damage, but proceeded to New York. Great damage was done to channel steamers and waves swept trucks off the Dover piers.

CAN'T RUN MORE SUBURB TRAINS, C. & N. W. SAYS

Right of Way Is Problem, Sargent Indicates.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

President Fred W. Sargent paints a gloomy picture of any substantial increase in the suburban service of the North Western railroad. He gives the impression that a frequency of service, such as would successfully compete with the elevated lines for patronage in close-in suburbs, is physically impossible.

In fact, his view is even more pessimistic than that. But perhaps it would be better to permit the suburbanites to draw their own conclusions from Mr. Sargent's expression. It came in reply to suggestions contained in four issues of THE TRIBUNE on North Western's suburban service. It was given to the aldermen who are holding public hearings on electrification.

More Trains Impracticable.

So important is Mr. Sargent's forecast that it is expedient to give it verbatim, because the president indicates that the North Western is fast approaching, if it has not arrived at, a point where it is impracticable to add any substantial number of suburban trains. Although Mr. Sargent refrains from saying so, this situation is considered due to the old North Western policy of acquiring insufficient right of way when land could be had at a reasonable price.

"There is another thing," said Mr. Sargent, "that has been discussed by Mr. Hewitt of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, and that has to do with the possibility of more frequent train service on short hauls. That is, by electrification we could give more frequent service. I am sure that Mr. Hewitt in his study of the railroad problem relating to the North Western railroad has overlooked entirely that we also carry freight as well as passengers. Unlike the Illinois Central, we have no tracks that are available or can possibly be used exclusively for suburban passenger travel.

Tracks in Use for Freight.

"We use all our tracks for freight, through passenger and suburban trains, freight transit trains, and freight switching for the service of industries along our lines.

"We must find some time, somewhere in the 24 hours, to serve these industries along our rails. At present we have so many passenger trains operating over these tracks that frequently we can permit only three hours of switching service out of an eight hour assignment of our crews.

"To put on more passenger trains, in addition to those we now have, would still further delay switching and make it more difficult to find time to give service to the industries and take care of them in this particular territory.

Would Need More Right of Way.

"If we had tracks throughout that territory that we could run nothing on but suburban trains, and use them as the elevated does where they have no freight business to handle, or as the Illinois Central does with two tracks devoted exclusively to suburban business, then our program of giving more frequent service would not be so difficult.

"To do that, however, it would be necessary for us to widen our right of way on three lines, the one running north to Evanston, Highland Park, Lake Forest and Milwaukee, the second running to Mayfair, Barrington and Crystal Lake, and the other line through Wheaton, Elmhurst and so on.

"The cost of building those lines and that right of way is not included in the estimated $60,000,000 that it will cost to electrify the line.

Says Road Gives High Speed.

"I have had expert committees study the problem of more frequent service. We want to give the best possible service. We make every effort to do it. We try to give every passenger a seat. Sometimes we fail. We give them high speed. You will find that our speed now on our Lake Forest train is faster than for the same distance on the electrified lines of the Illinois Central.

"We cannot give more frequent service, although we would like to give it. We have to find a little time to serve the business on our lines, to serve the industries that are located on our tracks."

This statement has a great deal of significance. Probably its correct interpretation is this: The North Western cannot have two tracks exclusively for suburban service without widening its right of way on three lines. The cost in Chicago would be very large, if indeed it is practicable at certain points, such as Austin, Oak Park and Evanston. So this suggested improvement is believed some distance away.

See Suburbs Growth Slowed.

Then, too, no substantial increase in the number of suburban trains can be had without more interference with freight operations on the present trackage. If that is a correct interpretation, then the growth of far out suburbs on the North Western probably will be slowed down, unless the suburbanites can use the North Shore electric line and the Aurora and Elgin third rail. But these roads, too, are near their rush hour capacity, it is pointed out. Both use the elevated tracks, the maximum capacity of which is influenced by the number of trains which can be run around the loop in an hour.

For these two electric lines to materially increase their rush hour patronage would require more track facilities in the central business district. No more can be put on the surface and another elevated loop above the surface is regarded as highly objectionable. But there is space below the surface and Chicago has been talking for 20 years about building subways.

All this is recited to show the close relationship between the North Western suburban service and the so called local transportation problem—and to indicate that the word "problem" is used aptly.

BEARDSTOWN AT CRISIS OF FLOOD—BUT 18 HOMES ABOVE WATER

Beardstown, Ill., Oct. 9.—[United Press.]—Entirely surrounded by water and almost completely inundated, Beardstown today faced the most serious crisis of its two weeks of flood havoc.

The stage of the Illinois river today was 25.8 feet, the highest in the history of the city. Added to this was the prediction by forecasters that the river would reach 26 tonight.

A survey revealed that only eighteen houses are above water. Hundreds of homes are entirely ruined, the water having reached the level of lower floor ceilings. Approximately 1,500 families are homeless.

A village of tents has been raised in a school yard at one of the highest points of the city. The cold mornings cause considerable discomfort to the hundreds of homeless persons who are seeking refuge in vacant, heatless homes hurriedly prepared by the relief agencies.

100,000 ACRES FLOODED.

Approximately 100,000 acres of corn are under water in six counties, the Illinois Agricultural association was advised today.

ZINOVIEFF AND TROTZKY FACING EXILE TO SIBERIA

BY GEORGE SELDES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 9.—The Taegliche Rundschau, Foreign Minister Stresemann's mouthpiece, tonight announced that the central committee of the Russian communist party has handed Leon Trotsky, Gregory Zinovieff, and M. Piatakoff over to the party disciplinary court, charged with refusing to accept the party discipline.

The newspaper adds that there is a likelihood of the three arrested opposition leaders being sent to Siberia. The paper says the communist party has enlisted ruthless aid from the secret political police in an effort to silence the opposition.

Round Up 400 Foes.

In Leningrad, Omsk and Odessa, 400 opposition members have been rounded up by the police. In Kronstadt, according to the Taegliche Rundschau, two regiments have been dissolved for declaring in favor of M. Trotsky. The soviet authorities here deny statements appearing in the German semi-official organ, but cables tonight from the German correspondents in Moscow, including the Ullstein service, reveal an increasing critical situation in the communist party.

The Ullstein correspondent mentions that M. Zinovieff in the last few days has been addressing factory workers in Leningrad with fiery speeches, trying to rally them to the opposition. The correspondent regards the spread of opposition agitation to Leningrad as a highly important development in the situation. Other correspondents agree that the communist split has highly dangerous possibilities.

Troops Quell Anti-Semites.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Oct. 9.—The Karkov correspondent of the local Jewish newspaper Golos reports that throughout Ukraine active anti-Semetic outbreaks are being reported and the Jewish populations of many cities are in danger. The correspondent says the rioting has been suppressed by the government militia in Odessa, Poltava, Krementchug, Kiev and Alexandrovsk.

However, some cities report that troops have joined the rioters in plundering Jewish shops. Karkov authorities are dispatching strong cavalry detachments to all the threatening points and the Ukrainian government hopes to suppress the rioters before the movement spreads to the villages. Thus far little loss of life has been reported. Partisan uprisings have been reported in the Poltava, Olviopol, Dobrina and Birsula districts, where bolshevik tax collectors have been imposing a grain tax on the peasants.

$80,000 BUILDING TO HOUSE G. H. Q. OF LINCOLN PARK

Lincoln park's business will be directed from a new administration building just north of the present park offices in the Academy of Science at Center street by next March, David H. Jackson, president of the park commissioners, announced yesterday. He approved plans by Edwin H. Clark, architect, for the $80,000 structure.

The new plant will rise two stories in the middle and will be flanked by single story wings. It is designed to accommodate all the park bureaus except the police and employment departments. These two branches will remain in the Academy of Science. Garage room will be provided in the basement of the new building.

Formal approval of the project is expected from the commissioners at their meeting Wednesday. Advertising for bids will then be authorized.

150 KILLED BY BLAST IN MINE; RESCUERS DIE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, Oct. 9.—One hundred and fifty men, among whom were at least four whites, are dead as a result of explosions in the Durban Navigation colliery at Newcastle, Natal.

The first explosion, last night, entombed the majority of those killed and filled the shafts and chambers with poisonous gas.

Five rescue workers early today were ascending in the gas filled shaft when another explosion hurled the elevator and men 60 feet into the air. The bodies of only three of these were found.

Undaunted, other rescuers, working in shifts and equipped with gas masks, continued to enter the mine. They penetrated 2,000 feet along the main drive. Here the poisonous fumes were so strong they were able to recover only seventeen bodies. There is little hope of reaching the rest of the entombed miners.

U. S. ROWS WITH FRENCH AT ARMS MEET; WINS TILT

GENEVA, Oct. 9.—(AP)—A lively session of the naval subcommission of the preparatory disarmament conference took place tonight when the French delegation tried to have excluded a proposal limiting naval armaments by categories of ships, which was submitted by the American, Argentine, Chilean, British and Japanese delegations. The French held that the proposal should not be considered until the signatories were in complete agreement.

Hugh Gibson, American minister to Switzerland, said bluntly that the signatories of the proposal merely wanted it to go before the full preparatory disarmament commission on its merits. He criticized the French attitude as likely to delay the proposed international disarmament conference. He said the big naval powers virtually were agreed concerning the best method of reducing navies.

The American viewpoint finally was upheld.

During the test and introductory period of this new coal, every customer invited to order a trial load has reordered and adopted this fuel as standard for regular future use.

HERE'S a Wonder Coal—a new fuel developed in our own experimental laboratory and made commercially possible by our new Coal Refinery, the only one of its kind in Chicago. Present preparation is for High Pressure Steam Plants, Apartment House Boilers, large Hot Water Supply Heaters and small stokers.

Accelero Pocahontas was developed to reduce firing labor. It saves janitors and firemen the extra trip between firing periods to break up the plastic bed of coke formed by the best grades of Pocahontas when fired as received from the mines. Accelero Pocahontas is in every way "a coal that is different"! It contains sufficient accelerating fuel to produce a porous bed of coke when burned, through which sufficient air can pass to support combustion continuously. This wonder fuel burns steadily, until entirely consumed.

Reduces Firing Labor . . . Reduces Fuel Cost
Increases Boiler Efficiency

Janitors and Firemen want it! It reduces firing labor. Owners of Apartment Buildings and Factories prefer it! To them it means lower cost and less smoke. Tenants are better pleased because it provides uniform heat and power.

University of Chicago's maroon jersey eleven, which marched through Dixie in its first intersectional game, headed north and marched back south Maryland yesterday to the tune of 21 to 0. And on the march which Alonzo Stagg's team showed a driving attack which not only upheld a team reputed to be strong but found the Midway experts, who have been moaning in plaintive tones of the team's weak team.

Twenty-five thousand saw the game, the second of the year on the Midway. Only Stagg's eleven may go down to defeat when it hits the conference schedule. But the critics who were singing "Maryland, My Maryland" were forced to change the tune yesterday to "Go Chicago." The Midway team looked better than it did in the season game. Marks tore through the line, McKinney and Anderson made yards, twisting runs, and the substitutes, Gleason, Raymson, and Leyers, did more than the critics expected. McKinney once raced through the Maryland team for 55 yards before a fleeting Maryland tackler brought him down.

Stagg Starts Shock Troops.

At times the Maroon line fell apart under the impetuous plunges of Thomas, at other times it piled the Maryland backs in a heap.

Only in the first quarter and opening part of the second, when the wily, gray haired coach of the Chicagoans followed the Rockne strategy of using shock troops, did the Maryland team look stronger than the Maroons.

Maryland's first threat against the Chicago goal line came in the early minutes of the second quarter when, after Thomas and Snyder had made first downs, a pass, Kessler to Libby, sent the ball to Chicago's 35 yard line. Then came one of those breaks, disastrous for Maryland. Thomas that fumble on Chicago had the upper hand.

Rouse Misses Drop Kick.

Chicago's first touchdown came in this way.

The Maroons in the middle of the second quarter had worked the ball down to Maryland's fifteen yard line on runs by Anderson and line bucks by Marks. Then Marks and Libby were stopped in three tries through the Maryland defense and Rouse missed a drop kick from the 20 yard line.

Maryland punted and McDonough, who played most of the game at quarter for the Maroons and did a good job of it, ran the ball back 25 yards to Maryland's 36 yard line. Marks then took one of the half dozen passes attempted by Stagg's team throughout the game and this one was completed. Gleason, rangy end, caught the ball on Maryland's 20 yard line, in the center of the field, and sprinted the distance to the goal line. McDonough's place kick added another point.

Gleason Plunges Over.

Chicago's second touchdown came in the fourth quarter. A Maroon pass was intercepted by Capt. Stevens of Maryland and Maryland made first down on its 20 yard line. Then came a Maryland penalty and the Terrapins were forced to punt to Anderson, who returned to the Maryland 36 yard line. Gleason, former Hyde Park student, now a junior at Chicago, but playing his first year on the varsity, had been substituted for Capt. Marks. Alternating with Anderson he ploughed through with the ball to the Maryland 13 yard line. Leyers, another second string Maroon back, waded through center for 3 yards and then tromped through left guard for four more. Gleason crashed through the squirming Maryland back for the touchdown. Rouse kicked goal.

With five minutes to play, Maryland scored on an attempted pass and the Maroons recovered on the southern 20 yard line. Rouse tried an end run and lost four yards. On the next play Libbey, another substitute back, dashed through the line, shook off two Maryland tacklers and jigged his way to a touchdown. Rouse again kicked goal and Chicago had its last score.

TEARING PATH THROUGH MARYLAND WALL

Capt. Marks of the Maroons slices off his left tackle for twelve yard gain through Maryland in third quarter of yesterday's Midway grid battle. A Maroon lineman is blocking an attempted tackle, while Marks has an arm rigid to ward off foes breaking through. The run led to a serious threat to score, but the easterners braced and held on their one yard line. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Northwestern's Wildcats, held to the narrow margin of 7 to 3 by a stubborn Carleton defense in the first half, sharpened the claws of their previously velvety paws in the last two periods at Evanston yesterday and recorded a 31 to 3 victory over the little Minnesota college. At the conclusion 24,000 spectators were more convinced than a week ago that the purple clad hosts will win a majority, if not all, their Big Ten games.

Such an opinion, however, must be based on the play in the second half and early in the first period. With regulars in the forward wall, but Capt. Baker and Tiny Lewis, backfield aces, on the sidelines, the Wildcats scored so quickly in the first period that it looked like a rout for the visitors.

Substitute Line Weak.

Then came line substitutions and the presence of "Moon" in the lineup. This combination availed nothing because Carleton players, much stronger defensively than offensively, were breaking through and nailing the elusive Mr. Baker before he got his talented legs to pumping rapidly. It was capital defense by Carleton, but it was not good line play by Northwestern.

When the second half opened Purple regulars were back in the line, Baker was in the back field, and the Purple was ready to reveal a real attack against a Carleton defense, still stubborn but being worn down. Dashes off tackles, cut backs from punt formations, and, best of all, a series of forward passes well executed for so early in the season gave three touchdowns.

When the count had mounted to 21 to 3 Lewis made his first appearance of the year and crashed through the line for eight yards the first time he was given the ball. Thereafter Lewis alternated with Baker in the heaving of passes. It was Lewis, too, who added the three final points when he place kicked, with Schumacher holding, from the 33 yard line.

Lewis, Baker Lead Attack.

Summarizing, Northwestern has a versatile attack, with Lewis and Baker both able to pass, kick, or run, and half a dozen other backs of better than average value. Fisher, the basketball center at end, is especially proficient in receiving long aerials, while Gustafson, also a basket shooter, was elusive as a receiver.

On defense the Evanstonians stopped Carleton when necessary, but there seemed several weak spots on offensive line play.

Early in the first period Northwestern secured the ball on its own 33 yard line and gradually worked it to Carleton's 40 yard line, where Schumacher passed 20 yards to Gustafson, who ran the remaining distance for the first count. Gustafson drop kicked the additional point.

Carleton Scores Drop Kick.

Late in the second period Carleton received a punt on Northwestern's 44 yard line. Nordly went through center for 10 yards. Three more plays netted 8 yards. Then Addington, substituted for Hoffman, drop kicked a goal from his own 35 yard line.

Early in the third period the visitors again threatened, but lost the ball on downs after an incompleted pass at the purple 23 yard line. Soon afterward Baker tossed a 30 yard pass to Fisher on Carleton's 25 yard line. On third down thereafter Baker plunged 18 yards for the second count and drop kicked the additional point.

Northwestern's third touchdown was due to a 36 yard run by Baker and a forward pass of 12 yards to Gustafson, who then ran twenty yards more for the count. Baker drop kicked the additional point.

As the fourth quarter opened small gains and two successful passes by the Purple, including the familiar Baker to Gustafson toss, carried the ball to Carleton's 4 yard line, from where Lewis in two bucks went over. Baker drop kicked the score to Northwestern, 24; Carleton, 3. The final count was Lewis' place kick, previously described.

New York, Oct. 9.—The big baseball series is all even again because old Grover Cleveland Alexander stepped into a youthful rôle for the second time in a weak and beat the Yankees today in the sixth game of this strenuous struggle with the Cardinals for the world's title. The final count was 10 to 2, both Bob Shawkey and Urban Shocker failing to stop the Hornsby tribe which came through in most rampant style.

Old Alex wasn't badly worried at any time during the contest, as his mates hopped away with a three run lead in the first inning.

The Yanks never got a start after that and things went along until the seventh when the Cardinals broke loose and stampeded for a cluster of five runs that salted the game down and made the Hornsby men favorites to win the championship by beating the Yanks tomorrow in the seventh and deciding game.

Broadway Is Fearful.

The series now stands three and three, and Broadway tonight is sorrowful and fearful on the final result. The Yanks today were dead on their feet. They have about exhausted their pitching staff, which has been crumbling for the last two months, and they are in no position to put up a strong battle front in the deciding game. On the other hand, since "Big Pete," the 39 year-old kid, put the Cards back into the fight today, they appear to have all the better of it for the crucial game tomorrow because they have Jess Haines, as fresh as a daisy, to go to the slab. He shut out the Yanks in the third game of the series and his mates think he can do it again.

Alex was the hero. No one believed he could come back and take the slugging Yanks a second time. Last Sunday he shut them out. He was praised and lauded to the skies, but none of the experts expected they would have occasion to do that stuff all over again. But Alex was right again and so the experts had to.

Alex Gives 8 Hits.

The old timer allowed eight hits all told and wasn't as effective as on his other occasion, but he had the enemy stymied all the way just the same. The boys behind him gave him the snappiest kind of support regardless of two errors, one of which gave the Yanks a run. On several occasions, they came through with scintillating plays. Last Sunday Alex fanned ten men and today he fanned six. He pitched to Babe Ruth every time just as if he were a most ordinary kind of hitter. Babe did walk once but it was no intentional pass. Twice the Babe died on grounders to Bottomley and once he rolled out one to Thevenow, over behind second base.

While old Alex came through in such heroic style, the veteran Shawkey upon whose shoulders Manager Huggins hung the burden of pitching, fell down miserably. Bob is only thirty-six years of age but he has been through many a world's series in the past and was expected to do his old time stuff today.

In the very first inning he was punished hard, three solid blows being struck by the Rajahs, which, with a base on balls permitted three runs to count and give the Cards a big running start. Shawkey tightened up in style after that and for three innings held the Cards to nothing, but in the fifth another run was punched home on two solid hits with a sacrifice between them. Bob got the side out in the sixth with no damage being done, even after Bottomley had hit safely with a

Pyle Reaps $40,000 on His Pro Net Debut

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Charlie Pyle, a bush league showman, who began business with a battery of penny slot machines out where the grass grows man high on Main street, took the high hat off tennis this evening, presenting Suzanne Lenglen, Mary Browne, Vincent Richards, and other late stars of the more or less amateur class in a series of bouts or exhibitions at the New Garden before a crowd that embraced some of the following of the horse show and some from the six day bike races.

The players were hitting their first swipes as professional athletes and the occasion was not only brilliant with the glare of boiled shirts but tense with dramatic interest, for it was felt that the athletes were taking a fateful step one way or another. The upshot of it was that the first big pro tennis exhibition ever presented anywhere went off with a distinct air of class, and Pyle, counting gate receipts of $40,000, was convinced that he had really put it over when he turned off the lights and twirled the combination locking the safe for the night.

Suzanne Nervous.

Suzanne, coughing constantly behind her hand and jiggling nervously on the toes of her white shoes, appeared as an athlete and mannequin in two matches, a singles and doubles, and although she slightly bungled her entrance into the arena, she was still the star of the evening. The best seats sold for $5.50 each, and all chairs in these sections were occupied, though there were a few honorary customers among those who really paid.

After a few nervously awkward exchanges, Miss Browne and Miss Lenglen settled down into a beautiful contest. Miss Lenglen won 6—1, 6—1, and her mastery was never more plainly apparent than when she sent the tiny but formidable Mary Browne stretching and legging from side to side of the court and from baseline to net, scarcely moving out of her tracks herself.

Richards Beats Furst.

Richards beat Furst 6—3, 6—4, in their singles match and Miss Browne and Howard Kinsey won a one set match at mixed doubles from Miss Lenglen and Richards 6—2. Furst and Kinsey won a doubles match of one set from Richards and Harvey Snodgrass, 6—2.

For once, tennis was displayed to a New York crowd in an easy, amiable atmosphere and the social austerity of the amateur tournaments at Forest Hills was missing. Men and women smoked if and when they liked, and there was none of the unnatural restraint on applause that William Tilden and other sticklers for elaborate good manners demand from the customers or guests at the amateur shows.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Oct. 9.—Kansas was tough but not dangerous today and Wisconsin ran and kicked its way to an easy 13 to 0 victory in the final gallop preliminary to the marathon for Big Ten honors.

With the Kaws unable to make any more of a scoring threat than an attempt to collect a consolation prize of three points, the Badgers found it unnecessary to carry on a sustained attack, and after falling heir to a touchdown in the first two minutes of play, the victors coasted toward the wind-up with only a couple of goals from placements to relieve the monotony.

Badgers Play Under Cover.

This handsome kicking that may mean much to the Badgers in pending engagements was contributed by "Butch" Leitl and the one touchdown that put the Kaws out of order at the start was the result of a long hop down the field by quarter back "Toad" Crofoot.

Apparently not under orders to roll up a score, the Badgers refrained from anything beyond the orthodox. There was nothing tricky about their attack and they played safe at all times by kicking but in spots there was unmistakable sign of power in the line and drive in the back field.

The real drive came out of Crofoot ably assisted by Frank Shaw, an Oak Park lad, and Gene Rose of Racine. This trio, acting at various points along the four period journey added a few thrills to Leitl's placements by their speed over the ends and through the tackles but the heavy backs were not able to make much headway trying to tear through the Kaw's line.

Crofoot Totes Ball Over.

Wisconsin scored its touchdown in the first play from scrimmage. The Kaws kicked off and Barnum returned the punt on the first down. Capt. Zuber was forced to kick back and it was the Badgers' ball on their own twenty yard line. Crofoot took the ball over on the initial play, stuck his head through a wide opening in the Sunflower defense and went loping down the field without any of the hostiles getting even close to him. Burrus trailed him closely to see that nobody sneaked up and concluded the run before the goal line was crossed.

After the flashy introduction, the 12,000 spectators were treated to nothing more than punting until late in the third period. At this point Kreske stepped down the field for a thirty-two yard gain and Captain Doyle Harmon was called from the sidelines to attempt a kick. He failed and withdrew.

Badgers Try Aerial Attack.

About a minute later, a bad kick by Zuber gave Wisconsin another opening and after a successful pass Leitl, standing on the twenty-two yard line, booted the ball between the bars from a difficult angle, that stretched Wisconsin's advantage to ten points. Leitl came through with his other boot late in the fourth period.

That the Badgers eventually will blossom forth as a passing team was evident by the number of aerials attempted. They cut loose with 17, but only three were completed. The Kaws connected for the same number and failed in eight. Two of these profitable Sunflower passes came in the second period and put the vanquished troupe on the Badgers' 34 yard line which was as close as they ever approached. This was the spot where Wall tried to get the Kaws into the scoring with a kick but his placement hit the cross bar.

An interesting golf match at the Glen View course yesterday prevented Arthur F. Winnington-Ingram, lord bishop of London, from witnessing the first half of the Northwestern-Carleton football game at Evanston.

"I would rather play a game than look on at one," he explained as he reached his box at the beginning of the third period.

The bishop asserted that he believed football as played in America is too rough and that he preferred the English rugby game. When he was recognized in the stands the yell leaders called attention of the crowd and the Northwestern students rose and sang a verse of "America" in compliment to the visitor.

This morning Bishop Ingram will preach the sermon at services in St. Luke's church, Evanston. In the evening he will address the Sunday Evening club at Orchestra hall. Admission to seats on the stage will be by ticket. Following the club meeting he will leave for Ann Arbor, where he will visit the University of Michigan.

While on the golf course the bishop's foursome encountered Jock Hutchison, the Glen View pro, who, after being introduced, watched the Briton hit a pretty drive of nearly 200 yards and complimented him on it. The bishop had in his bag a spade mashie made and autographed by Hutchison and presented to the bishop by St. Luke's men's clubs.

Notre Dame Beats Gopher Eleven but Loses Two Men

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 9.—Using a slashing straight attack, featured by end runs and delayed thrusts into the line, Notre Dame defeated Minnesota in the Memorial stadium here today, 20 to 7. Notre Dame, although victor by a commanding margin, suffered a great loss when Boland, its star lineman, had his right leg broken early in the struggle and Collins, the full back, suffered a broken jaw a few minutes later.

In some unaccountable manner Boland's leg was broken when he got tangled up with another Notrp Dame player trying to block Minnesota's first punt of the game. The star forward was carried off the field. His loss will be a severe blow to Notre Dame's chances in remaining games.

Collins' jaw was broken when he went into the line too high on a delayed buck. The full back's jaw came in contact with the top of the head of one of the Minnesota forwards and he had to be removed from the contest. These injuries served to make Coach Rockne's athletes redouble their efforts.

Dahman Runs 66 Yards.

Notre Dame's grit was shown a few seconds after Collins was taken to the sidelines. Dahman took the ball off his left tackle and ran 66 yards for a touchdown. This score came as a result of the usual Notre Dame back field shift with the forwards blocking perfectly and interfering backs taking off the Minnesota tacklers in an amazing manner.

Minnesota tied the score in the second quarter when Geer shot a long forward pass to Capt. Wheeler, who raced over the Notre Dame goal line. Peplaw kicked goal and the score was tied at 7 points each at half time.

Early in the third quarter Christy Flanagan broke loose off his right tackle and dashed 63 yards for a touchdown. In the last quarter Notre Dame worked the ball into Gopher territory and Capt. Hearndon skirted his right end for 18 yards and a touchdown. This was the final score of the game and the efforts of both teams had been spent because of the heat.

In the second quarter Minnesota threatened several times, but the Irish braced whenever the local eleven became dangerous. Only once during the struggle did Notre Dame attempt a forward pass and that one was intercepted by Minnesota. Coach Rockne apparently sent his team into the game with instructions to use only simple plays, as scouts from all over the country were in the stands to get a line on the play of both elevens.

Notre Dame Under Wraps?

At times it appeared as if Rockne had his team under wraps.

In the third quarter Flanagan was removed after he had raced for a touchdown and Rockne made substitutions in large numbers. The attack, while simple, was powerful. The linemen opened holes nicely and the backs shot through the openings the moment they were made. In other words, there was perfect coördination between back field and line, while the blocking in the interference was almost perfect. When Flanagan made his run for a touchdown in the third period not a single Minnesota player laid a hand on him.

Both teams shaped up stronger than last year. Notre Dame is stronger for the reason it has two reliable punters in Capt. Edwards and Neimic, while Minnesota has a better balanced back field. In Joesting, the full back, the Gophers have one of the best plunging backs in the conference.

The game was played before 55,000. The weather was ideal for spectators, but too warm for the players.

Pastor Claims Rickard Wed; Tex Denies It

Lewisburg, W. Va., Oct. 9.—(AP)—George L. [Tex] Rickard, nationally known sports promoter, was married to Miss Maxine Hodges of New York here on Thursday, according to the Rev. L. McF. Courtney, who tonight said he had officiated at the wedding. The minister's statement was made after Rickard had denied that the ceremony had been performed.

The Rev. Mr. Courtney, pastor of the Old Stone Presbyterian church, said he had performed the ceremony, an unostentatious one, at his home on Thursday. Records of the county clerk show that a marriage license had been issued to Rickard and Miss Hodges on the same day. They gave their ages as 54 and 24, respectively.

Rickard, who is at a White Sulphur Springs hotel near here, said he might have visited the minister on Thursday and might have made arrangements for the marriage some time next month. He insisted, however, that the wedding had not taken place.

St. Louis Cheers Again When Cards Even Series Score

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Wild cheers went up from crowds in front of numerous radio loud speakers and score boards here today when the Cardinals evened the world series by defeating the Yankees in the sixth game of the series.

The spirit of gloom which had overhung the city for two days was dispelled as automobile horns were honked and paper was thrown from some downtown office buildings. The demonstration, however, was far less uproarious than those when the pennant was won and when the Cardinals came home.

Harts Drives Baby Car at 136 Miles an Hour

Salem, N. H., Oct. 9.—(AP)—The highest speed ever attained by an automobile with 91⅛ cubic inch displacement engine was reached today by Harry Harts, racing driver, in trials on the Rockingham speedway here. Officials clocked Harts at 136 2-10 miles an hour. Five other drivers qualified in a tie at 133 9-10 miles an hour.

screeching two bagger. Then came the seventh and the big blow up.

It was an inning that New York never will forget. Two singles, two doubles, a home run, and an error made it a complete rout. Five Cardinals went over the plate. Mr. Shawkey was knocked out. Urban Shocker came in and was slammed without mercy. He finally got the side out, but the game was gone. Huggins called out his reserves in a fruitless effort to start a big rally. Then young Myles Thomas went to the rubber and finished the game, the rampant Cards stinging him for another but unnecessary run in the ninth.

In this crushing attack of the Cards, it was young Lester Bell, the third baseman, who stood out with prominence. In five trips to the plate he poled two singles and a home run and walked once. He drove in four of the St. Louis runs and his homer was the big thrill of the battle. It was a tremendous drive away up into the middle of the curving end of the grand stand which goes into left field. The blow was struck off Shocker in his horrible attempt to rescue the fallen Mr. Shawkey.

Billy Southworth with a double and a triple, Jim Bottomley with a pair of doubles, and Holm and Thevenow with two singles each, lent stirring assistance to Mr. Bell in wrecking the Yanks. Boss Hornsby got only one single and a pass in five times at the plate but he drove in two runs and scored one himself while old Alex also took a hand in the attack, producing a couple of sacrifices and scoring one run when he got on the bases through an error.

Only 48,615 on Hand.

The crowd was something of a disappointment, there being a lot of vacant seats and only 48,615 paid admissions, while last Sunday there were 63,600. This may have been caused by a rather chilling wind from the north, which made one need a winter coat to be comfortable. For the final and deciding game tomorrow, there is likely to be a terrific crush because no seats have been sold in advance. It will be first come, first served. The rush will begin at eight o'clock in the morning when the ticket booths will be opened. All seats will be sold right at the grounds.

People began planning for this rush in the first inning today when the Cards hopped away in front with three runs. Holm led off with a single, but was forced by Southworth. Hornsby walked and Bottomley doubled down the left foul line, scoring Southworth and putting Rajah on third. Mr. Bell then crashed a single to left, sending Hornsby and Bottomley in and the hope of the Yankees began to fade.

Meusel Gets Triple.

In the fourth the Yanks revived a bit of that hope when Bob Meusel led off with a screeching triple down the left foul line and galloped home when Gehrig grounded out. But immediately afterwards the Cards got that run back when in the fifth Thevenow opened with a single, advanced on Alex's sacrifice and came home on Holm's blow.

The stampede in the seventh was begun by Thevenow with a single. Again Alex dumped a sacrifice in front of the plate and he was safe at first when Lazzeri dropped Severeid's throw. Holm followed with a bunt, but Thevenow was forced at third when Severeid shot the ball to that corner.

Right then came the only real bit of luck the Cards had in their attack. Southworth hit a fly ball to left and it went for a double when Meusel lost it in the sun. This scored Alex and put Holm on third, and at that point Shawkey was relieved by Shocker.

Hornsby Knocks in Two.

Hornsby greeted Shocker with a single that sent Holm and Southworth in. Bottomley forced Rajah at second and then Mr. Bell hit his heroic homer, sending Bottomley in ahead of him and killing all hope for the Yankee rooters. Hafey followed this with a two base drive, but the stampede ended when O'Farrell fanned.

Dugan's scratch hit to Bell, followed by Bell's wild throw on Severeid's smash and a single by Combs, gave the Yanks their other tally in the seventh, which was harmless, and in the ninth Southworth's triple to left center and Hornsby's infield out gave the Cards their final run, which wasn't needed at all.

Cards Happy, Yanks Sad but Determined

New York, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Jubilent Cardinal players made the welkin ring in their clubhouse after today's game had returned the St. Louis club the winner and extended the world series to its full length of seven games.

"They can't beat us now," declared the National leaguers. "We came from behind again, and we'll win tomorrow."

Rogers Hornsby, manager of the National league champions, joined in the enthusiasm of his men, although he controlled his emotion. He was confident, however, when he said:

Hornsby Praises Alex.

"Alexander stopped them and won, just as I said he would. Alex has left a mark for the next generation to aim at, with his world series games eleven years apart.

"I was absolutely confident that Alex would beat the Yankees today and I am just as confident that Jesse Haines will beat them again tomorrow and give us the championship. Jesse may not shut them out again but we don't figure he will have to, to win.

"We hit the ball today when we had to, and we will hit again tomorrow when hits will mean even more than they did today."

Yanks Not Down Hearted.

The Yankees took their defeat philosophically. They were frankly disappointed for they had expected to end the series today, but they had not lost courage and declared that while they will have to wait another day for their championship victory, it would none the less surely be returned tomorrow.

"We didn't hit," somewhat sadly remarked Manager Miller Huggins. "The boys are playing some in and out baseball in this series, but it will be all right when we win tomorrow. Alexander had a better game left in his system than we thought, and he was better than our pitchers today. We have too good a club to be stopped twice in a row, when the championship hinges on one game. We will be in there tomorrow."

Manager Huggins was not ready to announce his pitching choice for the final game tomorrow and may not decide definitely until just before the game.

OLD ALECK HURLS 'EM AND YANKEES CHURN CHILLY AIR

Veteran Begins Where He Quit Tuesday.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 9.—Aleck, the old smart Aleck, who was supposed to have thrown all the good baseball in his aged system at the Yanks a few days ago, came back to work today and checked another game almost as good as that one, beating the Yanks for the second time in a week and squaring the waning world's series at three games apiece.

There is no telling what sort of thrower old Grover Alexander might be if he should tighten up and take his baseball seribusly, instead of just jogging along, throwing the baseball up the alley loose and easy, as though a ball game were only a game of baseball, after all, whether played on a barren half-acre down behind the signboards or on a hand-plucked green surrounded by grand stands and people and importance. He might even make good with the Cubs of Chicago ,who became impatient about old Aleck's flippancy last summer, accused him of using liniment on the inside of his neck instead of using it on his arm, and fired him for that. They would have discipline among the Cubs, and one of the house mottoes read: "Horse polish should be put on, not in."

Cold Cash for Discipline.

So Aleck went to the Cardinals and coasted into the world series. It's all square with old Aleck. The Cubs can have their discipline and he will have a piece of world series money, $4,000 or $6,000, according to the way it goes, and next year, most likely, he will get a raise.

When Rogers Hornsby, who is broad-minded as to the application of horse lotion and doesn't care what time a fellow gets to bed just so he's up in time to play in the afternoon, decided that Aleck would have to do the throwing again today, you might have said that the world series was as good as over with the Yankees the champions. You might have thought that the Yankees, being a hitting ball team by reputation, would get on Aleck this time and blast him out of there.

But Aleck had saved something and he took up where he left off last Sunday, holding the Yanks to four hits in the first six innings when he had to hold them by the lapels, and four more in the last three innings when he had nine runs in back of him and could afford to put his feet up on the handle bars and coast.

Babe Goes Hitless.

Babe Ruth, who hit those three home runs in one game in St. Louis the other day and those 47 home runs during the league season, couldn't beg a hit off Aleck and the most conspicious service that the Babe gave was performed during a let-up in the seventh inning when he understudied the groundkeepers and went gamboling over the lawn spearing stray newspapers with his cleats, a new and hitherto unsuspected talent of this amazing man who also plays a ukelele unless restrained. The Babe got to the first on a base on balls in the sixth inning, but he had to use discrimination to do that because Alexander was working on him, not pitching them wide to move him along. Ruth stole second, but went no farther because the Yankees were creating no noticeable disturbance with their mallets. The end of this game found Ruth with a total of precisely no hits, inclusive, in two ball games against old Aleck.

Important as this world series may be to the citizens of St. Louis who got bunions on their palms turning handsprings in the thoroughfares because the Cardinals won the pennant, the people of New York have other claims on their attendance and they began to stay away today. There were a few thousand empty settees in each end of the top deck of the grand stand and there were bald patches in the bleachers, too, even though it was generally supposed that the world series would be closed out this time.

Cards Start Early.

Aside from old Aleck's effortless throwing the game was very lax and the Cardinals made enough runs to win before the first inning was over. They had three in before the second out was made and it developed that Lester Bell's single to left which scored Hornsby and Bottomley ahead was the stroke that won the game, although Bell made himself a nuisance to the Yanks as the afternoon wore on, slapping out two more hits and driving in two more runs.

Bob Shawkey was the Yanks' original pitcher, but his troubles increased until the seventh inning, when the mysterious Mr. Miller Huggins, the silent and invisible manager of the Yankees, sent Urban Shocker in to relieve him. This was something like throwing an anvil to a drowning gentleman or lady, as the case might be, and the Cardinals accumulated five runs in this eventful but absolutely necessary onslaught.

Starting the seventh, Thevenow hit a single and then Aleck dropped a bunt in front of the plate to push him along. Thevenow went to second and Aleck, ambling down the path and taking it easy to save his wind, was surprised to find himself safe as Tony Lazzeri, the Yanks' second baseman, dropped the throw at first. Aleck would have preferred going back to the dugout to rest up for the next inning's work, but now that he had landed on base he had to stay on his feet, so they sent a boy running out with his red wrapper and draped it over his shoulders to keep the chills out of his back.

Alex Scores a Run.

Holm, the substitute outfielder, forced Thevenow at third with a bunt, but Aleck had to run to second on the play and a moment later he had to hike all the way home, as Billy Southworth doubled. It was asking almost too much of an old fellow. Shocker came in then and Hornsby saluted him with a single that scored Holm and Southworth. Bottomley forced Hornsby at second. The Yankees were gaining, anyway. Bell then hit a home run into the left field stands, scoring Bottomley, and the secretary rang up the printer to order tickets for a Sunday game.

Aleck bunted again in the eighth trying to advance Thevenow, but they threw out Thevenow and again the elderly gentleman had to yell for his shawl, for it was not a July day. The score stood 8 to 1 for him at that time and a seven run lead was enough for him, so when Holm hit to Lazzeri Aleck merely bounced along toward second with his hands in the pockets of his jacket, to be put out.

Incidentally, there is a report that Mr. Christy Walsh, the Babe's manager, has persuaded him to demand a salary of $150,000 a year from the Yankees, beginning next season, when he will be working under a new contract, on the ground that he draws thousands of customers to all the ball parks in the American league.

HAMLIN, 9; RIPON, 0.

Fond du Lac, Wis., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Taking advantage of the breaks of the game and unleashing an offensive which threatened throughout the contest, Hamlin of St. Paul defeated Ripon here this afternoon, 9 to 0, before a fair crowd.

Meusel lost Southworth's fly in the sun, and it went for a two base hit, Alexander scored, while Holm stopped at third. Shawkey was taken out, and Shocker went to the mound. Hornsby punched a hot one past Shocker's ankles for a single to center, which brought in Holm and Southworth. Bottomley forced Hornsby at second. Koenig unassisted. Bell hit a home run into the left field seats, Bottomley scoring ahead of him. Hafey doubled to left center. O'Farrell fanned. Five runs, five hits, one error.

World Series Notes

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—It will be Jesse Haines on the slab for the Cards tomorrow. Everybody is guessing who will pitch for the Yanks.

Huggins' greatest chance to win seems to be in sending Herb Pennock back after only two days' rest. Herb never has lost a world's series game. Hoyt is the most probable choice, with Pennock held in reserve for immediate relief duty.

Hoyt beat the Cards on Wednesday, but was slammed for many hits. However, he never was in great danger because that was the day the Yankee sluggers did their stuff.

Bob Meusel, who hasn't been hitting a lick in the series, stood out today with a double, a triple, and a walk in four times at the plate. His triple was a crusher, but his double was a pop up behind third which Thevenow lost in the sun.

Combs took a hit away from Southworth in the third when he made a sparkling catch of a real drive and Dugan turned a snappy play on the same man in the fifth when he dashed in and scooped a slow bounder in time to get his man.

ILLINOIS TRODS ROUGH SHOD ON BUTLER, 38 TO 7

Peters, Stewart Lead in Zuppke's Attack.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Illinois defeated Butler handily, 38 to 7, today. The Illini attack was featured by several long sprints by Frosty Peters, aided by splendid blocking reminiscent of the days when the Illini broke the wax for Grange.

Butler, although outclassed, fought all the time and in the final period, worked a series of passes on Zuppke's reserves for a touchdown.

Peters and Stewart led the Illini attack, but in the final period Blair French, a sub back, aroused the enthusiasm of the crowd by his spirited runs. Peters also drop kicked a 22 yard field goal from a bad angle.

PURDUE, 21; WABASH, 14

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Wabash fought a valiant fight against the Purdue eleven today, but was unable to stop the Boilermakers' aerial attack consistently and fell, 21 to 14. The first score of the game came with only a few seconds left to play in the first quarter, Bayer passing 25 yards to Helm, who dashed 20 yards for a touchdown. Bayer kicked goal. Speidel tossed a 25 yard pass to Ramby, who dashed the final 5 yards with a tackler trying to bring him down.

Harvard Falls Before Aerials of Holy Cross

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Harvard has yet to win a football game this season. The Crimson stood on the edge of clearing for a few brief moments this afternoon, but never got out of the woods.

Trailing on the end of a 14 to 0 score, Holy Cross came with an amazing forward pass attack in the second half that swept them through to three touchdowns and at the end Holy Cross was snake dancing through the Crimson goal posts. The final score was 19 to 14 with the Purple avalanche again threatening from the Harvard thirty yard line.

For the first two periods, the Crimson fought with a new spirit and, behind the battering ram drives of Al Miller, the burly sprinting back, worked out two touchdowns and took the goals after each.

For a time they stood off the attack in the second half but there was no stopping the shrapnel fire of the forward passes that Wise and Kittredge and Ryan shot away and Holy Cross won. The attendance was 35,000.

W. AND L. TIES PRINCETON

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Princeton had a narrow escape from defeat at the hands of Washington and Lee here today, the Tigers barely managing to get a 7 to 7 tie against the Virginians. Had there been a few minutes more to play it is likely the Generals' campus down at Lexington would now be a scene of gleeful celebration, for when time was called the visitors were on the Tigers' twenty yard line.

Just before the game ended Spotts, the visitors' left end, who was a busy young man this afternoon, intercepted a Tiger lateral pass and ran thirty yards before he was brought down to earth by Joe Prendergast.

DARTMOUTH WINS, 21-0

Hanover, N. H., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—The Dartmouth eleven found Virginia Polytech a stronger team than any they have faced this season but won 21 to 0. Jess Hawley's Big Green machine rolled up twenty first downs against three for the Virginians.

Lane, who has been running wild against weaker teams like Norwich and Hobart, had to give up the limelight. The longest single gain he made was eight yards. Bob McPhail, who scored two of the Dartmouth touchdowns, averaged almost five yards per rush and carried the ball twenty-one times. Lineup:

ARMY WINS, 21 TO 7

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 9.—(AP)—The West Point cadets smashed a sturdy southern invasion of Davis and Elkins today, 21 to 7, with a varsity team that played only part of the game. Harry Wilson, army back, smashed through the southern line for touchdowns in the second and fourth periods after Trapnell had snared a long pass before darting for the first score in the opening period. Wilson kicked all three points after touchdowns.

Elkins, who played a brilliant game for the invaders, surprised the Army in the first quarter when he grabbed a pass and dashed 20 yards for a touchdown. For the remainder of the game, the West Virginians' attack broke against a sturdy Army forward wall.

CORNELL BEATS WILLIAMS

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Cornell's big red team, a veritable steam roller, rode roughshod over Williams today, sending the New England eleven down to a 49 to 0 defeat.

Williams put up a valiant defense, but it lasted for only the first period. Butterfield, Hoekelman, Balderston and Molinet, Coach Dobie's star back field, ripped through the Williams line in the second period for four touchdowns and from then on the game developed into one Cornell parade after another.

Williams made but two first downs during the game. Their forward passes were frequently intercepted.

PENN WINS, 44-0

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Pennsylvania, preparing for her game with Chicago next Saturday, ran roughshod over the fighting Swarthmore college football team on Franklin field today, winning 44 to 0. Features were a 24 yard run by Rogers and a 65 yard dash by Fields for touchdowns. Fields scored three of Pennsylvania's touchdowns before he left the game.

Rogers and Wascolunis each made a touchdown and Paul Sull scored a field goal and a touchdown.

PENN STATE, 48; MARIETTA, 6

State College, Pa., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Penn State football team defeated Marietta college here today, 48 to 6. The Ohio team scored its lone touchdown late in the game, when Rief intercepted a pass and ran far into Penn State's territory. A pass to Lafferty under the goal posts scored the first touchdown made against the Lions this season. Eighty yard runs for Penn State touchdowns by Greene and Lundgren were features.

MISSOURI BEATS NEBRASKA SQUAD IN HARD COMBAT

Clark Leads Victors in 14 to 7 Win.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 9.—(AP)—The University of Nebraska met its first gridiron defeat of the season here this afternoon, taking the short end of a 14 to 7 score in the annual tilt with traditional rivals, the University of Missouri Tigers.

The game was regarded as the most important contest of the Missouri Valley conference season.

Nebraska failed to rally after a flying start in which the Cornhuskers made a touchdown shortly after the game opened. Missouri scored its two touchdowns in the second period.

Only one time during the remaining periods of the game did Nebraska threaten to score. The ball was two and a half yards from the goal line after Marrow broke through the Missouri line for a 15 yard gain. The Tigers took the ball on downs on its 3-inch line.

In the second quarter, the sensational 37 yard run of Clark, Missouri half back, was directly responsible for the Tigers' first count of six. In the same period Stuber's partially blocked drop kick fell into the hands of Clark, who rushed by the Nebraska players for the other touchdown. Lineup:

KANSAS AGGIES WIN

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Hardly unleashing its famed aerial attack, Kansas Agricultural college defeated Creighton university's football team here today, 12 to 0. Emms, speedy quarter back for the Aggies, scored the first touchdown on a 27 yard run through center in the first period, and Holsinger, left half back, made the other counters soon after the start of the second period. Enns missed both kicks for extra points. The play was almost entirely in Creighton territory.

Iowa Rolls Up 40-7 Score on North Dakota

Iowa City, Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Iowa showed unexpected scoring power today in beating North Dakota, 40 to 7. Kutsch was the Hawkeye back field star, making gains in the first quarter when none of the others was able to pierce the line. Iowa missed one touchdown in the first quarter when Schmidt, sophomore full back, was unable to gain a yard against the Flickertail defense. Later Schmidt crashed with the necessary yardage to put over touchdowns in the second and third frames.

Dunn, sophomore full back, also carried the ball over twice, once following five 4 to ten yard smashes by Hogan which put the ball on North Dakota's three yard line and once when he broke away with perfect interference for a 29 yard gallop which ended between the goal posts.

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the "Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune.

The Question.

What football team in the Big Ten conference looks strongest?

Where Asked.

On University of Chicago campus.

The Answers.

Gene Collins, 5635 South Elizabeth street, student—Northwestern looks best to me. The forward passing combination of Baker and Lewis, along with the latter's line plunging, will upset the Wildcats' conference opponents. I'm hoping they will beat Notre Dame, too. That ought to make them champions of something or other.

Louise Conklin, 7102 Lowe avenue, student — Ohio State looks like a formidable team. Oberlander, former Dartmouth star, has strengthened the coaching staff, and the material looks better than last year. I expect Marek to have a big year.

Glenn B. Meagher, 6219 Drexel, student—Michigan, at this early stage of the race, looks like the Big Ten winner. I'm willing to wait for results. The Wolverines have one of the best coaches in the country and material second to none. Michigan plays a tough schedule and may be beaten.

Rex B. Johnson, 6423 Kimbark avenue, stock broker—Minnesota will prove itself the strongest Big Ten eleven. The Gophers lost few men, and by midseason should be a hell roaring aggregation. Spears has a lot of tricks up his sleeve. Chicago looks like a dark horse.

Jake Sanders, 5714 Woodlawn avenue, student — Yost, Friedman, and Oosterbaan will win the title for Michigan. The team has the psychological advantage of being 1925 champions. The Big Ten race promises to be a bruising jam and the team with the reserve strength probably will win.

YALE BATTERS DOWN GEORGIA ELEVEN, 19 TO 0

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Yale battered a path to a 19 to 0 victory through a stubborn Georgia defense today before 35,000 spectators in the bowl. The Eli kept its own season's score clean by a superb defensive stand at its three yard line. Yale's ability to crash three touchdowns across the goal of the invading southerners turned the scale in its favor after its most brilliant exhibition of forward passing had been checked by the cleverest defense for the aerial game ever given here.

Bruce Caldwell, who led Yale's ground gaining adventures against Boston university last week, again piloted the Eli attack.

Bradley Smothers Carthage by 58 to 0

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Bradley college beat Carthage, 58 to 0, today in the first home game of the season. The entire Bradley squad of 21 men saw action.

LINDBLOM HIGH CRUSHES TILDEN IN OPENER, 34-0

Lindblom, City High School Football league champion for the last two years, started in quest of another title yesterday and scored an impressive 34 to 0 victory over Tilden at White City park. Tilden was regarded until yesterday as one of the leading contenders for Lindblom's laurels.

Thrilling open field runs made possible Lindblom's overwhelming victory. In the opening quarter Shimkus galloped 55 yards for a touchdown, while later in the game Albertson and Shurtleff outdid the fleet Shimkus. Albertson intercepted a pass and raced 35 yards to score and Shurtleff sped 57 yards in counting one of the two touchdowns he registered.

Tilden had a veteran team and also had as much beef in the line as the city title holders, but lacked the speed to cope with end runs and crashes off tackle of the victors. Coach Moore's style of play, which centers around concealed plunges and sudden wide sweeping runs, baffled the south side Techs. Lineup:

The Sporting Goods by WESTBROOK PEGLER

MR. TUNNEY AND DEMPSEY.

THE refined Gene Tunney seems to be taking himself quite seriously as the heavyweight champion of the world, remarking that he belongs to the public as the stars belong to the universe and flavoring his speech with rich quotations from the philosophers, including some quotations from that other intellectual pugilist, Dr. Frank Moran, the correspondence school LL. D.

GENE TUNNEY.

Inasmuch as the very refined Mr. Tunney did somewhere contrive to pat Jack Dempsey on the mush, or complexion, for ten rounds down there in Philadelphia, I suppose he will have to be regarded as the heavyweight champion of the world, although I saw the performance and thought it a very strange affair.

Already I detect a note in the exploitation of Mr. Tunney's personal purity that seems to imply that all other men are low characters, given to annoying switchboard girls and troubling unescorted females on dark streets at night. I detect another note that seems to imply that any one who doesn't speak of a fire as a conflagration, or speak of feet as pedal extremities, or speak of pants as raiment is an intellectual cripple.

THIS sort of exploitation is going to amuse other men for a time, but later on it is going to make them resentful. There are a lot of men who always have gone along on the theory that personal decency was its own reward, and I know quite a few in the thick of the sport business who get up off their knees to turn into bed every night and get up off their knees to go to breakfast every morning of their lives. Similarly, there are plenty of men in the sport business who can stand up and trade language for language with the refined Mr. Tunney to a finish, but who do not make a practice of using long words in the manner of a Law Dockstader minstrel.

I think Eddie Collins, the manager of the White Sox, could outgab Tunney with ease if he desired, and young Dr. Johnny Mohardt, the professional football player, would be glad to meet him in a battle of polysyllables for a modest side bet. Bucky Harris, who never received a grammar school diploma and spent much of his youth devising tricks to spur reluctant mine mules to industry down around Scranton, Pa., is another prominent athlete who could talk Mr. Tunney to a standstill or at least a standoff.

But such men wouldn't think of walking around in their open faced evening clothes in broad daylight just to show that they own such clothes and they wouldn't think of using full dress words in ordinary speech just to show that they know such words.

AS I suggested, the fight between the refined Tunney and the less cultured Dempsey in Philadelphia, had a rather peculiar appearance from the corner of the ring at which I sat, and I don't think that a man who won the title on points from a champion who was less than half of himself should fatten up on pomposity. I have pussled a great deal about that fight, trying to discover what was holding Dempsey back, and I have not been able to explain the matter to myself. I am convinced that Dempsey was held back, but I could not undertake to say whether it was because he couldn't untrack himself or for some other reason, such as the one that recently was suggested in the New York papers, poison.

I always have been excitable at Dempsey's fights. At the Firpo fight I lost track of the knockdowns, and in the midst of the wildest action in the ring I found myself turned around and addressing some highly insulting names to William Slavens McNutt, the story writer, who admired Firpo and who was raving against Dempsey. It was fortunate for me that Mr. McNutt, also, was slightly out of his mind at the moment and didn't hear me, because he is a very big guy with a fist as big and hard as a cast iron spittoon, and he might have given me a paste on what Mr. Tunney, no doubt, would call the proboscis.

Being so excitable at Dempsey fights, I became rather noisy during the first round of the Dempsey-Tunney bout and as soon as Dempsey walked over to Tunney and gently slid into a clinch without seriously trying to slap him a few, I was on my feet, yelling: "Fake! Fight, you big bum! Fake!" I am afraid that the refined Mr. Tunney, if he heard me, thought me quite uncouth.

LATER on, as Dempsey let Tunney chafe his face with those right hand punches that counted for points but never put him down, I cooled out and decided that I had made a sap of myself. After the tenth round I did not think it was a fake, but still I thought it was peculiar.

I still am wondering what held Dempsey back. I think there is enough curiosity as to what ailed Dempsey to justify Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania in ordering an investigation. An investigation would produce a vast amount of gossip, and out of the gossip the investigators might winnow enough actual information to allay the widespread curiosity as to what it was that reduced Jack Dempsey by half.

It would be too bad to disillusion Mr. Tunney, who doubtless believes he whipped the real heavyweight champion, but I think that so poor a prizefighter as Gene Tunney should be proud to have licked one-half of so great a prizefighter as Jack Dempsey.

COE RALLIES TO BEAT MONMOUTH ELEVEN BY 7 TO 3

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Coe defeated Monmouth, 7 to 3, here today by staging a comeback in the last quarter, Smith, Jackson, and Lamb smashing the Monmouth line and circling its ends until Smith was able to plunge over from the one yard line.

Monmouth scored in the third quarter when Taylor booted a place kick from the Coe 25 yard line. The visitors made a desperate attempt to score again in the last few minutes

CROWD OF 65,000 SEES ST. MARY'S BEAT CALIFORNIA

Berkeley, Cal., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Under the somber setting of a rain driven autumn sky, 65,000 spectators saw St. Mary's conquer California, 26 to 7, in one of the most stunning upsets on the Pacific coast in years.

Not since 1917 had a St. Mary's team triumphed over California until the blue jerseyed Oakland warriors wrote their brilliant chapter of gridiron history today.

NAVY'S BIG GUNS SILENCE DRAKE ELEVEN, 24 TO 7

Then They Down Richmond Squad, 26-0.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—The Naval academy football team mustered its full reserve strength to accomplish the unusual feat of winning a doubleheader on the gridiron here today by the scores of 24 to 7 and 26 to 0. Drake college took a drubbing in the first contest while the University of Richmond was made the victim of the second encounter.

Although the first squad was without the services of Shapley, star back, Navy swept through the Drake defense for two touchdowns in the first quarter. Using a varied attack featuring the forward pass, Ransford, Hamilton and Caldwell went over for Navy's three touchdowns. Hamilton also scored a goal from the field.

The game against Richmond provided only a light workout for the second and third string men. Lineup of Drake game:

SYRACUSE SPEED CRUSHES W. & M. BEEF BY 35 TO 0

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Syracuse met beef with speed today, pierced William and Mary's 199-pound line for five touchdowns and 35 to 0 victory in an intersectional struggle before 12,000 spectators.

Using two backfields with "Whippet" Carr playing the leading role, the Orange ripped through for its first touchdown after five minutes of play. Carr racing 23 yards for the score. Two long run backs of kickoffs, 60 yards by Clark and 63 yards by Barbuti, put the Orange in position for two touchdowns early in the third period. The Virginians were badly used up by this time and the fourth period was cut from 15 to 10 minutes. Goldman added the final touchdown on a 40 yard gallop.

NORTH CENTRAL BEATS WHEATON

Naperville, Ill., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—After a scoreless first half, North Central broke loose today to win from Wheaton college, 20 to 0. Hawbecker booted a dropkick in the third quarter and made the point after touchdown in fourth quarter when Keagle scored after North Central had carried the ball down field on a series of line smashes.

...HNY DEAR WINS ...URORA FEATURE ...NDER 99 POUNDS

...ats The Hovel by Three Lengths.

2Y FRENCH LANE.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

...ora, Ill., Oct. 9.—Jenny Dear, ...ing in the silks of L. M. Severson ...ago and carrying the featherlike ...t of 99 pounds, won the Geneva ...for 3 year olds which featured ...card program this afternoon. A ...d of 1,000 watched her lead C. E. ...ell's The Hovel to the finish line ...three lengths. The Wire, another ...ago colt, was third.

...he race, which engaged the best 3 ...ear olds that have gone into action ...at this fall, was at 5½ furlongs. It ...was decided over a fast drying out ...rack which was still heavy in spots ...the time of 1:13 3-5 best indicates. ...The crowd was also the largest of the ...meeting, all the trains from Chi- ...carrying capacity passenger lists.

Leads Parade Home.

...Dear, another of those young ...ldays who have leaped into stardom ...during the early muddy days of ...season, shot Jenny Dear into the ...soon after the start. Her place ...the front end of the parade was ...ver disputed, although The Hovel ...ned an immense gap in the run ...the stretch to beat The Wire out ...place money.

...Hot, running in Packey McFarland's ...ns and, like most of the other favor- ...s, was far out of it at the finish ...had no excuses to offer, for Jockey ...Dillon had him away well and he ...ed near the leaders during the early ...part of the battle. But he was not ...to the dazzling stretch pace which ...ed Dear cut out right up to the ...finish line.

Favorite Players Jolted.

...Except for the 2 year old struggle, ...the selling platers were engaged in ...the other races, but the fields were ...large in most of them and they pro- ...ided spectacular racing, with players ...long shots at the payoff windows ...throughout the afternoon and the fol- ...lowers of favorites congregating in ...groups like so many mourners. ...Jockey Morar also figured in an- ...other victory, the most exciting of the ...afternoon, when he got the aged Ring ...Just in time to grab the third race ...by a neck from Finis Glorioso, with ...Buddy less than a length back in ...third place and crowding the two lead- ...ers all the way home. Morar brought ...Ring up as the head of the stretch, ...took the lead a furlong out, then Morar ...outrode Willie Stamper to keep Ring ...in front of Finis Glorioso.

28 Drivers in Roby Auto Race Today

Twenty-eight of the fastest racing automobiles on the dirt track circuit will start today in the 150 mile championship race at Roby speedway, 108th and Indianapolis avenue. The field was determined after a series of time trials in which more than 75 cars competed.

Several of the drivers qualified their mounts Friday afternoon, and some sped over the track yesterday to determine entrance and pole position for the big race. Drivers reported the track a bit heavy after the long rainy spell but Manager Jack Leach last night declared that a corps of men will work on the oval this morning and have it in top shape for the race.

Chicago Pilots Show Speed.

Practically all of the stars of the dirt track game are represented in the field. Leslie Allen and Louis Schneider, two of Chicago's best bets for the title, showed a lot of speed in their workouts. The two present a peculiar problem. Allen living in Chicago and driving for an Indianapolis factory, and Schneider, a Hoosier from Indianapolis, driving for Mike Boyle, Chicagoan, who has gone in for the speed sport heavily this year.

Picks No. 13.

Boyle backed Cliff Woodbury on the speedways and is now ready to wager to the limit that Schneider and No. 13 will cop the title tomorrow.

Shorty Cantlon of Detroit, Frank Brisco of Milwaukee, Gus Schrageder of Des Moines, and Ali Haggard of St. Louis, are figured to put up a good race. Each is a state champion.

Coe's Aerial Attack Downs Monmouth, 7-3

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Monmouth college, unable to cope with the passing attack of Coe college here today, was defeated, 7 to 3. Monmouth scored a 25 yard drop kick in the second quarter, but in the fourth period a series of passes by Molesworth and Goron won the game.

NORTH DAKOTA AGGIES WIN.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 9.—(AP)—North Dakota Agriculture college gridmen played heads up football here today to defeat the Des Moines University Tigers, 27 to 0.

IN THE WAKE OF THE NEWS

NORTHWESTERN'S SCHEDULE.

If Northwestern's Wildcats should go through the Big Ten season undefeated or with only one defeat, and some other conference eleven should have a similar record, that other eleven is not likely to find at Evanston the same magnanimity which last fall caused the Purple to waive in favor of Michigan all claim to the title, although it had beaten the Wolverines but lost to the Maroons.

GLENN THISTLETHWAITE.

Northwestern, with a team looking better than anything seen at the north shore suburb for many years, has five conference games. They are with Chicago, Purdue, Iowa, and two with Indiana. The Purple does not play Michigan, Minnesota, Illinois, Wisconsin, or Ohio State, which in the early dope are rated strongest. In fact, unless one eleven stands out preëminently as the season advances, no team in that bunch, playing against one another, is likely to go through without one defeat.

None of the Purple contests is a setup. Thistlethwaite's men, however, could lose one of them and still possibly be in a tie. Then would come talk of "easy" schedules. The point we are trying to make, however, is that if the so-called stronger elevens choose to play among themselves they need offer no complaint if their honors are clouded.

With inadequate stands and for years a second division eleven, Northwestern could not obtain topnotchers on its card. That handicap promises to remedy itself with the new stadium of 45,000 capacity—to be enlarged still further—and better football material. Northwestern will endeavor to schedule six Big Ten opponents for 1927.

Cub Optimism.

Dear Harve: The Cubs didn't win the pennant nor the city series, but under Mac's management they finished four notches higher than last year. Not so bad for a "busher," eh? Every year the cry is "Next year we'll cop." It's the same now, but this time we'll do it. McCarthy is off to a

TORONTO PLAYS SPARTA SOCCER ELEVEN TODAY

Czech Team Makes 2d Appearance in City. .

Sparta, the champion soccer team of continental Europe, will meet Canada's best, the Ulster United of Toronto, at Soldiers' field today.

The Canadian title holders have defeated both Brooklyn Wanderers and Fall River and regular followers of the kicking pastime believe the Toronto team will be able to take the measure of the Prague booters.

If both of the teams are in top shape, it should be one of the best games ever seen in Chicago. The Canadians, quite a number of whom have seen service with first class British clubs, play a similar game to that displayed by the Czecho-Slovakians. Their combination play is high grade, and the half backs—like those of Sparta—are hard men to pass. Lineup:

Tribune Golf Driving Meet Next Sunday

THE TRIBUNE GOLF EDITOR,
Tribune Tower, Chicago

Please enter my name in The Tribune's second annual golf ball driving contest:

Club or course.....

BY HARLAND ROHM.

THE TRIBUNE'S second annual golf ball driving contest will be held next Sunday in the Lincoln park extension at the foot of Wayeland avenue. Entries open at once and close Saturday noon.

Rules of the contest are simple. Any one may compete and may use any golf club, ball, or tee legal under the United States Golf association rules. Distance and accuracy will count.

The contest will consist of three drives by each contestant. The average of the three drives will be the contestant's score, and, of course, the golfer with the greatest distance wins. Balls driven out of bounds will be penalized exactly as they would be in match play, loss of stroke and distance. In other words, if a contestant drives one ball 200 yards, another 250 yards, and puts his third ball out of bounds his average is 150 yards. You'll notice accuracy will count heavily. It is the desire to make a drive in this contest worth just about as much as it would be on a golf course.

Reward for Accuracy.

A fairway will be 60 yards wide, but to reward straight drives, exactly as placed drives are rewarded by easy second shots on a golf course, a center lane of 20 yards will be marked off down the middle. Drives which come to rest in this center lane will have ten yards added to their distance. Balls coming to rest in the two side lanes, each 20 yards wide, will get their exact distance. Balls which go outside of the sixty yard fairway are "out of bounds."

There will be two classes, amateur and open. Prizes in the amateur class will be a silver cup for first prize and a silver medal for runner up. The next twenty-five in order of finish will receive bronze medals. In addition a silver medal will be awarded to the contestant hitting the longest single drive.

For the open contest prizes totaling $200 are offered. First prize is $100, second is $50, and third $25. An additional $25 is offered for the longest drive. Any one may enter the open contests. Many pros are expected to shoot for the cash. Amateurs should remember they endanger their amateur standing by competing for cash prizes.

Weber Won 1925 Contest.

This contest, inaugurated by THE TRIBUNE last year, is one of the first to give golfers some idea of what is an average good drive. Tales of 300 yard drives are common, but in actual competition last year, an average of less than 250 yards won in both the amateur and open contests.

Dewey Weber, pro at Acadia, won the open contest last year with an average of 246 2-3 yards for his three drives. His three tee shots were 252, 250, and 238 yards. Those three drives were the best of the forty-five pros who competed.

One foot shorter won the amateur contest, Jack Henry sending tee shots 249, 224, and 245 yards down the fairway, for an average of 246 1-3 yards. Chick Evans was second among the amateurs with an average of 244 1-3 yards, which, for a man famed chiefly for marvelous approaching and poor putting, isn't so slow.

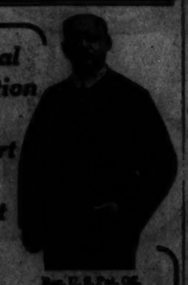

Frank Adams, pro at Westward Ho, won the cash for hitting the longest ball among the pros last year with a drive of 285 yards, but he was exceeded by F. Phillips of the amateurs, who hit one tee shot of 279 yards.

Event to Open Early.

Supt. Emil A. W. Johnson of Lincoln park has promised to have everything shipshape on the Lincoln park extension for next Sunday, with an elevated tee so spectators may watch the hard hitters and perhaps study their swings. The first man probably will mount the tee at 9 o'clock unless the entries make it necessary to start earlier. Further details will be published daily this week.

Every golf fan who can get there is invited to watch the proceedings. THE TRIBUNE can take no responsibility for any one who chooses to wander across the fairway when the balls are whistling on their way, but special police will be provided to keep fans behind the danger zones.

And as for golfers—the cups, medals, and cash are waiting for you. All you need do is fill out the entry blank, published herewith, and come out next Sunday morning and hit three balls down the fairway. Take a few practice swings with your pet driver every day this week so you'll be in form. But most important—send in your entry now.

PITTSBURGH BLUE LAWS BAN GRID CONTESTS ONLY

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Sunday football stood alone tonight as the only athletic diversion forbidden Pittsburghers tomorrow by Director of Public Safety James M. Clark in his campaign to enforce the ancient "blue laws."

The drastic curtailment of the director's program to stop all forms of Sunday sports came after the city law department had ruled that tennis and golf were not unlawful under the statute of 1794 because "they do not tend to produce disorder."

Clark said he would comply strictly with the opinion in his orders to the police and that Sunday golf and tennis will be permitted on city and private links and courts.

Washington and Jefferson Outclasses Rutgers, 19 to 6

Washington, Pa., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Washington and Jefferson showed superiority over Rutgers in all phases of football this afternoon, winning easily 19 to 6. The only Rutgers score came when Lorenz, half back, fell on a blocked W. and J. punt back of the goal line. Several times the visitors defense stiffened and W. and J. was thrown back from the 5 yard line.

GOLFERS CONTINUE THEIR PLAY AS SEASON WANES

BUTTERFIELD tried out a new one yesterday, a so called "devil's tournament" which lived up to its name in bringing forth the brimstone. Flags were removed from the holes and the cups were placed on the greens in spots where no sane person would think of looking for them. Consequently it was a case of "shoot" for the green and then hunt for the cup. W. S. Kendricks, with 94—11—83, tied with P. Murphy, 104—21—83, for first, but Kendrick won the draw. Both admit they shoot better golf than that.

CHERRY VALLEY.

Carl Jarrel won the club championship of Cherry Valley, defeating William Andrews, 4 and 3 in the 36 hole final. William Butler won the president's cup by defeating Alban Carey, 3 and 2, also over 36 holes.

MRS. ARTHUR R. WILSON won the club championship of Acacia by defeating Mrs. E. J. Mease, 3 up, in the 36 hole final. L. J. Feldman won the class C championship by beating G. J. Drenka, 1 and 1, also over 36 holes. Four tied with 82 net for the blind bogey—A. G. Kiser, G. Heine, J. Olsen, and G. J. Drenka.

NORTH SHORE.

Ball sweepstakes was the big competitive event at North Shore, in group one W. Theilenit won, 79—5—74. W. D. Fowler was second, 78—3—75, while M. H. McMillan, 80—12—81, was third. In the second group W. H. Wild won with a 96—22—74. A. B. Merrifield, 100—25—75, was second, and George D. Wolf and A. M. Page were tied for third, with net scores of 80. Wolf had 106 gross, while Page had 100. Mr. Theilenit also won a special prize for his score, the lowest net of the day. Three hundred fifty attended the annual "harvest home" dinner which followed the day's play.

KENOSHA.

The 18 hole medal play handicap at Kenosha in the put-put course Roger Rich and C. J. Wright, each of whom had net scores of 74, Rich won the draw.

D. FRANK FRAWLEY topped the 18 hole medal play for classes A and B at Flossmoor with 80—8—72, and G. M. Cook's 103—30—73 was low in classes C and D. A. A. McLain won the ball sweepstakes with 77. Other low cards in ball sweepstakes were: F. H. Warren, 78; F. F. Wood, 80; H. W. Finnell, 80; H. H. Hatsell, 81, and W. S. Warfields, 81. Next Saturday will be last chance day at Flossmoor.

ROLLING GREEN golfers will have a "get together" dinner at the North Shore hotel at 7 o'clock tomorrow night. "Babe" Overbaugh won the class A championship last week by a freak of the wind. Carmen Thompson was 1 up and both were on the 18th green in 3s. Thompson overran his putt a foot, while Babe's ball hung on the lip of the cup. Thompson sank his next putt for a five and after it fell the wind blew Overbaugh's ball into the cup for a 4, squaring the match. Overbaugh won the extra hole.

RIDGE.

Two crowds and a "harvest home" dinner were the Saturday features set to the competitive season. J. Frew won the blind bogey with 81 and R. A. Lamie and R. D. Sherrett were tied for first place in the match play against par, each being 1 up. Over 100 golfers were out. 300 CHICAGOANS WELCOMED AT SESQUI GROUNDS

Mayor Dever Greeted by Mayor Kendrick.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Three hundred Chicagoans, led by their mayor, William E. Dever, took possession of Philadelphia's sesquicentennial exposition today.

Chill winds and overcast skies forced curtailment of the elaborate ceremonies with which Mayor Kendrick was to have greeted the visitors, and only the briefest greetings were exchanged by the two executives during the formal open air reception at the Illinois building on the exposition grounds.

Prominent Chicagoans There.

Grouped with Mayor Dever in the shadow of the heroic St. Gauden's Lincoln, which dominates the Illinois building, were many of Chicago's most prominent citizens—among them Alexander Revell, George W. Dixon, Edward W. Hurley, A. W. Straus, Edgar U. Greenebaum, Mrs. Harold Ickes, James McVeagh, Mrs. Catharine Waugh McCulloch, and Mr. and Mrs. Lessing Rosenthal and Fred W. Sargent.

In the official party were Building Commissioner Frank Doherty, John T. Miller, commissioner of gas and electricity, and Fire Commissioner Joseph Connery.

"It is quite certain," said Mayor Dever, replying to Mayor Kendrick's address of welcome, "that the proprieties do not require a long speech—our mere presence is enough."

Congratulates Philadelphia.

"I feel if we can equal the Philadelphia sesquicentennial we will have cause to be proud and happy," declared Mr. Hurley, who is former president of the shipping board and chairman of the committee for development of plans for the Chicago centennial celebration in 1933."

"There are two ways of inventorying an exposition," declared Alexander Revell. "There are those who do it in dollars, and there are those who do it in the mighty things in which dollars play no part and which pay greater dividends than can be measured in the coin of any nation.

"The exposition in Chicago will not pay out either," said Mr. Revell by way of commiserating with the sesqui officials, who are faced with a deficit of more than $15,000,000 as the result of their venture.

World's Fair Didn't Pay.

"The Columbian exposition of 1893 did not pay out financially, but who can deny its stupendous benefits to Chicago and, indeed, the entire middle west," he added.

The Chicagoans were escorted from the Philadelphia city hall to the exposition grounds by a motorcycle convoy and after the brief reception ceremonies inspected the Illinois building with its Lincolnia collection and exhibit of the state's agriculture products.

PROBE METHOD OF SOLICITING ADS FOR BOOK

Assistant State's Attorney Joseph Nicolai announced yesterday that he is conducting an investigation into methods used by solicitors for advertising in the Judiciary State Blue book of Illinois. Yesterday the prosecutor questioned T. D. Shannon, a solicitor, who was brought to his office by Sergts. James Shea and William Burkey of the Shakespeare avenue station, after he had sought a $35 advertisement from Z. George Jaworowski, owner of a string of sausage shops.

According to Jaworowski, he was informed by telephone that he had been called for jury service. He was next visited, according to the prosecutor, by Shannon, who told him that if he took an advertisement in the book he would be given a card in the Illinois Justice, Police Magistrate and Constabulary association, which would exempt him from jury service.

Shannon denied making such representation. W. T. Bishop is editor of the blue book.

ALIEN SCOFFLAWS A PERIL TO U. S., WOMEN ARE TOLD

Alien residents of the United States who disregard the prohibition law are a real menace to this country, declared Mrs. Henry W. Peabody of Beverly, Mass., national chairman of the women's law enforcement committee, in an address before the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs at the Morrison hotel yesterday.

Mrs. Peabody said American women generally are dissatisfied with the enforcement of the prohibition law, and charged that twelve states are especially flagrant in violations. The solution of the situation, she declared, is to elect men who will enforce the law.

Nullification would be impossible, she said, despite the wide demand for repeal of the law. Correct enforcement would remedy all evils charged to it, she said.

SLOTH

While Chicago officials have been discussing the ifs and whereases of the subway with renewed vacillation during the last few months London has been building two large extensions of its big subway system. These were opened just recently. The heavy black mark in the above map shows their location. One of the extensions is five and a half miles long, the other about three miles. The extension from Clapham-common to Morden, serves the center of London. The Kennington loop from Charing-cross is the most southern extension of the tubes and gives a through connection both with London bridge, the bank and city stations, and Charing-cross and the lines radiating therefrom. This extension is tapped by stations at Nightingale-lane [Clapham South], Balham [not yet opened], Trinity road [Tooting-bec], Tooting broadway, Collier's-wood, South Wimbledon, and Morden. Between the last two stations the trains emerge from the tunnel to conclude the last stage of their journey through a charming wooded landscape, studded with farm buildings and ivy-clad cottages, which will ultimately make way for London's workers, ever seeking new residential quarters in the suburbs.

PTERODACTYLS OF KANSAS REVEAL PRE-DRY AGES

Dinosaurs flipping unwieldy tails among the swamps in the humid climate of prehistoric Kansas were flashed on the screen in the James Simpson theater of the Field museum yesterday afternoon by Charles Knight. He is the artist for the museum of natural history in New York.

Mr. Knight also showed a picture he had made of a pterodactyl, a winged reptile, also prehistoric. It had a twenty foot wing spread, he said, and could only glide, not fly. The artist also showed woolly mammoths and various reptiles which he explained had prowled the swamps of what now is Kansas. The worst looking ones were mostly vegetarians, he explained, but the less horrifying ones were flesh eaters that needed no camouflage.

Mr. Knight said that from a critical study of present animal life, of which he is a leading painter, he is able to reconstruct prehistoric types from seeing fragmentary remains. He builds his synthetic animals of plaster; takes them outside and uses them as models. The flora are painted from descriptions by geologists.

VICTIMS OF GAS SAVED; EXPERTS TO GET MEDALS

Four veteran employes of the Peoples Gas, Light and Coke company who have saved lives of persons overcome by gas in the last year will leave today for Atlantic City. There they will be presented with medals on Wednesday at the annual convention of the American Gas association.

Joseph Dever, a general service foreman; W. C. Hopper, Frank Barker and John Ferry, all are experts in the Schaefter prone pressure method of artificial respiration.

The medals they will receive are awarded through the gift of Thomas N. McCarter, president of the Public Service Gas company of Newark, N. J.

Police Raiders Find Huge Still; Make One Arrest

Detectives under Capt. Daniel Murphy of the East Chicago avenue station late Friday night raided what is believed to have been one of the largest stills in the city. Three vats, each containing 5,000 gallons of moonshine, fifteen 50 gallon barrels of alcohol, and a large amount of equipment was seized by the raiders at 246 East Grand avenue. Fred Schiebel, 4106 North Irving avenue, was found unloading 15 barrels of alcohol in the rear of the place. He will be turned over to federal authorities.

Angelo Puts Savings in Tub for Luck; Tub Stays

Angelo Amore, 59, of 5416 Grace street, had a quarrel with his wife Friday afternoon. He sought out a gypsy fortune teller yesterday at 1531 Milwaukee avenue. She told him she had a secret ritual which would bring him good luck and solve his troubles. Amore said the gypsy has disappeared with his life savings of $849, which he took from a bank and placed in a tub of water so the fortune teller could call on the proper spirits to help him.

NOT ONE AMERICAN CAR LASTS AS LONG AS REO—NOT ONE

Your Automobile's a Roving Home —Buy One That Lasts!

"The automobile is fast becoming the American family's roving home," says Roy W. Sherman, famous editor of "Motor", and adds significantly, "just as the average family does not trade its fixed home every year, it does not want to trade its automobile."

It's true! Most of us spend more of our leisure hours in our cars than we do in our homes. With the motor car, the workaday world falls back of you in the dust of going away. Never, in all the history of man, have we been lords of space and time as now—masters of moments and miles.

But what of this fleet, roving home? Must we watch it wither and fade just as we begin to understand it? Must we pay and pay for the freedom it gives, with the endless cost of frequent trade-ins? Must we bear the burden of "a short life but a merry one" for motor cars?

Reo Says "No"

Long ago, Reo refused to think so. Reo built cars to last longer—built so well that the years have proved "Not One American Car Lasts As Long As Reo—Not One."

This is the measure of Reo's leadership—a bigger percentage of Reo's past eight years' production is now in use than of the total automobile industry's past five years' production.

A Reo roving home gives three extra years to use or sell that cost you nothing.

A Reo Roving Home Is Different

Reo, the roving home, is long lived, like a good house, because it is well built. Those who realize the use of their automobile as a home buy their car as they would buy a house. They look beneath the handsome coat of paint, the well-turned angles for that certitude of long life which comes only from staunch construction and tested materials.

And in Reo, America's longest lasting car, they find that certainty beneath its handsome exterior.

The best houses are not found in the newest subdivision, opened on the crest of a boom, built up with monotonous row upon monotonous row of boxes—nor will you find in Reo that reasonless groping for another fleeting fad in design which appeals only to those who never see beneath the surface—which lasts but for a season. Reo is always good taste, just as the Colonial house is always good taste.

Reo's long life, its freedom from repair worries and expenses, its sound brawniness throughout long, long years of added miles do not, however, make Reo a costly car. Its moderate price, even with its high quality, is possible because of Reo's manufacturing methods and controlled production.

If You Make Reo Your Roving Home, You Will Enjoy The Roving More

Step in today and ask to drive any of the models that appeal to you. Have someone try the back seat for a long journey—that's where manufacturers have always found it most difficult to build comfort and the difference in Reo riding is best shown by sitting there.

Feel a Reo perform under any test you put it to—then realize that it will keep it up for mile upon mile, that here is a roving home you can move into and stay for years to come.

MOTORDOM

Huge Expenditure Prepares Motordom for Record 1927

Industry Watches Ford Trial of Five-Day Week.

BY WHITCOMB WILLIAMS.

DETROIT, Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Assured that the present year will hang up a new record to be shot at from a production and sales viewpoint, automobile manufacturers are looking beyond the ten weeks just ahead of them and shaping their activities for 1927 and the coming national automobile shows in New York and Chicago.

While the probability is that production will experience a slight easing off during the latter weeks of October and throughout November and December, the decrease will not be sufficient to cause a bit of cocern as to the final result. Just how many units more will be turned out in 1926 than ever before in any one year cannot at this early date be even approximated, but that figure will run into the many thousands.

Year by year the leading companies have expanded and grown larger. Manufacturers have, in many cases, been unable to supply the demand while facilities were being hurried to completion. With the dawn of a new year many of the larger concerns will be better equipped than ever before to turn out cars in sufficient numbers to satisfy the motoring public. General Motors will be the leader in this respect. This concern is launching a $40,000,000 expansion program which covers additional factory facilities and new equipment.

The expansion plan includes an $8,000,000 expenditure on Chevrolet alone in an effort to permit the building of at least one million cars in 1927. Such an output would place this unit second in the production line, being exceeded only by Ford.

Pontiac is spending another five million dollars for plants and equipment necessary for production, while in Flint five million dollars will go for a body building plant for the exclusive use of Buick. It is safe to state that two-fifths of the automobiles produced and sold in this country next year will carry a General Motors trade mark. This giant of the automobile industry is staging a show of its own, which will be open to the public in General Motors building Oct. 9 to 16.

Construction work also has been started on the building of a corporation institute of technology at Flint. The plant will be ready for occupancy and fully equipped early in 1927. Establishment of such an institute to provide technical instruction and practical training for General Motors employés needed in the automotive industry was announced last July by H. H. Bassett, president of the Buick company. Facilities will be provided for approximately 2,000 day and night students.

The output of many of the automobile companies continues at capacity, and back orders promise a continuation of this condition throughout the present month at least. Current production on all models of the Chrysler corporation is running in the neighborhood of one thousand units a day, while the output of the Chrysler "80" has been advanced to 50 cars a day. This company has been awarded fourth place in the coming national automobile show, being exceeded only by Buick, Chevrolet, and Dodge in the order named. The company's dollar sales for the last year were fourth in rank among all producers except Ford.

Following a decrease of more than 6,000 one week ago, employment in the 79 automobile plants and accessories factories took an upward jump this week, placing the total now employed at an even 234,000. This is an increase of 327 over the preceding week.

Encouraging reports are being made concerning the truck industry, to the effect that among the large manufacturers the policy of excessive allowances for old trucks and sales to irresponsible buyers on indefinite terms has been eliminated, thereby putting this unit of the industry on the soundest financial basis in its history. This move, it is announced, has brought about a long delayed correction of the financial evils which have retarded the legitimate development of the truck industry.

Industry the world over will watch and study with great interest the results of the 40 hour work week just established as a permanent policy by Henry Ford, affecting approximately 200,000 of his employés. In the Ford organization it is generally understood that between 15 and 20 per cent of the employés are maintained to fill vacancies in various individual jobs caused by "regulars" taking a day off. Under the new régime it is expected that layoffs will be cut to a minimum, while the incentive to work for five days, following two days of leisure, will more than offset the lost time due to the two days' suspension of production.

It is also understood that Ford will demand the same production for five days work for six—and he may get it with the speeding up of his machinery. It is also announced that the six days' pay for five days of toil will depend upon merit.

In high up automobile circles the question is being freely asked: "Has Ford publicly inaugurated a 5 day week through necessity?"

For the last several months the company has been operating a five day week. This, it is said, is due to the decrease in sales, but just what this decrease has been is the secret which Ford officials alone know. However, from inside unofficial information the present retail sale of Ford automobiles does not warrant a full six day week production schedule.

Asked if the present $6 a day minimum wage would be raised to more than $7 a day, Ford's answer was a bit ambiguous.

"We are now working out the wage schedule, having stopped thinking in terms of a minimum wage. We try to pay a man what he is worth, according to merit. Shorter hours and higher pressure production pays," was his answer.

The plans for the introduction of the industry's smallest car, which was designed by C. W. Bury of New York, is being carefully watched by leading automobile builders. Already one model, a roadster, has been completed in a Detroit plant. The car is capable of 50 miles per hour, weighs 1,200 pounds, and is powered with a Continental engine of a standard "pony" type.

Use of Clutch Is Certain Index of Skill in Driving

THE life of any clutch depends not so much upon its construction as upon the amount of intelligence the driver brings to bear in the matter of engaging and disengaging the clutch, according to service men.

This has led to the formulation of several rules of driving in connection with the clutch: Never drive with the foot poised on the clutch pedal, for this tends to keep the clutch partially disengaged, encourages slipping, and damages the clutch through overheating. Never "slip" the clutch in order to aid the engine in pulling over the top of a hill in high gear. Never coast with the clutch out until certain that the clutch is fully disengaged and the engine is idling. [If the clutch is disengaged, the ammeter should show discharge and indicate that the engine is idling.] Never race the engine and engage the clutch when the rear wheels are caught in snow or mud.

It is easy to tell when a clutch is grabbing, but if it slips most motorists seem unaware of their plight. To test for slipping simply set the emergency and let in the clutch slowly while the engine is running and the gears are in mesh. The engine should stall instantly if the clutch is right. Most clutches now have a simple adjustment to increase clutch plate or disc pressure if slipping develops.

Give us an hour and a road of your own choosing

There are high points in ELCAR 8-in-Line performance that are impossible to describe in words without imposing a strain on your credulity. We prefer to demonstrate them first and discuss them afterward. If we may have an hour of your time we will prove, on any road you choose, that an ELCAR 8-in-Line can outdo any car of its type that approaches its price, whether from above or below.

WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT
. . . BUICK WILL BUILD THEM . . .

1st — for 9 consecutive Years

A-11

For the ninth consecutive year Buick has won first choice of space at the National Automobile Shows.

This is Leadership! For this honor goes annually to the member of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce with the year's largest volume of business.

Chance plays no part in this award. It is conferred upon the car which has found the most favor among the buyers of America—the car in which they have invested a plurality of their dollars.

It has gone to Buick every year since 1918 because Buick has built better motor cars, and continually put back the savings of increased volume and engineering development into still greater value.

Nine continuous years of leadership! For any other car to equal this would mean retaining continuous leadership until 1936—almost another decade.

The industrial history of America records no more brilliant achievement than these nine successive years of Buick dominance.

MOTORDOM

Unanimous Vote Promised Wide Road Bond Issue

40 Foot Pavements and City Entrances on Program.

BY J. L. JENKINS.

COUNTY and statewide support for the $15,000,000 highway bond issue which, when approved by the voters of Cook county Nov. 2, will make possible the $32,000,000 road widening and improvement program for Chicago, was promised last week.

More than a score of big organizations in Chicago, including the Chicago Motor club, North Shore Motor club, truck owners, real estate organizations, country clubs, Association of Commerce, village and town boards, and civic and business organizations, receiving the final draft of the improvement map and program yesterday, prepared to give their official indorsement to the November bond issue and organize powerful support to pile up a record vote for it.

Good roads men, following the action of the county board in placing the $15,000,000 bond proposal on the November ballot, declared that organized support for the issue will hardly be needed, although this general championship of the plan will be welcomed.

"I don't suppose there is a single voter in Chicago or Cook county who has not at some time had to battle his way through the present congestion on our narrow 18 foot roads," remarked President Anton J. Cermak of the county board. "Remembering this sort of experience, how many men or women will fail to break these bottle necks by the simple expedient of marking their 'X' in the yes column for the bond issue on Nov. 2? This looks like one unanimous vote for Cook county. Nothing can stop the improvement now."

"When we consider that in Chicago we vote a bond issue of more than this amount to build a single bridge, there is no question about the public support of the wide roads bond issue," declared Frank J. Wilson, another county board champion of the emergency improvement program.

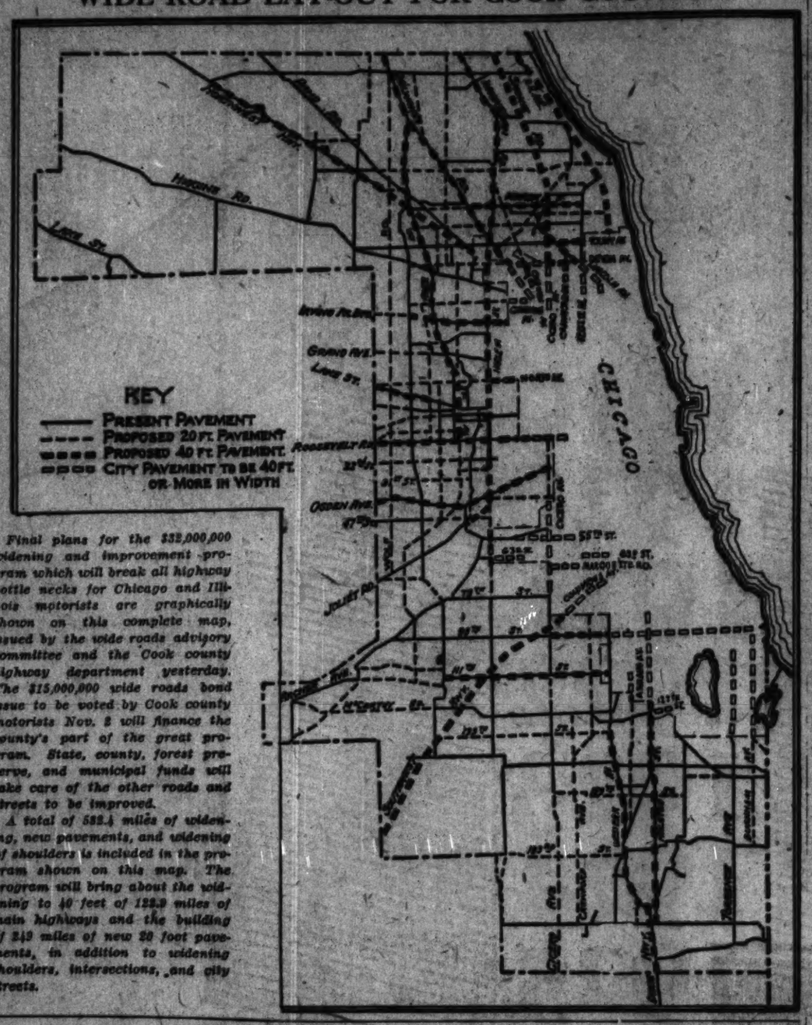

A total of 122.9 miles of 40 foot highway pavements, 249.5 miles of new 20 foot pavements, 55.5 miles of shoulder and bridge widening and 57 miles of improved and widened city streets to meet the new county roads and carry traffic in Chicago, are shown on the accompanying map which graphically outlines the roads and streets to be built as soon as the bond issue is voted. The map and plan was issued yesterday by the Wider Highways Advisory committee appointed by President Cermak several months ago. The committee includes the following highway authorities:

D. H. Burnham, chairman, president of the Chicago Regional Planning association; Frank J. Wilson, county commissioner; William Busse, county commissioner; Charles M. Hayes; president, Chicago Motor club; Col. C. N. Miller, director Illinois department of public works; Frank T. Sheets, chief engineer, Illinois highway department; Maj. G. A. Quinlan, Cook county superintendent of highways; S1 Mayer, president North Shore Motor club; John J. Sloan, president Chicago board of local improvements; Eugene S. Taylor, Chicago Plan commission; Col. William G. Edens, president, Illinois Highway Improvement association; Frank R. Reid, congressman; Dr. John Dill Robertson, president of West Park board; President Kelly, South Park board; Elmer T. Stevens, Chicago Association of Commerce; Charles Vetter, Lawndale Motor club; J. L. Tupy, builder, and other civic and business leaders.

One big feature of the plan as shown on the committee map lies in the improvement of Chicago streets which meet county and state roads at the city limits. The following street improvements are included in the program in addition to highway widening and building:

Kedzie avenue—Foster to Devon; Lincoln avenue—Foster to city limits; Crawford avenue—Bryn Mawr to Devon; Cicero avenue—Montrose to Devon; Devon avenue—Kedzie to Caldwell; Milwaukee avenue—Edmunds to Elston; Gunnison street—Menard to Nagle; North avenue—Harlem to Ridgeland; Roosevelt road—Crawford to Austin; Cicero avenue—39th to 79th; Harlem avenue—52d to 65th; 59th street—Crawford to Archer; 63d street—Western to Homan, and Austin to Harlem; Columbus avenue—Western to city limits; 67th street—Central Park to Cicero; 95th street—Western to Ewing; Ashland avenue—123d to Vincennes at 112th street; Vermont street—Halsted to Wentworth; Halsted street—Vincennes to city limits; Torrence avenue—103d to 138th and Avenues L and 95th to 138th.

WIDE ROAD LAY-OUT FOR COOK COUNTY.

Final plans for the $32,000,000 widening and improvement program which will break all highway bottle necks for Chicago and Illinois motorists are graphically shown on this complete map, issued by the wide roads advisory committee and the Cook county highway department yesterday. The $15,000,000 wide roads bond issue to be voted by Cook county motorists Nov. 2 will finance the county's part of the great program. State, county, forest preserve, and municipal funds will take care of the other roads and streets to be improved.

A total of 582.4 miles of widening, new pavements, and widening of shoulders is included in the program shown on this map. The program will bring about the widening to 40 feet of 122.9 miles of main highways and the building of 249 miles of new 20 foot pavements, in addition to widening shoulders, intersections, and city streets.

News and Views of the Auto Trade

THE Oldsmobile organization in Chicago celebrated one of the biggest sales seasons on record yesterday by moving into new and enlarged quarters at Michigan avenue and 24th street. The building, with its improvements and additions, is said to be one of the finest sales and service stations in the country and, according to C. H. Hurst, manager of the branch, will afford twice as much space as the old quarters. Michigan avenue retail sales for the company will be handled from the salesroom of the new building through the L. Markle company. Used car sales and service will be handled at 2309 Michigan avenue.

One of the most spectacular endurance tests so far attempted in Chicago was launched last week in the Community Motors show rooms and those of the Garfield Sales company, when seven Pontiac six coaches began a non-stop run of 25,000 miles on special treadmills that permit the working of all moving parts. The tests will continue for six weeks.

Al Olson, a veteran of the Chicago row, was appointed general manager of the new Century Tire company's branch, which was organized last week following the purchase by Century of the old Olson-Flory Tire company. Business of the branch will be carried on in the same headquarters formerly occupied by Olson-Flory.

The entire plant, equipment and assets of the Duesenberg Motors company in Indianapolis was purchased last week by a new company headed by E. L. Cord, president of the Auburn Automobile company. Fred S. Duesenberg, internationally known engineer and race motor builder, will continue in the new organization, known as Duesenberg, Inc., as vice president in charge of engineering, and the company will proceed with the production of strictly custom built cars to retail around the $15,000 mark—the world's highest priced automobile. No changes in plant personnel were announced by President Cord, who declared that the new company is out to build the "finest thing on wheels" for the American motor fan.

American invasion of the European field took a long step forward Friday with the introduction at the annual Paris automobile salon of the Erskine six, a two and one-half litre car designed by the Studebaker corporation of America. The car, built to meet European ideas of economy, is the first American six cylinder closed job under 62 inches in height. Powered by an L-head type motor rated at better than 16 horsepower and including all modern equipment, it was christened in honor of A. R. Erskine, president of Studebaker.

New and striking body designs, smaller wheels and improved engineering worked out under the Chrysler plan of standardizing quality, feature the new Chrysler "70," announced yesterday. Prices on all models of the line are considerably reduced.

Cadillac is celebrating its silver anniversary with an interesting salon which will open today under canvas at North Michigan avenue and Walton place, opposite the Drake hotel. Thirty cars are included in the showing.

What is said to be the finest car ever built in the Pierce-Arrow plant was placed on exhibition yesterday in the Pierce-Arrow sales headquarters, 2420 Michigan avenue. It is the new series 36, long heralded as a leader of the Pierce line.

At 60° Fahrenheit

Cold starts its work of destruction on your motor

That's why leading automotive engineers urge year 'round radiator protection—to stop cold where it enters your motor

DURING eight months of the year—your motor is underheated.

These are the months of cold, automotive authorities agree, that cause 50 to 75% of all damage to motors.

Your motor is a heat machine

Creating heat energy is its only job. To do that job economically and well—it must be kept hot. 150 to 175 degrees is the correct motor temperature for highest operating efficiency.

Few cars ever attain this efficiency. Spring finds thousands in repair shops—paying for the damage wrought by cold. Premature cylinder wear—extreme carbonization—condensation—corrosion—fouled spark plugs—excessive crankcase dilution — high gas consumption — all result directly from cold weather operation.

That first "choke" morning is when damage starts

This year—don't give cold a chance at your motor. The first morning you find it necessary to drive with the "choke" out—have a Pines Automatic Winterfront installed. It will stop cold where it enters your motor. It's the only automatic radiator shutter on the market.

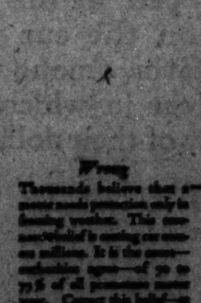

Don't drive with the "choke" out. The damage done to motors in cold weather—authorities have proved—is due largely to the "choke" habit. Flooding your motor with raw gasoline is a costly "warming-up" process. It washes cylinders and cylinder walls clean of the oil film of protection. Metal to metal contact follows. Scoring, pitting and rapid cylinder wear result.

"Warm up" and stay warm with a Winterfront

With your car Winterfront equipped—the "warming-up" period is cut to seconds. You form the habit of using the "choke" as it should be used—for starting only. Your motor is kept always at the point of highest operating efficiency—you experience a new degree of gasoline economy—increased warmth inside your car—summer-time smoothness and flexibility in your motor.

Installed in ten minutes

We will give your car this vital protection in ten minutes. Winterfront is automatic—it opens and shuts itself. There is nothing to get out of order—nothing to remember. You put it on and forget it. It will improve the appearance of any car, and outlast the car itself. Don't give cold a chance this year. Have a Pines Winterfront installed now.

Wrong

Thousands believe that a motor needs protection only in freezing weather. This misconception is costing car owners millions. It is the misconception responsible for 50 to 75% of all premature motor wear. Correct this belief—by heeding the danger in time.

Right

Cold causes hundreds of degrees of condensation at 60° Fahrenheit. That's when you need Winterfront. Makers of many fine cars provide Winterfront protection the year 'round—regarding their motors applied that danger ranges by cold. At 60° Fahrenheit, have a Winterfront installed. Don't give cold a chance at your motor.

Pines Automatic Winterfront is standard equipment on Packard "8," Pierce Arrow, Peerless "8" and DeLuxe "6," Willys-Knight Big "6" and Willys St. Claire. Engineers of these fine cars know against the damage done by cold.

Models for all cars priced $22.50 to $30. Special models for Ford, Chevrolet and Dodge priced $15, $17.50, $20

The NEW FINER CHRYSLER "70"

New Lower Prices—

Presenting a New Influence on all Motoring for Years to Come

Newer, more distinctive silhouette giving a general impression of superb elegance and smartness before your eyes catalog its details.

Newer, more exquisitely graceful bodies, accentuated by a newer, exclusive style of military front with cadet visor on enclosed models—

Newer luxury of comfort with deeper and softer cushions—

Newer, greater riding ease, with exclusive no-side-sway vanadium springs, Watson stabilators and extra-size full balloon tires, mounted on newly-designed smaller wheels—

Newer richness of interior upholstery that withstands the closest scrutiny. Finer hardware and fittings with a handsome clock added to the newly beautified instrument panel—

Newer refinements in controls and head lamps, far in advance of current styles—

Newer, more attractive blendings by master colorists in body tones of tans, browns, and greens, with newer and subtler harmonies in stripings and panelings.

Again, with the new, finer Chrysler "70", Chrysler creates a distinct departure in design and a new measure of value for an industry to follow.

In its fresh new beauty, the new Chrysler "70" once more ignores the accepted and the commonplace, and strikes out into an even more pronounced Chrysler leadership.

With its new flawless artistry of line and coloring and new richness of appointment, joined to characteristically superior Chrysler performance, the new, finer Chrysler "70" even more emphatically upsets all common conceptions of motor car value by its new lower prices.

Not until the coming of the first Chrysler "70" three years ago, did any popular-priced six give 70 miles and more per hour, and pick-up of 5 to 25 miles in 7 seconds, combined with an economy of 20 miles to the gallon.

Three years ago Chrysler "70" was the first with 7-bearing crankshaft, oil-filter, air-cleaner, thermostatic heat control, indirectly-lighted instrument panel, hydraulic four-wheel brakes, balanced wheels and tires, tubular front axle, etc., etc., in this price class.

Three years ago Chrysler "70" initiated roomy compactness and low-hung design.

Three years ago Chrysler "70" led with distinctive individuality in silhouette, with double-beaded body, and an entirely new conception of color harmonies.

Today, while attempts are still made to match the first Chrysler standards of performance and symmetry, the new, finer Chrysler "70" excels the charm and smartness of its older self, just as that older self relegated the earlier conceptions of motor car beauty and performance to oblivion.

With its new vibrant beauty, joined to energetic and vivacious performance, unapproached economy, proved dependability and long life—at prices which register a distinct enhancement of motor car value—the new, finer Chrysler "70" leaves today's trend as far behind as the original "70" advanced the styles of three years ago.

Come in. See this new Chrysler "70" beauty today—experience its new measure of comfort—combined with a performance which an entire industry for three years has failed to approach.

Three Pilots in Finish Fight for U. S. Race Title

Three More Races Decide Lockhart-Harts Duel.

THE 1926 struggle for the automobile racing championship of America has become one of the tightest races in the history of the speedways, and is being fought out by three hard riding drivers, it is disclosed in an announcement made by the contest board of the American Automobile association, which supervises all sanctioned speed classics.

HARRY HARTZ.

Frank Lockhart, young California flash, in winning the Altoona, Pa., 250 mile race in September, ousted Peter De Paolo, America's 1925 champion, from second place, and is driving with a winnig complex. Into the championship home stretch, accordingly, there are now headed three drivers—the champion to be decided by the outcome of the next three races. These remaining three races begin with that at Salem, N. H., followed at Charlotte, N. C., by the second off Nov. 11. The final event will be run at Los Angeles, Cal., on Thanksgiving day.

The closeness of the race was revealed in the contest board's compilation of point standing of speedway drivers. While Harry Hartz still leads with a total of 2,349 points, his place is in peril. Lockhart, the most determined driver the speedways have known in many years, is second, coming like the wind, and Peter De Paolo is running third. Lockhart has 1,750 points; De Paolo, 1,475.

Points are awarded first place drivers in each race on the basis of twice as many points as the miles run. All finishers down to tenth place also obtain points on a graduated scale. Although Hartz still has a 590 point lead over the hardest driver the Pacific coast ever produced, his title is not secure. Lockhart is within striking distance, but has a hard row to hoe. Should he win all first places at Salem he would garner 450 points, but even then Hartz, providing he won none, still would lead by 140. But the contest from there would be anybody's.

De Paolo, totals reveal, has the least chance of the three to duplicate his feat of last year and win the championship. But he does have a chance. He has just had delivered from Duesenberg a completely new car to supplant the racer which throughout the year has not performed satisfactorily. Relieved of mechanical handicaps it would be possible for him to take every first between now and the close of the year, since he admittedly is one of the great drivers of all times.

PETER DE PAOLO.

The Altoona race brought into public notice again the front wheel drive racing car. Two new ones made their appearance in this race, one driven by Leon Duray and one by Peter Kreiss. Ironically, these two new cars finished second and third, while the two front drive cars used through the summer by the veterans Cooper and Lewis dropped out with engine trouble.

The standings of the first ten drivers, as revised by the distribution of points in the Altoona event, were announced as follows:

Harry Hartz, 2,329; Frank Lockhart, 1,750; Peter De Paolo, 1,475; Bennett Hill, 930; Fred Comer, 629; Norman Batten, 620; Frank Elliott, 587; Earl Devore, 585; Dave Lewis, 550, and Earl Cooper, 465.

Better Fuel.

That the average motor gasoline marketed in the United States this summer is better than usual is disclosed as a result of the semi-annual motor gasoline survey completed by chemists of the bureau of mines, department of commerce. It was found that the motor gasoline marketed this summer is more volatile than that sold in the summer of last year. The survey covered 10 representative cities.

He's Out to Learn the Truth About Motordom

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question George T. Chambers, 110 North Madison street, La Grange, Ill., was awarded $5.

The Question.

In what city did you find the best traffic regulations during your tours this year?

Where Asked.

Grant park.

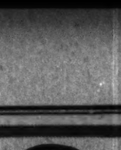

The Answers.

Frank Rubin, 1110 Vernon Park place, conductor — The traffic regulations in Los Angeles are about the best I have run across in my travels. There the pedestrian and vehicular traffic is distinctly separated and the two seldom mix in accidents. Wider streets and highways out there help to make driving pleasant and safe.

Frank Milano, 832 Taylor street, auditor—I believe that the regulations right here in Chicago are about the best in the country, taken by and large. I find that after a long tour I always feel safer in reaching Chicago than anywhere on the trip. We have many things to improve before regulations here are perfect, but they are better than fair now.

Michael Wise, 908 South Irving street, bookkeeper — I find that Milwaukee is a good city to drive through. Its arterial stop streets and traffic lights are similar to those in Chicago and in many cases their signal lights are timed so that a driver can travel eight blocks without the lights turning against him. Chicago lights should be better timed.

John Rich, 3503 Grenshaw street, manager—In my driving I have found the Chicago regulations about the best. Our main trouble here is that too many boards control the city boulevards. In some sections certain speed limits govern traffic. In other sections of the same boulevard a new set make it tough for the motorist. Our loop control is good.

Emilio Romano, 834 Ashland avenue, druggist — I like the traffic regulations and the way automobiles are handled in New York. The New York subway makes better traffic regulations possible, and should, of course, be adopted by Chicago. Traffic police in New York are more courteous than anywhere else in the country and get along better with motorists.

Better Roads Bring Fivefold Increase in Gopher Tourists

FIVE foreign cars in Minnesota in 1926 for every two that came in 1921, is the increase shown by the traffic census taken recently by the Minnesota highway department. Tourist traffic increased 149 per cent in five years. The number of cars passing the average census taker this year was 147, and only 56 in 1921.

The actual number of cars carrying licenses from other states counted during the seven days was 229,567. This does not mean that many visiting cars in the state at one time, a bulletin from the highway department points out. On the average, checkers were 32 miles apart, and most tourists passed several stations. A tourist who averaged 100 miles a day would pass about 22 stations in a week. No doubt many go much more than 700 miles in a week, but others take it leisurely, and may stop from a day to a month at favorite camping or fishing spots. Using 700 miles as the average for the week, there would be 10,435 foreign cars in the state at one time. The actual number was probably two or three times that great.

Taking the reports of twenty-five stations on trunk highways ending at the state line, the department counted a total of 55,286 foreign cars for the week. Assuming that an equal number were coming in and going out, 27,643 foreign cars entered the state in one week. Some of these were Iowa, Wisconsin and Dakota cars on local trips. No estimate is available of foreign cars entering on country roads.

The two highest counts of foreign cars were 1,277 on No. 2 east of Moorhead and 1,265 on No. 3 west of La Crosse.

ROADSIDE READING

An international language is all that remains to make the trails of all nations homelike for the motor tourist. This picture shows the caution, direction, and information signs now in use along the Italian highways, as exhibited at a recent automotive convention. Except for the difference in language, they are identical with the highway signs used in most American states.

Dustless Highways

Michigan is to have approximately 2,000 miles of dust proof roads, and they will be ready within a short time for motorists who will "hit the trail" this fall in Michigan.

These are the gravel trunk line highways, which will be treated with a special preparation that will effectively lay all dust. The preparation consists of calcium chloride, and a small amount of light asphaltic oil. It also adds safety to roads as well as doing away with dust.

Chicago Thanks Paved Roads for 100 New Families

Motor Trucks Used for Largest Moving Job in History.

HOW paved roads and motor trucks are speeding up transportation all over the country was demonstrated in Chicago recently when 100 families migrated to that city from Columbus, O., in what is said to be the quickest and largest moving feat in history.

The heads of these families are employes of an oil company which moved its headquarters to Chicago. Both speed and economy in transferring the families and their household goods were desirable, so it was decided to utilize motor trucks for the 330 mile trip.

Except for about 15 miles the road is paved. Motor vans transported people and possessions of these 100 families to their new homes in 50 hours! According to M. H. Kennelly, who directed the record transfer, no delays were encountered and all goods arrived safely without accident.

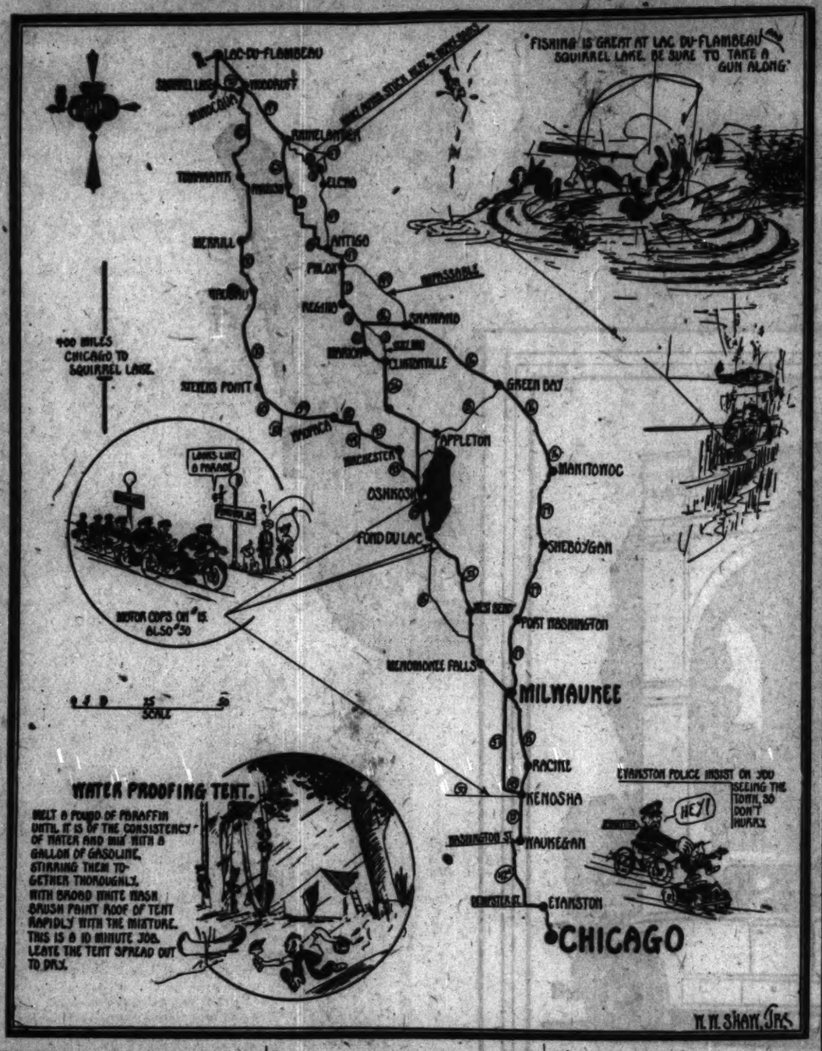

"Without the concrete roads this would have been well nigh impossible," he said yesterday. "The speed in which the move was made could not otherwise have been accomplished and transportation costs would run too high. We know from experience that we can operate our truck fleet at a far lower cost over concrete than we could over unpaved roads."

While storage and transfer companies are doing a large volume of long distance moving, it is not through their efforts alone that this phase of transportation has developed, but through the insistent demand of the public who wish to take advantage of the increasing mileage of paved roads to do their hauling. Storage companies, as a rule, profit just as much, if not more, by packing household goods for rail shipment and trucking it locally to freight stations. On long hauls this is still the most economical method for the shipper to use, but on shorter moves, up to 200 miles, motor van shipment is both faster and cheaper.

The intercity removals bureau of the National Furniture Warehousemen's association is working out a plan to remedy this situation. It plans to establish a sort of clearing house at Chicago to provide loads in both directions for its members, and thus enable long hauls to be made at lower cost than at present. This plan is already in effect, but the bureau plans to broaden the service and increase the radius of operation. The result in lower hauling cost to the householder as well as better profit to the warehouseman is apparent.

XXVII.—LAST NORTHERN LAKES CIRCLE

WITH flood waters menacing the old familiar trails to the south, west, and southwest of Chicago, northern roads have all the best of it just now in the matter of Indian summer allure. Here is a last minute suggestion for an autumn tour into northern Wisconsin, with the promise that all of the roads shown will carry the traffic and that October colors will more than repay the motorist sportsman for his trip.

Late reports indicate that the game fish of northern waters have emerged from their summer hiding places and are waiting eagerly for October lures.

Fast Justice.

A traffic court on wheels is an innovation at Inglewood, Cal. Luckless speeders cannot complain about the slowness of justice, for they "get theirs" and are on their way again within 10 minutes after the opening of the court. The scheme is supposed to prevent "cluttering" of the regular courts.

Honor Roads Man.

In recognition of his work as an advocate of good roads, Burton A. Towne, president of the California State Automobile association, has been appointed a member of the good roads committee of the American Automobile association, the nation-wide organization of motorists with which the state association is affiliated.

Front Seat Rule.

It is dangerous to permit more persons to ride on the front seat of an automobile than the manufacturer intended, cautions the National Safety council, which says that interference with the driver is foolhardy and contrary to law.

Plates Hidden.

Opposition is expressed by Arizona traffic officers to the manner in which the usual truck operators, especially of the smaller cars, hide their license plates on the rear end. It is observed that "the owners should be compelled to put the plates where he who gets run over may read."

Famous Beacon.

The narrow beam of light that circles in the heavens on the summit of Lookout mountain crest is an aerial beacon, and though small in size, it employs a series of reflectors and lens which develop 7,000,000 candlepower, and it is visible for 15 miles and will penetrate fog for five miles.

Big Danger.

Ten per cent of all automobile accidents occur at railroad crossings, according to statistics. Ninety-one out of every hundred of these accidents are avoidable, provided the driver takes the ordinary precautions.

AVERAGE HAUL.

The average drayage mileage of loaded trucks in Connecticut and Minnesota is 23 miles, Pennsylvania 24 miles, Cook county 26 miles, California 31 miles.

Brilliant Performance and Greatly Improved Gas Mileage

"Performance like Hudson's" has long been the goal of fine car builders.

Only the costliest approach its brilliancy of action, smoothness and effortless power. The lesser cars talk of everything except performance when Hudson is mentioned.

Now with even greater performance the new model Hudsons give vastly improved gasoline mileage. They are even smoother. Power is increased. No car surpasses Hudson's reputation for acceleration, speed and flexibility. Yet fuel consumption compares with light cars of no performance distinction.

These great Hudson results are not accidental. They are the sum of years of alert pace-making leadership.

The famous Super-Six principle eliminates vibration and makes possible sustained top performance without injury to the car.

Hudson introduced oil ventilation. Easy adjustments take up chassis wear. Roller tappets give longer, quieter operation. The balanced propeller shaft eliminates noise and rumbles.

With its greater chassis, greater performance and greater economy the new model Hudsons are more beautiful in line, colors, and appointment. They are the greatest values in Hudson history.

Hog market finished the week on the telegram, poorer quality helping materially in forcing the average to the lowest level in over two weeks on a dull and unsatisfactory week-end trade, in which an accumulation of cheaper grades of heavy packers obnoxious to buyers proved a depressing factor.

The latter kinds were pounded down 15@50c, better grades receding 10@25c, with average price off 40c at $12.15 and top only 10c lower at $13.30, paid for 196@215 lb selections. Top hogs are 25@50c under high point of the week and 10@25c lower than previous week's close, while closing sales of packers reveal losses of as much as $1.00@1.25 in three days, maximum break in 350@500 lb sows.

Hog Receipts Larger.

Receipts of hogs overran advance estimates late in the week, bringing the total beyond all expectations at 97,300, against 91,322 the previous week. Light weights were liberal and forced the estimate average down to 249 lbs, lightest since last April and only 2 lbs above a year ago. General average price advanced to $12.85, highest in nearly three months and 35c above the previous week.

Market for hogs reacted following sharp advances first half of the week. Daily averages dropped from $13.00 Wednesday to $12.15 at the close. The corresponding week a year ago daily averages declined from $12.10 to $11.25. Two years ago daily averages advanced from $10.60 to $11.30 in a week's time, the latter being highest in 1924.

Cattle market broke sharply under stress of the largest cattle receipts of the year during last week, the total at 36,100 being third largest since the record run of 111,966 in 1920. Marketward movement from the range was largest of the season, adding to the depression. Weighty beeves declined sharpest, closing semi-demoralized and $1.00@1.50 under the high point previous week. Butcher stock closed 50c@$1.00 lower. Calves slumped fully $1.00 off. Stockers and feeders shared in 25@40c of the break.

Outsiders absorbed about 35 per cent of last week's cattle receipts, shipments from Chicago at 38,800 being largest since 1922. Extreme top yearlings Tuesday at $12.75 established a new high for the year, with 1,300 lb averages at $13.00 Monday highest of the year for that weight. The big percentage of choice grades unloaded first three days held the general average price at $10.75, highest of the year.

Lambs Advance Sharply.

Killing lambs scored the sharpest advances in several months in brisk trading last week as supplies from the range fell off. Most fat offerings advanced $1.00, with instances of as much as $1.35 gain cited in extremes. Feeders shared in fully 50c of the upturn. Receipts at 118,000 were smallest in a month's time, but unusually large compared with corresponding periods. Offerings at Chicago during the four week period total over half a million. Matured sheep advanced mostly 25c and yearlings 25@50c. Top native lambs brought $14.75 and rangers $14.90, best feeders selling at $13.85. Top yearling wethers $11.50, aged wethers $8.00, and fat ewes $7.25. Fair quality Indiana born lambs late brought $12.25.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 31,000 cattle, 30,000 hogs, and 23,000 sheep, against 34,813 cattle, 23,369 hogs, and 26,040 sheep a week ago and 32,450 cattle 25,775 hogs, and 25,625 sheep the corresponding day a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 72,000 cattle, 120,000 hogs, and 119,000 sheep, against 89,353 cattle, 121,512 hogs, and 130,289 sheep a year ago.

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

There was a fairly good foreign demand for cash wheat at the seaboard, despite the inability to get freight room, and sales in all positions were estimated at 300,000 to 400,000 bu, the bulk of the business being done by exporters who had the freights in hand. Only one grain boat reported offered at New York with coal paying 5c more than wheat.

Chicago handlers sold 12,000 bu wheat; 42,000 bu corn, 24,000 bu oats, and 20,000 bu barley to the domestic trade. Deliveries on October contracts were 5,000 bu corn. There were sales of 40,000 bu No. 2 red winter wheat in store at 3c under December, or ½@1c better than the price prevailing of late. The country sold 100,000 bu old corn to arrive.

Cash wheat here was in fair demand with the basis steady to ½c higher. No. 2 red sold at 1@2c under December, with No. 3 red 2@3c under, while No. 2 hard was 3@4½c over, and No. 3 hard December to 4c under. St. Louis basis was unchanged to ½c lower with Kansas City unchanged.

Offerings of cash corn on spot were not large and with a fair demand the basis was ½c higher to 1c lower, with No. 2 grades December price to 1c over; No. 3 grades, December to 2½c under, and No. 4 grades, 1@4c under. Outside markets were ½@2c lower.

Demand for cash oats was good with the basis unchanged to ¼c lower. No. 2 white sold at 2¼@3c over, and No. 3 white at ½c over to 1½c under December.

Official receipts of grain at Chicago Saturday: Wheat, 23 cars; corn, 147 cars; oats, 42 cars; rye, 6 cars; barley, 19 cars.

LOCAL TRADERS' BUYING BOOSTS PRICES OF WHEAT

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Wheat prices fluctuated slowly and in an uncertain manner within a range of 1⅛@1¼c, declining moderately early only to rally later on buying headed by local traders. The finish was well toward the top with net gains of ⅛c to ¼c with December $1.37½ to $1.37¾, and May $1.42¼ to $1.42¾. Liquidation was on in corn with May selling down to 84¾c, a new low on the crop, and the close was ¼@⅜c lower with December 77½c to 77¾c, and May 85c to 85½c. Oats lost ⅛c with December 43¼c, and May 47½c, while rye was ¼@½c lower with December 98c, and May $1.00½.

Grain prices were on the downgrade the greater part of the week, and the finish was well toward the bottom. As compared with a week ago wheat was off 2½c, corn 3½@4¼c, oats ⅞@1½, and rye 2@5½. Liquidation was on in provisions with lard showing net losses of 47½@92½c, ribs 75c, and bellies $1.60 as compared with a week ago.

Small Trade in Wheat.

There was little in the general run of the news on wheat that attracted attention. There were resting orders to buy December at $1.37 and under which absorbed offerings of the local element, and the rally was easily attained. Week-end evening up was a factor in maknig the upturn. Government report is due to be given to the trade after the close on Monday and is expected to show little change from the September figures, but the local element were disposed to go slow pending its issuance.

Ocean freight situation is becoming a big factor in the world's wheat situation, and while having a tendency to advance prices in Liverpool is having a depressing effect in North America. Offers of No. 3 red winter from Chicago on the basis of 10c over December c. i. f. Montreal failed to be accepted owing to inability to get room to ship the grain to Europe. The seaboard reported 400,000 bu wheat sold in all positions. There is a scarcity of nearby wheat afloat, with both the United Kingdom and the continent buying. Russia continues to offer freely abroad.

Weather conditions in the Canadian northwest were mostly favorable and farmers' deliveries at interior points on Friday were 2,300,000 bu, or more than double last year. Up to Oct. 8 farmers had delivered 84,000,000 bu, against 113,000,000 bu last year. Liverpool closed ½@¾d higher and is due ¾d higher on Monday, based on the action of the local market.

Stop Orders Break Corn.

Belated liquidation was on again in corn, and with a lack of support a decline to a new low on the crop for the May was easily attained, with numerous stop loss orders uncovered. Short covering and buying against bids made the final rally. Despite the break the country sold 100,000 bu old corn to arrive. Weather conditions were generally favorable for the new crop, with the weekly forecast for occasional showers.

Weakness in corn led to selling of oats, with stop loss orders caught, but the market rallied a soon as pressure let up, and oats gained fractionally on corn for the day. Movement continues decidedly smaller than last year. Trading in rye was largely in the way of spreading between the December and May at 6¼c difference. Outside interest was limited.

CHICAGO CURB MARKET

Local unlisted securities were inclined to be less active during the last week and considerable irregularity was again noted in price changes.

The H. Channon Company issues were in good demand, the common being wanted at 7, first preferred changed hands at 88, and the second preferred between 88½ and 89. Transactions in Beatrice Creamery at 62½@63½ showed little change over the previous week. Creamery Package was easier, being offered at 33¼, with little interest showing on the buying side. SMALL UPTURN IN COTTON

The cotton market had a slightly better tone, and while there was considerable hedging pressure in American markets and Liverpool, the absorption was better and a good rally was made after an early break, with the close at intermediate figures showing gains on futures of 13 to 17 points, except in Chicago, which gained 16 to 25 points, there being one hour more trading in the latter market. Spot cotton in New York was 10 points higher at 12.30c, and in New Orleans 20 points higher at 12.30c. Weather was good over practically all of the cotton belt except showers in North Texas and Oklahoma. Liverpool closed 12 to 15 points higher, which helped the American market. The government is to help the cotton growers out of their present unfavorable conditions and Secretary Jardine advises southern farmers not to rush their cotton to market. The decline in prices of late has demoralized them and they have been selling regardless of what they can get. The Co-operative Association in Georgia has already taken care of 1,100,000 bales.

Trade conditions are unfavorable, a decline in price checking buying of goods. Prices in leading markets follow:

LAND GRANTS TO RAILWAYS LESS THAN TAXES NOW

BY HARPER LEECH.

About this time of year, every other year, when the frost is due and the congressional elections not far off, we are bound to have aspiring statesmen remind us that the government in times past gave a lot of land to the railroads.

We do not hear so much of it in the west as usual, but a New York candidate rang the old stuff in and franked out a speech reminding us all about it. Help the farmer by reducing railroad rates and the tariff, he says, and there will be no need of "nostrums" such as export control. So many fantastic perversions of the facts about railroad land grants have gone into the mental background of a great many voters that it may be worth while to recall the truth.

Altogether lands granted directly by the federal government to aid railroad construction, indirectly through states or directly by states, are estimated to total 167,832,492 acres, or 262,238 square miles—about seven-tenths of the area of Texas.

If the railroads had all that land now they probably would be sitting pretty easy, but they haven't got it. What did they do with it, what did they get for it? is the real question. Seven-tenths of Texas in 1926 would be pretty soft. Seven-tenths of Texas at the time when the grants were made—1850-1871—wouldn't be so much.

At the various times they got the 115,-832,492 acres which came from the federal government the lands could have been bought for the usual price of "congress land"—one dollar and a quarter an acre, or $144,791,000.

A railway accountant who assisted the writer in getting these figures points out that this gift to the embryo railroads was less than half of what the railroads now pay yearly in taxes, and is less than two-thirds of the book value of the roads today.

In addition to that, land grant roads gave to the government various concessions in the way of reduced rates for government freight, troops, etc. In the case of the Illinois Central's 1,032 square miles of land grant road these rates have netted the government over $8,700,-000 to date, or $8,400 per mile of road.

Of the original lands granted we have the sales figures on 80,000,000 acres, seven-tenths of the area of the federal grants. Ten railroads sold that number of acres at an average of $2.87 an acre.

Some railroads still have immense acreages of alkali and cactus, which may be worth more than that some time.

As a result of railway construction the government was enabled to sell millions of acres in alternate sections along the rail lines at $2.50 an acre. The government was unable to find purchasers at $1.25 an acre until the roads came.

The further one goes into the facts about railway land grants the more certain the conviction becomes that it was just as sound policy to grant lands to railroads as it was to grant lands to the soldiers of the revolution, the war of 1812, and the Mexican war. Not only was the country built up but the financial returns to the government in the end are hardly capable of estimate.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

The government report giving the yield of spring wheat, corn, and oats, and the condition of corn, will be given out on Monday at two o'clock Chicago time. The Chicago Board of Trade and the Chicago and New York Stock Exchange as well as Kansas City and St. Louis Grain Exchanges will be closed on Tuesday, Columbus day. Minneapolis, Duluth, and Winnipeg markets will be open on Tuesday.

Not only the grain trade, but stock and cotton speculators are disposed to go slow on the buying side and some of the large operators are not pressing the selling side as they were a week or two ago. There is sympathy on the part of buyers in general and bearish influences are given the most attention while bullish factors are ignored. Despite the decline in prices the disposition of the trade as expressed in most instances is that everything is a sale on bulges.

There were hedging sales of wheat in Chicago from the southwest. A Texas cash handler bought 85,000 bu of cash wheat and hedged it by sales of December in Chicago. The northwest is hedging wheat here to a moderate extent, while the big commission houses are doing practically nothing.

"The freight situation is overshadowing everything," says a New York exporter. "Rates for October practically is unobtainable and no full cargo boats are offered for that position. Only one grain vessel is offered for November. Coal people are bidding 5c per 100 lbs above wheat for coal space. One coal man says that he intends to ship 30 ship loads of coal to Europe this month and next if he can charter the steamers. This situation makes bad weather in Canada bearish instead of bullish as it only means Canada will be holding the bag as well as this country later on. In the meantime Russia has the market abroad. Russia sold the United Kingdom 600,000 bu wheat on Friday and the continent cables that Russia was selling freely."

Expectations are for a moderate increase in the visible supply of wheat on Monday. Chicago stocks should show a decrease. Duluth stocks should show a small increase. World's shipments are estimated at 12,300,000 bu, against 13,172,000 bu last year.

Duluth has 24,500,000 bu of all grains, with only a few boats loading and export demand small. Its stock of winter wheat is 2,258,000 bu, a decrease of 115,000 bu for the week, spring wheat 3,117,000 bu, decrease 85,000 bu. Durum 3,887,000 bu, increase 485,000 bu.

Receipts of wheat in western Canada on Friday was 3,305,439 bu, against 1,944,-000 bu last year. Shipments were 2,102 cars, against 1,534 cars last year. Marketing for the week was 8,252,000 bu on the Canadian National railway. The inspection of wheat at Winnipeg is not so good, with 211 cars No. 1 northern and 393 cars No. 2 northern yesterday, and 540 cars tough and 64 cars rejected sprouted. Total wheat deliveries at Winnipeg to October 8 were 86,-494,000 bu, against 118,892,000 bu last year.

Winnipeg reported weather clear throughout the west and no moisture from there said should be had for the coming week cutting of wheat would run up to 3,000,000 bu a day.

STOCKS SLUMP; STEEL, MOTORS UNDER ATTACK

YESTERDAY'S AVERAGES

	High.	Low.	Last.	Net chge.
20 railroads	98.84	96.33	96.83	.99
20 industrials	166.94	165.20	165.10	-0.61
40 stocks	132.19	130.13	130.50	-1.79

New York, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Stock prices plunged downward again today as bear traders launched another selling attack on the theory that demoralization of the cotton market would react unfavorably on the general business situation. Concentrating their fire first on the shares of southern railroads and industrial companies, they eventually succeeded in depressing the prices of pivotal issues and turning the course of the entire market downward. Net losses in the active stocks ranged from 2 to 8¼ points.

Liquidation of southern rail and industrial shares was attributed in some quarters to a desire of financial interests in that section to devote their resources, if needed, to the support of the cotton industry. News that the President had appointed a special committee to aid this industry in the marketing of the crop was favorably received and prices closed higher in contrast to recent displays of weakness.

Steel and Motors Slump.

The severity of the selling movement, which quickly superseded initial attempts to bid up prices, carried U. S. Steel down 7⅝ points to 142¾ in the face of official predictions that unfilled tonnage would show an increase for September. These were borne out by the figures made public after the close of the market, revealing a gain of 51,174 tons, the second recorded this year.

At the day's low point of 142¾ U. S. Steel was more than 12 points under the high figure touched a week ago today. General Motors closed 3¼ points lower at 153¾, compared with last Saturday's high of 173½, and Dupont slumped 8½ points to 326.

Coca Cola slumped more than 6 points and prominent rails, including Atlantic Coast Line, Louisville and Nashville, Southern Railway, Chesapeake and Ohio, and Norfolk and Western, were hammered down 1 to 5½ points.

Rails and Equipments Decline.

Selling of the rails, however, was not confined to the southern carriers, New York Central, Atchison, and Nickel Plate showing pronounced weakness.

Despite reports that railroads were on the verge of placing large orders for rolling stock to handle their increasing traffic, shares of the equipment companies also yielded to selling pressure. Baldwin, Pullman, Westinghouse Air Brake, and General Railway Signal, after an early period of strength, closed 1 to 3½ points lower.

The demand for bonds continued to show moderate improvement. Foreign bonds were a shade higher. Chilean 8s moved up fractionally and French, German, and Belgian obligations were firm. Activity in the bonds of the New York Transit companies, most of which extended their recent gains, was based on the renewed agitation for a higher fare, and a general change in operating policies.

Italian Exchange Rises Sharply.

Trading in the foreign exchange market was featured by the rise of 8 points in Italian lire, which went above 4 cents for the first time in about 5 months. Demand sterling ruled unchanged around $4.84⅝, while French francs were slightly firmer at 3.87¼ cents.

The weekly New York clearing house bank statement showed an excess reserve of $37,993,230, as compared with a deficit in reserve last week of $23,360,720. Aggregate reserve totaled $629,099,000. Marketability of Securities.

The marketability of a security is a quality often overlooked by the amateur investor.

This quality may or may not be of importance to a certain individual, but to most small investors of limited means it probably means more than they realize.

Before purchasing a security, the investor should consider whether he is in a position to tie his funds up until the maturity date, or is likely at any time to need the principal amount in cash.

The importance of ready marketability will become evident if an emergency arises demanding an amount of ready money more than he has on hand.

If his securities are readily marketable, he can either sell at once sufficient of them to raise the necessary money or, better still, he can take them to a bank and borrow the money, using the securities as collateral for the loan.

The more marketable a security, the more willing a bank is to loan on it as collateral.

A bank does not want to loan money on a security—no matter how sound it may be—unless it has at least a fair degree of salability, otherwise it would not be able to reimburse itself in the event the loan were not repaid.

Far too many investors look only at the interest yield a security offers and ignore entirely its salability.

There are types of security that offer higher rates of interest than many others of similar grade simply for the reason that they must pay more to compensate the investor for the lack of ready marketability which is inherent in them.

Such securities may do very well for the individual who is sure that he can leave the funds invested in them tied up until the maturity date.

Such an individual would do better not to sacrifice yield for the sake of purchasing marketability which he does not need.

But the one who sacrifices marketability which he really needs for the sake of securing a slightly higher yield is equally shortsighted—perhaps more so, as he may come to grief when the need of ready cash suddenly arises.

Now - Hundreds of Chicago Owners Know

—why the new "70" Willys-Knight Six has stepped into a leading sales-place in the shortest time on record

WHEN the new "70" Willys-Knight Six was first announced nine months ago, we told you that here was a new-era car—modernly designed, modernly engineered . . . That it would out-perform anything that had ever been built of its size or type or price-class.

We told you that here was the most modern car in America . . . That, with its new European-type, small-bore, long-stroke engine, it developed more power per cubic inch of piston displacement throughout its entire range, than any other car produced in this country.

We told you that—with its improved Knight sleeve-valve engine, patented, exclusive—the new "70" Willys-Knight Six was the liveliest car of its price ever built . . . that it introduced an altogether new standard of activity—instant pickup, an amazing ratio of acceleration . . . We told you about its European-type mechanical 4-wheel-brakes—the same type of braking system you find on 97% of foreign cars—that would give you a new conception of quick stopping.

That was 9 months ago . . . What happened in the interval?

In the first 30 days, the new "70" Willys-Knight Six was the talk of America . . . Tremendous power. Power almost beyond belief for a car of its size . . . Speed between 60 and 70 honest miles an hour—more than any sane driver would ever need. Acceleration 5 to 40 miles in 14½ seconds—a new high-water mark of activity. Brakes that acted as quick as thought—that meant instant-stopping.

Activity. Liveliness. Get-up-and-go. Swiftness. High-gear pulling power. Unheard-of efficiency. Incredible economy in gas and oil. Up-keep cost cut in two because of the complete elimination of all carbon-troubles and valve-grinding . . . With this new-era car, a new order of performance had come . . . Within 60 days, the new "70" Willys-Knight Six had swept Cook County from one end to the other . . . The new "70" Willys-Knight Six became the fastest-selling new Six in its price-class. And each week sees it increasing its lead at the liveliest clip on record.

The Great Six Roadster—Chicago's Smartest Car

On the Boul' Mich', out Lincoln Park way, along the North Shore from Evanston to Lake Forest—in the fashionable South Side and West Side sections—Chicago's smart set has elected the Willys-Knight Great Six Roadster its favorite sports-model . . . The reason is quickly apparent . . . With its snappy lines, its low-swung body, its "swanky" color-scheme, here indeed is Chicago's Smartest Car.

You owe it to yourself to see these modernly designed Willys-Knight cars. With the introduction of the new engineering principles they present, it is not sound judgment today to consider the purchase of a less modern automobile.

Willys-Knight "70" Touring, $1295; Roadster, $1525; Coupe, $1395; Standard Sedan, $1395; DeLuxe Sedan, $1495. Willys-Knight Great Six Touring, 5-passenger, $1750; Roadster, $1850; Coupe, $2195; Sedan, 5-passenger, $2295. All prices f. o. b. factory and specifications subject to change without notice. The new Willys Finance Plan offers unusually attractive credit terms.

ON Saturday, October 9, the interest of all Chicago was focused on one of the outstanding events of the season's football calendar—the contest held at Stagg Field, Chicago University's new million-dollar Stadium at 57th Street and University Avenue.

Serving with such conspicuous success as Chicago's Chief Coach since 1893, it seems only fitting that the new gridiron should be named in honor of Amos Alonzo Stagg, the "Grand Old Man" of that which is fast becoming America's most popular outdoor sport.

As is its custom, Chicago extended a hearty welcome to the visiting team of Maryland, and its enthusiastic support to the home contingent upon this, the occasion of one of the important games of the year.

PART 3 | REAL ESTATE HOME BUILDERS

OCTOBER 10, 1926.

Announce $5,250,000 Building Program for South Chicago

CITY HALL MAY BE MADE INTO 35 STORY TOWER

County Would Share New Space.

Old Pa Dearborn and his cousin, Mr. Cook County, are so worried with the growing pains in the city hall and county building parts of their municipal and county anatomies that they are consulting a well known firm of specialists, known as Holabird & Roche, to see what can be done.

JOSEPH R. NOEL. [U. & U. Photo.]

It is understood that a $13,000,000 operation is suggested by old docs Holabird & Roche, which will add twenty-three stories to the two buildings.

Caissons in Courts.

The tentative plan is to put in caissons in the courts between the two structures and erect a thirty-five story structure, set back from the present buildings, on the inside, but soaring twenty-three stories above the present twelve story structures.

It is understood the proposed addition would provide about 400,000 additional square feet and would accommodate Municipal courts, sanitary district, and other city and county offices now forced to use other quarters.

Considered for Some Time.

The project has been unofficially discussed and is only in a tentative state. Joseph R. Noel, president of the Noel State bank, present at the conference, said he believed the project didn't look far enough ahead, that in fifteen or twenty years still larger quarters would be needed.

The matter has been under consideration for some time by city officials and members of the city council, as well as by some of the members of the council advisory committee. Holabird & Roche, as already stated, have submitted sketches for this big engineering feat.

Pay $30,000 an Acre in Niles Center

What is claimed to be the highest price ever paid for acreage in Cook county—$30,000 an acre—is reported to have been spent by the Paramount Realty corporation in securing ten acres located at the Highlands in Evanston and Niles Center.

The property is bounded on the east by Crawford avenue, on the north by Central street, on the west by Ridge road, and on the south by Harrison street. Although several parcels were purchased, it is claimed the average price paid was $30,000 an acre.

It is all business property and entirely surrounds the new Highland terminal of the Evanston street railway at Ridge road and Harrison street. It's to be subdivided, and, according to Frank R. Mason, vice president of the Paramount Realty corporation, will retail in the neighborhood of a million dollars. The sellers were Charles F. Speed, Mitchell Bros., and Frank Ketter.

The Paramount concern also bought from Harry Kranss of the firm of Henry P. Kranss twenty acres at Harrison street and Laramie avenue, two blocks from the Harrnewood station of the new Skokie line, in Niles Center, which they are now subdividing. Pickett & Hall were brokers in both deals.

"RED" GRANGE'S OLD BOSS BUILDS STORAGE PLANT

"Red" Grange's old boss, I. C. Thompson, ice man, has just started work on a new cold storage building for Wheaton on West Front street of the Du Page county seat, according to Arthur L. Webster, county surveyor. It's to be 35x85. The Front street paving and widening job also is under way, extending from Scott street on the east several blocks to the west.

Mr. Webster also reports that a new map of Wheaton is on the press, showing numerous new subdivisions laid out since his last map.

PLAN $360,000 APARTMENTS AT SCHOOL-KARLOV

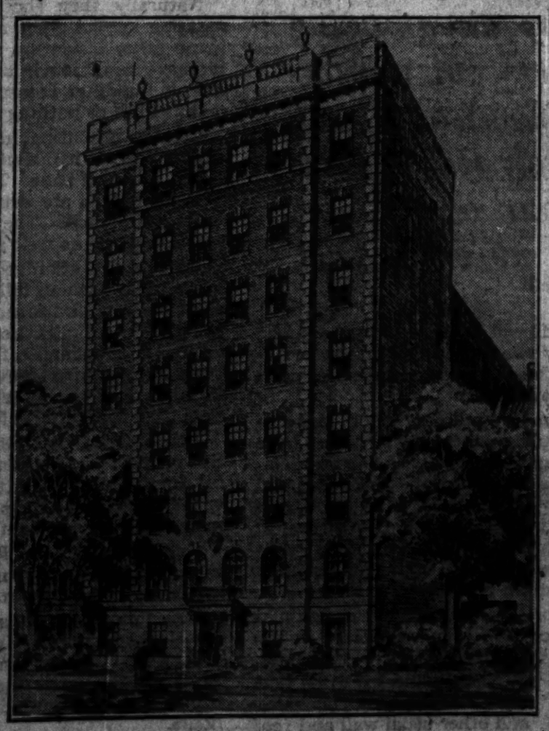

Architect Harry Dalsey has completed plans for a $360,000 fifty-six flat building to be erected at the southeast corner of School and Karlov, lot 141x120. Work will start in three weeks, with completion set for early in the spring. The suites will have three and four rooms.

AT WABASH AND LAKE

On Sunday, June 21, 1925, a picture of the proposed twenty-three story Lake-State building, to be erected by the Lake-State bank at the northeast corner of Wabash and Lake, was shown in this section. Since then the exterior has been so changed that it seems timely to show what it's really going to look like. It's now to be twenty-four stories in the main edifice, with two or three more stories above, included in set-backs. C. W. and George L. Rapp are architects. It is understood that the architectural treatment is to be carried out more elaborately in the set-backs than is shown in the above picture. This, of course, is necessary, for these two floors are the most conspicuous features of the building. W. M. Richards is president of the bank. Winston & Co. will be renting agents. H. Chester Danforth made the rendering. E. W. Straus & Co. financed this project.

JUNIOR TERRACE APARTMENTS

Hooper & Janssen are the architects of the above Junior Terrace apartments, to be erected at 725-27 Junior terrace. Details are given in another column. A $235,000 loan has been underwritten by George M. Forman & Co. through the Muzzy Bond and Mortgage company.

KILDEER COUNTRY CLUB

Charles Morgan designed the above rambling old English brick and half timber structure to house the new Kildeer Country club, near Wheeling. Details of this new organization are given in another column of this section.

NEW CHURCH FOR SOUTH SIDE

Buckley & Skidmore of Hammond, Ind., are the architects of the above new edifice of the Atonement English Evangelical Lutheran church, to be erected at the southeast corner of Laflin and 70th. The Rev. L. O. Cooper rider is pastor. Details are given elsewhere in this section.

A GROUP OF NEW HIGHLAND PARK HOUSES

The above four residences were designed by Loebl & Schlossman and are to be erected on the east side of the old Northwestern Military academy grounds in Highland Park. They'll face east on Linden avenue, with Ravine drive on the south.

The residence on the left is of French Normandy architecture; next comes an English half timber house, then another bit of British architecture, but of another period, and on the extreme right is a house of the French chateau style. Ground has just been broken and they're to be completed by next April. They are being erected by a syndicate.

Syndicate Buys Acres Facing Butterfield

A syndicate headed by B. H. Silvermann has bought from Martin A. Sweeney eighty-two acres having a frontage of a quarter of a mile on 31st street extended, and an eighth of a mile east of Butterfield road. The price is reported to have been $1,525 an acre or a total of $150,000.

The land, which fronts south on the grounds of the Butterfield Country club for a quarter of a mile and also faces east on the club's boundary line for the same distance, is to be subdivided for those who want to live near the country club into tracts of one, two, and five acre units, it is reported by Lindheimer & Wells, brokers for all parties. Sonnenschein, Berkson, Lautman & Levinson were attorneys.

ATTORNEY BUYS MICHIGAN AVE. FLATS; $170,000

The forty-two flats at 4340 South Michigan were sold by C. R. Willings, banker of Millersburg, Mich., to John A. Verhoeven of the law firm of Cooney & Verhoeven at a reported $170,000. Dunsmuir & Co. will continue to manage it.

PLAN FLATS AT MARQUETTE AND STEWART AVE.

John A. Hidman, south shore decorator, has bought the northeast corner of Marquette road and Stewart avenue, 98x146, for a reported $48,500, and will erect a forty-two apartment building, to contain one, two, three, four, and five room suites. The cost is placed at $278,000. Louis Keith Grimes is architect. Belz & Southman were brokers and will manage the property. Floyd Dana of Robert E. Barbee's office represented the three sellers—Laura W. Hopkins, John P. Reif, and Fern E. Neal.

Woman's World Purchases Building on West Lake St.

The Woman's World Magazine company has purchased the new four story building at 4323-43 West Lake street, from C. W. Rhodes for a reported $345,000, through Edwin J. Bowes Jr. & Co.

The building is 236x180 and contains over 100,000 square feet, which will be occupied by the magazine in January. Whiter W. Manning is president and Eugene Hart secretary-treasurer of the company, which is operated on a cooperative basis with 350 workers. The company is now on Clinton, near Monroe. Mayer, Meyer, Austrian & Platt and Judah, Willard, Wolf & Heidelmann were attorneys.

Alex. W. Hannah Buys Greenview-Rogers Corner

Alexander W. Hannah has bought the southwest corner of Greenview and Rogers, 87x147, from the Chicago Congregational Missionary and Extension society, for a stated $55,000, for an investment. There is an old church edifice on the property, at present not used. Campbell & Fisher were attorneys.

Pays $90,000 for 15 Flats on North Artesian Avenue

A reported $90,00° was paid by John E. Gill to E. C. Wendel and John Odell for the fifteen flats at 4344 North Artesian. John Hanemar of John J. Kern & Co. was broker.

LAST ACREAGE IN RIVER FOREST PUT ON MARKET

The last acreage in the residential limits of River Forest, bounded by North and Harlem avenues, Greenfield and William streets, is now being placed on the market by Joseph Wardall & Co. It's called Russell's Bonnie Brae addition to River Forest.

Homes must be built of the same material on all sides and not cost less than $12,000, and be at least two stories. The lots have a fifty foot building line.

TWO PROJECTS WILL TOTAL 136 FLAT BUILDINGS

Program Calls for 152 Bungalows.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Two big independent building programs for the South Chicago district, totaling approximately five and a quarter million dollars, were announced simultaneously last night. One involves a reported investment of $3,000,000 and the other $2,250,000.

The larger of the two projects will follow the purchase by Sidney Hasterlik of 3,015 feet on frontage in Phillips, Bessix, and Yates avenues, between 79th and 82d streets.

Mr. Hasterlik acquired this property from the Union Bank of Chicago, trustee, for a reported $331,713, the Illinwood Realty company representing the sellers.

To Build 80 Flat Buildings.

The purchaser of this property announces that he contemplates erecting eighty English basement three apartment buildings, with garages. Twenty of these are to be built at once for May 1 occupancy. The remainder will be erected in the near future, he states. All will have electrical refrigeration. All improvements, including streets and sidewalks, are announced for installation.

Believing in the future of this section as a neighborhood shopping center, Mr. Hasterlik also has bought the southwest corner of 79th and Essex, 170x130, from Louise W. Burgess for a reported $75,000, and will erect a store and flat building. Elmer G. Olson was broker.

Bungalows and Flats.

Farther to the south lies the property to be improved with $2,250,000 worth of two flats and bungalows by the Beth Hill company, under the personal direction of Charles Kemmell.

This concern has been awarded contracts for the erection of fifty-six apartments, each to contain two six room suites and 153 bungalows.

They will be erected in Torrence, Hexie, Calhoun, Bennty, Yates, Oglesby, and Crandon avenues, between 99th and 103d streets. All these lots are in the Calumet Trust's subdivision.

Work Started on First Group.

Work has started on the first group, and according to Mr. Kemmell, these will be completed by Jan. 1, 1927. The entire construction program will be completed by July 1, 1927, he states.

After this $2,250,000 apartments and bungalows are completed, Mr. Kemmell states another good sized group of buildings is contemplated.

In addition to the $2,250,000 program the Beth Hill company is now excavating for a twelve apartment building at 1919 Bissell street.

Third Building Program.

A third good sized building program also was announced last night. W. Klein has started work on eighteen bungalows, which are to be completed shortly. He will then construct sixteen more, the latter to be ready for occupancy Feb. 1. The total expenditure of $191,400 has been financed through the Chicago Trust company's Metropolitan Life Insurance company's fifteen year plan. Herman Seiger of the trust company negotiated the deal.

Five bungalows will be erected on Marshfield, north of 83d; seven on 83d, west of Paulina; six on Vanderpoel, between 94th and 96th, and sixteen on 103d, between Wood and Drew. Edward G. McClellan is architect. They are all brick, of five and six rooms.

Explorer of Chicagoland Buys a 'Co-op'

James O'Donnell Bennett's tours around Chicagoland apparently made him love his own Chicago all the more, for yesterday he bought a flat in the new 100 per cent cooperative apartments at 1230 North State street. In other words, he's gotten rid of his landlord by becoming his own.

His suite contains six rooms and three baths and is on the third floor of the new building, which, by the way, is just a little west north of the Ambassador hotel. The deal was closed by H. O. Stone & Co., agents of the new cooperative buildings.

JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mr. and Mrs. Bennett for several years lived in one of the city's oldest and best known apartments, the Madquette-Charlevoix, across from the Virginia hotel, at the northeast corner of Rush and Ohio. Former Mayor Carter Harrison also lived there for several years.

Fifteen Flats at Whipple and Ainslie Change Hands

John Hollick has sold the fifteen flats at the northwest corner of Whipple and Ainslie to Steve Banich for a reported $90,000. Edward P. Bolles, Ernest Frechter and Otto E. Reinhart were attorneys. Richard Jungclas was broker.

CALLS 1926 BEST YEAR FOR U. S. TRADES UNIONS

McSorley Optimistic in Annual Report.

BY THOMAS WREN.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—In his annual report before the convention of the building trades department of the American Federation of Labor, William J. McSorley, departmental president, classed the building activities for the first eight months of 1926 as the most prosperous in the history of the trade union movement.

Mr. McSorley said the prosperity is reflected in the many renewed activities of the local and state building trades councils throughout the United States and Canada and in the numerous increases in membership of many of the affiliated international unions of building trades as well as in the improvement and bettering of conditions of the general membership.

19th Year of Organization.

This convention of the building trades department, he said, marks the nineteenth year of its organization, pointing out that the beneficial work already accomplished by the department has justified its existence.

"I will report," continued McSorley, "that in my travels throughout the country I find a great many local unions of affiliated international unions of building trades which are not associated with the building trades councils in their respective cities, and which do not seem to take any interest in the affairs of the building trades department of the American Federation of Labor. This lack of interest has been responsible for retarding the progress of many of our local councils.

"As building trades mechanics, we must realize that the best interests of our industry can be safeguarded and protected by having well organized building trades councils.

Urges Local Unions to Join.

"In my opinion, well organized local councils are our best means of proceeding against any attempts being made to organize or maintain dual or seceding local unions of any craft in the building trades. To this end I recommend that all officers of international building trades use their good offices toward having all nonaffiliated local unions join the building trades councils in their respective localities."

In his annual message to the affiliated building trades of the federation's building department, McSorley comments on the national board for jurisdictional awards. On this tribunal the head of the building trades department says:

"During the last thirty years there have been organized three national organizations of federated building trades unions, namely, the National Building Trades council, the Structural Building Trades alliance and the present Building Trades department. All of these organizations, along with the American Federation of Labor, during this time have been attempting in one way or another to adjust the many differences and problems of a jurisdictional nature which develop between building trades organizations of this country and apparently without very much permanent success.

Present Tribunal Effective.

"In 1918 the present board for jurisdictional awards was organized and has been functioning for seven years. While some of us may not agree with many decisions of the board, and find fault with the ambiguous language used in a great many of its decisions, still, realising all of these faults and shortcomings, I am of the opinion that our present tribunal is the most effective one yet organized for settlement of jurisdictional disputes.

"Time may eliminate some of the evils of which we complain, but in my candid opinion, there will continue to be discord and dissatisfaction over decisions regarding jurisdictional disputes just so long as there are jurisdictional disputes to settle, and in this respect, I believe there will be disputes just so long as there is evolution in the building industry.

"During the first eight months of this year I've visited many cities and attended conferences with employers, international officers and local representatives for the purpose of adjusting disputes existing in different sections of the country, as well as attended many conventions of state organizations of building trades and meetings of local councils. In all of these instances, my efforts have been put forth to bring about a greater degree of harmony and cooperation between the building trades and employers."

Predicts $6,000,000,000 Mark.

William J. Tracy, secretary-treasurer of the building trades department, in his annual report predicted that building in the United States this year would reach the six billion dollar mark, the highest yearly valuation total in history. He reported that during the first eight months of the year building trades of the country have added about 20,000 new members to the ranks of the trade union movement.

"I can't recall," said Tracy, "a time when affairs in the building industry were running more satisfactorily.

"This applies to both employd and employer. So far as I know there is not a single building craftsman in the country who can find a job at good wages.

"All wage agreements that expired during May and June of this year have been renewed, and most of them at an increase over the old wage scale.

"In the southern states there is a greater amount of new building this year than last. There has been no slowing down in Florida with the coming of the fall season and the operations there continue on a vast scale. In the Carolinas, Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee, Louisiana, and Texas more new structures are now in the process of erection than at any previous time.

"All of this means plenty of work and increasing prosperity for that section of the country—a prosperity in which the wage earners participate in a larger degree than formerly because they are organized.

"The building trades unions have no desire to retard building, but they are going to hold their ground and maintain to the utmost of their ability the wage scales and conditions which have required so many years of hard work to obtain. Wage reductions are out of the question.

Disputes Being Adjusted.

"All of our jurisdictional disputes are being satisfactorily adjusted, meaning greater solidarity of the building trades unions. Low wages and bad conditions of employment cannot long prevail where the workers of the industry unite in their efforts in a forward and upward movement."

In conclusion Secretary Tracy reported to the building trades departmental convention that the department's affiliated international unions of building trades now have a membership of more than one million men.

GLEN ELLYN'S GARAGE BEAUTIFUL

This shows what can be done with a combination automobile showroom and garage if the owner is wise enough to know that attractive architecture pays. The above building is interesting from two angles. One is that the owners, R. V. Spaulding, C. W. Hadley, and A. C. Hoy, are cooperating with the Glen Ellyn plan commission in directing the development of the suburb's business district along definite architectural lines. The other point is that a garage doesn't have to be a blight on the landscape. Walker & Angell, Glen Ellyn architects, designed the above. We don't believe there are many garages in the suburban area more attractive than this. Austin Angell made the rendering. In the rear is a two level 100 car garage, with the walls treated architecturally the same as the front section. It's to be erected on the west side of Forest avenue, just north of the old English oil station owned by Spaulding-Hadley-Hoy. It's to be entirely fireproof. Fred Mignin has leased it for eight years.

WILL GIVE LECTURE ON SUBDIVIDING TO REALTY CLASS

Frank W. Blankley, manager of William E. Harmon & Co., will be the speaker at next Tuesday's class of the Cook County Real Estate board's course in real estate law and real estate practice. Mr. Blankley's subject will be "Subdividing." It will be given in the rooms of the Cook County Real Estate board, 17th floor of the Conway building, between 8 and 9 p. m., Oct. 12. The board continues to extend an invitation to the general public to attend this course of weekly lectures. They are given every Tuesday evening.

An attractive building for an outlying district is to be erected at 3531-39 West 12th street, three blocks east of Independence boulevard. It will be known as the Central Park building, and it will contain a large theater, four stores and ten offices. The land and building will represent a reported investment of $220,000. The theater arrangement will be on the U plan, with a mezzanine floor of boxes and a balcony. An escalator, or moving stairway, will take one to the balcony, a new feature. C. W. & G. L. Rapp are the architects. S. W. Straus & Co. have underwritten a bond issue of $125,000 at 6 per cent.

The lease of the property at the northwest corner of Jackson and Wabash by John V. Steger, president of the Steger and Sons Piano Manufacturing company, from Mrs. Hannah Horner is said to have been practically closed. The value of $30,000 a front foot, as fixed in the lease, is startling and would seem to justify the comment heard in brokers' offices the latter part of this week that the price was "outside of reason." This figure is called out of all proportion when compared with values on State street.

Plan 8 Story Apartments for Junior

Work is to start at once on an eight story apartment building at 730-97 Junior terrace, from plans by Hoyne & Janusch. It will contain thirty-one two, three, and four room suites.

The architecture is in the Georgian style and the interior will harmonize with the exterior in design and treatment. The property is valued at $400,000.

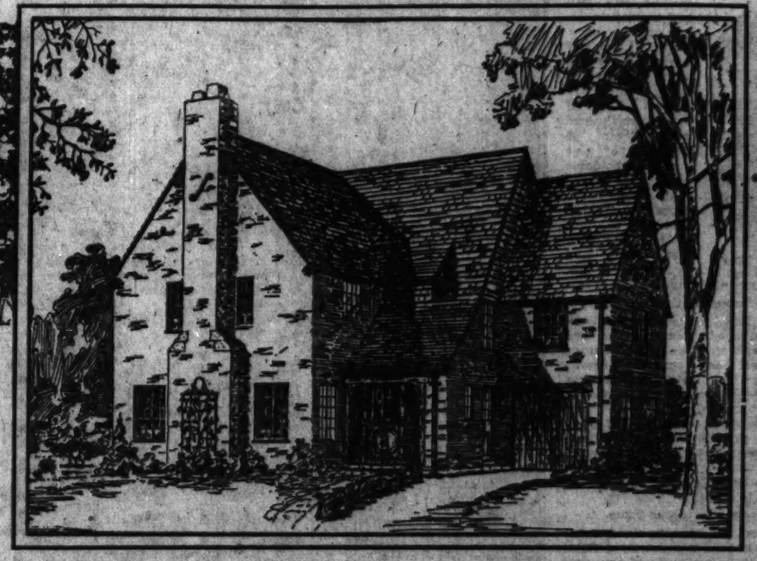

A $235,000 loan has been underwritten by George M. Forman & Co. through the Monro Bond and Mortgage company, which represented all parties in negotiating the financing.

The site is 300 feet west of the lake shore and is so located that it has twelve feet of space on the east side and fourteen feet on the west side between the Junior Terrace building and the adjoining structures.

IN KENILWORTH

MURISON, CUMMINGS AND SANFORD designed these attractive homes which are being opened to the public for inspection in the Kenilworth Community Development, Kenilworth, Illinois. They are adaptations of English and French designs, and are in keeping with the high type of all the homes planned for this unusual development. Both houses are insulated throughout with Celotex, the amazing lumber that stops heat and cold.

OPEN TODAY...

two homes everyone should visit

These model homes in the Kenilworth Community Development are protected against heat and cold by an amazing lumber. They are summer-cool, winter-warm, about 1/3 more economical to heat. Come and see how you can secure these great advantages for your own home, new or old, at little or no extra cost.

THERE will be opened to the public today two homes in Kenilworth, Illinois, that mark a new standard of community development.

Sponsored by business men of this progressive suburb, these model homes have been designed by the well-known architectural firm of Murison, Cummings and Sanford. They represent two interesting and practical designs for this section of the country and will be completely furnished and decorated under the direction of the Duncan Studios, Winnetka.

But more than convenient design and appearance have been considered in the construction of these homes.

Their builders realized that wood, brick, plaster, concrete, and other usual wall and roof materials, when used alone do not effectively resist the attack of heat and cold. They realized the need for a special insulating material to keep out the sun's heat in summer, to keep in furnace heat in winter, and to save fuel.

Naturally they chose Celotex. This amazing lumber offers advantages found in no other insulating material. Unlike ordinary insulation, it is not a costly extra item in building. It insulates as it builds, adding little or nothing to building costs.

Celotex insulating lumber is not cut from trees. It is manufactured from the tough fibres of cane. The broad, strong Celotex boards are actually stronger in walls than wood. They shut out wind and dampness as well as heat and cold.

No one can afford to build or buy a house today without full knowledge of the great comfort and economy that Celotex brings. The proper use of Celotex in walls, ceilings and roof means that a smaller, less expensive heating plant will keep you comfortable. And year after year, Celotex can save from 25% to 35% of your fuel money.

In homes already built, a big measure of this comfort and economy can be secured by simply lining the attic and basement with Celotex. That costs but little and will more than pay for itself in fuel saving.

Come out and see for yourself what these great advantages mean . . . how easy and inexpensive they are to secure.

These model homes are located only a few blocks west of the Kenilworth stations of both the Northwestern Railway and the North Shore electric line. Fast trains run from Chicago on both lines at convenient hours.

It will well be worth your time. If you can not arrange to visit these model homes, however, write for the free Celotex Building Book, explaining fully this great improvement in building.

AS SHEATHING

Celotex supplies the insulation needed back of the brick veneer exteriors of these homes. It is nailed directly to the framework, replacing the rough boards formerly used. Here, Celotex also gives greater strength to the house walls and makes building paper unnecessary . . . at no added cost.

UNDER PLASTER

On the inside walls and ceilings of these houses, plaster is applied directly to the surface of Celotex. This eliminates the use of lath and gives stronger, insulated walls; has not to crack and free from lath marks.

IN THE ROOF

Most heat beats into houses through the roofs in summer and most heat leaks out through roofs in winter. Celotex, as attic lining, gives the needed protection in these houses. If your house is already built, you can secure many of the advantages of Celotex by simply lining your attic with it.

HOME BUILDERS' DEPARTMENT

OWN-YOUR-HOME STORIES TO SHOW HOW THEY DO IT

Here's Tribune Plan, and There Are Many Others.

This is the first of a series of articles on home building and home owning. Home financing, of small homes and larger ones, bought through building and loan associations, banks, and trust companies, will be shown, together with articles on income budgeting to make the home possible, heating of the home, installation of labor and space saving devices—all these and other matters pertaining to home acquiring and home ownership.

BY HOMER GRANT.

COMPULSORY saving is the only saving worth while for the average man. If you have an obligation to meet, at a specified time, you will find that many things you considered essentials were, after all, luxuries and could be gone without. This is the one certain way a competence can be secured, no matter how large your income may be.

MRS. ANNA GARROW DAVERN.

City dwellers, in particular, find spending made easy. The very show windows entice money out of their pockets. Huge sums are expended every year to make spending attractive. If you are to have a competence, saving must be made equally attractive—and necessary.

Many of the highest salaried people of your own acquaintance would be the least able to afford a change of position or the inevitable sickness which comes to every family, with its terrifying decrease in earning power.

An old professor of economics once said that financial happiness is easy to achieve. "Though we are as rich as fabled Croesus or the modern Rockefeller we can never hope to purchase everything we want. It therefore behooves us, before we spend a dollar, to think of all the things that dollar will buy and decide which will give the maximum happiness. Then and then only—spend the dollar."

Right here is where the various building and loan associations of the country are making their appeal and rendering their services to the family man. They are contributing to his happiness and well being by making it possible for him to own his home. They lend the money to him with which to buy or to build, and he pays it back to them, in weekly or monthly payments, according to the contract.

Started in 1922.

It was in 1922 that Col. R. R. McCormick decided that THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE was to have as a subsidiary interest a building and loan association, having as its objective the promotion of home building among its employés, an encouragement to home ownership and the habit of systematic saving and steadily increasing profits.

A building and loan association is primarily a cooperative financial institution, chartered by the state and composed of persons associated for mutual benefit. They save money together, lend money to each other, divide profits, and work together to help each other build homes and improve the community in which they live.

It is not a new idea, as such associations have existed in this country for over seventy-five years, and in Europe for even a longer period of time.

The First Home Built.

Mrs. Anna Garrow Davern, manager of The Tribune telephone system, whose two family home at 5524 Race avenue is shown today, was one of the first TRIBUNE employés to take advantage of the Medill Building and Loan association.

Owning a lot valued at $5,000, and having saved some $5,000, she borrowed $7,000 from the association. She could have borrowed some $3,500 more if she had wished, but as long as seventy shares of stock were all that was necessary, she took them at $100 a share. The money was loaned to her to run for six years at 6 per cent at a payment of $25.83 a week. As the loan would run for six years, the earnings of the association will reduce it to about 2½ per cent, at the end of the time.

So, at 3½ per cent interest, she borrowed the $7,000. Nor was there any charge for the financing of the loan. That and all other services were provided by the association, which held the papers in the vault for security until the last payment of subscribed shares.

Saving for a Purpose.

Of course, it often happens that an employé has not enough money to start a home. He must have in cash 20 per cent of the appraised value of the house he is to build. In case he does not have this, he can subscribe to as many shares of stock as he can possibly pay for at the rate of 25 cents for class A stock or 12½ cents for class B. The saving habit is formed and eventually he will have enough money to start building.

Take an employé subscribing for 40 shares of stock in class A at 25 cents a share. That is $10 a week and at the end of four years he has paid in $2,000. Suppose he finds a home with a value of $5,000. He withdraws his $2,000, plus interest at 4 per cent and the association then lends him $5,000. He could then purchase or build his home, move into it, and the loan, interest and payments of $31.25 a week would give him in six years unincumbered title to the property. Instead of paying rent to the landlord, he would be paying it to himself, and in the meantime be enjoying to the full the comforts and convenience of a home of his own.

What One Dollar Earns.

There are at the present time about 175 TRIBUNE employés who have purchased or are purchasing their own homes. In many cases they have bought these homes with money which they otherwise would not have saved. Others have been enabled through its easy payments and low rate of interest to become home owners where otherwise it would have been utterly impossible. They have something in reserve for old age or adversity. They have received legal advice by the law office without expense, an advantage which no other association in the state of Illinois enjoys. Still other TRIBUNE employés are receiving the advantage of a highly remunerative depository for savings and surplus with absolute security provided.

One dollar a week invested in Medill Building and Loan association at 7 per cent (average earnings of 709 associations in Illinois) for 328 weeks (length of time it will take to mature stock at 7 per cent) will earn $72.63! In this way it builds up rapidly a fund for children's education and also provides capital for use in business.

Although Mrs. Anna Garrow-Davern was one of the first to borrow money from the Medill Building and Loan association in 1922 her enthusiasm has only waxed the more vigorous with the years.

"My idea had always been to have a two family home. So often the income does not meet the upkeep of a single family home, especially if reverses come. I wanted the revenue of a rented apartment, but of course the initial expense is heavier and it was not until the Medill Building and Loan was launched that I saw my way clear.

Paying for Itself.

"My original plans and specifications provided for a two family house costing $15,500. Before I was through I had added so many improvements to the house as originally planned that the cost came to several thousand more, but I have never regretted the additional expense. My rental now is $150 a month. I put money into my house, but I am getting money out of it, and will always continue to do so. I feel my two family home has not only largely helped in paying for itself, but it insures for me a sound future investment.

"So many times one hears the question raised, 'Does a two family house pay?' I t certainly does—providing you have something convenient and attractive to offer your tenant. If you build for first class people your investment will repay you with long leases and contented tenants.

"My land has also gone up, though what land isn't going up all the time? The 40 feet on which I built my two family house cost me $125 per front foot. The adjoining property is now held at $250 a front foot, making my land worth approximately $10,000. I have a two car garage, a five room apartment with sleeping porch on each floor, and a cement side drive.

"Not that it was all easy sailing. I learned a good many lessons, dearly bought, some of them. They can be included in a brief list of don'ts."

"Don'ts" for Builders.

"Don't forget cross ventilation for your bedrooms, for good ventilation is as necessary as good lighting, and dark rooms are unhealthy and depressing.

"Don't plan small, dinky hallways. They are only so much waste space.

"Don't try to change your plans once you have given them to a builder, for if you want changes after your house is once started you will find that even a different swing to your door costs money.

"Don't fail to get bids from several builders before you decide on one and don't necessarily take the cheapest bid. It may be far from the best.

"Don't fail to have an architect draw your plans, even if you don't have him superintend the building.

"Don't hesitate to choose the best materials you can possibly afford, even if you have to scrimp some the first few years to pay for them. You will find yourself well repaid in the end."

BUILDING-LOAN BODY RE-ELECTS THREE DIRECTORS

Stockholders of the building and loan association of the Hawthorne club, Western Electric company, at their annual meeting reelected three members of the board of directors whose terms had expired. The men reelected are J. P. Krivanek, E. A. Hauser, and F. Novak. The board consists of nine members elected yearly by the employés of the Western Electric company, who are subscribers to the association.

Capitalized at $10,000,000, the building and loan association at the Hawthorne works is the largest industrial organization of its kind in the United States. The association has more than 5,300 members, with outstanding shares approximating 53,000. Homes have been financed to the amount of $1,300,000. Their full values are placed at a conservative amount of $3,000,000.

A new plan for the benefit of the subscribers, involving the issuance of matured stock certificates, is being arranged by the board. Under this plan members of the Hawthorne club may invest any sum over $100 in the association. The plan provides that they may withdraw their money at any time, with full interest for the period during which it was invested.

HERE'S COMPACT, ATTRACTIVE HOME AT MEDIUM COST

Can Be Built at Minimum of $10,000.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.
[Home Builders Editor.]

THIS home, of face brick, designed by Benjamin Franklin Olson, 19 South La Salle street, was built for the Rev. and Mrs. W. Clyde Smith, 3121 Home avenue, Berwyn, Ill.

It is an example of German sturdiness and compactness, built with an attention to details which insures the utmost economy coupled with sincere values in materials and construction. As it stands it can be built for approximately $10,000, although Mr. Smith put several thousand more dollars into his home before he had finished building it.

National temperament, which reveals itself vividly in architectural expression, is especially evident in small house characterization. Where the Italians and the Spanish admire the delicate renaissance of their countries, the French adore the ornate. The Anglo-Saxon inclines to the simpler and essentially domestic types, while the Teuton races, such as the Dutch and the German, are more studied and deliberate and practical in their architectural preferences. Like the Vicar of Wakefield who chose his wife for the qualities that wear, the Germans, together with most of the northern races, follow consistently residential designs which stand primarily for strength and durability.

From a Practical Viewpoint.

As Mr. Smith expressed it, "We built our house with as much compactness and practicability as we possibly could. In the materials which went into its construction we chose the best grade of the less expensive ones, rather than a cheaper grade of the more expensive. That door at the head of the stairs on the second floor was our own idea. It serves two purposes. One is to give my wife more of a sense of security in the evenings, as I am gone a good deal, and the other is to keep the cold air from the bedrooms at night from going downstairs."

The house is brick veneer on frame, with an excellent grade of composition shingles used for the roof. There is a basement under the entire house, with space provided for laundry, drying, fuel and food storage, and furnace.

In the floor plans, as shown, the entrance is on one side, with the long living room to the right, and dining room and sun porch beyond.

The hall, insuring a considerable degree of privacy to the dining room as well as the living room, leads directly back into the kitchen. It has a coat closet, a toilet, a broom closet, and entry for refrigeration.

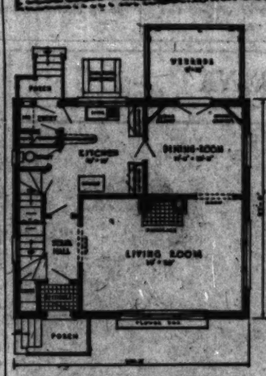

The entrance to the living room is arched, as is the entrance to the dining room and sun porch at the far back of the house. White enamel trim is employed on the main floor, with stippled effect on the walls.

Upstairs the division of the rooms includes a study for the man of the house, a large master bedroom, a second slightly smaller sleeping room, and a sewing nook. If such a house plan as this were to be adapted to the use of a larger family the sewing nook could be converted into a playroom for the children, leaving three large rooms for sleeping purposes, if desired.

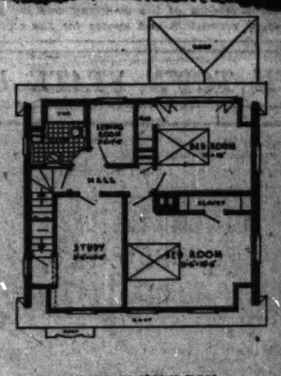

Covers Small Area.

Much has been written and more still remains to be said on giving the man of the house a room of his very own, some place where he can retire among his golf clubs and fishing tackle, his books and magazines, his sanctum inviolate, which is supremely and entirely his own. Even at the risk of being called bromidic, one reflects that many a man might spend more time at home and less time at "business" or the "club" if he had a retreat to fall back on evenings when the living room is filled "with neighborly friends dropping in for a call," or "daughter's friends" and "son's chums" are turning the house into youthful chaos and confusion.

PLAN OF FIRST FLOOR.

PLAN OF SECOND FLOOR.

NATIONAL TEMPERAMENT, displaying itself in this home, reveals a Teutonic sturdiness and deliberateness of line, together with extreme compactness, which insures the utmost economy. A six room house, not including sewing nook or children's play room, it is adaptable to the needs of a sizable family with growing children. Benjamin Franklin Olson is the architect.

The general overall of this house is only 29.6x37, but by the division and arrangement of the rooms, upstairs and down, the effect of a much larger house is given. It is, furthermore, a home in which the architect has given much thought to comfort-contributing details for the mistress. The kitchen is modern in every way, provision for closets and storage space more than ample, and the rooms proportionately sized to render the utmost in comfort.

No frills are here, nor so-called architectural furbelows. It is a house built for service, quietly, tastefully fashioned, a house that grows on you, like a real friend, a house improving, not disintegrating, with the years.

This, after all, is where the services of a good architect come in. Not only does he design the exterior you desire, plan the interior after your long cherished dreams, but he superintends, in many cases, at least, the building of your house, so that you can count on his experience and his knowledge to commandeer into service for you the most lasting and durable of materials, as well as the best of workmanship which is available at the price you wish to pay.

LUTHERANS TO BUILD CHURCH AT 70TH-LAFLIN

Community Hall, Stage Are Planned.

Beginning tomorrow the Atonement English Evangelical Lutheran church will conduct a "campaign week" to raise funds to erect an attractive Gothic edifice at the southeast corner of 70th and Laflin streets. The architects are Buckley & Skidmore of Hammond, Ind.

L. O. COOPERRIDER.

The new edifice will be joined to the present church building, which will then be used for Sunday school purposes and also contain the church kitchen. It may be used later as a gymnasium.

The ground floor of the new edifice will have an auditorium seating 335, with a large stage at the east end. When used as a banquet hall it will accommodate 250.

Seats for 350.

The main auditorium on the floor above will have seats for 350 people. A side entrance on 70th street will open into both the old building and the new. The study of the pastor, the Rev. L. O. Cooperrider, will be on the north side of the new church, near this side entrance and the sanctuary.

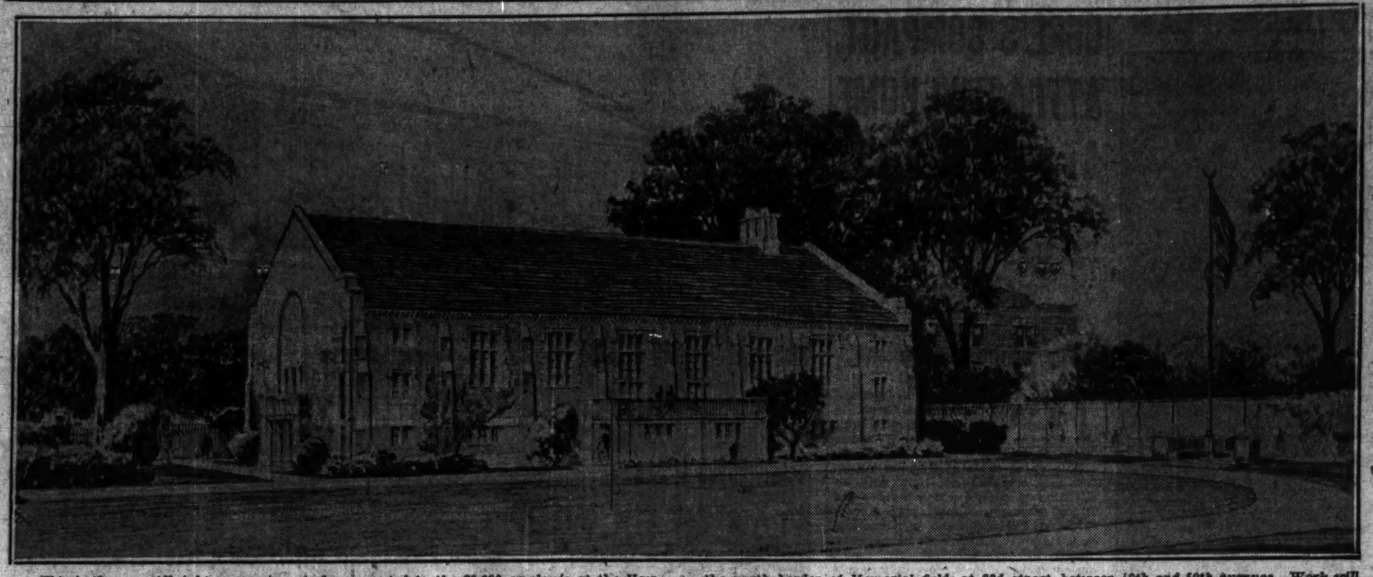

"Atonement church has served the people of this community in Christian ministrations for the last twenty-three years," said Dr. Cooperrider. "The last six years, the time of the present pastorate, has seen the membership increase 125 per cent and our Sunday school gain 150 per cent."

Will Cost $50,000.

The estimated cost of the new structure is $50,000, according to Buckley & Skidmore. Work is to start early in the spring.

J. T. Hoffman is chairman of the campaign committee which is composed of John A. Timm, C. A. Jacobsen, James Norton, Mrs. J. Sinkler and Mrs. Grace Weisefuss.

MEMORIAL GYM FOR 29,000 WESTERN ELECTRIC WORKERS

This is the new Albright gymnasium, to be presented to the 29,000 employés at the Hawthorne works of the Western Electric company by the directors of that concern as a memorial to the late H. F. Albright, vice president of the company and for years one of the leading figures in the encouragement of recreation and sports for the worker. It'll be on the north border of Memorial field, at 22d street, between 49th and 50th avenues. Work will start within a few months. It will cost more than a quarter of a million dollars. The design is by the company's architectural forces. Chester B. Price made the rendering.

NORTH TOWN STATE BANK

Oldefest & Williams designed the above building for the newly incorporated North Town State bank, to be erected at the southwest corner of Devon and Claremont. Lawrence Monbery made the rendering. Details are given elsewhere in this section.

DOVENMUEHLE TO HAVE SUBSIDIARY MORTGAGE FIRM

The new company will negotiate second mortgages, notes secured by mechanics' liens and real estate contracts, and will complement the first mortgage business of the parent concern. Both firms will do business at 105 South Dearborn.

Trucking Concerns Build Garages in Clearing Dist.

Increased volume of trucking in the Clearing Industrial district, brought about by the addition of thirty manufacturing plants in the last three years, has led to an arrangement for the establishment of stations by two trucking companies. The Landon Cartage company of 1025 Rundel place, has bought property at 5627 West 65th street, and arranged with the Clearing Industrial district to build for it a truck garage, 50x100.

The Clearing Express company has leased 60,000 square feet from A. J. O'Leary & Co. at 6601 South Ménard avenue for twenty-five years and will at once erect a truck garage, 80x120, so arranged that an extension can be made as business warrants, according to H. P. Phelps, vice president of the Chicago Transfer and Clearing company.

700 Golfers Hope to Show Dad Somethin'

Seven hundred young Chicago men are going to show their dads that they are paying too much for their golf, according to A. E. Bierness, secretary of the newest organization for the promulgation of the national game of Scotland—the Kildeer Country club.

RALPH D. SHANESY. [Madeit Photo.]

This new golf headquarters is unique in two ways: it's one of the few new country clubs which states it isn't in any way promotional. The 269 acre site, a couple of miles northwest of Wheeling and about five miles west of Deerfield, on the McHenry road, was bought outright and is owned by the club.

No Free Memberships.

Memberships are not being given away to men of imposing cognomens, who have bank rolls big enough to buy a club outright, but who, nevertheless, like to have their names placed on the roster of members without cost to them. Memberships are being sold by the members themselves who now number over two hundred.

"All money collected from memberships will be represented in either grounds or improvements without reservations," said Mr. Bierness. "The club started with a small group of younger men whose interest is to have a club of their own and also to be able show their paters that they are paying too much for their golf."

First 36 Holes on North Shore.

The new club's second unique feature is that it is the first thirty-six hole golf course for the north shore, according to C. D. Wagstaff of C. D. Wagstaff & Co., golf architects, who have a $165,000 contract for all improvements, exclusive of a $150,000 club house designed by Charles Morgan.

Mr. Wagstaff says the club grounds will contain tennis courts, children's play grounds, lagoons, etc., in addition to the two golf courses.

Ralph D. Shanesy of the State Bank & Trust company of Evanston, is chairman of the membership committee. The directors are: D. Owsley, J. H. Balch, E. E. Niles, A. E. Lezow, Dr. F. W. Suesky, G. F. Kramm, R. N. Melin, D. E. Nichols, and Mr. Shanesy.

RESIDENCE-16TH CENTER SOLD.

Miss C. Nathan sold the northwest corner of Kenmore and 16th, 66x165, to Benjamin Berts.

Buy Seventy Acre Tract on Harlem Near Palos Park

Carl E. D. Anderson and Benjamin Nelson have bought seventy acres fronting half a mile on Harlem avenue and bounded by 119th and 123d streets, from James D. Brady for a reported $2,500 an acre. V. H. Volpin & Co. were brokers.

LEASES GARAGE FOR 10 YEARS.

Robert Rostron has leased the 100x150 garage at 1415 Irving Park boulevard, from Skobal & Greenberg for ten years at a total rental reported to be $88,000. P. J. Mannos and J. M. Hammer were brokers.

PLAN $100,000 BUILDING FOR PERSHING ROAD

The trustees of the Central Manufacturing district will erect a one story building, 220x125, to cost $100,000, at the northeast corner of Pershing road and Hermitage avenue, which they have leased to the Autocar Sales and Service company for a display room and service station. A. Epstein is structural engineer. Chandler & Montague were brokers; J. B. Whidden represented the district trustees.

Plan $400,000 Bank at Devon and Claremont

One of Chicago's fastest growing outlying sections, the district centered by Devon and Western avenues, at last is to have a bank. A charter has just been issued for the North Town State bank, capital $200,000, and work will start at once on a two story bank and business building at the southwest corner of Devon and Claremont avenues.

RALPH L. PECK. [H. A. Atwell Photo.]

The total investment in land and building is placed at $400,000. Oldefest & Williams have designed a structure which will have several stores in addition to commodious banking quarters.

The directors of the new bank are: Curt Teich, of Curt Teich & Co.; E. L. Kunze, of the L. G. Kunze company, L. F. Larson, Jr.; M. F. Schiavone, real estate; Ralph W. Bunge, of the Fleischman company; Andrew Kilander, of A. Kilander & Co., as well as O. A. Christensen, president of the new bank, and Ralph L. Peck, vice president.

Keeney negotiated the deal.

DON'T try any plaster wall board until you have investigated Beaver Bestwall, the superior plaster wall board. For years it has been used in the finest of homes, for new construction, repairs and remodeling.

Thousands are turning to Beaver Bestwall because of the remarkable advantages it gives—at the same price as other boards.

A superior plaster wall board

Bestwall is made of the finest gypsum rock plaster taken from Beaver mines. But, unlike other plaster wall boards, Beaver Bestwall has an improved fibre facing—a facing of remarkable toughness—instead of ordinary paper—made by Beaver fibre experts.

In this tough fibre facing, combined with the extra fine quality of the rock plaster core—is the secret of the many advantages in strength, flexibility, decorative possibilities, and others, which users everywhere are finding in Beaver Bestwall.

The tests shown here are only a few through which you may easily prove these facts in your own home. We invite you to do so before you buy. We invite you to make comparisons. We are willing to abide by your decision. We believe you will want Beaver Bestwall, because its advantages will be so obvious, at no greater cost.

More beautiful decoration

One of the features of Beaver Bestwall is the smooth, hard surface presented by the improved fibre facing. It is specially sized and calendered. Rub it. Note it does not get "woolly." Make the "Water Glass" and the "Paint" tests. Note how non-absorbent it is. Here is a perfect surface for decoration. Takes paint or calcimine. Colors bond perfectly and dry out evenly. This facing is not the "thirsty" kind. A little paint or calcimine goes a long way. On one room the saving is considerable.

Even wall paper and other modern wall coverings may be applied and removed when necessary without injury to the surface.

This means that with walls of Beaver Bestwall you may redecorate as desired—a most unusual and desirable feature. Yet the same price buys this improved service.

Costs no more than others

Beaver Bestwall with this improved, extra tough fibre facing, and other important advantages, costs no more than ordinary plaster wall boards.

That is because Beaver owns and operates both the mines and the mills in which the superior quality of pure gypsum rock plaster is made, and the great mills in which the special fibre facing is made. Beaver fibre products have been made for over 20 years and are used everywhere.

Why use anything but the best when the best costs no more? Why be content with less when the same price buys more?

Use Bestwall now for your spring remodeling and repairing—for new walls and ceilings—for partitions and many other jobs where a fire-proof, moisture-proof plaster wall is needed.

Demand the genuine with the tough fibre facing. You will know it anywhere by the cream-colored surface and the Beaver trade-mark. There is a representative Beaver Products Co. dealer near you.

A Simple Comparison

Its tough cover enables the golf ball or baseball to withstand terrific impacts of club and bat. The same thing applies to plaster wall board. The extra tough fibre facing—permanently bonded to the rock plaster center—gives Beaver Bestwall its remarkable strength.

The "Water Glass" and "Paint" Tell

Place a sample of Beaver Bestwall over a glass of water. Invert the glass so sample is underneath the water. Also apply paint to a sample. Note how little it is absorbed in each case. Very economical.

The "Fire" Tell

Every panel of Beaver Bestwall—the superior plaster wall board—is approved by the National Board of Fire Underwriters, and manufactured under their laboratory supervision.

The "Perfect" Tell

Briskly rub your finger tips over the fibre facing of Beaver Bestwall. Note that it does not scuff up and become woolly—a feature of the fibre facing which is sized and calendered.

The "Strength" Tell

Lay a piece of Beaver Bestwall across two piles of bricks or between two chairs. Pile heavy weights on the center. Note the sagging weight it will hold without breaking.

Easy to Apply

Saws and nails like lumber. Quickly applied to studding over old walls or ceilings. Will not warp, buckle, crack, crumble or fall. Is fire-proof, moisture-proof. Produces smooth, clean, permanent walls and ceilings.

Many Uses

Use it for durable, fireproof walls and ceilings in new dwellings and buildings of every kind.

For quick, permanent, economical repairs for remodeling at low cost—replacing wrecked attic spaces, living quarters or summer cottages; adding needed rooms, or walls in the cellar; making partitions in stores, factories—and for 101 other uses where a smooth, clean, permanent wall that will not warp, crack, crumble or fall is required.

FARM AND GARDEN

Nourish Deadly Black Stem Fungus

Until These Shrubs Are Rooted Out Crops Will Suffer.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

GRAIN thieves that have stolen millions of bushels of wheat, oats, barley and rye from Illinois farmers this season have been found hidden in bushes on millionaire estates along the north shore, in Lake county. Scientists call these thieves black stem rust fungi, but they are as truly thieves as the man who goes into the farmer's barnyard in the middle of the night, loads his wagon from a crib of corn, or bin of wheat, and drives away.

The black stem fungus which attacks small grains must live on the common barberry bush for a short time. Lake county has more of these undesirable bushes than any other county in the thirteen north central states where federal government officials are campaigning against the pest and destroying the common barberry in order to stamp out black stem rust, which has caused a loss of 20,000,000 bushels of oats alone in Illinois, according to rough estimates of farm advisers.

Approximately 30,000 barberry bushes have been removed and destroyed in Lake county this year by official workers, according to John L. Richardson, field agent for the United States department of agriculture. Practically all of them were found in Libertyville township by men working around Lake Forest and Waukegan. Owners of homes, estates, and farms are coöperating with the workers in getting rid of the bushes to destroy the rust pest and thus save the crops of northern Illinois. In the rural district near Waukegan barberry was found on almost every farm this year.

Thousands of Seedlings Found.

Mr. Richardson says that along the densely wooded slopes and bluffs of Lake Michigan in Lake Forest scouts have found thousands of small barberry seedlings. In a few years these seedlings would have developed into mature bushes. It has been necessary to inspect every foot of ground for miles along the lake shore as far north as Waukegan.

Practically all the barberry seedlings and bushes in Lake county have been started by birds. They eat the fruit of the barberry and then scatter the seeds for great distances. Many big fruiting common barberry bushes were found on estates in Lake Forest.

There already has been used in Lake county three carloads of crushed rock salt in killing the common barberry bushes. The salt is sprinkled around the crown of the brush. If there is other vegetation growing nearby the salt cannot be applied. In cases of this kind the bushes are dug out by the roots.

Much of the rust damage in northern Illinois to wheat and oats can be traced to the presence of the great number of barberries in Lake county and surrounding territory.

Oats Yield Reduced 50 Per Cent.

V. J. Banter, farm adviser, has estimated that the yield of oats in Jo Daviess county has been reduced at least 50 per cent by the stem rust attacks; other counties have suffered nearly as much. It has been estimated that the rust damage done to oats has reduced the yield by an average of 15 per cent in th state this year, while the average for the northern counties has been placed at 30 per cent.

Rough estimates made by farm advisers and other agricultural agencies would indicate that at least 20,000,000 bushels of oats have been lost in Illinoise because of stem rust attacks.

"Farmers in this section realise that losses due to storms, floods, and weather conditions are uncontrollable," said Mr. Richardson, "but they also realize that the stem rust losses may be controlled to a certain extent. It is known that stem rust is harbored and spread by common barberry bushes. Thousands of these bushes are being found by federal agents who are conducting the barberry eradication campaign in northern Illinois this year. Many cases of severe rust infection have been traced directly from the grain fields to barberry bushes.

In Boone county, near Belvidere, a large common barberry bush was found growing on a farm rented by Edwin Rubert. This bush was spreading rust to a nearby field of barley. The barley near the bush was not worth cutting. Neighboring farmers came in and investigated this case and signed a paper saying that they were convinced that the barberry was causing great damage to the grain. Many similar cases have been found in other counties.

Eradication Advised.

Barberry exhibits have been displayed this summer at county fairs, farm bureau picnics, and other public gatherings in order that farmers may become familiar with the characteristics of the harmful shrub. They can then destroy all bushes of this kind and help to eliminate the stem rust menace.

"It has been proved many times that barberry eradication will help eliminate the losses from stem rust," added Mr. Richardson. "At one particular time in the development of stem rust, the rust must live on the common barberry bush. This period usually comes during May, in Illinois. At this time of year the stem rust, which is a small fungi, will live on nothing except the common barberry. From this bush it is blown by the wind to the grain fields where it inflicts its damage. Consequently when the barberry is destroyed the life cycle of the rust is broken and further development cannot be made.

"In 1903 Denmark started a barberry eradication campaign, and since it has been thoroughly completed there has been little or no loss due to stem rust in that country. Dr. E. C. Stakman of the department of agriculture made a thorough study of the barberry work in Denmark in 1923 and reported that stem rust had been entirely eliminated.

"Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, who recently returned from Denmark, said: 'I understand that Denmark completed a thorough barberry eradication campaign several years ago and since that time has not been bothered with losses from stem rust attacks. During my recent visit in that country I visited farms in all parts and not once were stem rust losses mentioned to me. The Danish farmers complained of other pests, but evidently there was little if any loss incurred by stem rust."

Richardson says the barberry eradication work was started in Illinois and twelve other principal grain growing states of the middle west in 1918. Since that time thousands of bushes have been destroyed in these thirteen states. In Illinois alone 337,976 common barberry bushes and several million seedling and sprouting bushes have been destroyed. This season more than 30,000 barberry bushes have been killed in the state. Still there are thousands of bushes which have not been touched.

Working in Jo Daviess, Stephenson, Winnebago, Boone, McHenry, Lake, and De Kalb counties one finds hundreds of the harmful shrubs. Although many bushes were removed in these counties a few years ago, small ones spring up from seed scattered from the old bushes. The seeds have been known to germinate after being buried in the soil for eight years.

CANADIAN SHEEP.

RANGES ARE BEING CLOSED TO BIG BANDS LIKE THESE.—Farm flocks of sheep are becoming more common in western Canada. Sheep play an important part in the diversified program of agriculture now being developed in Alberta, Manitoba, and Saskatchewan provinces, where the feeding of lambs, bacon pigs, beef steers, and dairy cows is furnishing a profitable outlet for coarse grains. The closing of the open range to big flocks of sheep like the one above is seriously interfering with the extensive operations of big sheep men.

KILLING BUSH THAT HIDES GRAIN THIEVES—J. V. Crabb, federal field agent, is shown here pouring crushed rock salt on the crown on one of the largest common barberry bushes in Illinois. The bush was found on the old Jonathan B. Turner farm near Hillsboro, Ill. It had a spread of more than twenty feet and was fifteen feet high. Eight similar bushes, which harbored the black stem rust pest that attacks small grains, were found on the same farm. They were all killed by salt. Bushes like this one are found along the north shore in Lake county, Ill., where 30,000 were removed by workers this summer.

Apple Growers Face Unique Problem

A MILLION barrels of high grade apples is the goal of Calhoun county, Ill., the county that produces about half the commercial crop of this state and doesn't have a box car within in its border to move the fruit. Since Calhoun does not have a railroad, growers depend largely upon handling the crop by water transportation, and the problem of getting rid of the fruit increases with the addition of new orchards.

Fruit specialists at the University of Illinois have made a study of the Calhoun county situation with the hope of improving the methods of handling the crop.

When the county's apple trees all reach bearing age there will be 5,000 carloads of fruit to move on boats before it ever reaches a car door. This calls for storage facilities, and there is no satisfactory place for keeping the crop in the county. Growers sell to a disadvantage and take what they can get.

Practically all the apples are packed without the use of sheds or shelter of any kind and during the harvesting season 2,000 to 5,000 barrels are sometimes stacked up waiting for boats.

Market men recognize the high quality of Calhoun county apples, but the growers do not have a good reputation for grading and packing the fruit. The state experiment station's investigation of the Calhoun apples in cold storage at St. Louis shows "some of them were well graded, but many from that region are improperly graded, with the result that the reputation of the entire lot suffers."

The quality of the Calhoun apples warrants a much higher price than is paid because of improper grading.

Dairy Show Will Stress Health Foods

MORE than 1,500 prize winning dairy cows of the Ayrshire, Brown Swiss, Guernsey, Holstein and Jersey breeds will compete for international honors at the twelfth annual national dairy show which opens in Detroit, Mich., next Wednesday. Cattle are entered from the best herds in the United States and Canada.

Dr. F. V. McCollum of John Hopkins university, Baltimore, Md., will be in charge of the second annual health food show to be held this year in connection with the dairy exposition. The importance of dairy products and their place in the national diet will be stressed by Dr. McCollum, one of the country's outstanding authorities on nutrition.

Niagara falls in miniature, with a veritable sea of skimmed milk, will picture the waste of this product in the federal government's exhibit in which Dr. C. W. Larson, chief of the United States bureau of dairying, promises to give each visitor at least one suggestion that will help him to make money.

NEW 'COW TREE' IS FOUND IN CENTRAL AMERICA JUNGLE

NEW HAVEN.—Explorers in the Central American jungle may find a substitute for the milk of animals in a tree that has just come to scientific attention. The arboreal cow is "milked" by cutting into the bark and the liquid that pours forth "is "rich and creamy, palatable and sweet to taste," according to its discoverer, Prof. S. J. Record of the department of forest products at Yale university.

Wheat Poolers Get Speculators at Their Own Game

GRAIN speculators are finding it tough sledding in Canada since the wheat pool has stepped in to protect the farmer. The most recent stinging the poolers have given the speculators on the dominion exchanges happened a few weeks ago, when manipulators had to pay for the fiddling.

A few speculators tried cornering the market, according to a recent editorial in the Scoop Shovel, the official organ of the Manitoba wheat pool, and the poolers spoiled their game.

One of the objects of the pool, a grower coöperative grain selling agency, is to prevent speculation and price manipulation. The speculators, says the editorial, set out to buy wheat they didn't want and thought they were buying it from persons who didn't have wheat and who at the end of July would have to make paper settlement.

"They thought they were going to make money out of paper wheat, and when the end of July came they found that they had bought actual wheat of which they had to take delivery and sell again," explains the editorial. "They bought at an artificial price, which they had made themselves, and then found themselves with over 3,000,000 bushels on their hands which they had to sell at its market value, and this was much below the figure they had set for their own buying. They dug a pit for others and fell into it themselves.

"These speculators lost a bunch of money (which the pool got), and they went gunning for revenge with an anonymous advertisement. The pool didn't speculate. It sold real wheat to people who were on the market to buy. It was surely no fault of the pool if these buyers didn't really want wheat, but just promises of it from people whom they thought wouldn't be able to deliver it. They offered money for wheat and the pool took it—good and plenty. That's what the pool has been built to do—get money for wheat.

"It's the farmer's time to laugh; goodness knows he has been the victim of speculators often enough," says the Scoop Shovel.

IROQUOIS FIRE STIRRED U. S. TO PROTECT LIFE

Present Day Buildings Much Safer.

Chicago's Iroquois theater disaster back in 1903 was responsible for a great awakening throughout the country to a greater need for protection of human life against fire,' asserted Andrew C. Preble, secretary of the Iron League of Chicago, yesterday in discussing modern construction from a fire protection standpoint.

ANDREW C. PREBLE (Wallager Photo.).

Mr. Preble said that due to the general agitation this fire brought about fire ordinances and unenforced laws were made effective while new ordinances pertaining to fire protection were passed almost immediately. And in the changes that resulted, he said, special provisions were made for fireproof doors in essential locations, such as division walls, exits, stairways, elevator hatches, pipe space and conveying floor openings.

"Thirty Years Ago."

"Thirty years ago," said Mr. Preble, "fire doors were divided into two acceptable constructions—the wood cored metal covered doors designated as 'tin clad' and the sheet steel, or plain angle iron reinforced, known as steel construction.

"In present day construction the buildings are being so arranged that they are divided into sections and in the event of fire breaking out in one section fire doors automatically close to prevent a spread of flames.

"For freight elevators, the old safety gates and open hatches have passed into the discard. In their stead there are now fireproof inclosures and doors that are operated mechanically.

"Stairways and exit doors are equipped with panicproof mechanisms and are arranged to open outward when pressure is used. This makes a very large factor for public safety."

Tunnel Doors Staunch.

Mr. Preble said that when the connecting openings were made for the Chicago Tunnel company's service special consideration was given to the safety demands.

"The equipment recently installed in the Tribune Tower at the tunnel approach is the result of several years' experiment," said the secretary of the Iron league.

"This consists of heavy gates of sufficient strength to withstand the enormous water pressure which would result if the tunnel were punctured at the river level. These gates also would keep gas from the building in case the tunnel should be filled from the gas mains."

Recently it was announced that the wage rate for building laborers on Oct. 1 would be 92½ cents an hour. An error was made in the announcement, as the rate on Oct. 1 was raised from 87½ cents an hour to 90 cents an hour. Since the announcement various business agents of the laborers' unions have been busy trying to tell their constituents that a mistake had been made.

On the Oct. 1 date the trades of cement finishers, composition floor finishers, hoisting engineers, marble setters, structural iron workers, terrazzo workers, and carpenters received an increase from the rate of $1.37½ an hour to $1.50 an hour. On that date also the rate of wages for electrical workers and steamfitters was raised from $1.50 an hour to $1.56½ an hour.

INAWENDIWIN LODGE

This is "Inawendiwin Lodge" (try and say that fast after you've looked at the word just once—no, neither could we) which is to be the club home of 600 Chicago and Kenosha families, way up in northern Wisconsin. Hooper & Janusch are the architects. Details are given in another column. S. Chester Danforth made this rendering. By the way, "Inawendiwin" is Chippewa for "friendship."

NEWEST CLUB TO BE 350 MILES NORTH OF LOOP

"Inawendiwin Lodge" Has 5,000 Acres.

Chicago clubdom is getting farther and farther afield with its activities. The latest and farthest outpost of Dad Dearborn's golf and hunting fans is to be "Inawendiwin lodge," 350 miles north of the loop. The president is Kent G. Chetlain, Chicago attorney.

KENT G. CHETLAIN.

A year ago the club purchased 5,000 acres fourteen miles north of Rhinelander and a little south of the Eagle waters. Work starts this fall on a $90,000 lodge building from plans by Hooper & Janusch of Chicago.

The club's 5,000 acres border on five large lakes and completely surround four lakes. In addition to fishing and hunting, the members and their families will have an eighteen hole golf course. The membership limit is placed at 600. The club now has 200. Its activities are in charge of W. D. Mumby of 11 South La Salle street.

All that Insulation means Insulite DOES!

SHEATHING

WALLBOARD

Some of the Industrial Uses for Insulite

Factory offices, as insulation and wall board finish

Laundries, etc., to prevent moisture condensation

In office buildings —walls and floors —for insulation and sound deadening

Churches, halls, theatres, as an acoustic corrective

INSULATION is the biggest word in the whole range of modern building.

No owner can afford to build without taking care of this most important need. It means comfort and health for the occupants of any house.

What is insulation? Here are two homely illustrations:

Put the tip of an iron poker in the fire. Soon the whole poker is too hot to hold. Because iron is a great conductor of heat. Now take a poker with a wooden handle, and it doesn't get nearly so hot. Wood is not such a conductor of heat. It is an insulator.

You don't dare use bare hands in grasping a wire charged with electricity. But put on rubber gloves, and you can. Rubber is an insulator of electricity.

Simple. Now one step more. Just as you can hold back the passage of heat through the wooden poker handle—just as you can use rubber insulation when dealing with electricity—so an insulating material like INSULITE retards the flow of heat and cold through the walls, floors, ceilings, and roof of a building. One inch of INSULITE equals three and one-half inches of wood as insulation.

INSULITE is a great insulator because its tiny wood fibres are filled with air cells; between the tightly matted fibres are millions of other air chambers. As a result of natural qualities plus a wonderful manufacturing process, INSULITE has had the approval of leading architects, engineers and builders for many years.

Houses insulated with INSULITE are kept warm at much less expense. You can save from one-fourth to one-third on fuel bills. INSULITE keeps houses cooler in summer. It is a remarkably efficient sound deadener.

And it is a structural material at the same time, being used as sheathing under stucco, brick, wood siding, etc.; as plaster base instead of lath, as a beautiful wallboard for rooms that you do not care to plaster, such as the attic, basement, or garage.

INSULITE not only does all that insulation means; it does more, because of its various uses as a finishing and structural unit, yet does not add to the expense of the house. It is all wood—and is always a half-inch thick.

INSULITE is sold by the lumber dealers shown in this advertisement. Your architect or builder can tell you about the many services it performs. We'll be glad to send you booklets containing helpful building suggestions.

CHICAGO RADIO SHOW OPENS TOMORROW

TELEVISION MAY COME, BUT IT'S STILL FAR OFF

Systems Now in Use Offer No Solution.

The radio age is upon us. The electrical age, acknowledged by authorities to be still in its infancy, has been surpassed by the meteoric progress of the art of radio. This progress has in its scope the perfection of one most important invention to humanity—the art of television—according to Albert F. Franklin, one of the east's leading radio engineers.

"Like the development of the moving pictures, television will follow the perfect transmission of photographs. But when can be only a matter of time," Mr. Franklin says.

"At present there are several means of transmitting photographers from one point to another by wire, cable or radio. The various systems of themselves offer no solution to the problem of transmitting moving pictures. Nor has any one as yet proposed what appears to be a commercially feasible and practical solution. From a logical viewpoint, just what is the seemingly impossible barrier? Let us consider the systems.

The Different Systems.

"The outstanding advantages of the Belin system, the Bartlane, Hanson, A. T. & T., Leishman, Korn, R. C. A., or Jenkins system, as compared to one another, are evident from a brief résumé of their characteristics.

"As early as 1856 Caselli sent various designs by telegraphy, using for the trasmitter a tinfoil covered cylinder on which the designs were drawn in insulating compound. A needle, acting very much like the stylus of a phonograph, served the purpose of the contact pin, traveling spirally over the surface of the revolving cylinder under the contact pin, while at the receiving end, by an electro chamidal action, a similar cylinder synchronized with the transmitter reproduced the designs directly.

Effect on Selenium.

The discovery of the effect of light on the electrical resistance of selenium became known in 1876 and shortly afterwards various schemes to substitute selenium for Casselli's process were attempted. The most noteworthy were those of Senlecq and Perosino in 1878. After quite a lengthy interval Korn (in 904), employing Semlocq's idea with several modifications, succeeded in transmitting photographs a few hundred miles.

The method now in use by the R. C. A. is to place a negative of the photo on a glass cylinder. On this is focused a very narrow beam of light used as a stylus. By reflecting the varying intensity of the light passing through the cylinder the registry is effected and then follows an amplifier system which then allows the photo to be reproduced in several ways: either by tape recorder which records the photo as a continuous line of dots and dashes; by means of a relay which operates a special pen and reproduces it pen and ink sketch, or by means of photographic reproduction, a light shutter being controlled by the current variations and controlling the light from a lamp focused on a sensitized rotating cylinder.

Pictures Across Atlantic.

With such a system successful photo transmission has been accomplished by radio transmission from London to New York.

The first photo which was transmitted over the Atlantic was sent by a system based upon the half-tone method of screening. The photo was automatically divided into a predetermined number of dots per square inch. A photo-electric cell then determined into which of eighteen groups a dot belonged, each group being given a distinguishing letter. By means of special relays the letter was automatically transmitted and at the receiving station the letter was converted into a dot and placed into its proper position in the photograph. Even though the photo was converted into 13,000 squares, much of its detail was lost. A more nearly perfect system is the Leishman process, which employs a similar but modified principle and operates on trans-Atlantic cables.

Perhaps the most original scheme is that developed by Belin. His process involves itself upon the fact that bichromated gelatin becomes insoluble under strong light—his own discovery. Then he places a film of wet gelatin under a negative, whereupon the portions of the film swell up more or less in proportion to the intensity of exposure. This forms a sort of relief image of the negative and is wound on a cylinder over which a stylus traces its path. A microphone attached to the stylus varies the resistance of a local circuit which is coupled to a transmitter. At the receiving station an oscillograph has its mirror deflected, altering the projection of a beam of light focused on a synchronized rotating cylinder having a sensitive photographic film on it.

How Jenkins Does It.

The Jenkins method of analysing is based on aberration by means of prism-like rings. These rings are of glass, the edges ground to such a manner that a beam of light passing through is given an oscillating motion. By

W-G-N RADIO ARTISTS TO GREET FOLLOWERS AT SHOW THIS WEEK

Listeners will have an opportunity to meet many famous W-G-N folks at the station's booth at the radio show. The booth itself will be an exposition of the programs and notable events that have featured the W-G-N schedule.

Sam 'n' Henry, Quin Ryan and Bill Hay, W-G-N's announcing team; Henry Selinger, musical director; the W-G-N vocal group, headed by Mark Love, director; Tommy Coates, the station's young baritone, Correll and Gosden, and others will be present at various times during the show to greet their followers.

The W-G-N booth is located on the west wall of the Coliseum, south of the main entrance.

Chicago Radio Show Notes

Ten thousand manufacturers' representatives and dealers are expected at the radio show. It is said that radio has added a thousand words to the English language and these chaps know them all, so prepare for some nifty debates on what's what and who's who in radio.

There will be a lot of serious business done and several millions of dollars of orders are expected to be booked during the special morning hour for the trade. In the belief of G. Clayton Irwin Jr., general manager, radio will show a $600,000,000 turnover from Sept. 1, 1926, to Aug. 31, 1927.

When Thomas A. Edison said recently that radio interest was lacking he aroused the ire of the radio queen, and Mrs. Lotta Harrauff.

The first radio shows were attended by boys and their daddies. Now the whole family turns out. Radio is a necessity in the home, according to "Sport" Herrmann, general manager of the show.

Directors of the Radio Manufacturers' association will meet at 10 a. m. tomorrow in the Congress hotel, official headquarters of the radio show. On the following day, at the same hour, the annual fall meeting will be conducted.

Mrs. Flossie E. Erickson, who tunes in some new station every night, has the finest collection of cups in radio history for her achievements in reception. She will tell the fans all about it at the Coliseum.

Shirley Vernon, star of "Sweetheart Time," will be a guest of the amateur code experts at the radio show transmitting station, 9 A Q, Tuesday afternoon.

There will be a lot for the judges to do in the various events, principally the home constructed set contest, which is international in scope. The experts who will decide on the winners are E. T. Flewelling, Calvin Harris, Byron Minnimum, William H. Harper, E. E. Plummer, and Herman Bernard.

The gold cup to the most popular announcer, Earl E. May of KMA, will be awarded Friday at 9 a. m. Pat Barnes of WHT will get the silver cup emblematic of second honors in this great contest, in which millions of votes were cast.

"Flash," called "the dog with human brains"—will be at booth J 3, and just try to fool him about radio!

There is one characteristic of the English amateur sets on display at the Radio show in the Coliseum—painstaking workmanship. These sets made a big hit at the Radio World's fair.

Frank Bennett is impresario of broadcasting for the Radio show and all requests to eliminate "Valencia" are being referred to him. That is only one of his troubles.

Dorothy Goedecke, the 13 year old girl from Chicago who was the youngest competitor in the Radio Queen contest, will be a guest of honor.

The Radio club of Madras, India, is one of several hundred foreign organizations sending greetings to the American radio public through the Chicago Radio show.

A CQD call for telescopes has been issued by the show officials. Clay Irwin wants to be able to look at some of those miniature sets that are coming in. No matter how tiny they are, they bring in broadcasting at a 10 to 50 mile range.

One of the most striking exhibits at the show will be the collection of new battery eliminators. Here is where there has been great progress during the last year.

Most noticeable of all improvements incorporated in the 1926-'27 radio receivers is the simplification of the control system employed by the manufacturers of the higher grade sets. This is of far greater importance to the industry than would appear at first glance for it makes broadcast reception possible for the housewife and children who were formerly barred from participation in radio programs by the complexity of the tuning controls and the instability of the circuits.

Ireland Building Three More Radio Stations

So enthusiastic have the Irish become about the radio that they are erecting three more stations. The new units will be similar to the 1,500 watt transmitting set at Dublin. These stations will enable the continental listener to hear the beautiful Irish ballads sung in their native tongues.

CLOSE RELATION BETWEEN RADIO AND NEWSPAPER

Each an Aid to Other in Communication.

There will always be a close relation between newspapers and broadcasting, because they naturally supplement each other as means of communication, according to Martin P. Rice, manager of broadcasting of the General Electric company. The assured future of broadcasting depends upon its ability to reach masses of people and put them in direct personal touch with events as they happen. Residents of the most isolated sections can through radio hear the best music that is available in the large metropolitan centers.

They have a variety of church services brought to their homes, and they not only get the speeches of our leading statesmen but also they become acquainted with the speaker's personality through listening to addresses by radio. The number of radio receiving sets is increasing, and a conservative estimate of the radio audience in the United States today is fifteen millions. The broadcast program is being improved and coordinated by the cooperation of stations.

Problem for the Future.

Just how broadcasting will ultimately be used in advertising and what relation it will have to newspapers is a problem for future solution, but means for addressing millions of people simultaneously cannot be restricted to one particular application. This facility which broadcasting provides should be made available to any one who has a legitimate right to talk to the public, provided the public wants to listn. And this naturally includes advertising.

At present the ethics of broadcasting do not permit direct advertising, and it may be interesting to discuss whether a program sponsored by a national advertiser results in value received, but it is really not the fundamental question. Advertisers cannot long afford to neglect the opportunity which radio offers to speak to the American public, and it is not entirely unreasonable to suppose that future developments may provide exclusive wave lengths for advertising, and it may also be that newspapers will have some part in broadcast advertising. At least, advertising on the air will be suplemented by advertising on paper, and vice versa.

Inventions Help Papers.

The history of newspapers is marked by many milestones of progress, which have brought about some revolutionary changes. The first sheets printed on hand presses in what seems today ridiculously small editions would scarcely be recognized today as the antecedents of the modern newspaper. It is interesting to trace their development under the influence of some of the great inventions which they have witnessed. The larger editions made possible by rotary presses were evident.

The next great revolution was due to railroads, which enormously increased the available field of circulation. The stereotype process was an invention which wrought another change amounting almost to a revolution. With the extension of telegraph lines and ocean cables all the important news was telegraphed, and the morning paper was enabled to present the daily events of the previous day all over the world.

May Tie Up Advertising.

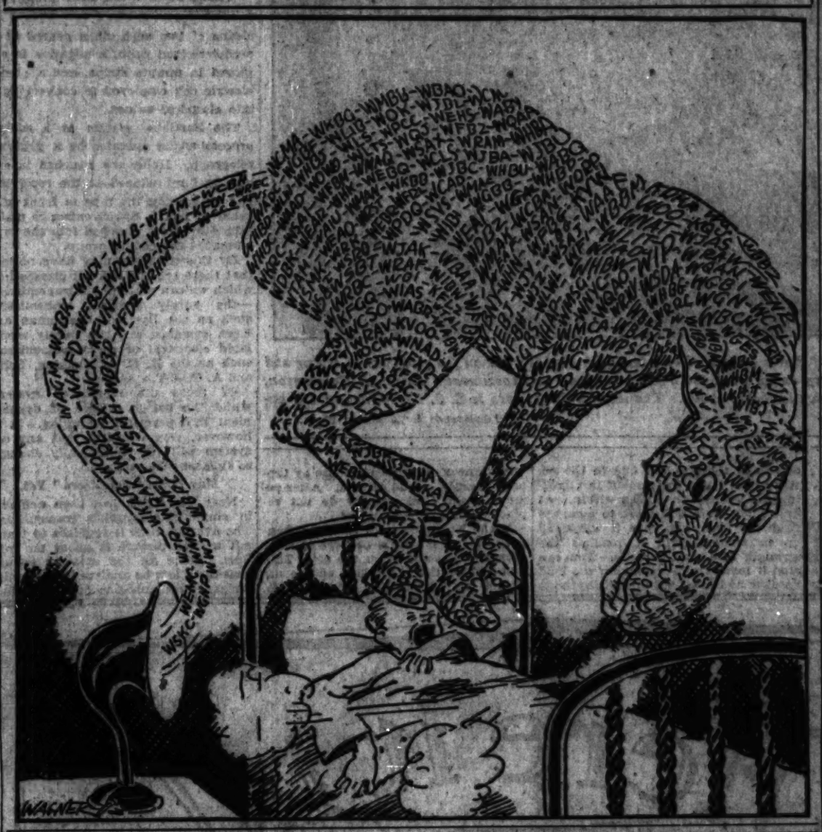

These few instances illustrate how newspapers have adopted and profited by every new invention which facilitates the gathering or the distribution of news. Newspapers are accustomed to look upon events with a calm, unbiased point of view. They have reflected the public interest in broadcasting, printing the programs of numerous nearby and distant stations—not particularly with the view of assisting broadcasting, but because these programs constituted matter of public interest. Incidentally, radio has created a volume of newspaper advertising.

They may find a way to take an even more active part in broadcasting in connection with the dissemination of special news, and, having built up a public good will along this line, it might prove to their advantage even to enter the field of radio broadcasting—not to the extent of building or operating stations because that is a highly technical undertaking as much so as the maintenance of a telegraph or telephone system. But the newspaper of the future may use the air for bulletin board news, and it may in some way connect this advertising program with broadcast advertising.

N. Y. AMATEUR HAS CHAT WITH DUTCH GOVERNOR

New York, Oct. 9.—[Special.]—The lure of amateur radio is universal. When Jack Berliant of this city, operating amateur station 2AFV, heard a strange signal coming through the head phones recently he gave the new station a call and was soon in communication. During the ensuing conversation it developed that the operator at the other end of the circuit was Lieut. Gov. R. J. Beaujon Jr., stationed at St. Martin's, Windward Islands, in the Dutch West Indies. The governor had the set installed in his own home and showed considerable skill in its operation, being able to take "code" at a considerable rate of speed.

CONFUSED WAVE LENGTHS

this discussion. We are here concerned only with the vagaries arising between the transmitting station and the receiver. Not only are the wave vagaries I have listed very familiar and prevalent but their effects are entirely different under different circumstances. It might seem entirely hopeless to find any regularity in their effects or to determine anything about their causes when you consider a list of the conditions under which they vary.

These conditions include frequency, or wave length; distance, place (land, sea, mountains, and different characters of soil), time (day and night, summer and winter, sunset), occurrence of eclipses, solar activity (sun spots), aurora, atmospheric electricity, terrestrial magnetism, and weather. In spite of all this complexity, a number of facts have definitely emerged from the intensive studies which have been and are being made of radio phenomena by investigators all over the world.

Something About Fading.

The changes of received wave intensity at various times of day and year are present in more marked degree at the frequencies used for broadcasting, 500 to 1,500 kilocycles (600 to 200 meters). In addition to these changes, there occurs what is called fading—that is, irregular and rapid changes of the received signal, at times becoming so violent that the signal fades away entirely and then comes in again. These fluctuations are among the most baffling features of radio transmission. They occur particularly at night and at distances greater than 50 miles from the transmitting station. In the daytime signals from broadcasting stations are rarely heard more than about 50 miles, and they are, generally speaking, quite steady. At night the waves from the same stations may be received hundreds or even thousands of miles away, and are characterized by fading. The fading is more severe, with more rapid and intense fluctuation, at about 100 miles from a transmitting station than at shorter or longer distances.

There is frequent mention of the existence of radio dead spots—that is, regions in which reception from particular stations is very difficult or impossible. This is tied in with the fact that radio transmission is better in some directions from a station than in others. These differences can usually be explained in terms of topography of the land or the presence of a particular kind of obstacles.

The waves travel better and are less absorbed over water than over land, and hence tend to follow rivers. They are impeded by mountains, by which, so to speak, cast a shadow or cause something of a dead spot in the region beyond them. In special cases where a mountain or large cluster of tall steel buildings is near the transmitting set the shadows may be very marked indeed and may practically cut off all reception in regions beyond them. The largest cluster of tall buildings in New York creates dead areas in which reception from WEAF is very poor; these areas extend well into Connecticut and Long Island.

Low Waves Unreliable.

At frequencies above 1,500 kilocycles [below 200 meters] the peculiarities are still worse. As every one knows, it has been discovered that the very high frequencies will travel immense distances with small transmitting power, but, generally speaking, they are unreliable and subject to fluctuations of all sorts. Using very high frequencies, radio reception has been achieved not only for the full distance of half way around the earth, but even farther.

This paradox is explained by the fact that the waves travel best over that half of the earth which is in darkness, and if a resolving point is in the daytime half of the earth near the boundary between day and night it is actually found that a received wave travels around through the darkened hemisphere rather than over the somewhat shorter path through the light hemisphere. In receiving half way around the earth it is found that the signals are stronger at the antipodes than at intermediate points, apparently because of a convergence of the signals from many paths; and there are frequencies at which it is possible to receive at the antipodes throughout very nearly the whole 24 hours.

One of the most remarkable things about the very high frequencies is that there are distances or zones of alternate good and poor reception. Thus there is a so-called skip distance over which radio signals may not be received at all, while they come in well at distances beyond. For instance, a 16,000 kilocycle (20 meter) signal will diminish with the distance and become inaudible at 70 miles and cannot be heard at all at distances beyond that until a distance of 500 miles is reached, at which it appears again. This skip distance is different for different frequencies and, furthermore, varies with the time of day and time of year.

GOVERNMENT STUDIES RADIO WAVES

Radio engineers of the United States bureau of standards are now at work on the problems of fading and high power broadcasting. To carry on its work the bureau has built an experimental station at Kensington, Md., part of the equipment of which is shown above. The man in the picture is S. S. Kirby, one of the bureau's staff.

LOUD SPEAKER PLACED ON SET MAKES TROUBLE

If a loud speaker is placed directly on top of a radio receiver, there is danger of a loud distracting noise being set up in the speaker, due to the action of the latter instrument in vibrating the set and the tubes within. At first a low hum will start to emanate from the horn, and then it will build up in volume until it reaches the strength of a siren whistle. You can stop it instantly by removing the loud speaker and breaking up the rhythmic vibrations of the tube elements by tapping sharply on the cabinet. After removing the loud speaker do not replace it on the set cabinet.

If the loud speaker delivers tremendous volume it should be kept at least several feet away from the set. This will reduce the possibility of the air (sound) waves producing the trouble.

means of two such rings geared at a predetermined ratio, a negative is explored in minute strips, and a photo-electric cell employed to convert light into electrical values.

The Bartlane system is a coding process which operates by a printing telegraph. Holes are punched into a tape and reproduced at the receiving end by passing the tape in front of a beam of light. Synchronism is maintained by holes punched into the tape alongside the coding group.

By this time you may have noticed that there are two distinct classes into which we can place photo-transmission—the purely physical transmission such as the Bartlane, Leishman and Korn systems, and the purely modulated electrical or radio transmission such as the R. C. A., Jenkins, Belin, and A. T. & T. systems.

Of these the modulated systems stand the better change of development into practical television. It is, however, very doubtful that any one system will not be radically changed so this may be realized.

May Have "Televisors" Yet.

Near perfection has been achieved in single photographic transmission. The average time it requires to transmit a good picture is about ten minutes. Since all the systems require that the photo be analyzed into minute strips—about one-one hundredth inch wide—this precludes the possibility of resolving the same procedure into a practical solution of the problem.

For motion pictures we need sixteen pictures per second. Our nearest approach to television is one picture every ten minutes, unless recent claims from London of ten every second are correct. There is such a wide gap that all methods proposed up until the present time have failed to offer a practical solution.

However, with such marvelous inventions as the photo-electric cell, the Thalofide cell (one converting the light energy into electrical energy, the other acting as a varying resistance controlling the current in the circuit), the Moore lamp capable of responding to very high frequencies and which may play an important part in future development work, and the prismatic rings of Jenkins, we may expect a swifter solution.

The present-day receiver is so far advanced in engineering design that it will not be obsolete for many years to come. Thus, it may be entirely possible to equip the set with a "televisor," as we can aptly call the device, and have at our leisure and pleasure not only all the latest news and best entertainment, but also the very portrayal of the event as they transpire!

Scotch Fire Guns by Radio as Fog Signals

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

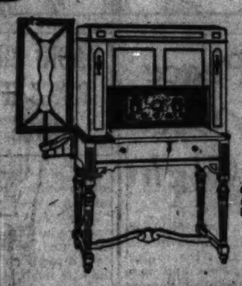

GLASGOW, Oct. 2.—A steady bombardment by guns has been going on off the coast of Scotland continuously the last few days. Radio signals control these guns. The noted peculiarity of these guns is their synchronous function. They are part of a fog system which requires no human attention and have just been installed on the Clyde.

Trend Toward Simplicity at Olympia Show

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 2.—The radio exhibition at Olympia this year shows that the tendency on the part of the manufacturers has been rather to concentrate on the simplification of reception. There are some very interesting new loud speakers of both the cone and the diaphragm types. One uses a coil driven cone, the cone being of small dimensions and held loosely at its edges. This loud speaker was demonstrated as being capable of wonderful reproduction when correctly operated.

Here it is!

RADIO IS GAME FOR YOUNG MEN, EXPERT STATES

Industry Offers Numerous Opportunities.

Radio's development will rest entirely upon the shoulders of the youths of today. It is a young man's business today, but the men who are creating radio appliances now will naturally be looked upon in the years to come as the "old men" in the business. Radio is progressing more rapidly each year and the new inventions that are being put into use are coming from youths who had vision of the stability of the industry and met the need for better apparatus. These are the views of Powell Crosley Jr., Cincinnati radio manufacturer.

"Radio is such a new field of science that its possibilities are unlimited," he says. "The surface has hardly been scratched and the years to come will see many revolutionary changes in the method of broadcasting and reception, although not of sufficient importance in themselves to make apparatus obsolete. These changes will be put into effect gradually, just as the improvements are put in automobile design each year.

Colleges Teach Radio.

"All of the important engineering schools and colleges, as well as the public schools, are beginning to teach the art of radio engineering. Some schools are instructing students in this special branch and it may not be very long before there is a special college of radio, devoted exclusively to the teaching of this new sceince.

"Many notable contributions to the radio industry have come from young men hardly out of their teens. Some of these youthful inventors have become very wealthy in a short time and the opportunity for making money is greater today than it ever has been.

"There is another field open to the youths of this country, and that is found in the sales and service division of the radio industry. Golden opportunities are to be found everywhere for those who are willing to take the time and make the effort to learn something about radio merchandising.

"Some youths have already built up a good business through the installation of receiving apparatus and the erection of aerials. There are thousands of prospective radio devotees who would be quite willing to pay for a service of this kind, just as they do for the erection of awnings, mowing of the lawns and care of the furnaces.

The Broadcasting Field.

"The broadcasting studio and the operation of the transmitting apparatus is another new field of work for youths. Nearly all of the studio directors and operators are young men. Broadcasting work also opens the door of fame to beginners in the musical world, who gain a world-wide audience through their studio activities that would require many years of hard work to get through the old methods of personal recitals.

"One branch of radio that has afforded a fascinating career to the youth of the country for many years is ship operating. A number of prominent figures in the industry today were ship operators in their younger years. Probably the majority of broadcasting station operators received their early training on the sea. This branch of radio probably seems the most romantic of all to the average young man. It makes it possible for him to visit the great nations of the world, while at the same time engaging in interesting and lucrative work.

"The rapid development of radio broadcasting and the quick transition of radio sets from the experimental stage to the highly standardized basis on which we find them today is largely a result of the youthful blood in the radio industry. New ideas have been carried to perfection almost overnight, successful enterprises have been launched which older men would have been too conservative to have tried."

U. S. USES AUTO TO STUDY RADIO AID TO PLANES

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Perfecting radio beacons for ues in giuding airplanes is the big thing at the bureau of standards these days. To ascertain on a small scale how the beacons would work, an automobile has been equipped with radio, just as an airplane is, and will be guided by the beacons experimentally just as an aeroplane in flight would be.

The auto carries with it radio transmitting and receiving sets; apparatus for measuring the field intensity or strength of radio signals from broadcasting stations; a semi-automatic recorder for studying the phenomenon of fading of radio signals, and radio direction finders.

As the auto goes along a measured course, it will be guided through imaginary fog and storms by double beam radio beacons.

Radio Soon to Link Up Entire British Empire

The long talked of linking up of the British empire, a project that was only recently characterized as a dream, is expected to be accomplished within the next few months with the inauguration of four imperial beam wireless stations in Great Britain. Two of these, at Bodmin and Bridgewater, will communicate with Canada and South Africa, respectively, and two others at Grimsby and Skegness will span the seas to Australia and India.

100,000 SHIPS AIDED BY NAVY'S RADIO STATIONS

That merchant ships are depending more and more upon wireless guidance is shown by the fact that ocean vessels were supplied with 50,000 more radio compass bearings last year than ever before. During the year the Navy Radio compass stations supplied something like 100,000 ships with about twice that many bearings.

This is an increase of about 40 per cent over the year previous and is no doubt due to the fact that our government gives the service free.

SHORT WAVES

The U. S. naval radio station at New York (NAH) has been commended for efficiency.

Disturbed conditions in China are holding up the construction of five radio stations.

The reliable service range, day and night, winter and summer, of a 5,000 watt station is said to be only 30 miles.

The radio physical director says when he tells you to lean to the left —"that's right."

SHORTER AERIAL COMMENDED FOR INTERFERENCE

Radio fans who have multi-tube sets and experience difficulty in tuning out nearby stations should reduce the length of their aerial, ground, and "A" and "B" battery leads, according to the experts of the radio club of the Bell Telephone company. An indoor aerial often helps in reducing interference from nearby stations and may aid you in getting the most out of your receiving set.

Something New!

See Kellogg Console Model 508 In Booth Q-3 at the Show

REALIZATION of all that you have looked for in a radio set! You've wanted, first of all, reproduction that is warm and "live", that has depth and power, that is, in short, realism. You get it in this receiver because of the wonderful new Kellogg developments in both set and speaker.

You've wanted range and selectivity such that you could not only clearly and completely separate the locals, but also go out between them for distant stations. Three stages of radio frequency of advanced design give you the first—thorough shielding and sound engineering that is the result of experience, give you the second.

In these 1926-27 models, Kellogg contributes to Radio two important advances—a loud speaker with 44-inch scientifically designed air column and an exclusively Kellogg system known as Inductive Tuning. This speaker achievement is built into console model 508.

Through the use of the balanced Inductive Tuning system, models 507 and 508 are equally sensitive at all wave lengths. Kellogg's 29 years of telephone experience have indeed worked wonders in this newer field—Radio.

See these new sets at the show—inspect the construction of Kellogg's realistic-reproduction speaker—let these in the booth show you how easy it is to tune a Kellogg set. Any Kellogg dealer will be glad to demonstrate the performance.

DILL PREDICTS REGULATION OF RADIO BY JAN. 1

Looks for Speedy Action When Congress Meets.

BY SENATOR C. C. DILL.

[Author of the Dill Radio Bill.]

The copyright bill which we have had before congress has not made as much headway as we had hoped, but the legislation which I particularly want to mention is the regulation to control radio broadcasting. There are some who think congress has been slow in arriving at the passage of this law.

SENATOR C. C. DILL. [Marceau Studio.]

When I remind you that the history of legislation shows that any new national legislation requires from five to seven years before it is passed, and then remind you that the house has only considered radio legislation for about three years, and the senate never really considered it until the last year, and we have a bill passed by both the house and the senate and now in conference—I think we are making very rapid progress on radio legislation. I want to sum up those provisions that are sure to be in the bill that will come out of conference, because they are found in both bills.

In the first place, both bills provide that the government shall retain control of the air for broadcasting purposes and shall allow broadcasters the privilege for limited periods of time to use the air on certain designated wave lengths, and no charge to be made for such used by the government.

The second thing in which these bills agree is that radio under this legislation will not be the subject of one man control, but, whichever bill prevails, there will be a commission—whether it will be an appellate commission as provided by the house bill or a commission that sits permanently as provided by the senate bill, has yet to be determined—but in any case there will be a commission to which those who are dissatisfied with any regulation, any orders that are made, may appeal, or may take their cases in the first instance. Who shall broadcast, what power shall be used, and what wave lengths shall be used will be fixed by this government body.

No Monopoly Possible.

In the third place, there will be no monopoly possible under this legislation, because both bills provide that the commission or the secretary of commerce, as the case may be, may not only refuse to grant licenses for broadcasting but may reveke licenses in case a monopoly develops.

In the fourth place, both bills provide for court appeal, so that this administrative body which is created shall not have the final say as to these questions, but the broadcasters, those interested in the industry, will be permitted to appeal to the courts under the rules of law for justice in case they consider injustice has been done.

Report Before Christmas.

I mention these four important things that are sure to be in the bill which will be reported by the conference committee. There are other questions of minor nature in which the bills differ, that will be ironed out in conference I am sure.

I believe it is safe to say that we will probably have a conference report agreed on between the house and the senate before the holidays, and I hope it will be a law by the first of the year. But I feel that I can say to you for a certainty that there will be radio legislation before congress adjourns in March.

CONSULT SERVICE MAN WHEN SET IS NOT FUNCTIONING

When their radio sets will not work properly fans will save themselves a large amount of unnecessary trouble if they will consult the service man of the nearest radio dealer. Correspondence with manufacturers about minor troubles which could be fixed by a dealer's service man in less than five minutes causes many radio fans to lose the pleasure of their radio sets for several days.

Of the sets returned to manufacturers for repairs, only about 1 or 2 per cent have anything more serious the matter with them than a loose terminal or dusty condenser plates.

A Waste of Money.

If nearby dealers were consulted by the owners of these sets considerable expenditure of time and money could be saved. A radio fan will often spend several dollars to ship his set to the factory when it merely needs to have one bolt tightened. This could be done in his own home in but a minute.

Many fans write direct to the manufacturer whenever they want information as to whether certain symptoms of their set mean that their batteries are run down or that their tubes are worn out.

Service Man Could Aid.

While factory experts can answer these questions, if sufficient and definite enough information is given in the inquiry, most of these letters from fans are so vague that it is almost impossible for the factory engineer to diagnose the condition of the set and accessories. Often several letters must be written back and forth before the set owner can be told whether or not it is advisable for him to buy new batteries and tubes. A service man on the spot could test these accessories very easily.

For Perfect Performance—
Units Must be Matched!

The winning football team must be composed of a group of men who are trained to work in perfect co-ordination. Even the greatest individual stars, without the full support of a completely co-ordinated team, cannot be depended upon to give a winning performance. It's teamwork—the matching of the brains and muscles of the whole team—that wins!

Co-ordination of units is just as vital in radio as in football. Perfect reception can be had only through a radio composed entirely of parts and units especially designed and constructed to work with each other as a perfect whole.

That's what you get in a Stewart-Warner Matched-Unit Radio. Every part made with precision and deliberate care—and all parts fitted together, matched, to give you the finest radio reception you have ever enjoyed.

You've heard the others—now we urge you to hear a Stewart-Warner. Regardless of how critical you may be, we know you will be delighted with the magnificent tones that flow from the new Stewart-Warner Reproducer, the marvelous invention which employs a new principle whereby every musical sound is reproduced clearly and naturally.

Radio Speaker, Model H, $32.

Why do 3 out of 4 people who ask for radio by name say "Atwater Kent"?

BECAUSE, with only ONE Dial to turn, it's so simple that anyone can get the same results as a radio engineer.

Because it works from the start—and keeps on working, and doesn't plague the owner with service costs.

Because it meets to-day's demand for power and efficiency in small space.

Because it's good to look at as well as to listen to.

Because its tone—at low or large volume—is clear and true.

Because it's a standard make—not here to-day and gone to-morrow.

Because to see and hear it is to want it.

And because to own it is to be satisfied, as hundreds of thousands of Atwater Kent Radio owners testify.

Gives You the Control

AN owner of a Synchrophase controls the quality of tone of broadcast music: the loud speaker has nothing to say about it. This great advantage is due to the Colotone—an exclusive Grebe development—which enables you to vary the pitch of voice or music so as to bring out every shade of tone. You can also suppress, considerably, much scratchy static.

In every great industry one company eventually brings forth one product which stands far ahead of all competition.

In radio, the Freshman Co. has always surprised the field with its remarkably efficient radio sets, the standard of comparison in the entire industry.

But now

this "Masterpiece of Masterpieces" startles and surpasses all expectations.

It is the most perfect radio that has ever been designed. It is massive—it is beautiful. It is just what you want for your home. For no matter how exquisite your furnishings are, this artistic genuine mahogany upright console will lend additional beauty. And yet, it is priced so moderately that almost every family can easily afford to own one.

Model 6-F-11

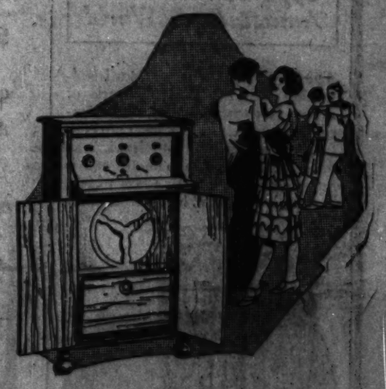

—the thing that makes it wonderful is its tone quality. The large cone speaker has been designed to exactly match Freshman's new QUALITY radio receiver. This special cone speaker easily handles the full power that this new set delivers.

Yet, in spite of its ability to handle great volume, when the power is reduced the softest and mellowest tones come forth in a manner never before achieved by any sound producing device.

Simplicity

Its ease of operation, with its three distinct controls, allows any novice to tune in the station wanted day after day at the same points on the dials. The Most Perfectly Toned Radio Ever Produced

5 "MIKES" WILL PICK UP MUSIC AT RADIO SHOW

Studios to Be Equipped with Novel Device.

Mixing voices and instruments electrically through the use of five microphones in place of one will be demonstrated publicly for the first time at the Chicago Radio show, opening in the Coliseum tomorrow.

Through the utilization of a five microphone mixing panel it is possible to get effects and tonal qualities which far exceed results with only a single microphone.

In the case of a large orchestra or a group of singers, for instance, a separate microphone may be used for each division of instruments or voices and the whole blended together in the mixing panel to obtain perfect balance.

This is the explanation given by J. Elliott Jenkins and Samuel E. Adair, communication engineers, who will be in charge of the broadcasting features from the show, in coöperation with Frank Bennett, program manager. Ten or more stations will be linked up.

The mechanical end will be complete. There will be used a three stage amplifier, monitor and level indicator unit, and the output distributor, to handle as many as six stations broadcasting simultaneously from the show.

All Chicago stations participating in the exposition broadcasting will have two pairs of telephone lines running right to the control panels in front of the studio stage, located at the west end of the ballroom.

The stations in operation at any time are "plugged in," the wires are opened, and the station operators are in constant communication with the control operator, at the Coliseum.

MANY INVENTORS IN RADIO FIELD BUT FEW PROFIT

Commercial Value of Most Dreams Is Nil.

Does it pay to invent new radio devices? The royalty checks of some of radio's better know inventors say that it does. On the other hand, the thousands of worthless radio patents that do nothing more constructive than to clutter up the files of government offices say that often it does not.

Strangely enough, among the thousands of new radio schemes patented each year only a very few have any possible commercial value. Those who devise these new ideas do not stop to consider whether or not they can be sold. The word "patent" casts an all-powerful spell over them, creating before their minds' eyes a mirage of wealth and luxury. They do not realize that there is a vast difference between obtaining a patent and selling it.

Certified Checks Wanted.

Stranger still is the fact that every large radio manufacturer receives a number of letters each week from individuals who wish to sell ideas upon which they have never actually applied for patents and which have never actually been tried under practical working conditions. These letters usually explain that the inventor, not being protected by a patent, cannot risk sending his idea with the letter, but will be glad to furnish all details, diagrams, and such if the manufacturer wishes to purchase the invention and cares to inclose a certified check with his reply.

Because of these facts, the instances in which radio inventions have paid are far in the minority. For those who devise new apparatus which is genuinely different and distinctive and has good commercial marketing possibilities there are large rewards; providing, of course, that some manufacturer with sufficient resources feels that he is in position to undertake the introduction of the new apparatus.

Most Ideas Are Old.

With many of the most brilliant scientists of the country working upon radio problems, it is becoming increasingly difficult to invent anything in the radio line that has not been thought of before, however. Before the would-be radio expert begins to mentally count the dollars of his future royalties he should ponder long and seriously about the hundreds of brilliant competitors with whom he is faced.

LOUD SPEAKERS MUST HARMONIZE WITH FURNITURE

Latest Types Are Things of Beauty.

Another step toward harmonizing radio and home surroundings has been taken in the adoption of the floor stand speaker. This is the latest development in speakers and is in line with the public's approval of art furniture models in receivers.

Sharing the utility purpose is that of decorative effect. From this angle the floor stand speaker may be likened to the floor lamp. The floor lamp, while its original purpose was to give light to a room, has come to be one of the real pieces of interior decoration.

The development of the floor stand speaker is an outgrowth of the cone type loud speaker. Hand in hand with the floor stand branch of the family will go the wall cone, which, in reality, is only a division of this branch made possible by an attachment to permit hanging on the wall.

Speaker History Speeds Up.

Speaker history has moved with rapidity since the introduction of the cone. It now bids fair to follow closely the decorative designs laid down for the period models in radio receiver furniture. Variations are limitless in possibility for this new home decoration that gives two pieces of furniture instead of one for the enhancement of the radio home.

It is a far cry back from the floor stand speaker to the earliest of the loud speakers of the horn variety. In the days when listening in was a matter of ear phones, most people's conception of a loud speaker was what they saw and heard outside a dealer's shop and no need to recall the unpleasant memory of the sounds that rent the air in the dark ages of the loud speaker.

Followed a development of the horn type much slower than the advance in receiver design and construction. People commenced to utilize the horn for ordinary reception. Various shapes were tried, the variation being mostly in the neck of the horn. Expeditions into the fantastic in loud speaker styles were attempted with little success. Some awoke to the fact that a receiver was no better than the loud speaker used with it to reproduce what came over the air.

Cone Speakers Arrive.

Then came a period of cabinet speakers along with better quality speakers of the horn type. Along about the same time came the cone speaker—a distinct advance in the art of reproducers. While many radio sets, either with self-contained speakers of the horn type or self-contained speakers of the cone type, offer a quality of reproduction which is a distinct advance over that which was acceptable to the public until a short time ago, the very latest developments involve a cone speaker of a size and design which, only when operated externally and as a separate mechanism from the radio set, can produce that ultimate and closest approach to perfection which modern radio now offers.

INSIDE THE LOUD SPEAKER

By Quin A. Ryan, W-G-N Announcer

THERE are tricks in every trade, even broadcasting. The broadcasters are learniny innumerable ways of producing sound effects, even more than are practiced by the property men of the theater. We hear barking dogs, swishing waves, moving choo-choo trains, cathedral chimes, tooting steamboats and all manner of noises artificially stirred up by studio "props."

A comical instance that we recall in our own studio was in the radio sketch we produced for the presentation of Eddie Collins, the White Sox manager, on the air. We had prevailed upon James Crusinberry, the baseball writer, to introduce Eddie to the radio audience, and both Jim and Eddie were obviously discomfited at the prospect of facing the mike.

We were trying to reproduce all the sounds of an opening day baseball game, and the audience later declared the effect was nigh perfect. But here is the funny way it had to be done. A group of musicians who were waiting in the studio were placed at the far end of the room and instructed to keep up a fluctuating current of murmuring, with occasional louder yells, such as "Hello, Joe," "Look at that boy in left field," "Who's gonna pitch?"

Eddie, the demon radio operator, was impressed into service intermittently hitting a broom with a coat hanger, which made a fine impersonation of a ball player knocking out flies. Then Len, the colored boy attendant at the studio, was coached to pass every so often in front of the microphone bawling in his raucous voice, "Popcorn—creamery buttered popcorn," and "Red hots here, gents, who wants 'em?"

And all the while the announcer was carrying on with a panoramic description of the field and the crowds, then leading the audience in imagination over to the Sox dugout and introducing Crusinberry to them, who in turn presented Eddie Collins. The murmuring background of the fans continued throughout.

It is in such homely fashion that we of the radio stations contrive our sound effects.

ONE OF THE WJZ announcers in New York, Norman Brokenshire, has just resigned his post, and is quoted in a magazine as saying, "In taking this step I feel that I will be of more service to the radio public by surrounding myself with well known men in the theatrical and musical worlds and devoting my entire time to the creation of valuable radio productions. It is not my intention to forsake the invisible audience that has shown such great appreciation for my endeavors, but rather to serve this audience better and in a much larger way. It is with regret that I leave the intimate everyday life of the idolized announcer. . . . ."

Only 76 more days 'til Christmas!

LET THE "ASK ME A HARD ONE" man solve your worries. He will answer any and all questions pertaining to radio, and you have only to write to him in care of the Convict Ship. Here he is, answering them all:

Lady Lou.—No, I really don't know whether Jack Nelson of WJJD has a brother named Nelson. Jack is a versatile fellow who writes music and as a hobby in the forenoon makes golf balls. He was named after Gen. Philip Sheridan, the civil war hero.

A. T. T.—The singer you mention has left the radio world, and the last we heard of him he was engaged as an apprentice counterfeiter.

R. W. S.—Jerry Sullivan is now at WSBC, in the New Southern hotel. Yes, he is a versatile fellow who sings and plays, and as a hobby in the forenoons whittles out bowling balls. At one time in his career he ran for Vice President on the Whig ticket.

Kenwood.—You are right. The famous short story, "Jack and the Bean Stalk," has a connection with radio. It was written by Hal Totten and Harry Beardsley, the WMAQ football announcers, while they were out watching for the groundhog in Lincoln park in February, 1812. Hal is also author of two novels, "David Copperfield" and "The Motor Boys at Lexington."

THERE ARE NOW about 225,000 radio sets in use in Russia, the papers say. But it's easy over there. Any Russian with a beard is his own antenna.

MANY, MANY LISTENERS ask what is the first step an organization must take to start a radio station. When a company or institution, whatever its motive, has decided to go into broadcasting, its first move is to apply to the department of commerce for a license and a wave length. All wave lengths are now taken, with as many as two or three stations sharing the same wave and alternating in periods of time on the air.

The applicant is required to offer satisfactory evidence to the secretary of commerce that he will abide by the government rules and regulations and maintain his station on the basis of public service.

After the license has been granted, the wave length assigned and the call letters designated by the department of commerce, the applicant builds or buys his radio station, assembles his staff and starts in. He seeks out a company to build his mechanical equipment and secures a location for it. His broadcasting budget is determined by his broadcasting purpose, how large and what class of audience he aims to reach, and how thoroughly he can avail himself of the ever increasing opportunities to expand and refine the art.

LAST SUNDAY we asked listeners to tell us what memories of broadcast programs or moments they held most happily, and some have said:

"The high spots in my memories of listening in are: 1. The inimitable announcing from KYW last winter by Harold Isbell. 2. The singing of 'Believe Me if All Those Endearing Young Charms' by Jack Harcourt, at 3 a. m. last St. Patrick's day. 3. The first time KFI, Los Angeles, leaped out of the loud speaker."—Mrs. J. F. F., Hammond, Ind.

"The two events I most remember on the radio are President Coolidge's inauguration address and the description by the announcer, and the Dempsey-Tunney fight."—H. B. S., Red Oak, Ia.

"I think you will like to hear of my high spot in radio listening. Just the words 'Fair and warmer tomorrow.' I had lived for years in a world of silence; had almost forgotten what a voice was like, and, loving music, was unable to hear it. So when I put on the earphones and a voice said 'Fair and warmer tomorrow, I thought those words so beautiful I almost cried. You will never reach a spot as high as I did that minute. The radio has brought the world back to me."—W. E.

DO YOU REMEMBER the war story about the bass drum that was lost? Losing a bass drum is like losing an elephant or an office building. The day before yesterday we were asked to report on the air that a three passenger airplane had been stolen or lost.

WGN BROADCASTS PENN - CHICAGO GAME SATURDAY

Contest Brought by Wire from Philadelphia.

W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel, will broadcast the second of its long distance football games Saturday afternoon, when the clash between the University of Chicago and the University of Philadelphia will be put on the air direct from the playing field in Philadelphia.

Nearly a thousand miles of leased telephone wires will carry the story of the intersectional contest from the eastern gridiron to the W-G-N transmitter at Elgin.

Quin Ryan will be in the radio shack atop the grandstand in Franklin field, Philadelphia, to picture the scene and follow the game play by play for listeners. The broadcast will start about 1 o'clock, central standard time.

Midwest listeners will be given an opportunity to learn the comparative strength of the Pennsylvania eleven which comes west on Oct. 30 to battle Illinois at the Memorial stadium in Champaign, another contest which W-G-N has already arranged to broadcast.

Chief among the musical feattires of the week will be the presentation on Tuesday night at 9 o'clock of the second and third acts of Verdi's opera, "Rigoletto," by the W-G-N vocal group, under the direction of Mark Love and Henry Selinger. It is in the third act of the opera that the famous "Rigoletto" quartet is sung. Listeners will hear this, as well as many of the other important arias and duets.

The story of the opera is told in tabloid form by the announcer, while the vocal group provides orchestral accompaniment.

HAMS TALK, THEN ONE GOES TO BED, 2D TO WORK, 3D TO LUNCH

Framingham, Mass., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—When Everett Gibbs, owner of amateur station 1AAC, started operating his set one night recently, he heard two amateurs calling, one a Mr. Mayer in England, and the other a New Zealand station, 4AM. A three-cornered conversation was begun which lasted several hours. The three stations finally left each other, so that the Englishman could go to his morning's work, Gibbs could turn in for some late sleep, and the New Zealander could eat his lunch.

RADIO MAKES "SPIRITUALS" OF SOUTH POPULAR

Taking exception to the assertion that radio kills popular songs, Representative William C. Hammer of North Carolina believes it to be a greater thrasher of the good and bad.

"For years the south had all these beautiful Negro spirituals that nobody but the Negroes and the poor whites ever knew," Mr. Hammer said, "and now they have become the most popular music in the country. Such tunes as "Old Black Joe," "Deep River," "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot" were absolutely unknown before radio picked them up and made them popular. Now, do you not think that radio weeds out all the poor songs, and that the good songs will stay. It weeds out all that ought not to endure."

Government Has Radio Trade Bulletin for Sale

A thorough review of the world radio markets in 1926 has been completed from reports of consular officers of the department of state and overseas representatives of the department of commerce. METROPOLITAN STARS TO SING ON WGN TONIGHT

Louise Hunter, Clarence Whitehill, Kent Program

The sacred confines of America's premier musical organization; the Metropolitan Opera, have at last been opened to radio. The closely guarded gates, which for generations have shut out the general public from rendition of the musical realm, have at last swung open to the microphone. Now, instead of being heard only by the chosen elite who have for years supplied the Metropolitan's famous golden horseshoe, the highest talent of the musical world may now be heard by almost any one who has a good radio set.

After long negotiations, of which neither the details nor the figures are yet known, the golden key of the famous "Met," as opera goers are wont to call it, was turned over to A. Atwater Kent. It is rumored that quite a sum of money was involved.

Two Stars in Broadcast.

In Mr. Kent's next concert, which will be broadcast tonight from W-G-N, the Metropolitan opera stars that have never before been permitted to broadcast in a series will be heard. Both of them, strange to say, are Americans. Miss Louise Hunter, talented Metropolitan soprano, was born in Middletown, O., while Clarence Whitehill, famous baritone, is a native of Peru. Mr. Whitehill, who studied in Paris on the advice of the famous diva, Madame Melba, was the first American male singer to secure an engagement at France's famous Opera Comique.

Rare Program Promised.

Miss Hunter, as have several other Metropolitan opera artists, started as a choir singer. Her audition at the Metropolitan followed three years of hard study in New York. The program chosen by the two stars will present several brilliant jewels in which the two artists have never before been heard outside the Metropolitan.

LONDON HEARS BIG FIGHT, BUT DECISION FADES

Fans Stay Up Till 4 to Listen.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 9.—Radio fans with short wave receivers heard much of the description of the Dempsey-Tunney fight from the ring side and many a fight fan interested in the contest got into domestic trouble by staying up till four a. m. to hear the results on the radio.

There was one important thing, however, that they missed. Just as the announcer was telling the world who won, the signals failed and listeners over here were unable to distinguish what he said.

This sudden fading out which is usually followed by an equally sudden return of strength, was an unexplainable feature of the broadcast.

Reception Fairly Clear.

In view of the statements made that short wave receiving sets had been useless for the last fortnight, it was interesting to see on this night how sounds were picked up from a distance of 3,500 miles.

First came the preliminary bouts. This was fortunate here because it permitted the listeners to accustom themselves to the rate at which the broadcaster described the rounds in a continuous flow of comment.

Then came the big fight which was not difficult to follow up to a point. There was an almost complete absence of atmospherics. There was no distortion and except for the sudden fading which cut out parts of sentences and sometimes several sentences every word was clear.

Decision Is Missed.

Each time the ringside bell sounded the noise came through clearly. Now and again the voices of the crowd could be heard. All the way through one or two especially shrill voices made themselves heard above everybody else.

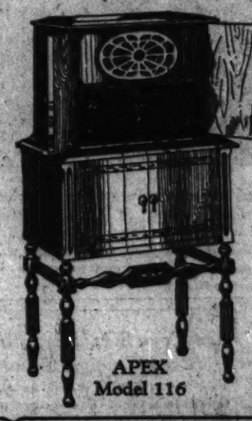

Finally the last bell sounded. The noises of the voices of the vast audience could be heard. Then just as the announcer was just about to give the decision the signals faded away to nothing.

Radio's First Guide Post!

Up to this year, buying a radio was a problem. How could you tell which was the best for you? They all claimed volume, and tone beauty, and selectivity. They all looked much alike. And yet there must be some leader, as there is in every field. Some radio perfected at last! And then someone thought of asking the broadcasting stations what radio they used—and then nobody had any more trouble selecting the radio for their homes.

We will be glad to send you, or any dealer will show you, the list of broadcasting stations all over the nation who answered "We use the Day-Fan radio to listen to our own programs."

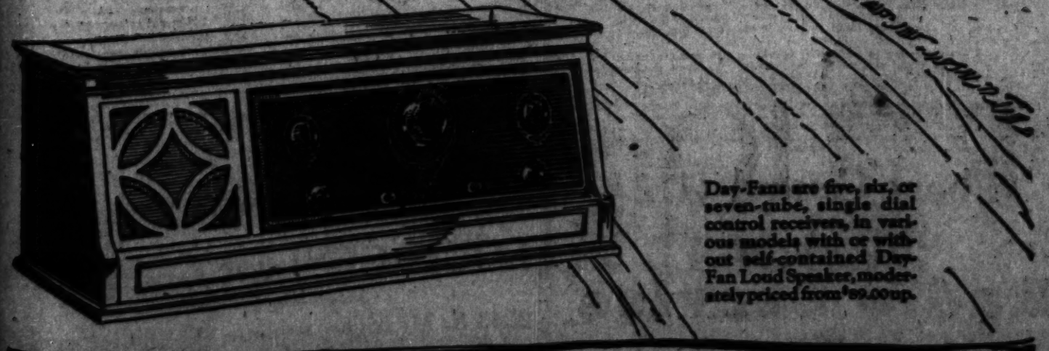

Radio's first guide-post.

As easy to go right with a Day-Fan radio now as it is to get the stations when you own one! All you need to do is to drop in on the nearest Day-Fan dealer and hear with your own ears the musical tone that has made Day-Fan the receiver of the broadcasting stations.

'Phone us if you don't know the nearest dealer's address.

And here's a simple little appliance to keep the electrical appliances in your home from making a noise in your radio, as they sometimes will unless you stop them. Obtainable only $1.50 and $10.00, and is pure fun to install in a week in planning.

WE URGE You to Visit Your RADIO SHOW

ONCE a year at the Radio Show are gathered together for your inspection the newest developments in radio—the latest set models, the most advanced types of loud speakers. In fact, everything new in radio.

Many of the world's most brilliant radio engineers are devoting their lives to improving and perfecting radio for your enjoyment.

To see the result of their labors is in itself a liberal education. We urge you to attend.

There are five Kolster models—two six tube and three eight tube—all single controls, some for antenna—others for loop operation. Prices are from $25 to $375. Each model has exclusive Kolster features. Every Kolster is fully guaranteed.

Brandes Reproducers range from the Table Cone at $12.50 to the Power Cone at $250. Each model incorporates the results of eighteen years of continuous development work in radio acoustics.

But Remember

Looking at radio sets reveals only a partial story. What you hear is the all-important thing. Claims mean nothing. Anyone can make them. Demonstration is the only safe way to judge radio.

Kolster Sets and Brandes Reproducers have won hosts of friends as the result of demonstrations.

Of course, they are beautiful. And they are advanced in engineering. But to really judge them, we urge you to hear. Visit our display at the Radio Show. We will gladly answer your questions.

Then ask your nearest Kolster-Brandes dealer for a Kolster-Brandes demonstration. Should you not know where to find him, phone to our distributor whose name appears below.

GOVERNMENT BOOK TELLS HOW TO ERECT AERIALS

Rules and Regulations Are Given.

"In erecting antennas and guy wires for your radio sets, see that you do not attach them to telegraph or electric light poles, do not carry your wires over streets or tracks, and avoid crossing electrical conductors of all kinds," warns the bureau of standards in its new handbook, No. 9, "Safety Rules for Radio Installations."

Antenna supports must be sufficiently rigid and of such size as to withstand any load which may come on them. Attachment to chimneys should be avoided. Metal poles or masts extending more than 10 feet above the supporting building must be permanently and effectively grounded, according to the handbook.

Lead-Ins and Grounds.

For receiving sets lead-in conductors should be not less than .064 inch in diameter, if of copper, nor less than .045 inch, if made of bronze or copper-covered steel. Clearances are given between lead-in wires and other conductors on the building, and it is recommended that lead-in conductors be "securely fastened in a workmanlike manner." The code also requires that the lead-in wire shall enter the building "through a rigid, noncombustible, nonabsorptive insulating tube or bushing, or through a drilled window pane."

Grounds must not be made to gas pipes, but should be made to cold water pipes, if these are connected to a street main. An outlet pipe from a water tank fed by a street main or a well may be used, provided such is adequately bonded to the inlet pipe connected to the street main or well. Where the wire is attached suitable clamps must be used, and the entire surface of the pipe covered by the clamp must be scraped clean.

Books on Sale.

Rules for the application of protective devices, such as lightning arresters and antenna grounding switch, are also given. If your set is connected to a power supply line, the device used and methods of wiring must be in accordance with the rules covering permanent or portable fixtures, devices, and appliances given in section 37 of the national electrical safety code.

Copies of handbook No. 9 may be obtained from the superintendent of documents, government printing office, Washington, D. C., for 10 cents each.

SMALLEST RADIO SET

The radio set which Miss Betty Ward is seen holding between her fingers is said to be the world's smallest receiver. It is built in a thimble and the little tags hanging down show where to attach the wires. In her other hand is a radio set built in the form of a peanut. Both sets will be displayed at the radio show which opens in the Coliseum tomorrow.

American Sets Useless in Many Foreign Countries

Radio sets used in America would be useless in most of the countries of the eastern hemisphere as they use wave lengths above 600 meters.

RADIO VETERAN SAYS CHICAGO LEADS INDUSTRY

Sees City as Center of Progressiveness.

Chicago is the center of real progressiveness in the radio industry. This will be impressed upon thousands of people here next week when the Chicago Radio show gets under way at the Coliseum, according to Frank Reichmann one of the veterans in the industry.

"Chicago manufacturers, broadcasters and listeners have been ahead of those of other sections of the country ever since Dr. De Forrest first discovered the three element tube while experimenting in his west side rooming house," said Mr. Reichmann. "The large number of broadcasting stations in Chicago early in the history of radio made the best of sets necessary for listeners here.

"A few Chicagoans organized the Radio Manufacturers' association here as a local organization for betterment of conditions and the stabilizing of the industry. Today it is the foremost organization in radio and numbers in its membership the leading manufacturers of the United States. Chicago manufacturers came through the panicky days of radio with less losses than those in any section of the country, due to high quality of products and sounder business sense.

"Chicago had the first broadcast listeners organization and the first municipal radio commission. It today has probably the most stable and best organized local association of broadcasters in the world. In fact, Chicago has set the pace for all other sections of the country in all branches of radio development and indications are that it will continue to do so for all time to come."

SOUTH AMERICA'S LARGEST STATION COMES ON THE AIR

What is claimed to be the largest radio broadcasting station in South America was inaugurated recently in Sao Paulo, Brazil, according to a report from Consul General Gaulin at Rio de Janeiro, made public by the United States department of commerce.

The station is owned by the Sociedad Radio Educadora Paulista. The equipment, which is of American manufacture, has been designed to give a reproduction of all frequencies between 30 and 7,000 cycles. The transmitter is rated at 1,000 watts and has a capacity of 3,500 watts. The transmitter uses a 50 watt speech amplifier, 250 watt modulation, 250 watt oscillator, and a 5 kilowatt water colled amplifier.

RADIO BRINGS OUTSIDE WORLD TO ALASKANS

ANVIK, Alaska, Oct. 9.—During a certain period of the year, when the ice on the rivers in Alaska is just breaking up, neither dog sledges nor boats can get through from the outside, and at such times the only means by which this settlement is kept in touch with the outside world is through the amateur radio station of the Rev. Mr. Chapman, operating under the call TTE.

Mr. Chapman, who has spent many years of his life in the north, first became interested in amateur radio about four years ago, seeing in this hobby an agency by which he could be kept in communication with the United States during critical months when other means of communication are entirely cut off. With the help of some Seattle members of the American Radio Relay league, the national association of transmitting amateurs, a small transmitter and receiver were constructed, and were shipped to Anvik, where Mr. Chapman soon learned how to operate sufficiently well to enable him to communicate regularly with Pacific coast amateurs.

Since the installation of the set it has been of invaluable service to the community, Dr. Chapman states, and many messages are sent by this means each season.

GREAT YEAR FOR RADIO IS SEEN IN EXPOSITIONS

Show to Move to St. Louis from Here.

Conveyed by the most pretentious array of radio exhibitions in the history of the industry, the 1926-'27 radio season is now well under way and promises to eclipse all others. To Los Angeles, probably, went the honor of having the first radio show of the season, with New York City and Winnipeg, Canada, tying for second place. Then came Akron, O.; Houston, Portland, Ore.; Cleveland, Boston, Minneapolis, Chicago, Kansas City, Mo., Pittsburgh, and now the fifth annual radio show here, which opens tomorrow.

From Chicago the exhibition will move to the second southwest national radio show, St. Louis, Oct. 12; the Buffalo radio show, Oct. 16; the fifth annual Detroit radio show, Oct. 25; the second annual Indianapolis radio exposition, Oct. 25; the Toronto radio show, Oct. 25; the third annual radio exposition, Brooklyn, Oct. 30, the Cleveland radio industries exposition, Oct. 30, and the fourth Wisconsin radio exposition, Milwaukee, Nov. 9.

The season will unquestionably make a great step forward in increasing the popularity of daytime broadcasting. The world series baseball games and the Cubs and Sox games were the first of these broadcasts, while following will be the broadcasting of the national football classics, boat races, in fact, all outdoor sports, including ice hockey.

Added to this there will be a brand new country-wide daytime housekeeping chat for farm and city wives by the United States department of agriculture, moonday and afternoon tea concerts galore, and other daylight features too numerous to mention. Then there will be the inauguration of the United States farm radio school. The air will be made as interesting in the daytime as at night.

RUNDOWN BATTERIES PRINCIPAL CAUSE OF RADIO TROUBLES

There is no panacea for radio ills, but the nearest thing to a cure-all is the maintaining of all batteries in a fully charged condition. This applies almost equally to A, B and C batteries.

The majority of "noise troubles" in radio reception can be traced to low batteries. A low A battery, particularly when supplying filament current to tubes in a resistance coupled amplifier, often results in harsh, unpleasant reproduction with a sustained grating sound generally confused with blasting. A step on the floor is sufficient to set up this disturbance. Also, a low A battery increases the plate filament impedance of the amplifying tubes, with a loss of low notes—a tinny reproduction—and concomitant distortions.

A low B battery is often responsible for hisses and crackling. When very low, the increased resistance of the cells affords an efficient interstage coupling resistor, setting up sustained howls in the amplifier. This species of howl can generally be affected by touching one of the grid posts with the finger. A dropping B battery also causes distortion of the same order effected by a low filament supply—loss of low notes—as well as additional strains identified as just plain distortion.

WBAP Announcer Kicks, Becomes the "Hired Hand"

Harold Hough of WBAP, Fort Worth, Tex., some time ago became exasperated because so many different things were given him to do. "I'm simply the hired hand around here," he is reported to have said. The name stuck and as the "Hired Hand" he is one of the best known radio announcers in the southwest.

NEW COMPANY TO HOOK UP U. S. IN A BIG RADIO CHAIN

Although further plans of the newly organized National Broadcasting company have not been announced, it is currently reported that in addition to the present WEAF chain, which normally numbers about sixteen stations, one and possibly more big chains will be formed under the company's direction.

The objective is said to be to hook such a comprehensive network of stations that in the time of a national calamity the president from the White House at Washington, or the army chief of staff from the war department, could virtually talk to the entire country, as Gen. Pershing did several years ago.

TUBES VITAL IN SET AS SPARK PLUGS IN AUTO

"A new set of spark plugs" was the cure-all for motor ills when automobiles were formidable things that scared horses. A present day remedy for balky radio sets is "a new set of tubes."

Frequently a poor tube causes trouble with a radio set just as a poor spark plug caused trouble in motor engines, but seldom is it necessary to install an entire new set to correct the trouble caused by one, provided that one can be located and eliminated.

NEW MO-MOD-IC ERLA RECEIVER

A Message to Radio Owners

And Prospective Purchasers

We Know You Are Interested in good radio reception; in having your radio at its highest point of efficiency at all times; in being free from service worries and in obtaining the most for your investment at the lowest possible service cost—hence, we present the following data:

Facts

There are over 200,000 radio sets in the city of Chicago, according to last reports. Every year will see 50,000 additional radio set owners in our city.

A radio set is a mechanical apparatus. It will deteriorate both outside and in. Its deterioration is gradual and, therefore, at times unnoticed until operation ceases. The antenna especially deteriorates rapidly and without notice. An antenna installation made last year is not always good this year. Eliminating the question of deterioration in the antenna, its length might have been satisfactory last year, but this year prove very unsatisfactory. The reason for this can be readily understood when one contemplates the continual change in the power of broadcasting stations, the change in types of tubes, the change from batteries to power units, and the change in loud speakers. The age of a storage battery will affect the operation of your radio set and the age of tubes and batteries will affect consumption of current.

Periodic inspection of a radio set, representing very small cost to the owner, will save many dollars in replacement of tubes and batteries, when such inspection is expertly made and continual instruction given to the owner.

Truth About Service

Real service on radio involves more than has heretofore been exemplified by service men you have been familiar with. Real service should include the following: On every call made by a service man: First, the appearance of the service representative should be neat. His first duty on the set should be a request for the owner to operate the set on a designated station to determine whether such owner is familiar with its operation. His next duty should be to inspect the aerial, determine its length, direction and method of installation, making any corrections necessary as he proceeds. The ground wire should next receive attention, then the tubes, batteries, power supply units, loud speaker and the interior of the radio set. Every part should be tested, checked and adjusted. Unless it is actually known that tubes and batteries are new, the owner information should be imparted to the service organization when calling for a service man. All defects should be found and adjusted by the service man and then after the set is in proper shape, the owner may state what he believes to have been the trouble with the set. Otherwise, a statement of the trouble existing made prior to the call may result in the adjustment of that one particular feature, while others may be on the borderline, or actually in trouble and thereby create additional unwarranted expense to the owner.

Upon completion of the work the owner should again be requested to operate the set, and if incorrectly operated, instruction therein should be given.

Our Service

Our service includes all of the above work. Our charges do not include the time of our man traveling between the office and the owner's home, nor his return therefrom.

(a) Individual calls: Our rate for individual calls is $1.50 per hour for the actual time spent on the set, with a minimum charge of $1.50. Our man's time begins at the shop the work for his convenience is based upon the number of cases satisfactorily handled in one day. As we sell nothing but service, we are interested in preventing you from expending any more money than is absolutely necessary for tubes, batteries, etc.

(b) Contract calls: We recommend owner contracts for service work on an annual basis. It is only logical that a mechanical apparatus tested and adjusted periodically will have a longer life for all its different parts than one attended to only after the apparatus has gone completely dead. Contract calls may eliminate any length of time necessary to collect the set, whether it be one hour or three hours—the charge is the same.

For one call per month for 12 months, the contract charge is $1.25 per month. For two calls per month for twelve months the contract charge is $2.00 per month. The cost to the owner for maintenance of a radio set up to its highest point of efficiency at the above rates is less than 5c for day and approximately 8¢ per annum on an investment in a radio set representing $100.00, and at this rate should make your set good for at least twenty years.

There is no guessing to our work. We know how and can prove it to you by actual performances and results. We know that we have yet to meet an unsatisfied customer and that our old customers have brought us more than 50% of our present clientele.

Winter and good radio reception are fast approaching. Now is the time for us to look at your radio set. Phone us today—Sunday—any day or night, and we will call and adjust your trouble no matter what that trouble may be, and no matter what type of set you may own.

GOVERNMENT TO USE RADIO TO AID CIVIL AVIATION

9,500 Miles of Air Lanes to Be Guarded.

One of the important phases of the civil aeronautics program to establish a transcontinental network of radio stations and airports, now under way in the department of commerce, is the development of radio aids for aircraft. Among the first moves in this direction is the installation at College Park, Md., of an equisignal radio beacon of the type built by the bureau of standards incorporating the interlocking and go-ahead features developed by the signal corps engineers at McCook field, Dayton, O.

This beacon will be installed in one corner of the aviation field at College Park. A seventy foot wooden tower, painted a brilliant yellow, so that pilots coming to the field may easily see it, will hold the antenna system. It will be made of wood, so that it will not influence the directive properties of the antenna system. The beacon apparatus will be put in a small wooden house, built directly under the tower. An airplane, piloted by an army officer, will be maintained at this field for the experimental work of the bureau of standards.

200 Miles Apart.

Research work is now in progress at the radio laboratory of the bureau of standards on a number of features which it is hoped will improve the operation of the beacon, among these a new type of interlocking switch and much smaller type of goniometer. It is important that the best possible type of beacons be built before a number of installations are made along the various air routes.

Radio beacons and radio telephone stations are to be established on all air routes, covering approximately 9,500 miles, the beacons at intervals of 200 miles and radio telephone stations about 100 miles. For an example, lights will be established in the vicinity of New York City and Boston, the distance between these cities being approximately 185 miles, and a radio telephone station at Hartford, about half way between them. There will be about fifty beacons and ninety-five telephone stations when the system is complete. Beacons will used 1,034 meters, and the telephone radio stations will broadcast in the bands between 500 and 545 meters. One kilowatt power will be used. The best type of radio transmitting apparatus for use at the airports and on the airplanes is now being studied by the bureau of standards also.

Weather Bureau Cooperating.

The success of civil aviation, is, to a certain extent dependent upon weather information. The weather bureau has been investigating the needs thoroughly so as to provide prompt, effective and economical weather reports to suite the increasing aircraft and their personnel while in the air.

The weather bureau now has, or is establishing, aerological stations at Selfridge field, New Brunswick, N. J.; Air Mail field, Cleveland, O.; campus of University of Chicago, Chicago; Air Mail field, Fort Crook, Neb.; weather bureau station, Cheyenne, Wyo.; weather bureau station, Salt Lake City, Utah, and the Air Mail field at Concord, near San Francisco, Cal.

Other stations will be established as they become necessary, the bureau having a $75,000 appropriation for such work during the year.

"We are able now to enlarge our chain of upper air observing stations so that we may get the necessary additional weather service for the air fleets," said Charles C. Clark, assistant chief of the weather bureau.

Will Aid Pilots.

"The airship dispatcher will put this weather information on the radio at the radio distributing stations for radio directional work located along the commercial airways. This information, valuable in the navigation of the increasing traffic in the air lanes, will thus be put quickly in the possession of air pilots, and if in danger because of storms or other adverse condition would give him the danger-ahead signal and the opportunity to land to avoid danger.

"All this is providing for the most important phase of forecast work for aviation, the safeguarding of lives of those aboard the aircraft and the safety of the ships, and also enabling air pilots to take advantage of the wind when it is in their favor, to discount head winds, and to make their schedules more precisely."

HOOVER LOOKS FOR ACTION SOON ON RADIO BILL

Secretary Hoover has hopes that there may be early action on the part of the conference on the White radio control bill which passed the house last session and the Dill bill in the senate. It is Mr. Hoover's understanding that the conference will assemble in Washington shortly after the November elections and ahead of the congressional session.

The two bills are pretty much alike, except that they differ on the important question as to who shall actually be in control of radio. The White bill provides control by Secretary Hoover with an advisory commission, but the Dill bill would eliminate the secretary of commerce and give the control to an independent commission, much on the order of the interstate commerce commission.

Senator C. C. Dill of Washington, author of the bill, believes some sort of radio control bill will be passed by congress by Jan. 1.

CHAOS GUMS UP PROGRAMS FOR NEBRASKA FAIR

But Officials' Hands Are Tied.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Pointed to as a forerunner of what may be expected is chaos results from the government failure to provide radio legislation is a complaint just received from a listener in Nebraska by officials at Washington. This letter tells of the bad reception which the listener declares is being caused by five stations which changed their wave lengths.

Two of the offending stations, the complaint sets forth, jumped to one wave length, two more seized a second, and the fifth appropriated still another. All of these wave lengths were already carrying as much traffic as they could bear, the result being, so far as the Nebraska listener was concerned, that the reception of programs from 23 standard high grade stations was affected.

Good Programs Marred.

In other words, where the Nebraska listener had been accustomed to clear reception of certain outstanding stations in Illinois, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, Kentucky, District of Columbia, California, Cuba, and Canada, the programs of these stations are now distorted or entirely killed. And this notwithstanding the fact, the listener advises Washington officials, that she is an experienced operator, using a six tube receiver of standard make and very selective.

Sees Silver Lining.

"This seems very significant to me," one government official said. "I believe the trouble this Nebraska listener is encountering is an indication of trouble listeners in other parts of the country will find they have on their hands. I am hoping for the best, but I believe when the weather cools off much interference will materialize. If so, however, there will be a silver lining to the cloud inasmuch as the more trouble there is the quicker action will be hastened by congress to provide a new radio control law."

OCTOBER IN RADIO HISTORY

1901—The first fan aerials were erected for experiments between Poldhu, England, and Newfoundland.

1905—Construction at Clifden, Ireland, of a high power radio station was commenced.

1907—Transatlantic stations at Clifden and Glace Bay were opened for limited public service.

1913—The Volturno was burned in mid-Atlantic. In response to the wireless appeal 10 vessels came to the rescue and 521 lives were saved.

1914—E. H. Armstrong was issued a patent covering the regenerative circuit, also known as superheterodyne circuit.

1915—Communication was effected across the Atlantic from Arlington to the Eiffel tower, Paris.

1923—Vienna fire department installed receiving sets on apparatus.

1924—Radio vision, or seeing by radio, loomed as possibility.

1925—Remarkable development of short waves. Discovered that short wave signals which could not be heard 1,000 miles away were distinctly heard 10,000 miles away.

1926—Following an epoch making year in sending photographs by radio weather maps are broadcast to United States naval vessels.

FANS CAN TEST INSTRUMENTS BY RADIO SIGNALS

The United States bureau of standards has announced a new schedule of radio signals of standard frequencies, for use by the public in standardising wave meters and transmitting and receiving apparatus. The signals are transmitted from the bureau's station WWV, Washington, D. C.

The transmissions are by continuous wave radio telegraphy. The signals have a slight modulation of high pitch which aids in their identification. A complete frequency transmission includes a "general call," a "standard frequency signal," and "announcements." The "general call" is given at the beginning of the 8 minute period and continues for about 2 minutes. This includes a statement of the frequency. The "standard frequency signal" is a series of very long dashes with the call letter [WWV] intervening. This signal continues for about 4 minutes. The "announcements" are on the same frequency as the "standard frequency signal" just transmitted and contain a statement of the frequency. An annoucement of the next frequency to be transmitted is then given.

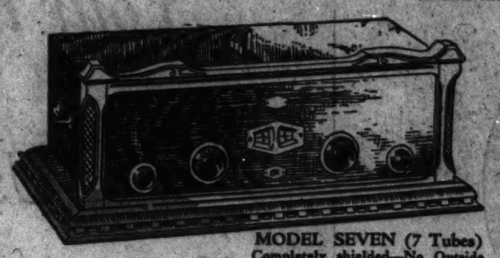

The signals can be heard and utilized by stations equipped for continuous wave reception at distances up to about 500 to 1,000 miles from the transmitting station. Information on how to receive and utilize the signals is given in bureau of standard letter circular No. 171, which may be obtained on application from the bureau of standards, Washington, D. C. Even though only a few frequency points are received, persons can obtain as complete a frequency meter calibration as desired by the method of generator harmonics, information on which is given in the letter circular.

Operate your radio set from the light socket with

Balkite "B" and a Balkite charger

Your light socket is your most convenient source of radio power
Use it to operate your present set

Now you can have light socket operation, with your present radio set. By merely adding Balkite "B" and a Balkite Charger.

Balkite "B" eliminates "B" batteries entirely and supplies "B" current from the socket. It is the proved, popular light socket "B" supply. Over 75,000 Balkite "B"s are now giving satisfactory service. Many have already been in use for over three years. To our knowledge not one has ever worn out. Balkite "B" has no tubes to renew and no dials to complicate tuning. It is made in three models to take care of all types of sets.

Either the new Balkite Charger or the popular Balkite Trickle Charger, once connected to your "A" battery and the light socket, may be left on permanent or trickle charge. Instead of operating intermittently at a high rate, they operate continuously at a low rate, thus automatically keeping the battery at full charge. In effect they make your "A" battery a light socket "A" power supply. The new Balkite Charger, with its auxiliary high rate, provides in addition a ready reserve for heavy duty use.

All Balkite Radio Power Units are noiseless in operation. They are permanent pieces of equipment with nothing to replace or renew. They require no other attention than the infrequent addition of water. They cannot deteriorate from either use or disuse. Other than slight consumption of household current, their first cost is the last. They are built to conform with the standards of the Underwriters' Laboratories. They are simple to install and require no changes in your set.

Balkite Radio Power Units are the last word in radio convenience. Over 650,000 receivers are already Balkite equipped. Equip yours, too, with Balkite. Not until then will you know the pleasure of owning a set always ready to perform at its best.

A New Balkite "B" at $27.50

Balkite "B" is one of the outstanding successes in radio. It eliminates "B" batteries and supplies "B" current from the light socket. It is entirely different from any other "B" device. It is entirely noiseless, permanent, has no bulbs and nothing to wear out or replace. Over 75,000 Balkite "B"s are today giving satisfactory service on every type of receiver. Three new models for all types of sets: The new popular-priced Balkite "B"-W at $27.50 for sets of 5 tubes or less requiring 67 to 90 volts. Balkite "B"-X, for sets of 8 tubes or less; capacity 30 milliamperes at 135 volts—$42. Balkite "B"-Y, for any standard radio set; capacity 40 milliamperes at 150 volts—$69.

A New Balkite Charger with both trickle and high charging rates

MODEL J. Has two charging rates: a low trickle charge rate for continuous operation and a high rate for rapid charging and heavy-duty use. Can thus be used either as a trickle or as a high rate charger. This new charger thus combines the advantages of both systems. Noiseless. Large water capacity. Visible electrolyte level. Rates: with 6-volt battery, 2.5 and .5 amperes; with 4-volt battery, .8 and .2 amperes. Special model for 25-40 cycles with 1.5 ampere high-rate. Price $19.50.

Balkite Trickle Charger—$10

MODEL K. With 6-volt "A" batteries can be left on continuous or trickle charge automatically keeping the battery at full power. Converts your "A" battery into a light socket "A" power supply. With 4-volt batteries can be used as an intermittent charger. Or as a trickle charger if a resistance is added. Rate about .5 ampere. 200,000 in use. Price $10.

Balkite Combination —furnishes automatic radio power

When connected to your "A" battery it supplies automatic power to both "A" and "B" circuits. Controlled by the filament switch on your set it is entirely automatic in operation. Can be installed in a few minutes, and can be put either near the set or in a remote location. A permanent piece of equipment, employing no tubes and requiring no replacements. Will serve any set now using either 4 or 6-volt "A" batteries and requiring not more than 30 milliamperes at 135 volts of "B" current—practically all sets of up to 8 tubes. At your dealer's soon. Price $59.50.

All Balkite Radio Power Units operate from 110-120 volt AC current with models for both 60 and 50 cycles. Also 25-40 cycle Balkite Charger.

MAIDEN MEDITATIONS

By Sara Moore

MAMIE HICKEY'S SHORTHAND DIARY.

(Patent not applied for.)

The ice box yielded up its hoard;
Its contents seemed of little use:
"No oranges!" "No ginger ale!"
(Jazzed juniper needs some excuse.)
The hostess sadly shook her head;
"We can't drink that dope plain,"
she said.

The gentle sub-deb gently cursed,
But inspiration thwarted thirst—
Bill seized the stuff that packs a grin,
Of grape juice white poured two parts in,
A dash of honey—"Torrid pup!"
With ice he shook the mixture up.

What is it—cocktail, punch, or rickey—
That's hereby named for Mamie Hickey?

SEASON 1926.

"Mother, what of the social swim?"
"Why, my darling daughter,
Cut your clothes to fashion's whim,
And—meet the folks you oughter."

"What is the rule for debutantes?"
"Customs seldom vary;
Mind your little I. O. U.'s;
Eat, drink, and be—chary."

NOTHING BUT THE TRUTH.

Said John Sloan to the night art school class in picture composition: "It is the privilege of the artist to record only pleasant truths."

Ah! John, I must recall your words
Whenever I drift down the street
And note such lovely silken curves
'Twixt bony knees and lumpy feet.
If I should sketch but pleasant truths
The drawing would not be complete. . . .

Shall tell but pleasant truths? Not add
A pleasant lie in times of stress?
My model's form is beautiful . . .
But gosh! she wears an ugly dress.

WHY THEY LOVE 'EM AND LEAVE 'EM.

That girlish dream of Hollywood,
Can it survive more shocks?
A movie actor owns, one reads,
A thousand pair of socks.
A thousand pair of socks! Ye Gods!
A hole in every one. . . .
The wife who vowed eternal love
Could never get them done.

HOW TO USE THE PATTERNS

THE neck line of pattern No. 2690 has a slenderizing effect, particularly becoming to large figures. And this design with the straight front and back is extremely good. The necessary fullness at the hem line is accomplished by the plaited insets on each side. The pattern provides for flaring side sections, if they are preferred to the plaited ones, and full length sleeves, collar, and vest complete this smart design.

The front of the dress is slashed down from the neck in the center to a given perforation, and after the shoulder and underarm seams are joined the collar is made and attached to the neck. Perforations show just where the vest is to be fastened to the right side of the dress, and it is also fastened on the left side for a way at the bottom, leaving about four inches open to be able to get into and out of the dress. The side sections are set in place after the underarm seams are finished, pinning first at the center top, then along the upper edge and down both sides, working always from the top down. Before setting the side sections in place the edges of the dress are first turned in, allowing a good half inch seam. After the sections have been pinned and basted in place it will be a good idea to overcast the seam edges in fine stitches. Then stitch the sections in place, using two rows of stitching, one close to the turned in edge, and the second about three-eighths of an inch inside.

Depending on the materials and colors used, this design will be suitable for afternoon or street wear. Navy blue flat silk crêpe would be lovely for a street dress; so would black crêpe satin or a lightweight broadcloth. Royal blue crêpe Roma and almond green mirrodeen would be charming used in combination for an afternoon dress. The front and back panels can be used of one material, and the collar, vest, cuffs, and side sections of the other. And if crêpe satin is used, the reverse side of the material will make the contrasting note.

Pattern No. 2631 is for a smart dress for school or for dressy wear. The front is in panel style, while in the back there is a long waisted upper part, joined to a gathered skirt. This skirt extends around the sides to meet the panel in the middle front. The high neck with the pretty collar, finished with a tie with long ends in the front, the drop shoulders to which are attached the full length sleeves, and the embroidered pockets are all interesting features. Notches on the pocket pattern show where the tie strings forming the sash are to be attached. The dress is slashed down from the neck to the middle front and the edges are bound; and while the dress may be worn open at the neck, it will be smarter to use the tie strings in a bow as the picture shows.

Wool rep, challies or one of the plaited materials will be fine for school wear; and crêpe de chine might be used for a "best" dress.

Patterns No. 2830 is for a smart straight line dress, with pretty neck, finished with a narrow collar that ends in ties. There is an applied band down the center front and buttons are used for trimming effect. Full length sleeves, gathered into narrow wristbands and a narrow sash around the low waistline, ending in tie strings complete the dress. At the bottom, for size 36, the dress measures about 1⅝ yards. It should be easy to cut and make, and the directions with the pattern tell how, quite easily.

One of the soft silk wool crêpes or wool jerseys would make up well; and it will be a good idea to use a contrasting color and material for the vest, wristbands, tie strings and collar.

2690—Woman's dress. Sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 40 inch material with ¾ yard of 27 inch contrasting.

2830—Woman's and miss' dress. Sizes 16 years and 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 2⅞ yards of 40 inch material with ⅞ yard of 40 inch contrasting.

2631—Girl's dress. Sizes 6, 8, 10, 12, and 14 years. Size 8 requires 1¾ yards of 40 inch material with ⅞ yard of 27 inch contrasting. The embroidery pattern—704—comes in blue and yellow and costs 15 cents extra.

Strange Weddings

Have you ever seen a wedding so outlandish that it upset all your ideas of the traditional ceremony? Some marriages are foreign and quaint in their adherence to ancient customs; others are ultra modern in their haphazard speed and unconventionality. The Tribune would like to know the story of the strangest wedding you've ever seen. We will pay $1 for every letter published. Address: Strange Weddings, Chicago Tribune.

Weepy Wedding.

The strangest wedding I can remember was just like a funeral. Everybody was crying. The bride was an only child, the bridegroom an only son. Both mothers were widows. Each wanted the young couple to live with her, so they finally consented to live six months each year with each one.

Between sobs first one mother, then the other, would cry out, "O, my, what a great loss! How can I live without my only child?" until no one present had the heart to congratulate the young people. We were more than glad when it was time to go home.

MRS. T. F. O'C.

Married in a Vault.

Kentucky was the state of our birth, and we wanted to go back there for the event. It was bitter cold, with a raw wind from the lake in Chicago, but that Kentucky morning dawned bright and warm, and although March, it seemed mid-June.

A former army friend of my husband's introduced us to the clerk, in the historic old Jefferson county court house, and as we were married by another friend, a judge, the ceremony was performed there.

The clerk, with much other business to attend to wanted to act as a witness, and didn't want the wedding interrupted, so he took the whole party—bridegroom, judge, witnesses, and all, into the vault off his office! And there, amid the rows of huge books, recording the marriages of countless thousands, during the many years the court house had been in use, we were married—"in the archives," as it were—and truly a ceremony not soon duplicated!

MRS. L. V. D.

Fifty Years After.

My cousin was married on the day that our grandparents celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary. The wedding took place in the same church in which our grandparents were married and the same clergyman officiated. The couple, who were bridesmaid and best man at the first wedding, stood beside the bridal pair of 1924. E. C.

Practical Joke.

Years ago I attended a wedding out in the country. The snow was deep and the roads almost impassible, and the bride was obliged to wade through the drifts, so she wore her father's rubber boots and carried what she believed to be her slippers. Arriving late, she opened the parcel only to discover that some joker had substituted an old shoe, for luck. So she shuffled up the aisle and the knot was tied to an accompaniment of suppressed laughter.

BRIGHT SAYINGS of HUSBANDS & WIVES

The quaintly caustic comeback of the better half when cornered has often been a source of wonder to husbands and wives! The husband or the wife has come across with a bright saying that will never be forgotten by the other half of the matrimonial sketch. What was that bright saying, Mr.? Mrs.? Send it to us, and we'll pay you $1 for it if we print it. Address Bright Sayings of Husbands and Wives, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago.

Do It Yourself.

"Did you put out the cat?"

"Yes."

"I don't believe it."

"Well, if you think I'm a liar, put him out yourself." H. P. M.

The Only Time.

Wife [speaking of a recent surprise]: "Then words failed me."

Hubby: "It was the only time they ever did, then." F. W. A.

Big and Clean.

Mrs. Sippi (to humorous but unambitious husband): "Don't you want to do something big and clean before you die?"

He: "I suppose you'll tell me now to wash an elephant." H. H.

It Still Holds Good.

Husband: "If a man steals—no matter what it is—he will live to regret it."

Wife: "During our courtship you used to steal kisses from me."

Husband: "Well, you heard what I said." S. A. E.

Ouch!

Wife—I am getting fed up on people wanting to borrow, and to know what time it is, and where the Smith's moved.

Husband—Perhaps they read your motto, "I want to live in a house by the side of the road and be a friend to man." M. B.

Mutual.

Having a large house I had decided to rent rooms. A friend, in the presence of my husband, asked if I was going to take in boarders, also.

I exclaimed with feeling, "O, I'd die if I had to take in boarders," and he softly said, "and so would the boarders!" MRS. M. B.

Nursing as a Profession - By Georgia Bayne

NURSING, as a profession, and in many present day branches of activity, is one of the most vitally useful and necessary of any of the lines of work open to a woman. It is a well paid profession, and usually interesting. As in almost any distinctively individual work, there are "born" nurses and intensively trained nurses. The "born" nurse is the woman who has instinctive love for it. The intensively trained woman is one without this natural passion for nursing service, but who, through education and training and experience, can expect success in proportion to the amount of intelligent effort she puts into it.

Today, nurses, broadly speaking, are divided into two classes, the private nurses and the public health nurse. There is also the institutional nurse, but in many cases her work would come under that of the public health nurse, as the majority of institutions employing nurses are institutions considering themselves as instruments of the great modern health movement in the country.

Training schools for nurses are connected with all of the large and most of the small hospitals. There are even some with universities.

Private Nursing.

The work of the private nurse is extremely varied. If her case takes her into the home of a wealthy family, she naturally has all that money can buy to work with, servants to wait upon her, and, if the case is an arduous one, often shares her twenty-four hour day with another nurse.

If the case is in a home where the expense of her salary is hard to meet, her day is usually a twenty-four hour one, with two hours off in the afternoon for fresh air. If the patient requires constant attention at night as well as in the daytime, she gets what sleep she can when some member of the family relieves her. Of course, no nurse can be up day and night indefinitely, and it is only in some crisis that it is expected of her.

The private nurse often finds opportunities of traveling with an ailing rich patient; often remains in a home for years where she has every luxury and is treated as a member of the family.

In hospitals the trained nurse on the case is usually the only one, unless after a serious operation where the patient needs day and night care. In that case there are usually two nurses until the critical time has passed.

Her salary averages $7 a day. Nurses along special lines, contagious disease nurses, receive more. The nurse's board is included and often her laundry. Of course, while her salary is a high one, it must be remembered that unless a nurse possesses unusual physical vigor she cannot expect to work steadily eleven months out of the year. Many nurses are forced to rest for a little time after each arduous case.

The Visiting Nurse.

The visiting nurse comes under the head of a public health nurse. Briefly defined, a public health nurse is a graduate nurse doing social work in which the public health is concerned.

In Chicago, as in many large cities, the visiting nurse association is a large and efficient organization. A nurse's duties consist of giving care to bed confined patients in a home that cannot afford to engage other service; to give instruction in nursing care to the family of the patient, as her visits are necessarily brief. She has become an indispensable instrument, working with county physicians and private physicians caring for and looking after the welfare of maternity cases, emergency cases, chronic cases and those numberless ills of human nature which, when they occur in the families of the less prosperous, become a great tragedy, threatening the existence, often times, of the family afflicted.

In securing work with the Visiting Nurses' association of Chicago, a girl must be a graduate, registered nurse.

A high school graduate is given preference over a girl who has not graduated. Some knowledge of foreign language is desired, and much stress is laid on personality. The kind of girl, in other words, who likes people and whom people like, whose genuine interest in others draws from them an instinctive response, who is sympathetic and efficient and level headed is the person who is wanted. For many are the emergencies which the visiting nurse must meet in her daily round of calls on her patients.

Salaries range from $120 to $175 a month. While there is no standard salary schedule for all cities this may be said to represent an average. In Chicago the Visiting Nurse association keeps from 111 to 120 nurses in the field.

Infant Welfare Nurses.

Infant welfare nursing includes the care of the mother during pregnancy, the care of themselves and child afterwards; thorough, careful watching and supervision. The reducing of infant mortality throughout the country through infant welfare stations and nursing has been tremendous.

The Infant Welfare society of Chicago is one of the largest in the country and may well be taken as one of the finest examples of such work. Infant welfare stations are provided throughout the city which mothers attend with their small babies to have them weighed, watched over, their diet regulated, and to receive thorough instruction regarding their care in the different trying seasons of the year.

Infant welfare nurses, in Chicago, must be graduate nurses, and in addition to this, they must have been graduated from a training school in connection with a hospital where they have had experience in the care of children.

The average salary is $125 a month. At the present time the Infant Welfare society of Chicago has 49 field nurses, with 3 supervisors.

Tuberculosis Nurses.

Another tremendously worth while organization is the Tuberculosis society. Every large city and hundreds of smaller cities have one. In Chicago it is a powerful factor for the checking of what was once the most dreaded of diseases, but which now, through the energy of nurses and doctors over the country, is showing a vast decrease in its victims.

The tuberculosis nurse works with the doctors in the clinics which are held throughout the city. She has a certain district assigned to her and she persuades suspected patients to come to the clinic for treatment. She visits tubercular patients in their homes, watches over their diet, and instructs the family how to take preventative measures against contracting the disease.

Where it is possible to influence the patient to allow himself to be removed to a sanitarium, she does so. She watches quite as carefully over the convalescent patients who have returned to their homes in order to guard against a return of the disease.

Nurses of the Chicago Tuberculosis institute must have had four years of high school, be registered, graduate nurses, and, in addition to this, post-graduate work in public health courses are desirable. Previous experience with other nursing organizations is also desirable for the girl who wishes to be a tuberculosis nurse. At least some experience in a tuberculosis sanitarium is helpful.

The School Nurse.

The school nurse works with the school physician in assisting him in his care and supervision of the children. She is the medium between the school and the home, carrying to the parents the doctor's advice regarding children who are ailing, who need medical attention, dental work, whose diet is insufficient and poorly regulated.

She is the medical teacher as well as the nurse. Like most public health nurses her hours are regular, her vacations fixed.

Industrial Nursing.

In most factories, large stores, and in mills, mines and other industrial and commercial centers, there is one or more industrial nurse whose business it is to watch over the health of the workers. Her work often extends beyond the province of the regulation nurse in that she seeks to better the health conditions under which the girls and boys, the men and women are working. Employes who are sick receive aid from her. Her labors often extend further.

Mental Hygiene Nursing.

The mental hygienic nurse is extremely important to the physician in his psychiatric clinic—or his clinic for patients who are abnormal.

It is the nurse who furnishes the doctor with confidential information regarding the environment and heredity of the patient. With her distinction as a nurse she can often gain access to the confidence of a family who otherwise would be loath to discuss their problems with any one.

The psychopathic hospital in Chicago is in connection with Cook county hospital, and here the mental hygiene nurse has a vast field in which to work.

Practical Nursing.

While the practical nurse has not had the intensive training of the graduate nurse and cannot command a salary of more than $25 or $30 a week, she has her place in the present state of things.

She usually goes into the homes of people, whose income will not stretch itself to cover the services of a trained nurse. She takes cases of chronic invalidism, and maternity cases. It is often necessary for her to do the housework, as well as to look after the patient. The demands today for the practical nurse are many.

Results of Jealousy

We're all acquainted with jealousy, the monster that smashes love affairs, wrecks homes, causes business disasters, and generally plays havoc with us mortals. We'd like to know your most notable experience with a jealous person or persons. Or if you have encountered a situation where jealousy led to a tragic or ridiculous climax, tell us about it. The Tribune will pay $1 for every story published. Address Jealous Editor, Chicago Tribune.

A Queer Greeting.

Several summers ago I took a couple of friends with me to visit a resort town. I was met at the dock by my mother, who took us out to his home. Imagine my embarrassment when his insanely jealous wife greeted my friends with the remark, "I hope you girls will marry orphans—my husband likes his sisters better than his wife."

I. A.

Wanted Everything.

Anna and Lucille had been close friends until both fell in love with Walter. His slightest attention to one aroused stormy jealousy in the other. One day the girls were out walking and stopped to look into a shop window. While they were admiring a fringed scarf of peculiar design, Walter happened to pass by and joined them, and added his admiration to the scarf enthusiastically pointed out by Lucille.

The next day, to her great delight, the scarf was sent to her by Walter, together with a delicate offering of forget-me-nots. She happily wore it and flowers at an informal dance that very evening.

As she was about to dance with Walter her glance chanced to fall upon Anna, whose face held a mocking smile and she wore a scarf exactly like Lucille's. That settled it, Lucille's face was a thunder cloud as she tore off the flowers and scarf, threw them insolently at Walter and refused to go home with him, although he had escorted her to the dance.

"Anna will appreciate two scarfs from you instead of only one, and I do not value this one. Take it."

She felt foolish when she afterwards learned that Anna had bought her own scarf. She wrote a humble note of apology and in the course of time Walter forgave her, but it taught her a lesson, for she came dangerously near losing him.

His Wife's Retort.

A short time after I was married I invited a girl friend to visit me. She married a doctor who was a great friend of both my husband and myself.

One night after we were through with a bridge game the doctor said to me, "You have card sense," and with those words the bride's face got scarlet and she snapped, "Well, I would rather have common sense. Card sense in a woman seems vulgar to me."

The Last Word in Paris Fashions

Paris Puts Flares Above and Below the Belt on the Autumn Frock, and the Material She Sponsors Is Plain or Printed Velvet.

By Bettina Bedwell.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—(Special Correspondence.)—There is a large amount of velvet in the autumn mode à la Paris. Every kind of velvet: Those substantial and heavy pile velvets that they wore in the eighties, velvet so thin that the lace on your lingerie shows through, velveteen (yes, up amongst the "all-silk and a yard wide,") printed and embossed velvet, particularly the latter. It has raised patterns of flowers, polka dots, and checks all over it just like the dye stamp on an embossed letterhead, in effect, when you run your finger over it. I have never seen a prettier fabric than this, and they use it for anything from sports to evening dresses.

The colors in the new velvets are generally real velvet shades, rich and quiet. There are heaps and heaps of wine and dark ruby reds, blacks, grays, and soft versions of henna and rust. There is plenty of fine dark blue, too, deep royal and a blue gray that looks like the huckleberry smiling on the vine. Velvet dresses are almost always either bloused above the waistline or flared below. Paris does this to give the beauty of the fabric a chance to show to the best advantage. They adore the beautiful sheen of the stuff, the couturiers, and like to see it cut to catch all of the lights and shades. All of this makes for complication in the midst of our simplicity, and one of the salient features of the new Paris styles for fall is this complicating of simplicity of means of fabrics and cut.

Take our first model, a real cut-up, and made of the newest of raised-patterned velvet. It would be a bit evident in a crowd, perhaps, if it wasn't for the colors. It is all in gray—a pearly gray ground and flowers that shade from medium gray to the deepest taupe, with the leaves tipped by black. This ensemble has several good style points outside of the material, which I shall enumerate. First, the fact that the coat is a three-quarters length coat and not down to the hemline of the dress is important. Paris likes this kind of coat for a lot of daytime ensembles. Second, the cut of the coat, which is collarless, and which has two big lapels at the front closing, which in some mysterious way go right on to the shoulder and become the upper part of the sleeves, is interesting. Third, the big puff from elbow to wrist in the sleeve is chic. Outside of this the coat is a straight coat and lined with gray.

The dress is of the same velvet as the coat, and has a straight waist, with a waistline that achieved the difficult stunt of being two places—both above the hip and on the hip. The sleeves of the dress are straight and the neckline is finished by a scarf of self-material that ties in a bow at the center front. The skirt is, first of all, a short straight slip, and in the front and at the sides it is circular and gathered panels in pairs are attached to the waistline, and again joined where they meet at the bottom. The effect is quite like a flower.

Our second model is much simpler in effect, but not much more so in cut. It is in dark blue, a bright navy, and of chiffon velvet, the thinnest and most delicate weave France has produced. This frock has what many people consider the ideal trimming for velvet, and that is lace. There are a good many lace trimmed velvet frocks in the Paris collections this fall. Lace is used for jabots, collars and cuffs and in other more original ways. Our model shows one of the different ways in which lace and velvet are combined. That is, in this case, a lace yoke is put on a velvet dress. The yoke is a deep cream point de Venise, which as you know is a heavy and important looking lace. It extends across the front of the waist only. In fact, the whole back of this frock is plain and unadorned, but it puts on a show in front. The sleeves are set on a lining, a device beloved of good dressmakers, for no other sleeve sets quite so well.

As I said before, the back of the dress is just a stream line piece of blue velvet, which in the front of the waist becomes a rippling bolero, that rises from the hip at the sides to the normal waistline in the center front. The skirt tunic is also in one with the back of the dress, and is split at the center front into a rippling jabot line, below a knot of velvet that marks the secondary and supplementary waistline in front. Under all of this there is a straight blue velvet slip from the lace yoke to the hemline.

Now this brings us up to velveteen, which a lot of the most impressive Paris couturiers seem to like better than velvet. It wears better, but that probably isn't the reason. It's a beautiful material if you can forget that it has a cotton back. Our third model is made of velveteen, a light rose-henna in color, and it is a sports dress of sorts. The short cap sleeves are favored here for a lot of sports dresses to be worn under hip length fur jackets. This one has a quaint round yoke, which with the tucks that run down from it, and help to make the blouse blousy, gives an effect of the dropped shoulder yoke of the sixties. The split down the center front shows a self-colored velveteen slip beneath, and accentuates the blouse above the belt, which is set into the body of the dress in an approved Paris manner.

The skirt is straight and full, with all of the gathers possible concentrated at the belt. It is trimmed with a floral band, made of wool embroidery in colors of orange, red, green and white.

Our last model shows two velvets in one frock, and also one of the newly approved tiered skirts from the autumn openings. This dress is three-quarters black velvet—the waist, the sleeves and the upper part of the skirt being of that material and color. The rest is a black and gray polka dotted velvet; that is, velvet polka dots on a crepe de chine ground. The waist and skirt are one piece, with a fitted draping at the hips to give a good blouse to the waist above and a buckle on the left hip to hold up the tiers. These tiers are plaited ruffles of the polka dotted velvet, and where they are lifted on the left side a sash of the same stuff hangs well below the hemline. The tight sleeves have graded frills of the fantaisie velvet from below the elbow to the wrist, and the high round neckline is cleverly decorated with a draped scarf of black velvet fastened under a steel buckle on the left shoulder.

Gray and black embossed velvet forms this afternoon ensemble with flaring skirt and full lower sleeves pictured at the extreme left.

A yoke of cream point de Venise lace, a front of rippling satin that is really only a bolero and a draped tunic are significant style items of the blue velvet frock sketched next.

Paris likes the velveteen frock for daytime. In rose-henna with wool embroidery is this gown seen second from the right.

Tiers and drapery, an unusual scarf, and plain and fantaisie velvet make a distinctive autumn dress of the model at the extreme right.

Parties for the Girl of Thirteen

by Persis Standish

Dancing or a Carefully Chosen Play Is Not Taboo if It Is Made an Occasion Rather Than a Common Occurrence.

Persis Standish will answer questions of all kinds on etiquette, manners, and politeness. Self-addressed, stamped envelopes must accompany each request for information. Send your letters to Persis Standish, Sunday Department, Chicago Tribune.

"DEAR MISS STANDISH: I have a daughter, 13, who is beginning to be a social problem to me. What can one do to entertain a girl, 13, and her friends without going out of the bounds of reason and decorum? Some of her friends have given parties lately of which I disapprove, both on the grounds of manners and morals, since I think some sort of pleasures should be reserved for the debutante years, such as theater going and dancing.

"I am going to give a party for Dorothy in a few weeks and any suggestion you can make will help me immeasurably. She is especially a problem because her father and I are forced to be away from home a good deal and yet we cannot bear to put her in a boarding school.

"I think perhaps I am too old to have a daughter, 13, for goodness knows I can't think of any way to make her happy and enjoy herself that does not at the same time seem harmful to me. I shall be so glad to hear from you. Sincerely, Mrs. B."

"I have permission to print this letter if I do not use the name of the writer and as I have answered it, as well, in person as it is possible for me to do I now answer it here hoping that it may help others who feel in greater or less degree the way Mrs. B. feels.

Looking Backwards.

The last sentence in the letter answers the letter in cause, I think. Anybody over 13 is too old to know just what will amuse a girl of 13, and anybody who is young enough to know what will amuse her is certainly too young to know whether it will be harmful amusement or not. So the best anybody can do is to try and imagine that feeling of being 13, and to combine it with memory of a personal thirteenth year, and then do as best one can to guide health, manners, and morals in a sane channel.

It is apt to be a habit of grownups to treat all youth as a sort of affliction—a charming one and a pardonable one, but an affliction, none the less. And yet some of the very persons who patronize youth are less intelligent, really, than the youth they patronize. Experience is a valuable thing, no doubt, but it does not entitle one to discount intellect and imagination in the inexperienced.

I know a girl, not yet 13, who is as companionable and as interesting to be with as any woman of my acquaintance, and she is accustomed to lead a most sheltered and childlike life. The secret is her mother treats her as an equal—a companion, a normal human, possessed of all her faculties. She has no problem in her daughter that she does not have in herself.

The daughter's manners are the mother's manners, kind and polite and charming. She has been taught from her earliest infancy to treat all human beings alike, and she has been made to apologize to the cook for the slightest thoughtlessness, and to be as cordial to the chauffeur's small daughter as to any of her school friends. She is amused and amusing always because her valuations are true ones and her manners sincere.

If, in the animal spirits of youth, she is obstreperous and tempestuous at times her mother uses that great stick of ridicule. She simply laughs her out of it and it works. O, my, how well it works! If the blue faced reformers knew how well it works we would have many plays, and books, and songs, and quips about drunkenness instead of poison, and sudden death, and political corruption.

A Healthful Mixture of Fun.

To get back to the party, which is, after all, the crux of this article. The way to entertain growing boys and girls seems to be to give them a healthful mixture of all sorts of pleasures if you want their manners and their health to be perfect later on. Prohibitions of any kind breed suppressions. That last word should never be confused with the word "control." If you keep a child from dancing that is the thing he wants to do; if you keep him from the theater, that is the place he wants to go, and so on. Besides, what harm is there in a little dancing and a well selected play? There are several things in town right now in the theaters that would be perfectly proper and also of educational value to a child of 13. The romantic figure of Francis Villon will evoke an interest in history. "The Mikado" will develop a taste for music, and so on. As for dancing, every one sends her child to dancing school. What is the difference in dancing in or out of school?

At 13 there is already a natural interest in the opposite sex. Why not make it an unself-conscious one by pleasant companionships between boys and girls?

Something Lovely to Remember.

And so, my dear correspondent, or correspondents, take your children to the theater now and then in a party and take them home afterward and allow them to dance until 12 o'clock. It will only make them more graceful later and more appreciative. The memory of the times—the rare times, of course—when they were allowed to do these things at 13 will color with a faint and beautiful aura of romance all the times they do them later on.

Make your little daughter's party as nice and interesting as you would make your own. If she is 13 make it a pretty little replica of one of your own parties, with the substitution only of wholesome food for unwholesome and classic entertainment in the theaters for hocum or bunkum, or whatever it is the critics call it when a play is modern and, alas, mostly dull. And make the hours shorter and the occasions much rarer, of course.

Practical and Fancy Needlework

By CLOTILDE

Here Are All the Practical Things and a Few of the Frills to Welcome the New Baby

What is your sewing problem? Do you have trouble in following a pattern? Do you find difficulty in making a shirt hang evenly or making a sleeve that doesn't twist? If there is anything you would like to know about these or other problems of needlework write to Clotilde, The Tribune, Chicago, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope, if a personal reply is desired.

A PROSPECTIVE mother has no more delightful task than the planning and making of the layette. But after a careful list has been made of everything you can think of go over it again and eliminate everything possible. It is a temptation to provide a great variety and number of garments, but it isn't wise. Babies grow so rapidly.

Six dresses, six petticoats, four night dresses, three or four flannel skirts, six shirts of about the same size, four flannel bands, four pairs of stockings, three or four sacques, two wrappers, and six dozen napkins—two dozen of them about 18 by 36 inches, and the rest a larger size—should provide enough. Add to this list whatever out-of-doors garments you think will be necessary.

Of course there are blankets, comforters, booties, a basket, and numberless other small things that must be provided.

If possible, plan exactly what is to be bought and what things there are for you to make. Then, after the small garments are cut, stitch the long seams on the machine, using the machine attachment to fell the seams. Then do the rest of the work by hand at your leisure.

In buying the shirts select the light-weight half cotton and wool or silk and use every care in washing them. Remember a baby's skin is extremely tender and can't stand the least roughness or harshness.

Stockings and shirts should be dried on wooden forms so they will keep their shape. The flannel bands should be made of fine soft flannel. Tear in strips 6 inches wide and 24 long, and don't do anything with the torn edges. The barrow coats may be made of a light weight flannel, either set into a band, or made of a straight strip with three small box plaits in the back, and one each side of the front. These, of course, are only laid to the depth of a band. They are held in place with featherstitching — the armholes are cut out, and the fastening over the shoulders done with ribbon.

If the flannel and white petticoats are put into bands, the band of the former should be a good inch deeper than the band of the latter, so as to avoid having two thicknesses of seams coming one over the other resulting in a hard place to press against the tender flesh. The best way to avoid this is to cut the flannel petticoats princess fashion, having an under arm piece that reaches the entire length, then one piece for the front and another for the back. There is no unnecessary fullness anywhere and the garment is well shaped under the arms. A small embroidered scallop will finish armholes and neck prettily, also the bottom.

Fasten this petticoat on one shoulder, using small, flat pearl buttons.

One of the fine cambrics is best for the white petticoats, and a deep hem at the bottom, a sheer ruffle of embroidery, or an inch wide edging of Valenciennes lace, will make an attractive finish. Make the white petticoats one inch shorter than the dress, and the flannel petticoats a little shorter still. Outing flannel is nice for the nightgowns, and they should be cut plain, without any gathered fullness. Have them button down the front. Make them considerably longer than the dresses. Finish the bottom with an inch wide hem, and through this run a narrow tape. This should be drawn up and tied, in that way affording protection for the feet and limbs, and yet allowing freedom of movement.

Loves Waist She Used to Hate!

Never discard a garment because you don't like its color. Nor because it's dull or faded. In less than an hour, you can make it a brand new, fashionable shade!

Home dyeing lets you dress better, and have the nicest home furnishings, without spending a lot of money. It's easy to dye anything—right over other colors—but whether dyeing or tinting, be sure to use real dye. Always ask for Diamond Dyes; they give full rich colors, and true tints.

The HOME HARMONIOUS
by Anita de Campi

Architects and architectural draftsmen can secure a complete program of The Tribune's Small Homes Competition by addressing The Chicago Tribune Small Homes Competition Bureau, Tribune Tower, Tribune Square, Chicago. The contest closes Wednesday at 5 p. m., Dec. 1.

A FEW years ago it was considered almost imperative, in order to have a successful Spanish interior that we have a built-to-order Spanish house—a "castle in Spain," as it were. Not only was this so because of the desire to have the architecture correspond to the interior settings, but because the only obtainable Spanish furniture was of the massive type which would make a small house or apartment decidedly overcrowded. However, as the demand for things Spanish has grown so great, present day manufacturers are putting on the market interesting pieces designed after Spanish motifs. They embody the characteristic hand twisted iron stretchers, tooled leather panels, and studding of antique brass nails, and are made in a size and style to fit most happily into small homes and apartments. Being of a lighter type than the heavy antique pieces from which they are copied, they are considerably more moderate in cost.

This widespread manufacturing of Spanish furniture is bringing Spanish fabrics to the fore. In addition to the well known and more expensive gold and red brocades, brocatelles, velvets, and tapestries, are delightful printed linens and cottons in Spanish patterns, as well as gorgeously striped satins, damasks, friezes, and silks in soft weaves and marvelously blended color tones. The floors, as a general rule, are tiled, but where this is impossible one of the fine inlaid linoleums in a tile pattern may be used.

Most delightfully fascinating is a small house I visited recently, completely furnished in the Spanish style. It has the happy advantage of being a stucco house of Spanish architecture to begin with. The same ideas might be carried out with equally charming effect in an apartment where the exterior of the building [judging by the many different types of interiors that may be found all assembled under one roof] has little or no influence on the style of decoration of any one apartment.

In this little house the front door, with its wrought iron grill, opens into a reception and stair hall. The walls are trowel finished plaster, tinted a deep cream. Dull blue tiles, with wide, cream colored mortar lines, make the floor interesting. At one side of the hall is a little arched window, set high up. It is given a sense of importance by means of a pair of painted shutters, which open back, inside. Below is a console table, holding a gay, multi-colored pottery lamp, with a square parchment shade. An arm chair, with leather upholstered seat and back, stands beside the table. Against the wall near the foot of the stairs, is a love seat, done in deep blue velvet. The stair rail is of wrought iron, and on the landing, half-way up, is a built-in seat with a blue velvet boxed cushion, beneath a lovely leaded window.

Two steps up from the reception hall, through an arched opening opposite the entrance door, is the living room. Here the plaster walls are tinted a warm, soft parchment yellow. The floor tiled in black, brown, and parchment yellow makes a pleasing background for the oriental rugs. At each side of the fireplace, placed almost vis-a-vis, is a love seat with down-filled cushion, upholstered in soft mulberry velvet. Between them is a low, wrought iron coffee table, the top made of decorative Spanish tiles. Andirons are of hand wrought iron. Against the wall opposite the fireplace is a comfortable davenport, upholstered in heavy silk of a dull antique green. Seat cushions are down filled and extra cushions are covered with gold damask.

At each end is a little square table holding a crimson pottery lamp with a parchment shade banded in crimson, black, and green. In the center wall space above the davenport a set of hanging shelves made of wrought iron is suspended by means of dull green cords and tassels. Pulled out from the corner of the room, near one end of the davenport, is a large arm chair which shares one of the end tables and lamps.

In the opposite corner a decorated leather screen takes away a feeling of empty space. Placed before it is another arm chair, accompanied by a little wrought iron table which holds a carved wooden box, an old brass ash tray, and an old brass lamp with a shade made of a most intriguing batiked paper. Book shelves are built into the other two corners. Conveniently placed near one of them, beside a long window, is a comfortable reading chair, supplemented by a wrought iron lamp with a parchment shade. A console table of wrought iron with a black marble top is placed against the wall near the other set of shelves. Above it hangs an old mirror in a wrought iron frame. At the leaded windows are draperies of gold and mulberry sunfast hung from wrought iron poles.

Fitted with a decorative wrought iron gate is a doorway leading from the living room into the dining room illustrated today. The floor is almost entirely covered by a large, dull green, jaspé carpet. Walls are pistachio green plaster. The furniture is walnut, with chair seats of dull green leather. On the backs of the chairs, and in the doors of cabinet and buffet are tooled leather panels, decorated with gold and touches of deep red. Pieces of canary yellow and black pottery add a note of gayety to the room. At the long, arch topped windows are curtains of pale green silk gauze, under heavy striped silk draperies, in a combination of dull green, deep red, yellow and black. They are hung from wrought iron poles. The arched tops are curtained in the green silk gauze.

Upstairs are three bedrooms and two baths. In the main room, a color scheme of sage green, ash rose and gold is carried out. Walls are a deep cream plaster, with a warm, "goldeny" underglow about them. The wooden floor is painted a deep green. Numda rugs made of goats' hair with uneven, fringed edges, and fantastic tropical birds and foliage, are used.

The furniture including a pair of lovely old Spanish beds with high head boards and scarcely any foot boards, and a commodious bureau with a hanging mirror above, are painted a soft sage green decorated with floral motifs in which ash rose, shades of green and gold are the dominant colors. Exquisite covers of Spanish embroidery are used on the twin beds.

At the windows are draw curtains of printed linen in a Spanish design on an ash rose ground. Altogether, it makes a most unusual and decidedly distinctive room, pleasingly in keeping with the spirit of this thoroughly enjoyable Spanish house.

The Cheekiest Person I Ever Met

Send us a short, to the point, reminiscence of the cheekiest person you ever met, and we'll pay you $1 for it if we print it. All letters must be addressed to the Cheekiest Person Editor, The Tribune, Chicago.

Wanted His Two Cents.

While operating an elevator in a huge apartment building a special delivery letter came for one of the tenants, who was worth millions. Eight cents was due on the letter, which I paid. I took the letter to the apartment and told the maid the amount that was due me. She returned in a few moments and, as she handed me a dime, her employer, from another room, exclaimed in a loud voice, "Be sure and get the change." E. N.

Free Ride.

One night at a party my girl friend and I decided to go home a little earlier than the rest. We had gone there unescorted and wished to go home unaccompanied, too. But we did not want to go out alone to hail a cab. One of the fellows who lived within walking distance of the party, but in the opposite direction than the way which we were going, offered to get a cab for us. So the three of us left together. We got a cab right away.

Our boy friend helped us into the taxi, gave the driver his own address, got in, rode home, got out, gave the driver our address, and then said "Good-night" to us, quite cheerfully. V. C.

Answer: Nobody.

My neighbor and I each made a fancy apron, intending to use them as gifts. Not long after I had finished my apron she called and asked if she could use it, as a friend was going to show her how to make jam and she did not have an extra apron.

A few days later she returned it, all stained from berries, and remarked, "I'm so glad I didn't use my apron, because those stains will not come out."

If she wasn't cheeky, who is? M. D. A.

Without Gratitude.

My cheekiest acquaintance was a woman who lived on the farm adjoining ours. She went away from home for a two weeks' visit during November. At her request we took care of all of the live stock on her place, feeding 125 chickens, a horse, and milking a cow—besides drawing water from a well to water them all. The weather during that time alternated, with one day of rain, the next of snow, and each accompanied by cold winds, but, though we waded in mud to our ankles every day to hunt for the cow which would not stay in the lot, we were glad to accommodate our neighbor.

During this time, however, we had occasion to use one dozen eggs and, in the emergency, used some which we had gathered for her. The rest we sold. When the neighbor came home she thanked us for caring for her things and, when my mother gave her the money for the eggs we had sold and offered to pay for the dozen we had used, the neighbor said, "All right, they'll be 25 cents!" H. S. H.

Vanished.

Last Christmas, while standing in line waiting to get up to the parcel post window, a middle aged lady rushed up to me and said, "Dearie, this line is so long and I am troubled badly with rheumatism! I see you only have a couple of packages for mailing, and I wonder if you won't take mine along with yours." I assured her I would gladly accommodate her.

After handing me her nine small packages she replied, "It's such an accommodation, and I'll be waiting at the long wrapping table to replace the cash for postage."

The packages with 94 cents postage went safely on their way, and I presume the sender also, because she had vanished from the postoffice without waiting for me. E. S.

The Newest Parisian Bobs

Bizarre and Unusual, but Always Individual

by Antoinette Donnelly

Whether Her Tresses Be Long or Abbreviated, Each Famous Beauty Has a Coiffure Uniquely Her Own.

PARIS—Take the chic Parisian's word for it, bobbed hair is not doomed. Dressmakers along the Rue de la Paix insist that the slim silhouette, which they continue to sponsor, requires a small, smooth head. Milliners are making the new fall hats too snug for any other kind of coiffure. The "artist" among Paris' numerous coiffeurs in an authoritative manner agree without exception that feminine locks will remain short for some time. "At least for another decade," they say—and what woman, French or American, cares to look further into fashion's future than that?

Moreover, observation bears out what the specialists say. From a chair on the boulevard at eleven o'clock in the morning, among the gay hydrangeas, from the flash of a myriad diamond bracelets and the honest-to-goodness nobility that makes the Ritz such a fascinating place at tea time, and from beneath the festoons of soft lights of any of the fashionable restaurants in the Bois the evidence is only too plain. The chic Parisian is still wearing hers bobbed

But here is cheerful news for those who desire bobbed hair because "it standardizes women's looks." In Paris, nowadays, there are as many types of haircuts as there are women. Barbers at the best beauty shops study the features and coloring of each client before they put scissors to head. Far from losing all claims to individuality along with their crowning glory, clients have every opportunity of accentuating their personal charms.

Suiting Your Type.

Are you the round faced "cutie" type? Then you will want a bob like the vivid Dolly sisters. Rosie and Jenny, as the Dollys are known backstage at the Casino de Paris, wear a Dutch cut with a straight bang, as well known to music hall fans as was Lillian Russell's fringe in the days when mutton sleeves and stage door Johnnies were stylish.

The Countess Clement de Chazal, a famous beauty, wears a bang, too, but one with a single wave in it. And Antoine, notable among the elite of Parisian barbers, has created another variation of the Dutch cut for this more spiritual type of face. The bang comes to a point between the brows, while similar points are described by the cut of the side and back hair. Lady Winborne, another interesting beauty, wears this individual bob, and even the most ardent enemy of short tresses would admit that its odd lines add a wistful beauty to an already lovely face.

Yours is the long, aristocratic profile? Why not try the "macaroon" or "snail shell" bob introduced into society by the stunning blonde haired Lady Adby? To gain the "macaroon" effect the hair must be cut quite long on the sides, brushed away from a part at the nape of the neck, and rolled forward into a curl over each ear. It is a frankly feminine coiffure, and one that promises to gain in popularity.

Entirely different is the hair cut selected by the Marquise Piccinardi, who keeps her hair fairly long on the sides, and instead of rolling the surplus into a curl brushes hers back smoothly to cover only the tips of her small ears. In front a bob is scarcely suggested, and at the back the ends overlap in an interesting crisscross. This novel fashion gives a small, piquant face the look of a naive little girl whose mother insists upon her being very very neat.

Mistinguette, of the million dollar legs, who is as much of an institution in Paris as the Bank of France, has a funny little hair cut all her own, modeled somewhat after Joan of Arc's. Those who have seen Mlle. Lenglen without her turban say that her hair is becomingly bobbed in a conservative manner, not too short on the side, but short in the back. Spinelly, a French comedienne, whom American managers are always threatening to import for a Broadway season when the boulevards feel they can do without her, was one of the first actresses in Paris to sponsor the boy bob, parted on the side and exposing the ears. This boy bob is the one bob for which is predicted an early demise. It is unfeminine, in bad taste, and unbecoming to the majority of women, is the verdict. So Spinelly wears her rapidly growing locks swirled around each ear. Antoine still holds out for the extremely short clip and offers his wife as an exhibit of its becomingness if the head, ears, nose, and forehead are rightly proportioned.

A Seductive Fashion.

The head of the Jules and Etienne beauty parlors offers the "Fantastic" as something new in coiffures. He calls it a seductive fashion. Raquel Meller is wearing it. But he cautions that only the most beautiful or unusual type should attempt this semi-cut. It is a style frequently seen in the picturesque Latin quarter, at those cafes where models drink their beer and obligingly pose for the hordes of tourists, and at those informal "dances" near the Sorbonne where students and artists mingle after nine in the evening. The hair appears to be the length of the in-between growing stage, draped behind the ears, or over them, but ending in little girl ringlets.

Here, too, can still be seen many faithful followers of the Dolores style of hair cut. Dolores, whose classic profile made her famous as the most beautiful show girl in the world, brushed her blonde hair straight back from her broad Greek forehead and cut the side and back hair as short as a man's more than a year ago. All of the American colony in Paris applauded the fashion as ravishing so far as Dolores was concerned. Later numerous snub nosed young things tried the same effect, but with less happy results. Some gave it up, with a foot note to the effect that it took too much time keeping one's ears properly made up.

Loyal to Long Locks.

Strange to relate, three of the most famous dressmakers in Paris cling to long hair. Jeanne Lanvin, known for her consistent loyalty to the robe de style frock; Madame Sacerdote, better known as "Jenny," and the great artist, Mme. Vionnet, all wear a knot behind. Mme. Leroy of the house of Max, furriers, shows how beautiful gray hair may look when properly bobbed by brushing hers straight back from a widow's peak (like Mary, Queen of Scots) and allowing the sides to be waved softly over the ears.

One of the most attractive of the compromise haircuts is worn by the charming Yvonne Printemps, who will probably be seen in America next winter. Her husband, Sacha Guitry, declares that a divorce will be the consequence if Mme. Printemps bobs her hair. Like a nice little wife, the lovely actress pretends obedience by cutting off most of it, but leaves enough for a "love curl" to be coiled across the nape of her neck.

Finger Curls.

Hair cut rather long on the sides, but short in the back, are features of the current modish bob, so far as standard fashion can be said to exist. Calou, arbiter of hair cuts on the Champs Elysees, graduates the back hair to a point on the nape of the neck. Antoine, however, has invented a new "swirl" achieved by brushing the hair away from the nape of the neck and waving horizontally. Waves, by the way, are broad, flat, and natural this season.

Instead of the curling iron the Paris barber uses a good "setter," with plenty of eau de cologne in it to give it a nice smell, and his own artistic fingers. Frenchmen, they tell me, have had their hair "finger waved" for generations, but not until the battalions of the bobbed entered the barber shop did woman abstract the secret of this now popular "finger wave."

Natural Looking Waves.

Permanent waving has developed as an art also. Instead of a hopeless friz, the electrocuted locks are released in undulations that will lie flat and natural looking.

If you are the ingenue type and cannot resist curly locks imitate Mme. Letellier's hair. Across the forehead and over the ears it falls in flat waves, but the top is a mass of feminine ringlets.

Mme. Marthe Regnier, popular French actress, milliner, and beauty, wears her auburn tresses done in a conventional drape over the forehead and ears and clipped short and pointed in the back.

With so many of the professionals, beauties, and famous women still clinging to the abbreviated styles, one resists the oft repeated rumors that the bob is about to be supplanted.

It is true you do see just enough attempts at reviving the long hair about Paris to suggest the shadow of doom to the short, but if women will not accept large hats nor a change in the slim silhouette of dress and figure you are inclined to believe, with the shingle authorities, that the short hair is not a fashion, but an evolution, and one that will be tremendously difficult to uproot.

THE FRENCH METHOD OF REARING CHILDREN

— by Doris Blake

The American Flapper, Minus One Single Inhibition, Might Not Think Her Lot Such A Sad One After Meeting Her Parisian Cousin

PARIS.—Mothers of Flappers! The next time your daughters complain that they do not get enough fun or freedom out of life, that they are bowed down by the yoke of stern discipline, that parents forget what it feels like to be young, just threaten to send them to France for a bit of a vacation.

If you don't know what that means, ask Lady Astor. She announced that she did not approve of the way English and American girls were reared, and that she thought the French had the proper idea.

This proper idea, as she calls it, is proper in more senses than one. It's so proper that, having learned about it, you look at French women and wonder how in the world they ever learned to cross the street alone. And after having digested that fact, that they can, and not only that, but that, as married women they seem more self-sufficient, capable, independent, confident than the women of any other race you've ever observed, you begin to wonder if there may not be, after all, a great deal more to what Lady Astor says than meets the eye.

We'll leave you to draw your own conclusions. Far be it from us to pass judgment on such a deep and serious national psychological problem. But if you want to know how the French woman brings up her daughter—here are the rules, with the usual exceptions which characterize rules, and which have particularly characterized them since the war, as applied to the younger generation.

The School Day.

School all day? No. Four hours at most. Little Mimi is NOT kissed goodby at the door and left to race down the street to join her little friends and trip along with them. Her nurse, governess, or one of the maids, takes her little gloved hand and she walks along with eyes straight ahead until she is deposited in the classroom seat. And there aren't any little boys in the next seat, either. Nor in the next room. There may be a boys' school in the next block, but nice boys and girls NEVER go to the same school. They are always separate.

Nor do they have a recess in which to play. The little girls have their luncheon, sitting up nice and straight with a teacher to eight or ten children, and when that is finished they may bounce a ball a bit or take a little promenade, chaperoned of course; and then later they are called for again by the nurse or governess and back home they go.

Perhaps they practice the piano or the harp for a while. Then an hour of sewing or embroidery at mother's knee. If it is a bright day, another half hour in the Bois, with the maid.

The half hour in the Bois is not identical with the play of our children in Central or Lincoln park. French children simply do not know what it is to play as our youngsters do. They are not encouraged to be lusty, boisterous. First of all, none of the parks ever have grass plots except those surrounded by a high fence. The children sit carefully on a little chair or on the gravel and the highest form of dissipation they know is to scoop a few pebbles into a pail, skip rope, or roll a hoop. They are not encouraged to be "chummy" with other children. You watch a group in the park and they are fantastically quiet.

Ultra Conservative.

The French of the old families are what we could call snobbish. Making the proper marriage is an idea that begins with the birth of the child, who is protected hourly so that no acquaintances are made that might in any way lead to a future mesalliance.

Of course this is true only of what is called the "better classes." Curiously enough among the working classes there is less restraint, less discipline than among any other European race. The girls and boys are together from the time they are born. They begin having sweethearts at the age of 12. Every little shop girl, and most of them are about 15, has her beau waiting for her every night when work is over and they walk home together, kissing when the impulse seizes them, regardless of street publicity.

That is why the upper class Frenchman would just as soon have his child marry a man-eating savage as go out of his own class. The line of social distinctions is as broad as the earth and as sharp as a sword in its cruelty.

As for boarding schools the Frenchwoman would as soon send her child to an orphanage. In fact that is just about what a boarding school is considered. You send children there if the family is disrupted, or there is serious illness in the home, or if the pater familias has suddenly lost his fortune, or some such disaster. Exception is sometimes made with the sending of children to convents or to high class Catholic schools.

But for a good family to send a little girl away [or a little boy] to school—it simply is not done! Nor does the situation change much when the girl grows older. Boys have to go away to military schools when they are old enough. That's compulsory. But there is only one place a well brought up French girl can go that isn't right at her mother's side and that, in the due course of time, is the altar.

Politeness Is a Virtue.

You will find all French children excessively polite, not only to all their elders, but also to the servants. The first sign of being a lady is knowing how to treat your domestics. The little girls can answer the telephone, greet their mothers' visitors, preside over a table for twelve guests with the savoir faire of a dowager. But they wouldn't know the rough and ready games our youngsters enjoy.

Most girls do not go to school after the age of 15. Some few attend what they call higher academies and literature academies where particular emphasis is given literary lectures. More generally they are tutored by a governess and take lessons in the various accomplishments, particularly music.

The reason they are not encouraged to go to school after that is because they have reached the difficult period of adolescence, become restive, a little rebellious, perhaps, want to read books that Maman hasn't read first, or, in other words, they begin to get IDEAS—and are consequently in need of closer observance.

Of course, all this rigid surveillance has an object. And that object is marriage. Not just marriage in order to be married, but marriage in the right family under the right auspices.

That is why boys and girls are not allowed to play together in school. At the age of 17, when a girl is permitted to attend her first parties, she goes chaperoned to the ears and sits primly in the corner talking with her girl friends. The sons of her mother's friends will, if the chaperon consents, be allowed to dance with her. She would not dream of dancing with any boy whose mother was not a social intimate of her own mother.

In this way one keeps one's children from knowing any except the "best people." And long before the girls are of marriageable age, their parents have looked over the field, and doubtless the prospective husband has been chosen and all documents drawn and sealed between the two families.

The Necessary Dot.

Even as a tiny tot the French girl knows she will never get a husband without a dot. Before the war fifty thousand francs would insure a fairly decent marriage, but today, with the scarcity of men, one can't be sure of getting a good husband for much less than three hundred thousand francs. These are lucky days for the eligible young men, some of whom are quite frank to say they don't want to marry a girl with less than a million francs, and this is not considered any great sum.

When children marry, however, it means a formidably strong tie between the two families. They practically become as one, and all their interests are combined. In this way, too, the young man does not have to go through years of struggling to "get on his feet." With the dot he can establish himself in a business or profession. If a girl's father is without funds to provide her a dot, but his social standing is high enough to be able, through it, to get the young man into a good position, the girl may have a chance to marry.

A foreigner may live in France for years and never see a young French girl of good family. They go almost nowhere except to and from school, perhaps to the dressmaker's or to tea with a friend, but always under strict chaperonage. Girls and boys sometimes are allowed to play together at the seaside in the summer, because all the French world goes to the water during August, and, with the families along, mild friendships are sometimes accomplished. Almost inevitably, however, if these children meet again after returning to town, a bow is the sole extent of further recognition between them.

This seaside holiday does not mean that the daughters are allowed to swim. The French are not inclined to favor sports for women, as we know them, as they have an idea that athletics tends to make women masculine and that the outdoor type of girl is unattractive to a real man. Also, it makes for a comradeship and friendliness between girls and boys that their parents count dangerous. In spite of the parental viewpoint, some of the girls of the best families are developing skill at golf and tennis and managing to get in hours of practice, however.

Brought Up to Marry.

But the French girl, in the last analysis, is brought up to be a wife. She is brought up for men. When she marries, she may develop as much as her husband wishes. If she has brains, and most of these girls have, she uses them in the way that will most please her husband. He leads, or with her clever manipulations he believes he does, and she follows. She has learned all the domestic arts and graces.

The leap from her sheltered, uneventful life into matrimony may seem a cruel one to the Anglo-Saxon, whose children gradually learn every side of life long before they are old enough actually to participate emotionally in what they already know as facts. But the young French husband takes great joy in the fact that this fresh, wholesome, unspoiled flower has been put in his care and that his will be the pleasure of making a woman of her.

Her life after marriage is devoted to her husband's interests. Without the hypocrisy with which we often veil our motives, the French wife contrives to further the business and social interests of her husband and family. That is her duty as a good wife.

Love doesn't play a great part in it. Often the French girl will be in love with her husband because most girls are in love with the first young man with whom they have association. The parents believe it wisdom not to let their girls have boy friends before marriage. There are no long engagements. Six months' engagement is considered long. Young people become engaged through the arrangements of their families for the one purpose of marriage and the only delay permitted is the time necessary to arrange for a proper wedding. The young people are not allowed necking parties, either. The most they can steal is a hurried kiss, because some one, even if it is only little brother, is left on guard.

Since the War.

Of course, things have changed somewhat since the war. One reason is that there are so few men that parents have been obliged to relax the rigid conventions in order to help their daughters meet men. Then many of the richest families have lost their fortunes, and many average wealthy families have had to cut down on their servants so it isn't easy any more to have each of one's children chaperoned every time he or she crosses the street.

It is with great regret that the French mother acknowledges this necessity. She will tell you that as she grew into young womanhood she resented her lack of freedom, and that she tried innumerable ways to learn more about life—to steal a few moments of pleasure from the unrelenting discipline of her parents. How she welcomed marriage as a release, an escape from this tyranny, and how she would have married any man her family desired in order to break away and get out into the world.

"But we learn as soon as we are grown," she confides, "that it is the best way, and we continue to carry on that tradition with our children. We are not hampered by the silly sentimentality and romanticism that leads you Anglo-Saxons to the divorce courts in huge droves. Marriage is a serious business involving a home, children, and the institution of the family. The less chance a girl has to confuse it with her emotions the more sure she will be to be a happy and successful wife and mother."

And there you are. Are they right? Or, are we?

BLONDEX
The Blonde Hair Shampoo

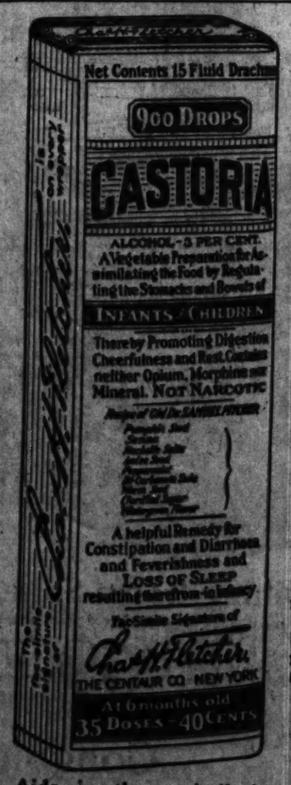

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. For only 75 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger.

Children Cry For Fletcher's

CASTORIA

Why Castoria?

Years ago Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups were the remedies in common use for Infants and Children; Castor Oil so nauseating as to be almost impossible and the others all containing Opium in one form or another, but so disguised as to make them pleasant to the taste, yet really to stupefy the child and give the appearance of relief from pain.

It required years of research to find a purely vegetable combination that would take the place of these disagreeable, unpleasant and vicious remedies that from habit had become almost universal. This was the inception of, and the reason for, the introduction of Fletcher's Castoria, and for over 30 years it has proven its worth, received the praise of Physicians everywhere and become a household word among mothers.

A remedy ESPECIALLY prepared for Infants and Children and no mother would think of giving to her baby a remedy that she would use for herself, without consulting a physician.

Fletcher's Castoria safely relieves

Constipation — Wind Colic — To Sweeten Stomach
Flatulence — Diarrhea — Regulate Bowels

Aids in the assimilation of Food, promoting Cheerfulness, Rest and Natural Sleep without Opiates.

To avoid imitations, always look for the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

THIS offer is open to everybody, everywhere! Men, women, boys and girls—all may compete. The Chicago Tribune is paying Thousands of Dollars in Cash for Screenlines (titles) to motion picture scenes. A new Picture is printed in The Chicago Daily Tribune every day. Five Big Cash Prizes totaling $100.00 are offered for Each Picture! Winners are announced in The Chicago Tribune every day! Start right in now—with Picture No. 12 shown above. Suggest a Screenline for it—a title in ten words or less. Make it short and snappy. Here are a few samples: "When a woman's right a man's left"; "Danger a-head." Send in your Screenlines and watch The Tribune every day for names of winners. Will your name be among them?

$100 in Cash Every Day for SCREENLINES—A New Picture Every Day! Winners Are Announced Every Day in The Chicago Daily Tribune!

The Simple Rules

1. Each day excepting Sundays until further notice, The Chicago Tribune will print a scene from some well-known motion picture. The public is invited to submit Screenlines—Titles—for these pictures.
Each day The Chicago Tribune will accept and publish the 5 best Screenlines submitted. For these winning suggestions The Chicago Tribune will pay $100.00 in cash as follows: 1st Prize, $50.00; 2nd Prize, $25.00; 3rd and 4th Prizes, $10.00 Each; 5th Prize, $5.00; a total of $100.00 each day.
2. This offer is open to every man, woman, boy and girl excepting employes of The Chicago Tribune and their families. It costs nothing. It does not matter where you live.
3. You may submit as many Screenlines for each picture as you wish. You may use the form printed in The Chicago Tribune or a separate sheet of paper. If separate sheet of paper is used be sure to mark the number of the picture on entry.
4. It is not necessary to have seen the motion picture to write a Screenline. Clues will be published under each picture printed in The Chicago Tribune. These clues will tell you the name of the picture, the principal characters and the action. Consequently, you may write your Screenline without actually having seen the motion picture.
5. Screenlines must be 10 words or less. Try to make your suggestions clever. There are no restrictions as to kind of Screenline.
Study carefully the picture published each day in The Chicago Tribune. Then write your Screenline along the following lines:
1. Try to tell the meaning of the picture.
2. Try to tell what you think the principal characters are saying.
3. Try to think of a general descriptive Screenline such as you would like to see in the movies.
6. Screenlines must be in the Office of The Chicago Tribune within 4 days after the picture is published. For example, answers to today's Picture No. 12 published above must be in the Office of The Chicago Tribune before midnight Wednesday, Oct. 13th.
7. Suggestions should be mailed to "Screenlines," The Chicago Tribune, Post Office Box 1123, Chicago, Ill. Neatness will count.
8. You need not buy The Tribune to compete. It may be examined at Public Libraries or at The Tribune Offices free of charge.
9. The winning Screenlines will be announced in The Chicago Daily Tribune exactly one week from the day the picture is published. Winning Screenlines for today's picture will be announced in next Saturay's Tribune.
10. In selecting winners The Chicago Tribune will be the sole judge and its decision will be final. In the event of ties duplicate prizes will be paid.

A Friend in Need

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

I want to be the medium through which friends in deed and the friends in need may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy and you would gladly give it if you knew how to go about it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.

When information is wanted by mail, a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send articles to The Tribune but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

THIS REALLY HAPPENED.

LAST week we heard from a family that was in desperate straits just a month ago. The husband had been ill, during a part of the time a baby was expected; and just as the baby came he had a relapse, and there was no chance to continue paying rent for the furnished room they were occupying. It looked as though the two older children would have to be placed somewhere and the home broken up.

But last week's letter showed what had been accomplished in a short time by thoughtful friends. The mother wrote: "Dear Miss Brown—I can't tell you how happy we feel and it still seems like a dream. It was only two weeks ago that some one came and said she would help us find an unfurnished flat costing half of what we were paying, and that we'd get furniture. I didn't know what to make of it, but we found a flat and the furniture began coming. There was a bed and a table, four chairs, some carpets, and a nice stove from different people. And the little things, too, that made everything look nice and homey. I was so busy I could hardly think.

"We are in our new home now, and already my husband is almost well and ready to work. We could just see him getting better every minute as the worries rolled away and he saw we were going to get along. How we can thank you and all the kind people who gave things, I don't ever know. But if they know how different life is for us I'm sure they'll feel rewarded."

That is one story of what a little thoughtfulness accomplished. It is worth telling now, because many of us are moving and making changes in new apartments, and it is the time of times in all the year when we can work out a lot of problems just like this. All of us who are going to new homes have furniture that won't fit the new apartment or house. We must leave it or give it away. Why not let this department place it where it will transform the future for some poor family just as a few gifts did for the family I mentioned?

Needs a Costume.

"Should any of your kind readers have a gypsy or Spanish costume, size 16 or 18, they no longer need I would like one. I have been home from work for some time, due to sickness and I have just received an invitation to a costume party. It is beyond my means to buy or rent one and I would like to go. A. F."

A remnant of some masquerade party would make this girl extremely happy for one evening. Let's look through our attics and trunks and perhaps there will be a gypsy or Spanish costume for her.

To Make Some Child Happy.

"Do you think you could find homes for two lovely kittens? They are part Persian, pretty, and about three months old. MRS. E. C."

These sound like most attractive pets and I'm sure there are a number of good homes for them. How would you like to have one of them?

"I am the mother of three little children and my husband deserted us a month ago. Will you kindly help me get some clothing for them? The boys are 4 and 2 and the little girl is 10 months. MRS. A. B."

Who will relieve this woman of some of the burden her husband has left her to shoulder alone? You can help a great deal with the clothing your children have outgrown.

For One Who Sleeps Outdoors.

"I have a pair of practically new bunb skin bed slippers, lined with wool, size 7, which I would like to give to some person who must sleep outdoors and who is not able to purchase them. "MRS. T. L."

No need to fear wintry blasts when one's feet are encased in such comfy, warm slippers. If you are an outdoor sleeper, we'll be glad to forward your name to the donor.

IF BACK HURTS FLUSH KIDNEYS

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulate them to their normal activity.

The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

Hippity SKip Puzzle

Find an inhabitant, a farm implement, and a domestic animal.

Hippity and Skip Go Gopher Hunting

By Clem.

"OH, look," laughed Hippity, as he gazed at a bright, red-headed bird gawking at them with its head on one side. "Look, it's a red-headed woodpecker."

But Skip only grunted. He seemed very uneasy. He had seen a gopher scamper out of sight into a hole, and in settling down for an easy wait until Mr. Gopher should come out, he had found himself on a sand burr.

And so, how could Skip enjoy the sights in such a mood? But since you aren't in the some mood, perhaps you will find the things Skip misses and enjoy them with Hippity.

Can you find an inhabitant, a farm implement, and a domestic animal in the picture.

ISN'T IT ODD

by William Atherton Du Puy

ISN'T it odd that ants can move without anybody in command, can fight battles, carry out campaigns, while man creatures, in doing the same thing, must have many grades of officers!

He who watches the ants in his neighborhood is likely any morning to see an army on the move. There is a division of labor in the ant colony. There are forager ants, nurse ants, sanitary ants, soldier ants. On this occasion the soldier ants, a thousand strong, have a mission to perform. Nobody knows how they got the idea of doing this particular thing. The worker ants go about their accustomed tasks, paying no attention. The army, however, pours out of the nest. There is nothing in its movements that indicates that any one soldier takes precedence over another. Nobody gives commands.

Yet this army sets out to do a certain thing. These are red ants and they intend to go to a black ant colony a hundred yards away, give battle and bring back slaves for the housework.

The march to the place of battle is as orderly as that of any human army. The black ants seem to know that the enemy is coming. They turn out, also without officers to direct them, for the defense. The two groups come to grips. The fighting is more like that of knights of old than modern trench warfare. Two individuals are up and at each other and battle to the death. A thousand duels are going at once.

If the expedition is a success the red soldiers overcome the blacks. Few of the latter are left alive. This done, the reds plunge into the nests of the blacks. Soon they come filing out with the spoils of victory. Each red warrior has in his jaws a young one of the black colony. These captives, to be sure, are still in the grub stage. Soon, however, they will be lusty young workers.

The red army goes trooping back home with the results of its slave raid. The young blacks are taken below ground, turned over to the nurse ants, fed for a few days, and then come into their usefulness. Through all the days of their lives they toil in the homes of their captors. They have no young ones, however, as only the queens can lay eggs from which these are hatched. When they die of old age the reds must either do their own work or go on another slave raid.

But the riddle of it all is how this whole thing is decided upon and carried out. The man creature would like to know.

$5 Apiece for Bright Sayings

The Tribune will pay $5 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago.

My little girl, aged 4, was quite jealous of the arrival of a brother a few months ago and would knock him every chance she got. He cries a great deal and of course is picked up and rocked.

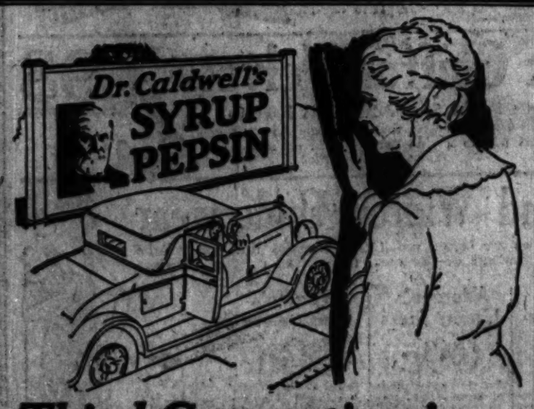

The other day a neighbor remarked to her, "Well, I'll bet you love your little brother; he is such a sweet, good little fellow."

"Yes," she remarked dryly, "good and spoiled." J. E. S.

Polly Ann was reluctant to take her afternoon nap, and used every possible excuse to prolong her freedom.

"Come, Polly Ann, at once," I cried determinedly.

Just then the postman came to the door and Polly Ann called, "Yes, mother, but I haf to tend to dis man foist." D. G.

Third Generation is Using Syrup Pepsin

No Other Laxative Can Replace Dr. Caldwell's in the Confidence of Those Who Use It

THERE are thousands of healthy, robust young men and women who have never in all their lives taken any other laxative for constipation than Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Their parents were given it by their parents; the grandparents are using it today. It is the one laxative ideally suited to all the family, safe for the little ones, effective in grown-ups, so compounded that elderly people who are constantly forced to take a laxative find increased dosage unnecessary. This wonderful constipation remedy has been used continuously for thirty years, and over ten million bottles are now sold annually, the largest selling family laxative in the world! The cost averages but a cent a dose. Every druggist sells it, and under a guarantee to do as claimed or your money will be refunded.

Millions of carefully conducted homes are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. There is scarcely a day that someone in a family does not need it for constipation, torpid liver, indigestion, biliousness, headaches, colds and other evidence of bowel obstruction.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a scientifically balanced compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and pleasant-tasting aromatics. The formula is on the package. As the popularity of this natural vegetable laxative increases, the public discards the harsher physics like calomel, coal tar in candy form, salt waters and powders. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin empties the bowels more cleanly and without any danger.

Write "Syrup Pepsin," 535 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois, for a free sample bottle.

THE TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

Two Cookings Are Common, Three Are Sometimes the Making of a Sweet Potato

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington with correct kitchen materials and are fashioned for fame.

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

A BUSHEL of sweet potatoes was baked, for a single meal, on the old time rice plantations in South Carolina and Georgia, I was told by one who was born and brought up on one of them—eighty years ago and more. These potatoes were not only baked once, but allowed to get cold and baked a second time in the cavernous brick ovens which radiated an ideal heat for such work. The heat could not increase in volume because the fire that made it had been removed from the oven, and if any dale rested in a pile in one corner they were dying.

A first baking reduces the water content of a sweet potato, which is another way of saying that it condenses the sugar, and the second baking does the same thing, and caramelizes the surface. But there are bakers and bakers, and this sort of work demands a nice attention.

One may see the item about this second baking in print over and over again, without its making one's attention active enough to bring about experiment, but when the old lady of the Georgia plantation told me about baking and rebaking sweet potatoes by the bushel I was impressed.

But sweet potatoes were twice baked even when there were no great ovens to do it in, as we may learn from that classic of cookery commonly mentioned as "The Carolina Housewife, by a Lady of Charleston," which went into a number of editions and was reprinted not so many years ago. But the first words of the title of the third edition, printed in 1855, are "House and Home, or The Carolina Housewife." This book is now rare, and only dealers in rare books can procure it. Such copies were selling at $6 in Charleston, S. C., two years ago. My copy, procured from a home dealer at an auction, cost less. This information is given for the seekers of Americana, some of whom are collecting cook books.

The "Lady from Charleston" was Miss Rutledge, an almost sacred name in that city, and her three recipes as given in the book are not without interest for several reasons. They read:

"To Dress Sweet Potatoes: Among the various ways of dressing sweet potatoes, that which seems most generally preferred, is to bake them twice. You may put two or three pintefuls at once into the oven, bake them till quite soft, peel, and put them on a tin sheet, and bake them again for half an hour. Serve them up hot. This way of baking them twice makes them candied. If you prefer eating them the same day they are cooked bake them first at an early hour, so that they may be quite cold, which must be the case before a second baking; and when cold the skin comes off easily.

"Another Mode of Dressing Sweet Potatoes: Boil the potatoes until they are quite soft; then peel, and rub them smooth with a spoonful of butter and a little salt. Bake in a pan, and turn out in a vegetable dish, or drop in spoonfuls about the size of a dollar, all over a tin sheet, and bake them in that manner.

"Fried Sweet Potatoes: Sweet potatoes may be dressed, either cut in long slices and fried in lard, or half boiled, peeled, cut round, and fried quickly. In the latter case they must be drained and served up as dry as possible."

Candied Sweet Potatoes.

It is possible to find no end of recipes, varying slightly or a good deal, for candied sweet potatoes. In too many cases the product served is cloying, but upon trying out the method used by one of our leading writers on cookery labeled "Creole Candied Sweet Potatoes" and not liking the product particularly, I tried heating up and browning these in bacon fat—so cooking them a third time—and thought them excellent. The recipe directed the boiling of six large sweet potatoes in their skins till tender, then to chill, peel and cut them in lengthwise slices about a quarter of an inch thick. Then cook a cup of brown sugar with a cup of water and a tablespoon of butter till it is as thick as a table sirup. Dip each piece of potato in the sirup and place on a greased pan, dot with butter, sprinkle with lemon juice and pour the sirup about the potatoes. Then bake in a slow oven until brown and sugary, basting occasionally with the sirup.

But some people like candied sweet potato to which the word "sugary" may be more correctly applied than it can be to these, and so they use granulated sugar sprinkled on layers of cooked slices of sweet potatoes, with a little butter, and finally a little water in the baking dish in which the potatoes are given thus a second baking. Both leftover, boiled, and baked sweet potatoes can be used for this dish. When leftover baked potatoes are used the skins should be broken or pricked while the potato is hot, and this is better than to peel them before putting them away as a leftover. Peel when ready to use, cut in slices crosswise, put in a buttered dish in layers, sprinkling with a little sugar and pouring two tablespoons of melted butter over the top, over which it is all right to use crumbs first, and in many cases a little boiling water is required before putting the dish in a hot oven for twenty minutes. To have any such dish too dry makes it unagreeable. Some people like to grate over a little nutmeg and also sprinkle over this a bit of cinnamon.

Escalloped Sweet Potatoes.

To add to our confusion of recipes by which sweet potatoes are made sweeter with sugar, when cooked potatoes are recooked in layers with sugar the dish is sometimes called escalloped or scalloped sweet potatoes, but the word is more correctly used when the layers of cooked and sliced potatoes are seasoned and cooked with milk and cream in small quantity, and often with an egg beaten up with the milk or cream. Like white potatoes, this dish may be dry and poor if it is heated up in too hot an oven, and a good heating is all that is required, particularly when an egg is used, for if the milk and egg boils, the latter will curdle and the milk or cream will evaporate. There is a way of partially saving the day when this happens. Boil some cream and pour it hot over each serving of the potato. Such a dish with the milk, egg, and all makes a well balanced dish for a luncheon. But bake slowly even for half an hour if necessary.

Pan Candied Sweet Potato.

This is a quick way of candying sweet potato, and it ranks with the escalloped potato as a luncheon dish, because of the egg. Slice cold cooked sweet potatoes lengthwise in even slices, dip them in slightly beaten egg and then drain off the egg a bit since the potato is not nice if too wet, roll it in sugar, and fry or sauté it in butter. The work must be done carefully, or a nice effect will not be secured. The dry and mealy sweet potatoes are not good for any sort of candying. In preparing them in this way they are truly candied when the outside is carefully browned, while the inside is not sweetened additionally—with sugar.

Frosted Sweet Potato.

This method of preparing sweet potatoes makes a dish that might be used as a dessert, but some people like it exceedingly with fried chicken. A plain green salad should be on the menu with it, for the best effect—it is a distinct relief while some other sorts of salads would not be. To make the dish boil, peel, mash and season the sweet potatoes just as you would mashed white potatoes. Put the mashed potatoes into a buttered baking dish, and cover with marshmallow topping mixed with a few chopped raisins, or use egg white and raisins and even a few chopped nuts. Put into a hot oven and cook until it puffs and browns slightly. Serve from baking dish.

Mashed Sweet Potatoes.

Mashed sweet potato is delicious, when rightly prepared or when the potatoes have not been boiled in a lot of water, which dissolves out considerable of their sugar. Instead of this peel and slice the potatoes raw, or after a slight parboiling, and then cook them gently in only so much water as will be cooked out when they are tender and ready to mash. For four potatoes use two tablespoons of butter, salt in small measure, and a little hot milk or cream. Because the skin of sweet potatoes seem more like bark than that on most vegetables perhaps the best way to get off the thin skin is to wash and drop the potatoes into boiling water for from five to eight minutes, then to rinse them in cold—"refresh them"—and gently scrape off the skin with the back of a knife before slicing them. This is also a good way to prepare them when they are to be put in a pan to roast with meat. For mashed potato slice them, add the necessary, but small amount of water, boil up quickly, cover the pan and cook over a tiny fire. Add salt, and butter, and cream, and mash and beat till as smooth as velvet. This dish can be prepared in half an hour or less, and served in many different ways.

On Baking Sweet Potatoes.

When the skin puffs out in a great blister on a sweet potato when it is baking the oven is too hot, as the charring of that skin will show, and the potato will be baking unevenly. On the other hand, when the outside shrinks and the center is still rather rocky the oven has not been hot enough. An oven at about 400 degrees seems to be about the right sort. Some people like to rub a fat over the outside before putting the potatoes to bake. If this is done only the sweetest sorts of fat should be used. A fine, clean bacon fat—not one which has been overcooked—may be used, or a savory ham fat, but since it takes so little perhaps we can afford butter. A hotter fire can be used when they are prepared in this way. One way to use a hot oven, and still not ruin the potatoes, is to have a pan of water in it. The potatoes are likely to be lighter and fluffier baked in a hot and steamy oven. A sweet potato may be so perfectly baked that its sweetness is as delicate as that of a fine odor, and one can eat it out of hand after removing the skin without any addition. In fact, its daintiness, when so perfect, might be injured by either salt or butter.

The Value of Sweet Potatoes.

In a chapter on the "Uses of Sweet Potato," in a book on its culture, there is a quotation from an eminent horticulturist of Virginia who was also a physician which says that the sweet potato is one of the most valuable and useful plants grown on the farm, and that when other vegetables are scarce it is indispensable. He says that his people have found "roasted sweet potatoes" an excellent food and remedy "for the exhausting diarrhea of teething children during summer," which may be an old fashioned idea, yet sweet potatoes are real food of the sort always and ever needed by us all. Some of the food elements we can get on, for a time, without, but not the elements given us by sweet potatoes.

And as for combinations, this doctor writes: "In our estimation nothing can be more palatable than a portion of fat, juicy sirloin, roasted brown, in a large dish surrounded by baked 'Yellow Nansemonds,' partially immersed in the hot gravy, and smoking on the dinner table!" He says the yellow varieties are sweetest and best for the table, and he enumerates their uses as follows: "We make of it potato custards, sweet potato pies, spiced with wine sauce, potato pudding, and boiled entire, peeled and sliced, a la Yankee style (dressed with butter but not salt, if you please) it is an excellent custom to bake slowly and long, putting them on for dinner soon after breakfast" [probably they had dinner at midday] "and sending them to the table hot and in their own skins; peeled and dressed with butter, or gravy from the roast fowl, few persons will reject them." Information as to how to dry sweet potatoes and how to cook them after is also given by this man.

Peeling Potatoes.

You will note that the doctor says peel potatoes. A correspondent not long ago took me to task for using this word "peel." Since that I have noted that soldiers "peel potatoes," while teachers of cooking pare them, and not only soldiers but all men and boys seem to prefer the word. I like it.

Symphony Begins Thirty-sixth Year

By Edward Moore.

THOUGH recitalists have already begun their ministrations, the Chicago Symphony orchestra is still to be heard from, a condition that will be rectified this week. It is perhaps not too fanciful an idea that the first of these concerts gives an air of official sanction to the opening of the musical season.

LEO PODOLSKY will play his first Chicago recital today. [Tamamura Photo.]

Promptly at 2:15 next Friday afternoon Frederick Stock will take up the baton for the inauguration of the orchestra's thirty-sixth season. The first number will be Carl Maria von Weber's "Euryanthe" Overture, to be played in commemoration of the hundredth anniversary of the composer's death. Then will come César Franck's Symphony in D minor, the Suite from Stravinsky's "L'Oiseau de Feu," the Nocturne and Scherzo from Mendelssohn's music to "A Midsummer Night's Dream," and Borodin's "Prince Igor" dances.

No soloist will appear, which is the custom in the first symphony concerts, but several are under contract for later appearances. Among the pianists thus scheduled are: Mischa Levitzky, Nov. 19-20; Alfred Cortot, Dec. 10-11; Frank Sheridan, Jan. 14-15; Walter Gieseking, Feb. 4-5; Harold Samuel, Feb. 25-26. Violinists—Jacques Gordon, Nov. 26-27; Joseph Szigeti, Jan. 28-29. Cellists, Alfred Wallenstein, Nov. 12-13; Maurice Maréchal, Dec. 17-18. Singer, Harriet Van Emden, Feb. 18-19.

These twenty-eight pairs of Friday afternoon and Saturday night concerts are only one item in the orchestra's activities, as all who follow orchestra events know. The Thursday night "pops" will begin Oct. 21; the Tuesday afternoon symphony series, increased this season to twelve, Oct. 26; the children's Thursday afternoon concerts, series A, Nov. 4; series B, Nov. 18.

Soloists for the Tuesday afternoon concerts are thus scheduled: Violinists—Albert Spalding, Nov. 9; Joseph Szigeti, Jan. 25. Cellist—Alfred Wallenstein, Jan. 11. Pianists, Alfred Cortot, Dec. 14; Elly Ney, March 8. Negotiations with other artists are pending.

In Observance of the Weber Centenary.

Speaking of the Weber centenary, though it really occurred in June, it will have an uncommonly interesting observance here this week, since on Wednesday night Mme. Hedwig von Weber-Sperco, an old resident of Chicago, will give a piano recital at Kimball hall. She is a member of the composer's family, and her appearance will commemorate not only him but the fact of her own sixtieth anniversary as a pianist and the fact that for over fifty years she has been a teacher in the United States, a good part of that time here in Chicago, with one interruption of two years' duration, when, at the age of 50, she went back to Berlin for further study with Xaver Scharwenka.

Mme. von Weber-Sperco will commence her program with the "Invitation to the Dance," which appeared on her first program sixty years ago. She was instructed in it by her grandfather, who was a nephew of the composer. Elsewhere on her list will be Chopin's "Fantasie Impromptu" and one of the Preludes, also Liszt's Etude in D flat and "Erlkoenig." She will be assisted by Lillian Rehberg, cellist, and Olga Mann, soprano.

Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink is also planning an anniversary celebration of her own this year in commemoration of her fiftieth year on the concert stage. She has chosen what an ordinary person would consider some pretty hard work to emphasize her golden jubilee, since she will undertake a tour of seventy appearances from the Atlantic to the Rockies and from Wisconsin to Florida. Part of her activities will be with the Metropolitan Opera company, where she will sing some Wagnerian rôles. Her Chicago date is Oct. 24, and the place is Orchestra hall.

Allied Arts Promises Interesting Program.

Since most of the items this morning classify as looking to the more or less immediate future, it is a good time to talk a bit about the Allied Arts, that brilliant organization that combines fine art with popularity and presents contemporary achievements without preciosity or artiness. It will appear at the Eighth Street theater during the week of Oct. 24.

As in its two preceding seasons, it will have three important persons in charge of its exploits, Adolph Bolm, who directs its ballets and appears in most of them; Eric DeLamarter, who conducts the Chicago Solo orchestra, and Nicholas Remisoff, who designs its scenery and costumes. To whom may be added the names of Ruth Page, premiere danseuse; Marcia Preble, Harriet Lundgren, and Mark Turbyfill, other principal dancers, and Vera Mirova, the first of the season's guest-dancers.

Mr. Bolm himself is the choreographer of three numbers which will appear on the first program. "La Farce du Pont Neuf," with music by J. Herschel Clement, is a gay comedy taking place on the famous Paris bridge; "Parnassus on Montmartre," composed by Eric Satie, is another comedy, a masquerade of the ancient Grecian gods and goddesses by art students in a Montmartre studio; "Visual Mysticism," subtitled an "Longing, Searching, Harmony," is one of the classified ah Scriabin compositions. In it Mr. Bolm portrays the abstract art of the dance, pure plastic in combination with Scriabin's dream of pure music, and which he described as music in a fusion of movement and light.

Collecting Material for This Season.

Mr. Bolm devoted last summer to a European trip in preparation for this season, visiting Paris, London, Sweden, Germany, Latvia, and Switzerland. In Paris he discussed with Stravinsky arrangements for producing "The Soldier's Tale" and "Pulcinella," and with Tcherepnin "Saint Therese" and "The Boxers." In London he worked with Ralph Vaughan Williams on a Christmas piece, "A Christmas Carol," which he adapted from the Dickens story of the same name and for which Williams is writing the music, also with Gustav Holst on "The Fairy Tale."

These will be heard on later programs, as will Arthur Honegger's "Symbolic Games" and Manuel de Falla's "The Puppet Show of Master Pedro." These composers conferred with Mr. Bolm during his visit to the music festival at Zurich, Switzerland.

Of Mlle. Mirova it is told that she went to the orient with a group of other dancers during the Russian revolution and spent five years in studying the little known dances and rituals of those countries. Through the introduction of influential friends, she was admitted to the Javanese court and taught by the princes and princesses there. She also studied the local dances of Burma, Sumatra, India, and Japan, and she will present some of these in her appearances here. Incidentally she is the wife of Leo Podolsky, the Russian pianist, who will make his first Chicago appearance in a recital at the Studebaker this afternoon.

Uptown Concerts.

The Uptown civic concerts, these "popular and populous" (the quotes are the management's to remind me of my own description of them) Sunday afternoon music attractions, now an annual institution on the north side, will open their third season at Arcadia auditorium the last Sunday of this month, Oct. 31.

The history of these concerts, the plan of which Mayor Dever, in his address at last season's opening, declared worthy of emulation by other community centers of the city, dates back to 1924, when a group of citizens of uptown Chicago, working on the idea that their community would appreciate and support popular priced concerts given in their own neighborhood by notable artists, sufficiently impressed with

By Mae Tinee.

GOOD MORNING!

Harry Langdon, that helpless wight in funny clothing, whose days—on the screen—are always so long and full of trouble, appears before you this week in his new feature comedy. The title gives you a laugh to start with, for as a strong man, Mr. Langdon is anything else BUT.

HARRY LANGDON is his usual funny self in "The Strong Man."

After that you keep right on laughing, for you see, it's that sort of a comedy—one you laugh at. It is full of the brand of situations in which the Langdon fans love to see Langdon and through which the limp comedian totters after the fashion that has made him popular and promises to thrust fame upon him.

What Charlie Chaplin did in "Shoulder Arms," Harry Langdon doesn't do in "The Strong Man." However, he is in the throes of war when you meet him. He is over there, over there, but nobody can seem to find him.

"Where," asks an orderly with a letter, "is Paul Bergot?"

"The last I saw of him," replies a buddy, "he was in No Man's Land."

All Alone in No Man's Land.

In its own inimitable fashion, the screen forthwith transports you to No Man's Land where is discovered the hero, all alone, determinedly manipulating a large gun and never losing patience albeit he CANNOT hit the mark, which is a tin can that obstinately remains erect upon a fallen stump. A charmed life, bears the can, apparently, for there are bullets to right of it, bullets to left of it, bullets all about it, snapping and barking, but never a one grazes its tinny hide.

At last Paul Bergot gets out the paraphernalia with which David confounded Goliath, and as it was in the olden days, so is it then. With his slingshot Paul lays the tin can low, after which victory there is writ upon his little face the expression of fulfillment and utter peace that only a conqueror could wear after a long battle and a hard won victory.

After which he turns his attention to a lusty enemy in an adjacent trench, being quite successful there, also. After which, his letter is delivered to him and you discover that it is from Mary Brown in the States.

Mary Brown is one of those sweet girls who did her bit during the war by writing letters to unknown soldiers. She has picked on Paul and Paul sure enjoys being picked on. In this letter Mary incloses her picture, but from events that transpire, it can't have been such a good one. The adventure with the one known to the police as the Lily of Broadway would have been a practical impossibility had the picture of Mary Brown been a good picture.

Let the film tell you how and why, but Paul is claimed as a prisoner by a huge fellow known in theatrical circles as Zandow the Great—"The Strong Man"—and, after the armistice, comes over to America as that gentleman's assistant.

Hunting a Mary Brown in New York.

In New York he becomes separated from that redoubtable dumbbell hoister and, finding himself on the sidewalks of New York, he edges up to a hotel doorman who has been eying him suspiciously—with reason—and asks that gold braided personage where Mary Brown may be found.

The doorman looks at him with a "Can-it-be-real!" expression. Finally making up his mind that it is, replies obligingly, pointing to a busy corner, that Mary Brown passes there, every day.

Humble gratitude is registered by your hero who betakes himself to the corner and asks the passing girls which one is Mary Brown. A large and interested crowd of women soon assembles, one of whom treats him as a masher should be treated.

The others regard her ministrations with scoffing laughter and aid her with many a word of advice and commendation. Especially intrigued by the party is a large and knowing eyed blonde who is the last to leave when the crowd of indignant females finally goes on its various ways.

As the blonde walks along casting side glances right and left she is hurriedly approached by a slick and hurried male who whispers that the dicks are on his trail and slips a thick roll of bills in the lady's understandingly opened pocket book.

The gentleman vanishes apparently into thin air. The blonde walks on. But now, close behind her, is a gentleman with large feet who comes nearer and nearer——!

Then, lo, on another corner you behold Paul Bergot, and Paul is still trying to spot Mary Brown.

A Sleight of Hand Performance

Just as the dick gets within cursing distance, the blonde—yes, she is the "Lily of Broadway" deposits the roll in little Pauley's pottet. She is able to turn a righteously indignant face to the approaching parti who says: "A-HA, just out of jail and up to your old tricks again, my fine lady! Hand it over!"

"Hand over WHAT?" would like to know the Lily of Broadway, and she presents to his discomfited vision her empty purse.

"I'll git ye next time," promises the bull and is on his way. The blonde slips her capable hand back into the pocket for the roll—and lo, there is no roll there.

Where is the roll? Investigation reveals the fact that the pocket has a hole which leads into the lining of the coat proper and that the roll has passed through the hole into the lining and there reposes. The Lily of Broadway has had to do a lot of quick thinking in her time and now she does some more of it.

"I beg your pardon," says she hesitatingly, "but didn't I hear you say, sir, that you were looking for Mary Brown?"

"Yes, yes," says the palpitating hero.

"Well," replies the lady in a wee, small voice, caution telling her that the police may not be far afield, "I am Mary Brown!"

Wherewith she embraces the hare and walks off with him, fast, faster, fastest until a taxicab is reached. Into this she tumbles him with but little ceremony, gives the driver her address and endeavors to distract her catch's attention by honeyed conversation while she attempts to separate the roll from its almost inaccessible hiding place.

Not many blocks have rolled by until Paul, not quite as dumb as he looks, becomes suddenly wise.

In the Clutches of the "Lady" Thief.

The lady's actions are strange and, looking at her with suddenly discerning eyes, he discovers that she is, indeed, a stranger. Assuredly not the Mary Brown of the picture, though in his eagerness he had been quite willing to accept her as such at first.

An attempt to escape through the cab window is foiled by the Lily and an attempt to shake the terrifying female

The Rewards of Virtue

By H. L. Mencken.

THE dream of the Socialists, if any survive, is now realised among us, and even exceeded: bricklayers and plasterers are getting better pay than college professors. I am certainly no Socialist myself, but somehow this consummation gives me agreeable sensations. Is it foul, preposterous, inequitable, and against God? If so, on what ground? I know, like most men of my trade and interests, something about college professors, but, rather unusually, I also know something about bricklayers. My belief is that the latter are far more useful men than the former, and that, taking one with another, they are also far more amiable and amusing fellows.

The pedagogue, being excessively literate, has long poisoned the world with highfalutin tosh about his high dignity and consequence, and especially about his altruism. He is commonly regarded, even by those who ought to know better, as a hero who has made vast sacrifices for the good of the rising generation and the honor of learning. He is, in fact, seldom anything of the sort. He is simply a lazybones who has taken to the birch in order to escape implements of a greater laboriousness. The rising generation is not his pet, but simply his oyster. And he has no more respect for learning, in his average incarnation, than a congressman has for statecraft or a prohibition agent or lawyer for law.

The world's stock of knowledge is seldom augmented by pedagogues; far more often they oppose its increase in a violent and implacable manner. Turn to physics or metaphysics, as you please. How many of the salient philosophers have been professors of philosophy? Probably not twenty per cent. And how much of the recent advance in the physical science is due to men professionally devoted to teaching them? So little that it is hard to detect it. During the last quarter of a century chemistry has been completely overhauled. The axioms that it was grounded on in 1900 are now all abandoned. But at least three-fourths of the chemistry teachers of America are still teaching the chemistry of 1900, as nine-tenths of the literature teachers are still teaching the literary principles and ideas of 1885.

The pedagogue, however, is not my theme; what I presume to argue today is that the rewards that men get in this world, taking averages, run with their merit and value as members of society, and that those who are badly paid are usually paid very justly. The doctrine to the contrary is widespread, and upsetting it would probably be an impossibility, for it is supported vigorously by the thousands who are flattered by it. Nevertheless, it remains hollow and invalid, and a huge body of facts stands against it.

Of late it was mouthed very affectingly by homilists at the bier of the deceased Valentino. It was, it appeared, a disgrace to humanity that Valentino got such vast rewards, and so many pious and laborious men such small ones. His daily income was fifty times that of a bishop, a hundred times that of a pedagogue, and perhaps a thousand times that of a poet. And what did he do to earn it? He postured absurdly in nonsensical movies. He filled hundreds of thousands of female morons with gaudy and often salacious dreams. He destroyed throughout America, and even throughout the world, the respect that should go to dull and industrious men, painfully earning livings for their families.

With all due respect, bosh! Valentino was actually one of the most useful men who ever lived in the federal union, and deserved every cent he took in. Into the life of a sordid, unimaginative and machine bound people he brought a breath of romance. Thousands of poor girls doomed to marry bookkeepers, garage keepers, and Kiwanians got out of his pulchritude a precious and lasting thrill. He lifted their eyes above the carpet sweeper and the slop pail. He made them, for a brief space, gloriously, royally, and even a bit sinfully happy. What bishop has ever done more for them, or at a lower rate per capita? And what pedagogue? And what poet?

The world has always rewarded its romance makers richly, and with sound reason. They are extremely valuable men. They take away the sting of life, and make it expansive and charming. They make the forlorn brigades of God's images forget the miseries that issue out of hard work, mounting debts, disintegrating kidneys and the fear of hell. And their value, socially, obviously runs in direct proportion to the number of people they can reach and tickle. A Greenwich Village advanced poet, writing unintelligible Freudian strophes, is worth only the $9 a week that he gets, for his work brings joy to very few people. But an Edgar A. Guest, though his compositions may gag the judicious, earns every dollar of his millions, for when he lifts up his customers he lifts them up at wholesale, and the belch of satisfaction that follows is stupendous.

Here I may seem to argue that the worse the artist the nobler the man. I actually argue nothing of the sort. I am speaking, not of imponderable rewards, but of rewards in cash. The genuine artist gets something that the Valentinos and Guests can never hope to get. It is the colossal inner glow that goes with difficult work competently done. Something else also comes to him: the respect and esteem of his peers. He gathers fame, and it tends to be lasting. He cherishes the rare and immensely satisfying certainty that he will be remembered after he has gone from these scenes—that he is definitely and permanently rescued from the depressing swarm of anonymous men.

The Valentinos and Guests get no such reward. Guest is admired by Rotarians, and probably enjoys it, but he would enjoy it infinitely more if he were admired by men of taste. Poor Valentino was in even worse case. His customers, in the main, were idiots, and he was well aware of it. He would have willingly swapped all his money for an hour of the fame of Beethoven, for he was intelligent enough to see the adulation that surrounded him for what it was. But he was also intelligent enough to see that the fame of Beethoven was hopelessly beyond his reach, and so he raked in such rewards as actually came his way. It seems to me that he deserved them. He deserved them quite as much as any pedagogue in this glorious land deserves his $1,500 a year.

My experience of this worst of possible worlds convinces me that very few men are ever paid less than they are worth. Many are paid more, especially in America, where a great deal more money rolls in every year than the people of the country can earn, but not many are paid less. The cases that pop up almost always turn out, on inspection, to be extremely dubious. Some time ago, for example, the medical journals were full of sad articles on the meager earnings of the ordinary run of doctors—the modest fellows who confine themselves to neighborhood practice, and spend their days looking at tongues, dosing colds, and digging shoe buttons out of babies' ears and noses.

But it was quickly apparent, as the discussion developed, that most of these worthies were getting, not less than they deserved, but a great deal more. The trouble with them was simply that they were incompetent at their trade. Most of them knew no more about modern medicine than so many chiropractors or ambulance drivers. Their practice constituted a swindle, and their customers, becoming aware of the fact, turned to specialists, i. e., to men better equipped to do what they were paid to do. These same specialists were rolling in money, for in medicine, as in all other professions, even the most modest competence is relatively rare, and the man who has it is thus heavily rewarded.

The truth is that in the United States today most of all imaginable trades, including even that of poetry, are enormously well paid—provided only they have a reasonable skill at the thing they practice. The bellowing to the contrary comes from incompetents and frauds—doctors who are but little removed from Indian herb medicine men, lawyers who know no law, pedagogues who are jackasses, bootleggers who swindle their clients, authors with nothing to say, actors worse than clothing store dummies. The better fellows get all that they earn. And two-thirds of them, I am convinced, get a great deal more than they earn.

"DEEP RIVER" MOVES WITH A SLOW CURRENT

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Arthur Hopkins gave the new Laurence Stallings-Frank E. Harling opera, "Deep River," to the world this week and achieved for himself another of those splendidly ambitious and highly artistic triumphs that periodically cost him much money and frequently end in some sort of glorious failure.

A work of color and character, this native opera, with music by the man who set "The Light of St. Agnes" to what was described as a jazz score and created considerable stir with it in Chicago, but of such a casual, leisurely, and rather undramatic pace in its telling that it is certain to prove something of a test of patience for restless play followers. Its only hope for commercial success, I fear, is that it will interest the opera crowd.

Stallings has gone back to the days of the Creole ascendancy in old New Orleans for his background. Here, in 1835, it was the custom for the flashy young bloods of the town to pick their quadroon girls at an annual ball and guarantee them thereafter their protection. Here we find Muguette, the beauty of her season, being practically thrown at the head of the fiery young M. Brusard by her scheming mother. But the girl meets a young Kentuckian the day of the ball and would transfer her attractions to him. To help her she appeals to the voodoo queen for a charm, and this appeal takes up the greater part of the second act, which is splendidly vocal but over-long. The voodoo lady, disliking Kentuckians and favoring Creoles, refuses the charm, and Muguette turns to prayer, thus making herself extremely unpopular. In the end her two lovers, being of steady aim and much experienced in the duello, shoot and kill each other and she is left alone.

It is a handsome production, as befits a Hopkins enterprise. The company is black and white, several Negro actors and singers lending verisimilitude and good voices to the occasion. Lottice Howell, a good looking dramatic soprano, has the lead and Luis Alberni and Roberto Arditto the principal male rôles.

The Sensation of the Moment.

A play called "The Captive" is the sensation of the moment. The bolder sophisticates are wildly enthusiastic about it, the experts are agreed that it is beautifully written and played, and a crowd that is intensely curious is packing the Empire and filling the lobbies with excited comments.

Against this drama, which is Arthur Hornblow's adaptation of Edouard Bourdet's "La Prisonnière," just now the most discussed play in Europe, may be placed the charge that it drags up from below the deadline of decency a theme that is repulsive to the more sensitive. It is the sort of thing that from now till the end of the winter purists will be pointing to as the very kind of drama that should never be produced.

In its favor may be offered the excuse that it is vitally human in its exposure of a tragedy resulting from a heroine's fight against such forces as a clean minded citizenry reck not of, and may stand in need of being warned against. There is no offense in either dialogue or situation, and dramatically I may say to you that the play's performance is mevingly impressive.

"The Captive" is the story of Irene De Montcel, who finds herself held captive by the abnormal fascinations of an older woman. Seeking to break the spell, she begs the lover she had cast aside as a girl to marry her. His though earnestly warned by the husband of the friend, agrees, and they are married. Returning to Paris a year later, the young wife falls again under the spell of the evil one, and the play ends on the tragic note of her desertion of her husband.

The big scene of the play is that between the two men carrying the unhappy husband's warning to the would-be sacrificial bridegroom. This scene is so splendidly played by Basil Rathbone, who was the tutor of "The Swan," and an English player new to America, Arthur Wontner by name, that the first night audience staged a minor demonstration in their favor. Mr. Wotner, in particular, came in for great acclaim. Helen Menchen plays the unfortunate Irene, Ann Andrews has a vastly effective rôle as a contrastingly normal type of mistress, and you may judge the quality of the cast by the fact that Arthur Lewis is playing a butler and Norman Trevor has no more than one ten minute scene as the heroine's disgusted father.

Hampden Turns to Biblical Play.

Walter Hampden is courageous and, it may turn out, very wise in beginning this season with a somewhat ponderous drama of biblical days called "The Immortal Thief." Tom Barry wrote it, and its hero is that unhappy soul who, nailed to the cross next the Savior's at the crucifixion, was given promise of being with the repentant in paradise when the agony was over.

No story back of which and through which rumble echoes of the supreme tragedy can be wholly ineffective. This one, disjointed in scene and often of a certain commonness in speech, has flashes of power and of beauty.

The story told of the thief is that of Marius Rufinus, a leader of cut purses infesting the streets of Jerusalem in the days of Tiberius Cæsar. A cruel man, given to such extravagant punishments as that of cutting off the hand of one of his band suspected of treachery, he is apprehended by the Jews, offered escape to Damascus by the Romans and elects in the end, because he has caught some faint glimmering of the faith that has remade his mother in her wordsh of the Nazarene, to assume the guilt of a girl accused of murder and go to his death on the cross.

In the final scene, played in deep shadows amid the thunder and lightning that raged around Golgotha, the thief is shown on the cross. And from the wings to the right his plea is answered as the curtain falls.

It Pleases for Various Reasons.

It is such a play as will appeal to audiences unknown to the Broadway of Times Square and all its hiving arteries. It will satisfy the Hampden crowd which glories in the actor's eloquent voice, his commanding stature, and his frank, actorly bearing. It will attract those who embraced "Ben Hur" with enthusiasm and "The Wanderer" with sly satisfaction in being present at a Babylonian jamboree.

"The Immortal Thief" is not without its colorful episodes having to do with those who aim feverishly at life, liberty, and the pursuit of evil. There are dances by ladies whose torso muscles are actively employed and a scene in one of the more prominent flesh marts of the ancient city. But it is all done with dignity and taste.

Mr. Hampden is supported by the players of his Shakespearean company. Mabel Moore plays the mother, Marie Adele a girl thief, and there are colorful rôles for Cecil Yapp, Dallas Anderson, Ernest Rowan, and Edith Barrett.

This One's a Melodrama.

Mr. Woods has not done so well by Lowell Sherman in making him the star of "The Woman Disputed." Not only does he play a rotter, but a German rotter in war times. And that is not the kind of a job stars, especially new stars, usually hanker after.

The play is a melodrama with as much of the old stuff as can reasonably be crowded into it. The woman disputed is one who was a farm girl and, coming upon evil days, took to the street. One day she met the German officer, Capt. von Hartmann, and his pal, "Yank" Trinkard of the French Legion. They both love her. She prefers "Yank," and Von Hartmann is bitter. When the war comes they meet again in a ruined cathedral in France. Von Hartmann is in command and gleefully awaiting the girl's submission. Knowing your drama, you know that she would much rather kill herself than be untrue to Yank, but, borrowing an incident

This Thing and That Thing of the Theater

By Frederick Donaghey.

THAT native plays, in contrast with the imported, are technically better as season succeeds season is among my modest theories on the art of the drama and it has a good illustration in the respective new pieces on view in the side-by-side theaters in Dearborn Street. "The Jazz-Singer" is far superior as play-making to "First Love" and the former is Mr. Raphaelson's first, and "First Love" is one of ten or more by M. Verneuil that have been staged in the last decade. Few are the weeks that pass without my reading twaddle about the inferior workmanship of American writers for the stage as compared with the English and the Continental dramatists; but there has been little in the importations of recent years to bulwark this attitude, which is one easily assumed by most persons who write of the theater without knowing anything about it.

LOU HOLTZ He is replacing Frank Tinney in the Earl Carroll Vanities.

"The Jazz-Singer" is technically as nearly satisfying as its contents are effective in their appeal to what are classified by precisionists as the "domestic emotions": you take from a performance a sense of actuality that is the stronger because of the very fact that, in the writing and in the directing of the play, provision has been made for Mr. Jessel's specialty as a singer of the night-songs. M. Verneuil, undertaking to retell in the light and graceful style of Sacha Guitry one of the shop-ware tales of lovers on Montmartre, has all the technical facility of a team of gymnasts seeking to rewrite a libretto in order that it may accommodate their act on the flying trapeze. His technique is of the sort that asks us to believe that two persons may carry on an important conversation concerning a third while the third is within easy earshot, but unable to catch a word of what is said. It has, as a device, the same reasonableness as the old "aside," which Ibsen taught playwrights to do without even before the telephone came into general use.

"The Jazz-Singer" and a Play of Zangwill's.

The popular success of Mr. Raphaelson's play sends my thoughts back to the good stage-piece which the late Israel Zangwill wrote on a basis of tales in his book named "Children of the Ghetto." The populace would have none of it: my recollection is that Chicago and Cincinnati (or St. Louis, maybe) were the only cities where the week's intake was not less than the cost of operation. It was, I think, the first of Zangwill's plays to be staged. Its was, because of his tales of Jewish life and character, in high fashion then. "Children of the Ghetto" and "The King of Schnorrers" were best-sellers; and Richard Mansfield had dealings with the author regarding a play based on the latter book.

Mr. Tyler gave to "Children of the Ghetto" a cast that had "class" as far back as the year of production—1899. Wilton Lackaye, Miss Blanche Bates, the late Frank Worthing, William Norris, Richard Carle, Madame Cottrelly, Miss Ada Dwyer, and Miss Mabel Taliaferro (then a lovely and appealing child in the theater) were among those in it. One of the others was an actor I've never seen since: his name was Lestina; and he acted the old lemon-peddler, with his trade-phrase of "Two for a penny apiece!" with the same delectable effectiveness that marks Mr. Jaffe's impersonation of the good Yudelson in "The Jazz-Singer"—and, although there are nights when my tortured dreams make me believe that I know ten million actors, I've never until now known nor known of Mr. Jaffe. The late James A. Herne, the most gifted director of his day, staged the play for Mr. Tyler, who saw it fail in Washington and Baltimore, in Philadelphia and New York, and then, with its American cast, in London, where at the premiere Mr. Zangwill was booed and raspberried with a violence still talked about there when the antiquarians swap tales of the old Adelphi Theater in the Strand. . . . And this was, as I have indicated, a good play; and it was acted, under Herne, as well as I expect ever to see any play acted. Mr. Lackaye's Reb Shemuel stands after more than a quarter century as his finest achievement.

My thoughts go wistfully back to that play of Zangwill's because it was ever so much in the spirit of "The Jazz-Singer": in that, as in this, the younger struggled against and then gave in to the elder as the latter laid down the Levitical laws and the Mosaic commands.

And Dr. Louis Mann is to speak this morning in Sinai Temple on "The Jazz-Singer" in its aspect as a play about parents and their children.

"Salute Capacity!" Said Villon.

J. P. McEvoy's new piece named "God Loves Us" is about to be made known in New York. . . . He says it is a satire about American men of business; and he is so self-conscious when he writes what he calls satire that I always have the impression that he is merely spoiling H. L. Mencken.

Letter from a Good Poet.

SIR: Being naturally slow and prosy, as my remarks will prove, I have just got around to your column of Sunday was a fortnight. But if it be not quite too late, would you mind instructing us wherein Robert Mantell's repertoire may properly be described as "ragged"? That the scenery and the costumes which he employs are ragged "goes without saying"; and one must admit that his supporting company is generally (in words at which Robert surely could not cavil) "Rotten ere 'tis half ripe." But good old Robert, I should say, is nevertheless high up among the best we have to interpret those classic rôles; and, no doubt, he thinks that to dyed-in-the-wool Shakespearians it is worth the modest price of his tickets merely to hear the consecrated lines recited, were it by school-children done, and in the suburbs, and that to hear himself r-r-oll them out is a special treat and lagniappe which he throws in free gratis for nothing. Dato obolum Belisario and, if a limping Macbeth, or a grisaldre Hamlet, be a leetle incongreous, yet for Richard III to halt on one foot heightens the illusion of his hump-back and consummate villainy. What ho, varlet, and flag may Robert wave!

LAUREATUS.

Chicago, October 4, 1926.

My tagging of Mr. Mantell's repertoire as "ragged" was in alignment with the good-natured description by Laureatus of Mr. Mantell's growing unsuitability for most, if not all, of the rôles he continues to perform. Only Walter Hampden, of other players in this country, is giving time to Shakespeare; but I've matured enough, I fear, to abandon the silly notion I once entertained that it is better to have Shakespeare acted badly than not acted at all. . . . Mr. Mantell twenty years ago had, after a decade or more of what was little better than barnstorming, a first-class opportunity to take again and to hold, through Shakespeare, a popularity which in his earlier years had been immense. He was, in 1906, the only actor of prominence in this country with a repertoire of the more robust and heroic rôles in Shakspere—Hamlet, Macbeth, Othello and Iago, Lear, Brutus, Richard III, Shylock, and King John; and he was better than what is called "respectable" in some of these parts—Lear, Macbeth, and John. But he didn't seem to care to have good players in his casts; and he insisted on acting Romeo and Orlando, and on reviving trash like "The Marble Heart" and "Louis XI." When Mansfield died, in 1907, expectation was general that to Mr. Mantell would fall the especial place in the plans of the bookers and the big-city theaters that had season after season been the former's.

There's never any telling about actors!

Fred Donaghey in Chicago Tribune says:
"Here is something worth an evening in the Harris, where, accordingly, you are urged to go while 'The Jazz Singer' is on view there."

Amy Leslie, Chicago News, said:
"Jessel is a vivid bit. 'The Jazz Singer' has universal appeal. Contains exquisite realism. Whole cast delightful. The young emotional and handsome star made a greatly deserved success."

Ashton Stevens, Herald and Examiner, said:
"I enjoyed it very much. The acting was unusually good. 'The Jazz Singer' is a real novelty. Jessel's role fits like autobiography."

Odds-and-Ends of Stage-News

TEN weeks have been set aside in the Illinois for the engagement of Miss Queenie Smith in "Tip-Toes." . . . Apart from "Why Not?" the first play of the season, the Goodman Theater bulletins as "certain" between now and June 1 "The Cause of Love and Death," by Romain Rolland; "The Tower of Neale," by Dunsie; and "The Merry Wives of Windsor"; while classified as "probable" are "three new American plays whose titles are not yet ready for announcement." Also, it is explained that Whitford Kane, who took part in "Don Juan" and "A Mid-Summer Night's Dream" last season, will again act there. . . . "Queen-High" is a hit in New-York, from all accounts; and the management states that it will soon give it in Chicago with Miss Julia Sanderson and Frank Crumit. Joseph Coyne is to have the principal part for a London production of the piece.

Efrem Zimbalist, one of the three best violinists in the world today, is expected to write the music for "The Waltz-King," an operetta based on a play by Miss Peggy Wood and Samuel Merwyn named "Artist-Life." . . . Miss Wood is said to be the choice of the producers for the rôle of Jenny Lind in a new operetta named "The Nightingale."

New in Manhattan.

These are new things of the week in the New-York theaters:

"Juarez and Maximilian," by Franz Werfel, with Miss Clare Eames, Miss Margalo Gillmore, Alfred Lunt, Dudley Digges, Arnold Daly, and Edward G. Robinson. . . . The author wrote "Goat-Song" and "The Chief-Thing," staged last season in New-York, where the perfervid play-reporters said of the former that it was so good that even persons of the highest intelligence would have to see it more than once to learn what is was all about. The new piece was awarded the Grillparzer prize as the best play of its year in Austria. The venture is the first this season by the Theater Guild, whose so-called "permanent company" now goes into action. Mr. Daly, however, is a "guest."

"An American Tragedy." Patrick Kearney's dramatization of Theodore Dreiser's like-named and five-dollar novel, with Morgan Farley, Miss Katherine Wilson, Miss Miriam Hopkins, and Walter Wilson as the well-knowns of the cast. . . . Mr. Kearney wrote "A Man's Man," one of the two or three best plays I saw last season in New-York. . . . 'Tis told that influential persons averse to capital punishment have managed to have inserted in the play some nifty propaganda.

"Criss-Cross," by Miss Anna Caldwell, Otto Harbach, and Jerome Kern, with Fred and Miss Dorothy Stone. . . . Mr. Stone and his manager, Mr. Dillingham, calculate that a new show should last him three seasons—one in New-York, one in Chicago and the other large cities, and one in the smaller places. And it is said that "Criss-Cross" is built on the Ali Baba tale.

"We Americana," by Milton Herbert Gropper and Max Siegel, with Sam Mann. . . . A recent paragraph in THE TRIBUNE stated, on misinformation and belief, that Louis Mann would be in the piece. Mr. Gropper wrote the dirty little piece named "Ladies of the Evening," shown here last year by Mr. Belasco.

"White Wings," by Philip Barry, with Miss Winifred Lenihan, A. M. Kerrigan, Tom Powers, and Donald MacDonald. . . . Mr. Barry's "You and I" was given here three years ago, in the Playhouse, by H. B. Warner; and his "In a Garden" was among last season's failures in New-York, where it had Miss Laurette Taylor to act in it. The new piece is put on by Winthrop Ames; and that is a reason for suspecting that it may be worth while. . . . Mr. Kerrigan is the good actor of that name who first came to Chicago in 1912 with the Irish Players. Mr. Powers was recently announced here for the principal part in Miss Rachel Crothers' "Spring Magic"; he has since withdrawn from that piece. Miss Lenihan is a young actress who, after an effort in the title-rôle of Shaw's "Saint Joan," undertook to run the Theater Guild's school of acting.

"They All Want Something," by Courtenay Savage on a basis of E. J. Rath's novel named "The Dark Chapter," with Charles S. Abbe, William T. Tilden, and Billy Quinn. . . . Mr. Tilden is the good tennis-player with a mistaken notion that he is needed in the theater.

"The Straw Hat": a new adaptation, with music, of Labiche's famous farce named "The Legbery Hat." This was postponed from last week.

SPRIGHTLY, STAR OF A NEW PIECE

MISS QUEENIE SMITH

MISS SMITH, when here in the Spring of 1925 in "Be Yourself" seemed to be about all that a song-and-dance soubrette should be. That has been her sole appearance in Chicago: at least, as an eminent person of the theater. She became eminent when, in 1923, she appeared in Manhattan in something named "Helen of Troy (N.-Y.)." She returns to Chicago tonight as the star of "Tip-Toes."

Plays Listed for Chicago

Tonight:

"Tip-Toes," with Miss Queenie Smith, in the Illinois.—A song-and-dance play with music by George Gershwin that ran five months last season in New York.

"Square Crooks" in the Playhouse.—A piece by James P. Judge about reformed thieves, with Miss Dorothy Appleby and Mrs. Annie Mack Berlein. It has had a New-York bearing.

Earl Carroll's Vanities in the Apollo.—Last Winter's issue, the fourth, of the show bearing this title. Joe Cook and Lou Holtz are in it.

"One Man's Woman" in the Central.—A play by Michael Kallesser about life and love in the coco-belt of the Hawaiian Islands.

Tomorrow Night:

The Marx Brothers in "The Cocoanuts" in the Erlanger (formerly the Palace Music-Hall).—The buffoons who made good in the nonsense named "I'll Say She Is!" in a merry show by George S. Kaufman, with tunes by Irving Berlin.

"Honest Liars" in the La Salle.—A farce by Robert Weenolsen and Sherrill Webb that has been on view in New-York since mid-July. Robert Woolsey has the principal part.

Wednesday Night:

"Why Not?" in the Goodman Memorial.—A comic piece by Jesse Lynch Williams, who wrote one named "Why Marry?" The piece was given nearly four years ago in New-York. The "professional wing" of the theater's forces will start its season's activities in this production, with Miss Helen Forrest, Mrs. Ellen Root, Neal Caldwell, Miss Ellen Lowe, Hubbard Fitzpatrick, and Russell Spindler in the cast.

Sunday, October 17:

"Kitty's Kisses" in the Olympic.—A song-and-dance version of Philip Bartholomae's farce named "Little Miss Brown."

"Potash & Perlmutter, Detectives" in the Adelphi.—The most recent play about Montague Glass' famous cloak-and-suit merchants.

Sunday, October 24:

The Greenwich Village Follies in the Apollo.—Last season's New-York issue of this annual for an engagement into holiday-time, it is planned.

Tuesday, October 26:

"Princess Flavia," in the Four Cohans.—An operetta by Harry B. Smith and Sigmund Romberg, based on Edward Rose's dramatization of Anthony Hope's "The Prisoner of Zenda."

November 1:

"The Runaway Road," with Mrs. Insull, in the Studebaker.—A comedy by Mrs. Gretchen Damrosch Finletter that will be used to open Mrs. Insull's personal tenancy of this theater, which is now under her management. The play will have a try-out performance or two near-by.

ORNAMENTAL

MISS ALETA EDWARDS

She has the incidental part of Lady Mary in the current performances of "The Vagabond King," and is good to look at in the costume of the court of Louis XI. Miss Edwards, according to the press-agent, is "a direct descendant of Jonathan Edwards"; and Jonathan Edwards, if you do not happen to know it, is always mentioned favorably by the criminologists when they desire to explain that heredity is an important element in human conduct.

Sousa and His Men Next Month

The annual engagement of John Philip Sousa and his band will be the afternoon and night of Sunday, November 7, in the Auditorium. The March-King is now on one of his by-season "short tours," and is booked for concerts until that date in territory that holds him within a twenty-four hours' ride of Chicago—a compactness in arranging a route that is a practical tribute to his immense popularity. His new humoresque, "The Wets and the Drys," is the popular feature of his programs for this season; and the fact that he will not appear in Chicago until five days after Mr. Magill or Mr. Brennan or Mr. Smith is elected to the United States Senate is not likely to be a reason for omitting the composition from the Auditorium concerts.

Rosa Ponselle to Open New York Opera Season

By Joan King

NEW YORK. — [Special.] — Rosa Ponselle is to open the new season of the Metropolitan Opera company, Monday evening, Nov. 1, in Spontini's "La Vestale," according to the announcement of General Manager Giulio Gatti-Casazza, upon his return from abroad this week. She will be supported by Margaret Matzenauer, Giacomo Lauri-Volpi, Giuseppe de Luca, and a new artist, Ezio Pinza.

Also in the first week's repertoire will be a revival of Mozart's, "Die Zauberflöte" (The Magic Flute), sung in German with Marion Talley, Rudolf Laubenthal, Gustav Schutzendorf, Paul Bender, and Clarence Whitehill; Wolf-Ferrari's "I Gioielli della Madonna" (Jewels of the Madonna), with Maria Jeritza, Giovanni Martinelli, and Giuseppe Danise, with Vincenzo Bellezza making his American debut as conductor; and Von Flotow's "Martha," with Frances Alda, Beniamino Gigli, and de Luca.

Marion Talley will sing five rôles this winter, appearing in "Rigoletto," "Lucia," "Mignon," and "The Queen of the May" besides the Mozart revival. Feodor Chaliapin will appear twice during the second half of December and toward the end of March. The second half of the season will include three revivals, namely: Verdi's "La Forza del Destino," Montemezzi's "L'Amore dei Tre Re," and Beethoven's "Fidelio." Deems Taylor's "The King's Henchman" will be given in February.

Well Known in Chicago.

Two artists well known to Chicago were special features of the fourth and final week of the San Carlo Opera company's 1926-'27 New York season. Vicente Ballester, who sang with the Chicago Opera company four years ago and with the Metropolitan in 1924, paid his farewell to America as Rigoletto and Iago. The baritone is shortly to sail for Spain, where he will fulfill an extended operatic engagement. Margueritta Sylva, mezzo-soprano, who also sang with the Chicago company several seasons ago and who has been a member of the Paris Opera and the Opéra-Comique, was the Carmen of an afternoon performance. Mme. Sylva will probably appear in Chicago with the San Carlo this season.

A matinée performance of "Hansel and Gretel," sung in English, was given Thursday afternoon, followed by a special ballet. The feature was Enid Romany's interpretation of the "Jarabe" or national Mexican dance. Miss Romany is the only dancer not a native Mexican who has ever been permitted to dance the "Jarabe" by Mexican managers. She gave the dance in Mexico City a year ago at the Teatro Nacional with the Pavley-Oukrinsky ballet, which was with the Chicago Civic Opera company last season.

Scotch Singers Welcomed.

With the introduction to America of Hugh S. Roberton's Orpheus choir from Glasgow at Carnegie hall, Gotham finally embarked upon the 1926-'27 sea of musical entertainment. The Scottish organization was the recipient of a sizable reception—largely comprised of fellow countrymen—and the program, in the main Scottish folk songs, was accorded the warmth that only a fellow countryman can assume on such an occasion. Of the thirty-six numbers listed many were the works of the conductor, himself—a dignified and charming exponent of sincere, simple interpretation. Mr. Roberton's humorous comments and introductions added much.

Notes of Musicians and Concerts.

A series of three concerts is to be given by the Chamber Society of New York this season under the direction of Max Jacobs. Two novelties are being written for the society by Mortimer Wilson and Boris Levenson. The Wilson suite is entitled "Music and Calories," and is composed of ten short movements. The Levenson work is a Hebrew suite called "Palestine." In addition to these modern novelties there will be a number of rarely played numbers by early composers. The assisting artists will be Wanda Landowska, harpsichordist; Max Rosen, violinist, and Carlos Salzedo, harpist.

PERFECT!

MISS DOROTHY RAYMOND

She is the actress of the mother's rôle in "The Jazz Singer"; and it doesn't seem to the play-reporter for The Tribune that any other actress, of all the actresses known to the American stage, could play the rôle so well as Miss Raymond plays it.

Embarrassing Moments.

A Mysterious Admirer.

My greatest thrill is still a mystery, and took place on a vacation trip this summer. Our party of three arrived in a southern city quite early one morning, with the intention of spending the day sight-seeing, and then boarding a train for home that evening. But it seemed quite warm, and so we decided to go to a hotel and remain over night. We registered and were shown to our room, but shortly started out for a jaunt about the town.

Late in the afternoon when we returned, the clerk at the desk of the hotel handed me a letter. I was surprised, for no one knew we were going to spend the day there, let alone stop at that particular hotel. I opened the letter and began to read. To make a long story short, it was a "masterpiece," one of the most beautifully written love letters I have ever received. The writer told of how he had danced with me in Chicago, not so long ago, and had not forgotten the delightful occasion. He was there in New Orleans on business for several days, and would I please give him the pleasure of my company for that evening, just for the renewal of old acquaintanceship? But the name of the writer was strange to me. I could not recall meeting such a person.

However, since there were three of us, we decided to be in at 6 p. m. that evening, when the writer of the letter said he would phone me.

We went out for tea, returning, as we thought, in time to receive the phone call. But instead, lying on the dressing table in our room, was a large bouquet of red roses, to which was pinned a note. My "mystery lover" had been called back to Chicago on account of the illness of a relative. He was sad, but assured me he would see me in Chicago.

To this writing, I have not heard from him. Who he was, and who he thought I was, is still a mystery to me. Yet, I must confess, to receive two beautifully written "love letters," and a gorgeous bouquet of red roses from an unknown lover, while touring a city miles away from home, was indeed the thrill of a lifetime. B. K.

A Narrow Escape.

My greatest thrill occurred last summer during a stay at Starved Rock.

While visiting the numerous canyons my son climbed to the top of one of them. Upon coming down he slipped and barely escaped sliding one hundred feet down into a ravine. He was saved by grasping a trail rail about a foot away from the precipice.

This was the greatest thrill I ever had or hope to have. M. A. P.

MINIATURE

MISS DOROTHY APPLEBY

She's in the principal feminine rôle of "Square Crooks," one of the week's new plays. . . . Miss Appleby was here last year with Miss Elsie Janis in the latter's revue in the Harris, and the year before in "Mary Jane McKane" in the Garrick.

"Deep River" Moves with a Slow Current

By Burns Mantle.

from one of M. De Maupassant's stories, she is induced to make the sacrifice to save the life of a French spy.

The Americans and French come through next act and Von Hartmann is captured. Yank hears the story then and is for leaving the girl. But love conquers practically all in the end.

William Hodge is here with "The Judge's Husband," which seems to have made friends with the Hodge following, though to be somewhat less popular than was his last play. In this one William is a Connecticut attorney who teaches his wife so much law she passes him and becomes a judge. So busy does she become that Bill has to go in somewhat for house management, in which pursuit he meets an attractive maid or two. Then one night, when he fails to come home, the judge, his wife, becomes suspicious, and doubly so when he does not come home for two nights. In fact, she proceeds to sue him for divorce and to hear her own case.

The trial scene, wildly improbable, is still the most amusing act of the play. Finally it is proved that William was out those two nights trying to save his daughter from the consequences of having gone riding with a young man in liquor.

Gladys Hanson is the judge.

Riotous Debut for Blondes.

The advent of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," was quite as riotously successful as its promoters expected. The better part of the theater was sold for $11 a seat to the smartest ladies and gents of the Broadway aristocracy. There were enough gorgeous Spanish shawls there to carpet the Louvre, and enough expensive jewelry to stock a good sized store. The boys and girls from the cinema farms were much in evidence.

The day after the opening Edgar Selwyn, the producer, sold the house flat to the speculators for the next three months. They bought every seat in at the price stamped upon the ticket and will make their own adjustment as to what the public shall pay.

I have a feeling that the Lorelei Lees and their gentlemen friends were a little less thrilled by Anita Loos' classic story of the gold-diggers than they expected to be. Lobby talk indicates that they found Lorelei's work a trifle crude and old-fashioned. But there are laughs enough and to spare to suit the crowd and guarantee long life to the play.

Charlie Makes an Exit Two Jumps Ahead of Fire

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special Correspondence.]—Rare business acumen was displayed by Charlie Chaplin during the $40,000 fire that swept the circus tent set at his studio recently. Lesser men, when caught in the gripping fear of fire, have been known to emerge from the wreckage clasping the family photograph album and a pair of cotton sox, but not so Charlie.

When Charlie was making his way from the set to his adjoining dressing room, also under the big canvas top as has erected for his circus picture, he was astounded to see an ever growing mass of flames rapidly licking up the canvas sides and wooden supports. The flames from electric wiring in the sawdust of the circus ring proved too much for Charlie's equanimity, and the funniest exit the comedian ever made was not recorded by the camera.

Charlie went out the door at a terrifying speed, with the short tails of his coat standing out in the breeze like a propeller on a plane. The derby known to fame and the imperishable bamboo cane were his sole partners in this rapid hegira. Loud cries of "Fire, fire!" issued from the lips of the impersonator of Napoleon. Merna Kennedy and a company of twenty-five other persons had just time to get out of the tent.

The intense heat proved too great for the glass roofing over the circus set, and the panes began popping and falling in showers, the noise of which might have rivaled the artillery at Napoleon's Waterloo. Charlie, by his rapid and complete retreat, saved himself unharmed, thereby rescuing the most valuable piece of property that could have been brought out of the flames.

The earning power of Charlie, the derby, and cane, can, in a few days' work, pay the $40,000 damage done by the fire. As for the other actors, Charlie followed Napoleon's maxim, "A man is the only thing that can take care of himself," and they did likewise. No one was injured.

Busy on "The King of Kings."

Cecil De Mille personally has been directing an important scene in the making of "The King of Kings," with Rudolph Schildkraut playing the rôle of Caiapha, the high priest attempting to lay the tribute to Cæsar's trap for the Master. Sam De Grasse, Theodore Kosloff, and Casson Ferguson are playing in the scene, which showed the home of the high priest. The Jewish library of that time is shown along the walls, large parchments scrolls of the law, with their titles being printed on red or blue tickets, hanging from the rolls. No expense is being spared on the gorgeous oriental hanging, furniture, and costumes, and the effect is impressive in the extreme.

Joseph Schildkraut is playing in the picture with his illustrious father. He is the apostle Judas. Joseph Schildkraut had an interesting bit of his life history to tell about his father, whose sense of humor, the son says, never fails. Several years ago, when the younger Schildkraut was a callow and rather untried actor, he was employed to appear with his father in a production of "The Prodigal Son," in Berlin. Rudolph was the father of the prodigal, and Joseph was the prodigal. Joseph was extremely nervous in the first performance and much afraid of his father's sharp criticism of his acting. He got through the performance somehow and sat waiting nervously in his dressing room for his father's remarks after his performance.

The father came after some moments, looked Joseph up and down with a cold glassy eye, and remarked, "And what's more, I don't like your necktie."

NOT IN THE SCENARIO

CHARLIE CHAPLIN is looking dejectedly on as firemen finish putting out the studio blaze that cost him $40,000. A short circuit in one of the Klieg s is believed to be responsible for the fire. (Pacific and Atlantic Photo.)

And the Melody Is—

Dear Miss Tinée: Lloyd Hughes? Oo-la-la and hot dog, as the French say. Heart, heart, be still and stop your fluttering! You know as well as I do that Lloyd is married. Shame on you!

But—thank goodness, Dolores del Rio didn't really get him, as she reely did in "Pals First." Don't you think she emotes marvelously, Mae? I do, just as much as I think Bull Montana would make an ideal Romeo. Why, when she registered hate she cast her eyes upward! When she registered sorrow she cast her soulful (?) eyes downward. When she registered pain she cast them upward. When she, O, what's the use? That's all she did, anyway, cast them up or cast them down. As a sweetheart for boyish, lovable Lloyd she made a wonderful leading man!

O, Mae, for hevvinssake, stop me! stop me! before I burn up.

I want to tell you, Mae, how much I enjoy your clever criticisms. You make me like a picture whether I do or not. (That's not good logic.) But I do truly love your articles. You know what to write about and how. That's why I love you. Dum de dum dum——

Well, now I can enjoy a good night's rest. Nothing bothered me as much as Dolores, except the mosquitos.

Norma's Most Artistic Film.

Dear Miss Tinée: Some time ago, as I was looking through a well known movie magazine I came across a picture of Norma Talmadge. Nothing unusual, of course, but it set me to thinking, as all her pictures do, of the one picture that I have always remembered her by—"Smilin' Through."

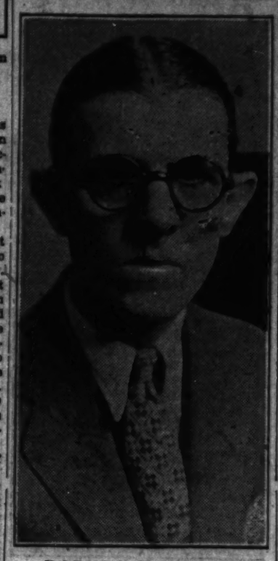

I was not so old when I saw it, but the memory of it has always stuck to me, indelibly imprinted in my memory. I unreservedly believe it is the best thing she has ever done. That I am not alone in this opinion is evinced by two things: One, the plea of one of your column readers to the managers of the Orchestra Hall theater to run that film again; and, second, the opinion of Miss Talmadge, herself. For in the same magazine that I saw her picture was a page devoted to the views of the stars on what they considered their best picture.

And here is what Norma herself said: "'Smilin' Through' is my choice. Is is the picture which more nearly approached my vision of the thing it was going to be. I feel, too, that it is the most artistic thing I have ever done, and I should like to be remembered in this rôle."

Well, she is, by me, at least. "Great minds, etc.," you know. Well, nuff said! May I always be greeted by your column in the morning. Sincerely yours, SAGITTARIUS.

Editor's Note: May you always be there for the column to greet, Sagittarius.

ROBERT WOOLSEY

He's the principal performer in "Honest Liars," new here this week, and is "featured" in the ads. . . . When last here, Mr. Woolsey was the cut-up with Miss Fay Bainter in the operetta named "The Dream-Girl."

in front of her apartment is put to naught by the taxi driver.

"You can't leave your women lying around the streets like this!" says the driver and throws the apparently fainting dame into arms that are quite inadequate to support her.

How Mr. Langdon escapes from the Lily makes interesting seeing. His reunion with the Strong Man and the advent of the Zandow's act into Cloverdale, I believe is the name of the town—is some more to behold, and the following episodes that take place in that town where the real Mary Brown is discovered, furnish entertainment that I think you will enjoy.

There will be much sympathetic coughing and sneezing in the theater during the period in which poor Pert suffers with a cold. It is the most realistic cold that has ever been screened.

Things move right along in "The Strong Man." It has been well directed. Some of the gags are new. The supporting cast knows how to support, and—well suppose you go and see the picture and tell me what YOU think of it?

See you tomorrow!

their theory the Uptown Chicago Chamber of Commerce, of which George F. Nixon was president, to cause it to sponsor the first season of Sunday afternoon concerts in uptown Chicago.

These were attended by large audiences and such appreciation was shown by people of the neighborhood, who enjoyed good music they did not have to make the tiresome trip to the loop to hear, that it was decided to make the Uptown civic concerts an annual event. This decision was given the hearty indorsement of persons prominent in musical circles, notably Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, who lent her support to this innovation with similar enthusiasm to that she had shown for the establishment of civic opera in Chicago.

In the fall of 1925 the Uptown Chicago Civic Music association was formed. Mayor Dever is honorary president and Mrs. McCormick is honorary chairman of the women's auxiliary, which is actively headed by Mrs. George V. McIntyre. The officers and board of directors are J. F. Cornelius, president; George F. Nixon, vice president; O. A. Christensen, treasurer; Col. Charles J. Kraft, secretary; David B. Maloney, counsel; Dema E. Harshbarger business manager, and Britton I. Budd, Joseph F. Jackson, Loren Miller, William M. Dewey, James P. Ward, William F. Grosvenor, and William A. Patterson, directors.

The program for this season's series is as follows: Oct. 31, Russian Symphonic choir; Nov. 7, the Marmein Dancers and Little Symphony of Chicago; Nov. 14, Charles Hackett and Herbert Kirschner; Nov. 21, Claudia Muzio; Nov. 28, Edith Mason and Edgewater Beach orchestra; Dec. 5, Cesare Formichi and José Echanis.

With the Melody Makers.

With the arrival of its musical director, Giorgio Polacco, this morning, the final authority of the Chicago Civic Opera company's long list in the preparation of affairs for the coming season is here. Mr. Polacco, his wife, Edith Mason, and their small daughter, the "opera baby," Graziella, are expected this morning, having arrived in New York last Tuesday. Most of Mr. Polacco's time since then has been consumed in conferences with Manager Herbert M. Johnson, also with composers, artists' representatives, singers, and other incidents of organization.

First intimations of the opening week are that one of its items will be Wagner's "Tristan and Isolde." This was originally planned for December, but was moved up because Elsa Alsen, guest soprano, who will sing Isolde, became available sooner than was expected. Charles Marshall will be the Tristan, Cyrena Van Gordon Brangaene, Richard Bonelli Kurwenal, and Alexander Kipnis King Mark. Mr. Polacco will conduct.

A program of spirituals will be presented at Orchestra hall tomorrow night by J. Rosamond Johnson, composer, baritone, and pianist, and Taylor Gordon, tenor. Both are colored musicians. Mr. Johnson is a native of Jacksonville, Fla., and studied music in the New England Conservatory of Music, Boston, also in Europe. He is a composer of more than 300 popular songs. With his brother, James Weldon Johnson, he arranged a book of spirituals which appeared last year, and a second set of which has just come out. He served as second lieutenant during the war and is an honorary master of arts of Atlanta university. The Johnson-Gordon recitals were popular in New York last season, with a record of eighteen appearances.

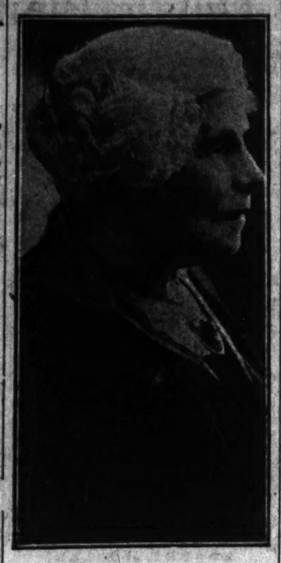

The piano on which Chopin composed his Funeral March, and many others of his greatest compositions, will be brought here from Paris this fall under the personal care of M. Maurice Dumesnil, French pianist, to be shown in a tour of the country, for the benefit of the unfortunate musicians of Europe.

The tour has been arranged by M. Isidore Philippe of the Paris Conservatoire, head of the relief work for European musicians. Musicians say the piano is still in good condition both as to tone and action, and M. Dumesnil will play on it one group of Chopin compositions in each city in which it is shown.

On this piano Chopin played his last concert in Paris, in 1848, and on it the Countess Delphine Potocka played to him, as he lay dying, a year later. Among Chopin's works composed on this piano are the Preludes, the G minor Nocturne, the Funeral March, the three Supplementary Etudes, the A minor Mazurka, the Tarantelle, the F minor Fantasie, and the B minor Scherzo.

A benefit concert under the auspices of two young people's organizations of the Swedish Baptist churches of Chicago will be given at Orchestra hall Oct. 19 by the Swedish Choral club. Edgar Nelson will conduct, and the soloists will be Jennie Peterson, soprano; Minnie Cedergren Jernberg, violinist; Le Roy Hamp, tenor, and Henry T. Carlson, organist. The net proceeds of the concert will be applied to the construction of a passenger elevator in the Swedish Old People's home, Morgan Park.

AFTER 60 YEARS

MME. HEDWIG VON WEBER-SPERCO.

A member of the family of the famous composer, Carl Maria von Weber, whose death occurred a century ago, and a piano teacher of over a half century's active service, Mme. von Weber-Sperco will on Wednesday night celebrate the sixtieth anniversary of her own first appearance as a concert pianist. Her recital will be given at Kimball hall, and one of the numbers on her program will be Von Weber's "Invitation to the Dance," which she played at her debut.

ART AND ARTISTS

Two Exhibits at Chicago Galleries

A hint of summer in the air
Flushes the fruit trees with delight;
The boughs which yesterday were bare
Today are powdered with the white

Of early blossoms. From the ground
Springs the first hint of tender green.
The brook flows with contented sound
Where one lone crocus may be seen.

Spring! Spring has come. The gay refrain
Tosses the birds to fluttering song
(My garden fronts upon a lane):
"Spring, come along! Spring, come along!"

E. J.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

EXHIBITIONS by three painters made the first week of the new art season an occasion for rejoicing. September is always a quiet month, if one can except the hustle and bustle that fill the last fortnight of it with the plaints and contentments of returning summer travelers. No one expects much to be alive in the world but moving vans and cumbersome motor trucks. Then the curtain rings down on September and October is upon us with its significance of fresh beginnings and events of importance in the closely approaching future.

The exhibitions of last week comprise two one man shows installed at the Chicago galleries, and a third show, which is in no sense of the word a formal exhibit, merely a friendly arrangement of water colors and pastels, the result of a six weeks flying trip through Spain, France, and southern England last summer in the interest of the "Western Architect," undertaken by Charles L. Morgan.

The Chicago galleries exhibition includes wood block prints by C. A. Wilimovsky, of which a series of scenes from the Virgin islands is a fascinating group, but the chief interest of the rooms centers in the long gallery where are hung paintings by Frank C. Peyraud and Claude Buck. It was a painting by Mr. Peyraud, "In My Garden," that led to a vision of spring, though the month of April be yet a winter away.

Our Countryside on Canvas.

A note in the catalog states that these pictures are, with a few exceptions, the result of Mr. Peyraud's work since his return from abroad, and that he drew his inspiration for them from the beauty and charm of the Skokie valley, the Des Plaines, and north shore countryside. This is undoubtedly true, and the paintings illustrate with typical coloring our flat green expanses of summer field and the glorious reds and yellows which swoop upon our oaks and maples at the first touch of Jack Frost's chilly breath.

There are two little canvases showing a foreign city in sunlight and in moonlight, which are exquisite. The two are of Gruyeres. Another canvas filled with the poetry of age is seen in "A Medieval Town, Switzerland." A fourth painting from Europe, "Sunset in the Alps," brings with it a sense of majesty and power and unapproachable glory shared by the painter and the observer together.

The quiet manner, the feeling of unlimited leisure, the awareness of the lack of necessity for noise, the serene self-confidence and poise of the painter who created them, all of these several qualities are strongly in evidence in the group of pictures. One of the most beautiful, with its conviction of absolute peace, is "Summertime." "In My Garden" (as has been said) is an exquisite lyric, the brown trees bearing the tiny, fluttering white blossoms like so many quivering candle flames lit to the return of spring.

In a Different Vein.

Far different in treatment, design, thought, method, manner, and in every other sense one might give name to, are the paintings by Claude Buck. Here is found a young painter who has gone ahead in his art to an astonishing degree within the last few years. He has changed and broadened and developed; has dared to dare, and succeeded in his daring.

Two, or maybe three, years ago, Mr. Buck held a one man show of his paintings in a gallery in the Art institute. There were exquisite things to be found in that exhibit. The panels were small and the figures, in nearly every case, of symbolic origin. A memory of profuse gold leaf and much precise, painstaking care remains in company with the memory of the tiny exactness of the various compositions. Biblical stories were responsible for a great deal of the pictured beauty. About the entire exhibit hung an atmosphere not quite of this world. One imagined the artist an elderly man, stooped, a dreamer with far sighted, gray eyes.

On the contrary, Claude Buck is a vigorous young man, with broad shoulders and of large build. His hair is black and his eyes—at all events, not gray. There is something of the dreamer in his face, but it does not suppress the force of the materialist, which also is to be found there. He said, a slight passing remark dropped at hazard, that children and living had taught him the power of material things. This power he has transferred to his own uses.

The Claude Buck that was you will find in the spiritual canvasses, tinged as they are with the delicacy of a true poet in "Christ Among the Lowly" and "Christ Healing the Blind." His "Christ Crucified" is a more rugged work, taking its inspiration from the modern school, one imagines, rather than from the depths of the painter's sincerest convictions.

Depicting the Peasant.

On the other hand a second rugged conception rings true. It is the "Volga Boatsong." The four peasants, not absolutely Slavic in type, but rather composite of the laborers of the world, strain under their self-inflicted task, singing, as they pull, those old chanties with which we have become familiar during the last few years. The soul of the peasant seems to live in these rolling notes and singer after singer recently has rescue them for us, bringing to our spiritual eyes visions of that broad river and the men that trudge its banks, pulling heavy ships up or down, keeping themselves alive and in good heart by means of their thundering, fighting, rumbling canruses.

In his genre paintings, perhaps, Mr. Buck has gone the farthest in his adventure into fresh paths and places. There are several of these, and each reveals a suggestion of humor, and virility, and youth that sets him several worlds aside from the gold leaf illustrator of some years back. One of the gayest paintings is the wholly lovable and immensely jolly "Pickaninnies," little colored children, dancing in the street. Another canvas with a human appeal, although with mysticism and romance lurking in its lights and shadows, is the "Organ Grinder."

A delicate piece of coloring, and with something of the charm of a Botticelli spring, is seen in "The Dance of Spring." For contrast look at the "A Good Story," this last is exceedingly untypical of Mr. Buck's genius.

It is difficult to know which painting to leave unmentioned. One of the best, the one were I given a choice I would choose, is a simple little still life called by him "White Linen." It is a most effective and masterly achievement, based upon three distinct objects.

About Charles Morgan's Sketches.

To go from these exhibits to the studio in the Munroe building, where are to be found, but only in an informal manner, the delightful sketches by Charles Morgan, is to make another step into the differences that exist between artists and manners. Here is simplicity and beauty and a great conviction of the value of both. Mr. Morgan is not a painter, primarily. He is an architect and he has done other work along the line of mosaic. In a Chicago theater may be found a striking head of the late Theodore Roosevelt in the stones and coloring of his mosaic.

But, aside from this, it is fascinating to know that art need not be one-sided, to realize the true artist can work in several or all mediums. And it is a relief to have records of foreign travel that do not deal exclusively with begging and poverty and dirt, but reveal the unique differences which distinguish the old countries from the new. Mr. Morgan has used his eye and his brain and his hand in enthusiasm and kindliness, and the result is a delightful collection of impressions which bring the taste of foreign places back keenly to the tongue of the traveller.

The All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts, to give it its full name, skilfully abstracted from the catalogue, has an interesting exhibition in the Carson Pirie Scott galleries. The triumph of brain over matter, or convention over modernism, is illustrated by the fact that 65 modern artists were accepted to be hung against 180 conservative artists. Space forbids a further mention of this exhibit today.

The succeeding show in the Carson Pirie galleries will be a one man show of paintings by Frank V. Dudley. This exhibit will open Oct. 18.

THE REV. FREDERICK PFOTENHAUER, D. D.
[Wood Bros. Photo]

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTON.

THE People's Church of Chicago will dedicate today its uptown temple representing an investment of $650,000, located at Lawrence avenue and Sheridan road. Dr. Preston Bradley, pastor of the church since its organization more than 14 years ago, will preach the dedication sermon at 10:45 a. m. At 8 p. m. Dr. Frederick F. Shannon, pastor of Central church, Orchestra hall, will preach. Dr. Franklin G. Southworth, president of Meadville Theological seminary; the Rev. Fred V. Hawley, minister of Unity church, and the Rev. David Rhys Williams, pastor of Third Unitarian church, will take part in the evening program.

Five floors of the new temple will be devoted to church activities. The auditorium seats 2,000. The architecture is colonial and the interior decorations are antique gold, ivory, and walnut panelings.

Dr. Bradley is president of the Chicago Liberal Ministers' association and last Sunday preached the sermon at the sesquicentennial exposition at Philadelphia, Pa.

Dedicatory services of the new $750,000 Olivet institute will begin today and culminate in the formal dedication next Sunday. Services will be held at 10:45 a. m., 3 and 7:30 p. m. The Rev. Norman B. Barr, pastor and superintendent, will be in charge. On Tuesday Mayor Dever and other civic leaders will speak. On Wednesday will be the 38th annual homecoming. The ladies' aid society will serve a dinner on Thursday and the children will have Friday. Saturday will be athletic day when the gymnasium will be dedicated.

A new home will be dedicated this afternoon at 3 by the Salem Evangelical Free church at California and McLean avenues. The home cost $125,000. The pastor will be assisted by several visiting clergymen.

Cardinal Mundelein, Bishop E. F. Hoban, Bishop Stehle, arch abbot of the Benedictine order, will be present today at the golden jubilee of St. Paul's Catholic church at 22d place and Hoyne avenue. The celebration will be under the direction of the pastor, the Rev. Leonard Schlimm, pastor for the last thirteen years. The music of the mass will be of an unusual character, the choir being augmented by other special singers.

The Copernicus day nursery at 3217 South Morgan street will be dedicated today at 2 o'clock by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Thomas P. Bona, pastor of St. Mary of Perpetual Help Catholic church, in which parish the new nursery is located. Visitors will be welcome at an at home between 2 and 5:30 p. m.

The second Catholic congress of the Episcopal church will be held in Milwaukee beginning Tuesday evening and continuing over Wednesday and Thursday. Pontifical high mass will be celebrated at All Saints cathedral Wednesday morning. Between twenty-five and thirty bishops are expected to be present, as well as representative clergy and laymen. The Most Rev. John Gardner Murray, presiding bishop of the church, will be present.

The Disciples of Christ in the Chicago metropolitan area will hold a union communion service this afternoon at 3:30 in the Jackson Boulevard Christian church, Jackson boulevard west of Western avenue. The pastor, the Rev. Charles R. Oakley, will preside, the church choir will sing and the address will be made by Dr. Herbert L. Willett.

The annual Bible conference and business meeting of the Illinois Christian Fundamentals association will be held in Grace Evangelical church, North Dixon, Ill., the Rev. Fred Brandfellner, pastor, Oct. 18-21. D. J. C. Buswell, president of Wheaton college, and Dr. W. R. Newell, Bible teacher, will be among the speakers.

Dr. Pfotenhauer, president of the Missouri Lutheran church for the last fifteen years, has been reelected for another term of three years by an overwhelming majority. He was educated at Concordia college, Fort Wayne, Ind., and at Concordia seminary, St. Louis. He began his ministry in 1880 as missionary and pastor. From 1891 to 1908 he was president of the Minnesota and Dakota district and since 1911 has been president of the entire synod. He resides in Chicago.

It is the Missouri Lutheran churches which began yesterday the Lutheran exposition at the Sherman hotel. Three sessions will be held today at 10 a. m., 3 and 8 p. m. Exhibits of home and foreign mission work are on display in 100 booths.

A reception and Christian Endeavor Fellowship dinner will be given Thursday evening at 6:30 at the Moody Bible institute in honor of Charles F. Evans, the western manager of the United Society of Christian Endeavor. Reports of the London Y. M. C. A. world convention will be made by returned delegates and Mr. Evans will speak.

Last Tuesday Dr. Harris F. Rall of Garrett Biblical institute, Evanston, accompanied a party of 100 to the Little Brown Church in the Wildwood near Nashua, Ia., where he performed a double wedding. The party went by automobile from Cedar Rapids, Ia.

On Tuesday his eminence Cardinal Mundelein will dedicate the memorial erected in memory of Francis Peabody by his wife and son, a replica of the little chapel of the Portiuncula at Assisi, connected with the life of St. Francis of Assisi whose seven hundredth anniversary is now having a world-wide celebration. The ceremony will take place at 11 o'clock.

The Rt. Rev. Arthur Foley Winnington-Ingram, Lord Bishop of London of the Anglican church, will speak in Orchestra hall before the Sunday Evening club this evening at 8. Bishop William T. Sumner of Oregon, Dr. George Craig Stewart of Evanston and Richard C. Hall will take part in the service. Clifford W. Barnes will speak at 7 o'clock on "Tales of Friendship." The Bishop of London's address will be his final one in Chicago before leaving for points further east.

Bishop Charles P. Anderson, Episcopal bishop of Chicago, and the clergy of the southern deanery, will celebrate tomorrow and Tuesday, the seventy-fifth anniversary of St. Andrew's church, Farm Ridge, Ill., a strictly rural parish. The holy communion will be celebrated each morning at 11 o'clock. Bishop Anderson will preach tomorrow evening and Tuesday morning. The Rev. N. B. Quigg is the rector. The Rev. H. T. Hiester, who died in 1906, was rector from 1858 until his retirement in 1903.

My Greatest Thrill

Write and tell us about the greatest thrill you ever experienced, and if we select your letter we'll pay you $1. Make your letters short and snappy. Address them to "Greatest Thrill" Editor, The Chicago Tribune.

A Unique Experience.

About a year ago an undertaker, who was a friend of mine, invited me to go on a call to Indianapolis with him. We made the trip in the hearse alone. I had never seen but one dead person before and that was when I was a small child, so you can imagine my feeling when he called at the hospital for a dead body, and his hearse is built so I had to sit close beside the body all the forty miles home at night. H. M.

When the Lost Was Found.

When I was a small girl my parents gave me a ring on my birthday. I cherished it dearly. One day while playing in the snow the ring was lost, and, after spending much time hunting, I decided I would never see it again. The following Christmas eve, when the presents were being distributed from a big tree at the church, my name was called. I went up to receive my gift which, when opened, was the long lost ring which my parents had found in the spring after the snow had melted and saved for the Christmas tree. This was my greatest thrill and still lingers with me.

Mrs. J. R.

Barely Escaped Death.

Some years ago my sister and I were taken in a two seated horse drawn carriage to see the wonderful view from Eagle Rock, near Orange, N. J.

As we sat there enjoying it all, the horse, for some reason, began to back! The wheels cramped, so we were backing straight for that terrible precipice of over a hundred feet, when our two men friends leaped to the ground and dragged the horse forward just as we were less than two feet from the edge!

When we realized what a horrible death we had escaped the "thrill" was something. I hope never to experience again! N. T.

The greatest value giving event Chicago has witnessed in many a month. Utica sheets, sheeting and pillow cases are the preference of particular women as well as leading hotels, clubs, institutions, etc. This preference is justified because of the excellent quality of Utica products. They're made of strongest long staple cotton, woven with round threads, which assure strength, evenly and closely woven (141 threads to the square inch.) No filling or dressing used. Utica sheets and pillow cases are always torn from the fabric, not cut, and so always hold their shape. Offered again tomorrow at the following specially reduced prices. Do not confuse the APCO Automatic Converter with any other device. It is not a trickle charger. There is nothing like it on the market. There are no arrows to point, no switches to turn on—nothing to get out of order—just uniform, continuous, automatic "A" power from the lamp socket. Works quietly, requires no attention and prevents battery starvation.

The APCO is fully guaranteed to work automatically and never forgets. The Automatic is part of the complete line that is sold and guaranteed only by APCO Franchise Dealers.

Sunday Dinner at the Terrace Garden

A Popular Autumn Diversion at Chicago's

Morrison Hotel

A CORNER OF THE TERRACE GARDEN MORRISON HOTEL, CHICAGO

"Keeping Pace With the Growth of Chicago"

WITH the fall evenings now closing in, the Terrace Garden's Sunday dinner has become one of Chicago's favorite social relaxations.

Dinner, Dance and Vaudeville, $1.50

Six delicious courses, brilliant dance music, and the entire Terrace Garden entertainment, from 5 to 9 p. m.—all for $1.50—have established a vogue that gains steadily every week.

The New Morrison, when completed, will be the world's largest and tallest hotel—46 stories high, with 3,400 rooms.

Rates $2.50 Up, at Chicago's Most Central Hotel

The Terrace Garden and Boston Oyster House have played a large part in making Clark and Madison the busiest "24-hour" location in Chicago. At this strategic center of the Loop, the Morrison's subrentals pay all the ground rent, and the saving is passed on to the guests. Rooms are rented for $2.50 to $5.00 that would cost $5.00 to $8.00 in any other leading hotel.

1,944 Rooms, Each With Bath

The Morrison has 1,944 outside rooms, each with bath, running ice water, bed-head reading lamp and Servidor, which assures perfect privacy. A housekeeper is stationed on each floor, and all guests enjoy the privileges of the hotel's garage, and of the celebrated "tower roof," the highest hotel roof in the world.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

Nature's Red Puts Chanel's to Shame

By Mme. X.

FASHION writers talk much of the chanel red so fashionable just now. They ought to come out to the country and see the crimson of the sumacs. It makes the chanel look anemic. The waysides, woods, and fallow fields could, as the old phrase goes, give cards and spades to the dyers of autumn dress goods and beat them round the block in devising new and stunning hues. The unusually wet summer is responsible for the uncommonly gorgeous colors already staining the land. A dry season dyes the fall landscape dull, dead tones. A wet one gives it a splendor that, combined with the crisp, fragrant air, is almost inexicating.

Out Mundelein way, whither we wended a sunny, soft afternoon last week, the colors seem especially festive and blend in sumptuously with those cheerful red buildings and the gay little red church that thrusts its fancy spire so snappily skyward into the hazy blue autumn sky.

If architecture have any symbolic significance, the church at Mundelein, which is distinctly of our early colonial type, should house a Puritan congregation, while the utterly gothic Fourth Presbyterian church on the corner of North Michigan avenue and East Delaware place should be dedicated only to the service of the papal hierarchy and its followers. The former expresses the stern, stark righteousness of the pilgrim fathers who abjured all that made life sumptuous and gay, whose places of worship were "meeting houses," with sharp spires to serve as landmarks in a thickly wooded and little known land.

Paradoxical.

This Chicago band of followers of John Knox, the man who made it his business to burn down the ornamental churches of the papists and to break their graven images, now gather together in a handsomely Gothic structure ornamented within by stately statues, while its outer walls have niches especially designed in churches of old for images of saints and angels.

Mundelein has been too much written about for this humble scribe to state on or describe its beauties, but I must say that on a crisp, sunny, sweet October afternoon it makes a delightful object for a short motor ride and is a delightfully picturesque feature in the countryside north and west of Chicago. The seminary there has a lovely name, "St. Mary of the Lakes," and at the hour we drove through the grounds a good looking band of students was taking an airing, as sturdy and likely lads as one could want to see on a fine afternoon.

Tea Houses Are Lacking.

There is one feature lacking in this western region which is a great asset in motoring in eastern and southern states, and that is attractive wayside inns and tea houses. The so-called roadhouses that are sprinkled about our rural districts and are much in demand by a certain class of motorists are no more akin to these charming little eastern inns for an appetizing bite or cup of tea than is an overstuffed plush covered couch to a dainty, chintz dight Queen Anne sofa.

There are any number of such alluring resting places along that lovely drive from Portland, Me., down through Boston's aristocratic North Shore district, and on again around the corner and traversing Cape Cod. Many of them are run by educated folk, and, in addition to restaurant service, have gift shops, offering quaint old pieces of furniture, rare china and glass, or choice pieces of embroidery done by fingers long since gone to dust. All of them proffer appetizing food, nicely served in attractive surroundings.

I am not sure whether such wayside inns and teashops would prove a success out in this part of the world, but they are certainly missed by motorists accustomed to traveling in the east. There are a few such places about here, brave pioneers, but they are so rare and so scattered that they are not easy to find. The adventurous wayfarer usually has to slake his thirst or sate his hunger at a soda fountain or a hostelry where pocket flasks are the rule and tea is considered a beverage for the aged or ill.

Winter Plans Are Under Way.

Chicago's "pretty world" is gradually taking form and shape. People are trickling back to town. The Friends of Opera are hard at work organising the winter campaign. The Arts club is getting down to business. Tomorrow its first exhibit opens. It is a showing of the drawings, sketchings and other work of the Lake Forest summer school of architecture and garden design, an amazingly effective and promising showing. So successful has this last summer's study been that a board has been formed, with Edward L. Ryerson as honorary president and Walter S. Brewster as active president, to handle the proposition to make the school a permanent institution, with Lake Forest as its headquarters.

Plans for winter balls are under way. As the number of debutantes seems to be smaller than in other years, there may not be so many as usual, but there will be enough other late hour affairs to complete the health destruction of the first year bud, which seems to be the real aim of the debutante and her social sponsors. A young miss who makes her debut still isn't an almost total physical wreck by the close of her initial season, feels as if she had not been a success.

Many of our social customs, such as debut parties, celebrations of matrimonial engagements, marriage festivities, the way we bury our dead, and many other observances of our life with our kind could, with much advantage, be modified and simplified. As we grow older, wiser, more sophisticated and with better knowledge of what makes for taste, all these ceremonials will be made simpler and more beautiful.

Customs of Our Country.

It is only in this country that the debutante is treated as such an overwhelmingly important fact. It is only in this country that she is almost drowned or stifled in flowers. It is only in this country that a bride is so swamped with costly gifts that, if she and her young husband want to start life simply and in accord with their means, they often have to spend a sizable sum for storage for their wedding presents which are too numerous, or too handsome to be part of life in a cottage or small flat, while for months the bride's strength and time are taken up with the serious task of thanking the donors of these gorgeous gifts.

It is only in this country that a burial becomes a ponderous function, swamped in expensive flowers and attended perfunctorily by people who, for the most part, wish they were somewhere else. Especially is a modern funeral an unbeautiful affair. What, that man makes, is so preposterously ugly as a coffin, or the hearse that carries it to its dank, dark hole in the ground? Until our ceremonials are conducted solely with the idea of beauty, with no thought of display, or attempt to show wealth, we shall not achieve anything approaching what must have been the beautiful festivals and rites of the ancient Greeks, or Egyptians or Phoenicians, or Aztecs, or any other of those long dead people if their faded mural paintings, their bruised statues, their incised bas-reliefs give us any idea of their way of conducting ceremonies.

Sailing for Europe.

There are going to be several vacancies and some new faces in Chicago society this winter. Two hostesses, who are noted for their many hospitalities, are to be absent from our ranks; Mrs. C. M. Ely and Mrs. James Keeley. They are sailing for Europe together the latter part of this month. Mrs. Keeley is taking with her her youngest daughter, gay and pretty Miss Ruth Keeley. Mrs. Ely—and how those two names, Ely and Keeley, are going to ball up these furriers across the water this winter!—has closed her utterly charming Lake Forest house, and is at the Lake Shore Drive hotel for a few weeks. Mrs. Keeley has rented her house on Ritchie court to the Horace Grays, who are coming to the Windy city for the winter.

Mrs. Gray is the eldest born of the Arthur Meekers' four children and she and her husband have been in Santa Barbara for the last year or so on account of his not very good health. If he comes to Chicago instead of to his native city, Boston, don't you think that tells louder than any words the fact, already asserted by us Chicagoans, that this old burg has a better climate than that of that Athens of the U. S. A.?

Others who will be much missed in our most cheerful circles are that delightful trio, the George A. McKinlocks and Miss Muriel McCormick. Undaunted by the recent West Indian hurricane, they are going early in November to their winter retreat, Casa Alejandro, at Palm Beach. Before that, however, Mrs. McKinlock is giving her time, strength, and mental powers to the coming Red Cross campaign. She spent last week in Washington helping the Red Cross chiefs plan their autumn drive.

She is on the executive committee of the Chicago chapter of the National Red Cross and has accepted the onerous position of chairman of the annual drive for funds, which starts November 1. She was such a successful chairman of this same drive committee last year that the Red Cross managers feel they are lucky to get her again. This local drive committee went beyond its quota then, the sum assigned to it being $200,000.

An Expert Motorist.

On her homeward way Mrs. McKinlock joins Miss Muriel McCormick at Albany and the latter, who is on her way home from a long stay in the Adirondacks, will motor Mrs. McKinlock back to Lake Forest. Miss McCormick is an expert driver and the two travelers expect to make the trip in record-breaking time. They motored down to Palm Beach last December, through storms and over steep mountain passes, Miss McCormick at the wheel. It was a good deal of a strain on both, as they accomplished the long trip in some marvelously short time; I've forgotten exactly the mileage and hours.

Other wanderers who usually give Chicago only a passing glance as they roam this interesting little fly speck of a planet are the Henry J. Pattens. This winter they have a slightly more permanent air, as they have taken an apartment at 180 East Delaware place. Mrs. Patten will arrive here about Nov. 1 and stay until some time after Christmas, after which she goes to southern California, via the Panama canal. Mr. Patten will be here until February, when he will join Mrs. Patten in the west.

The Arthur Meekers are at home again and settling down in their apartment on the Lake Shore drive. Mrs. Meeker is starting the winter activities of the Friends of Opera, of which valuable organization she is president. They had a committee luncheon at the Arts club last Tuesday. Young Arthur Meeker and his sister, charming Miss Mary Meeker, are still lingering in Europe, but will come back to their native city shortly. The Meekers did a rather unusual and quite delightful bit of traveling this summer. They took a houseboat and explored some of those delicious, placid, quaint, and utterly picturesque canals that mirror the old houses, the lush meadows, the fat kine, and the sturdy life of Holland. They are enthusiastic about this episode in their summer outing. It sounds delightfully restful and satisfying.

Restoring the Pisano Pulpit.

A letter from a friend who has been motoring through northern Italy gives a sidelight on that extraordinarily mediaeval figure of our modern times, the Italian autocrat, Mussolini. My correspondent gives two evidences of Mussolini's intelligent administration of his power. Six centuries ago Giovanni Pisano, a great artist, the real founder of the renaissance which came a hundred years later, designed and created for the renowned cathedral at Pisa a wonderful pulpit. It was a long step ahead of anything that had been done up to that time. To the folk of that day it probably looked as strange and uncanny as most of the Serbian sculptor Mestrovic's work looks to us of today. This pulpit was finished and set up early in the fourteenth century.

A century later it was taken down and partly broken up. Two agencies contributed to this partial destruction of what was considered by a small band of contemporary critics as a marvelous piece of art. One was a fire that partly destroyed the cathedral and the other was a band of soldiers, headed by one of the Florentine Medici, who came to Pisa and tried to destroy all the art treasures and old traditions of the city.

The charred fragments of Pisano's chef d'oeuvre were stolen and dispersed. Some of it ultimately found shelter in museums, but most of it was secreted in private collections. A learned scribe, however, had made a note of all the pieces and had also made a drawing of the pulpit as it stood in the Duomo. This document was found some sixty years ago and since then many attempts had been unsuccessfully made to gather the fragments once more together and reinstall the pulpit. No one was willing to give up his particular treasure.

Mussolini Acts Quickly.

A year or so ago a book was written in which the history of this wonderful work of art, its destruction, and the present location of its pieces was given. A copy of this book was sent to Mussolini. Within eight hours after he closed the pages of the book, which he had read carefully, every piece of the shattered pulpit was returned to the cathedral and now since four months the pulpit, designed and created by the younger Pisano, 600 years ago, has been in its original place in the beautiful Duomo at Pisa. Verily the achievement might well stagger the opposers of autocratic government, the believers in a democracy, and its efficiency. I have always felt that I would rather live in an ill run democracy than in the most efficient autocracy, but I'm glad the Italians don't feel so, and I hope some day to see this long hidden, great piece of art.

The second notable achievement chronicled by my correspondent as the work of Mussolini is the formation of a great national, all pervading institution among laborers called the "After the Work Club." This is for the purpose of a universal education of the Italian people in the history, art and traditions of their country, so that they may appreciate their wonderful inheritance and really possess their native land, its spirit, its mighty past in such a way that they may be more capable of possessing and controlling its future. The greatest scholars have to address meetings of this association. Every member of this club must attend once a month. However, what was compulsory in the beginning is so no longer, as obedience to Mussolini's commands is almost universal and the Italian workman has become profoundly interested in the state and what has made it.

It is an idea worth examining in this country where a five day week of work for manual labor looms up as a probable fact. If Henry Ford, sponsor of the five work day idea, had coupled with his proposition a suggestion how best to employ this leisure, it would have added greatly to its value.

To Welcome the Bishop of London.

A sizeable gathering of the members of the English Speaking union and their friends met in the Red Lacquer room of the Palmer house last Wednesday afternoon at a luncheon in honor of the Rt. Rev. Arthur Foley Winnington-Ingram, Lord Bishop of London. It was the association's first meeting of the season and brought out a numerous and representative company. A genial gentleman is his lordship and an excellent antidote to that gloomy prophet and fellow countryman of his, Dean Inge of St. Paul's, London. Gloomy prophets are seldom popular, though they are sometimes wholesome, like bitter medicines that make the ill get well in order not to have to take more of the bitter prescription.

WOMEN'S CLUB PAGE

Reception Begins North End Activity

BY KATE WEBBER.

SECURE in the possession of one of the most attractive club houses in the city, of a growing membership, and complete coordination in its work for philanthropy, the North End club, at Sheridan road and Granville avenue, has begun another season of busy activity.

The opening reception was held last Monday, with Mrs. Arthur P. Burland, the president, and the other officers receiving. Tomorrow the work of the various departments will be resumed, beginning with the parliamentary law class at 11:30 o'clock, followed by luncheon, a home economics lecture, and a crystal exhibit at 1:30, and a talk on "Election Machinery" before the civics class at 2:30 o'clock.

The club has accomplished some splendid results in its chief interest, working for the less fortunate. Last season it undertook a concert at the Auditorium, in which Chaliapin appeared, and in previous years as successful, if not as ambitious, programs have been carried out.

The first benefit on the autumn calendar will be a bazaar to be held on Nov. 5 and 6, with Mrs. Julius R. Kline as chairman. An innovation for members, to be inaugurated at once, is a series of dinners to be given with well known speakers, also bi-monthly, to which friends will be invited. Open forums and a social hour will follow these dinners. Mrs. Preston A. Nolan is chairman of these affairs.

In addition to general club day programs, there are classes in art and literature, music, drama, home economics, parliamentary law, and civics, the last of these being open to the public.

Book reviews are given a place on the calendar, and there is a thriving junior department, which accomplishes great things for the club and gives the children's Christmas party each year.

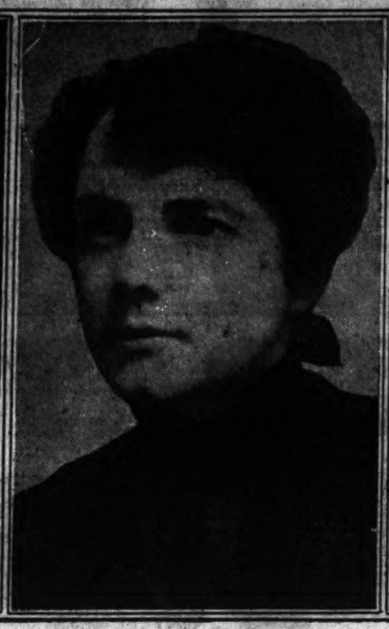

It was twenty-nine years ago that a small group of women in the then sparsely settled district of Edgewater met and founded the North End club, meeting first in the homes of members. Larger quarters were soon added, and the various departments grew as the membership increased and different tastes asked for different sorts of culture. The club now caters to as varied a "clientele" of members' tastes as could be imagined, but through its expansion it has lost none of its prestige.

MRS. WILLIAM R. TUCKER.
[Bay Photo.]

THE Chicago Children's Benefit league will hold its annual tag day tomorrow, under the direction of Mrs. William R. Tucker, president, and a large committee of representatives of the fifty-two charities represented on the league's roster.

The North End club, which maintains one of the most attractive club houses in the city at 6200 Sheridan road, is having its first class day meeting tomorrow, following the annual reception last week to the president, Mrs. Arthur P.

MRS. DAVID A. STEVENS.

Burland. As chairman of philanthropy, Mrs. David A. Stevens will guide that department this year in the club's several charitable affiliations.

Mrs. Edward D. Loewenthal is president of the Chicago Woman's Aid, which has resumed its activities for the forty-fourth club season. With more than 1,300 members, the organization has programs of varied interest and pursues a course of educational, philanthropic, and cultural work.

The meeting will launch one of the most interesting seasons the club has planned, and the pageant has especial interest in that it was written by the president, Mrs. B. F. Langworthy. Following the pageant the club's civic platform for the year will be adopted, and a reception will follow. The meeting is open to members only.

CLUB ETHICS

By Maude Swalm Evans

Maude Swalm Evans will be glad to answer any questions pertaining to club ethics. Address CLUB ETHICS, THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

THE district president showed plainly that she had something on her mind when she joined the group at the lunch table.

"We're always hearing about the obligations to the members of her club," she said. "I've been thinking lately that there's considerable to be said in regard to the obligations of the members to their president."

"You're right," agreed the club president, "having all the virtues of a saint shouldn't rest entirely on the shoulders of the president."

"The tendency of some club members to misconstrue the motives of their chairman bothers me a good deal," admitted the district president. "Not liking, or not agreeing with your president shouldn't be a reason for suspecting sinister designs behind her every act."

"I heard of a case of that recently," remarked the board member. "A downstate president showed she was anxious to throw the club printing to a certain firm. Some of the members who had worked against her reflection hinted she must have some relative in the company, or possibly the promise of a commission. I happen to know she was recommending solely on the merit of the work."

"Members who seem to take delight in obstructing the progress of a meeting by heckling the chairman, or continually talking, with or without the right of the floor, and taking advantage of technicalities to show off their ability along that line, are also remiss in their obligations to their president," added the district president.

"All unfair and unkind," voiced the department chairman.

"My pet peeve," proclaimed the club vice president, "is the member who asks and expects special favors from a president because she's a personal friend. Such a one often ignores the fact that by granting her request the president would be doing a great injustice to some other member."

"I came to the conclusion long ago that the less you ask and expect of friends the longer you keep them and the more you enjoy them," put in the board member.

"The significant point in the whole question," finished the district president, "is that unless the members of a club assume their obligations, have faith in their president, to work with her, and to stand behind her best efforts are sure to fail."

Question.

Has a chairman the right to call another to the chair and take part in the debate? MARY L.

Reply.

Yes, but it should seldom be done, and she should not resume the chair until the pending question has been voted upon. A partisan chairman is apt to lose control of those on the opposing side of the question.

Question.

Should a club accept the resignation of a member who has not paid her dues for two years? MRS. J. K.

Reply.

No. Until she has paid her dues she is not in good standing and her resignation should not be accepted. She may be dropped or expelled from membership.

Question.

The chairman of a committee to which I belong always writes her report in the first person and refers to it as "my report" when reading it before the club. Is this right? G. L. R.

Reply.

No, the report is not the report of the chairman, but of the committee.

The "Sports Type" of FUR COATS
interpreted by Leschin

To the younger set and those who desire youthful modes these jaunty coats will have a decided appeal. The novelty furs are those especially adapted to slim, svelte lines, while the heavier pelts, too, have their smart 'collegian silhouettes. Most of them are reversible.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

Every One's Back in Town for the Season

By Dolly Madison

NEW YORK.—[Special.] — New York's winter of discontent is passed, for now the metropolis begins to assume an air of festivity. Fifth avenue is crowded beyond belief, and even Park avenue, that purlieu of the fashionable, presents an appearance of color and activity.

Between now and the first of November, when the season is formally ushered in, a constant flow of notables from abroad and from Newport, Tuxedo, Lenox, et al., will tend to increase the social gayety of the city. The noted restaurants are all opened, most of them newly decorated, and the famous Oak room of the Ritz, with its habitues running the scale from haut monde to demi monde, is jammed to the doors at luncheon.

The number of notables to be met in a half hour's stroll along Park avenue is larger, perhaps, than at any other time of the year. Even those from abroad and those intending to go abroad are all in town, sampling the new plays opening nightly, and sometimes two or three a night, on Broadway, and reveling in the colorful modes displayed by the shops.

Strolling on Park Avenue.

Since society rides in its motor on Fifth avenue, but walks on Park, the latter avenue is most swagger. Mrs. Frederic Cameron Church, the former Muriel Vanderbilt, was a trim and pretty stroller this last week, having returned from Newport, where she was hostess to her mother, Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt II.

That very austere granddame, Mrs. Ogden Goelet, was another café goer on Park avenue, having finally closed Ochre court and come to New York to open her house at 608 Fifth avenue.

The incoming liners are bringing scores of notables. This week the Majestic brought Ogden Mills and his daughters, the countess of Granard and Mrs. Henry C. Phipps. In the party were Mr. Mills' lovely grandchildren, the daughters of the earl and countess of Granard, Lady Moira Mary Forbes, Lady Eileen Beatrice Forbes, and their brother, the Hon. John Forbes.

Harold Stirling Vanderbilt, having made a flying trip to England in order to hasten northward and take a few pot shots at low flying grouse, also returned on the Majestic, as did Edmund L. Baylies and James A. Burden.

Notables from North and South.

Not only from overseas and from the north are the returning notables arriving, but from the south as well. Mrs. John F. A. Cecil, the former Cornelia Vanderbilt, arrived from Biltmore, N. C., and was one of a party at luncheon on Park avenue Thursday.

From Wilmington have come Mrs. A. Felix Du Pont and her daughter, Miss Lydia Du Pont. Ex-Governor of Rhode Island R. Livingston Beeckman and Mrs. Beeckman are also in New York, as are Judge and Mrs. Elbert Gary, Mr. and Mrs. P. A. B. Widener II., who have come from Philadelphia after closing their stay at Newport, and Miss Julia Berwind, who is to open the house of her brother, Edward J. Berwind, at 2 East 64th street.

Speaking of notables in town reminds me that Clarence H. Mackay recently returned from Scotland, where he had a large preserve for the grouse shooting. As every one knows, indeed, as the whole world knows, the marriage of Mr. Mackay's daughter, Ellin, to Irving Berlin, the popular song writer, has put Mr. Mackay in an equivocal situation. While society declares that there is no hope of a reconciliation between the Berlins and Mr. Mackay, the fact that all three are in New York at present is considered as assuring Mr. Mackay some uncomfortable moments.

Recently a gossip declared that society was warming to the former Ellin Mackay and would take her to its bosom. I fear that this is somewhat wide of the truth, for Ellin has changed a great deal since her defection from the ranks of society and if anything grows more true to the Broadway type than ever.

In English Country Manner.

Other than Long Island there is no section of the country where society manages to get closer to the English tradition. Not only do such notables as the Whitneys and Pratts make the sandy terrain their all-year home, but even more, they go in for such bucolic pastimes as raising prize vegetables, including, I dare say, the inevitable mangel wurzel, that cattle fodder figuring in all English novels.

This last week the annual vegetable and flower show was held at Glen Cove, with entries from almost all the notables resident in Nassau county. Most amusing was the fact that in a special class for table decorations made of dahlias, J. P. Morgan won a large cash prize, which he had himself donated.

Others who exhibited and took prizes included Mrs. Herbert L. Pratt, Mrs. Henry Schniewind, Mrs. Guy Fairfax Cary, Mrs. Edward F. Hutton, Mrs. Harold I. Pratt, Mrs. John W. Davis, and Mrs. Thomas L. Leeming. Incidentally, the Nassau County Horticultural society will hold its chrysanthemum show on the 28th and 29th of this month.

A New Gas Service

WHEREVER it is available, gas is fast superceding all other fuels. Its supremacy marks an Age of Progress. Gas in itself has not only been subject to improvement in quality as time has gone by, but the methods and appliances for using gas have given it indisputable prestige as a fuel. Gas has ever been the fuel of convenience. Today it is the fuel of greatest convenience, made so by the liberal efforts of our gas companies and by man's inventive ability.

Fortunate are the homes served by the great "fuel bins" of the gas-serviced city and town, for such homes may partake of a new and better gas service. This new service doubles the usefulness of gas—doubles its comforts and conveniences, for gas is no longer used for cooking only. It is by this new service made available for HEATING the home.

Your Gas Company

—represents a public utility of great importance to your comfort and welfare. The pipe lines which connect the homes of your city with the gas company's great gas holders are safeguards against a thousand discomforts. They provide clean fuel that eliminates kitchen drudgery, smoke, ashes, clogged chimneys and meals delayed until fires are kindled and cook stoves heated. They provide fuel for heating the home—a fuel which need never be wasted, for it is instantly available in full heating power, and may be instantly turned off when not needed. And they provide you with the only fuel that you don't pay for until after you have used it.

Your gas company, as a public utility, acts with other similar organizations in maintaining service departments to promote better and simpler methods of using gas. Also by means of laboratory tests and practical experiments it determines the most economical appliances for using gas for cooking and heating. Indeed, it is the desire of your gas company to aid you in lowering gas costs. You may depend upon the A-B gas appliances recommended by your gas company.

The A-B Unified Gas Range
COOKS AND HEATS

THE MEAL

The announcement is significant, for it spells the doom of dirty coal buckets, wood boxes, carrying of fuel, soot-clogged chimneys and cumbersome cook stoves. The A-B Unified Range cooks, bakes and heats with gas. It cooks and bakes perfectly and heats with almost magical rapidity.

It embodies a highly efficient standard size gas range. Handsomely designed, beautifully finished, substantially constructed. Cooking top with improved heat-centering burners; broiling and baking ovens with Wilder guaranteed rust-proof linings of lifelong durability. The A-B heat control is a crowning feature. Complete with improved sanitary grates, automatic lighter and every modern improvement.

Heater Quick in Action

The in-built heater section provides additional kitchen warmth from instantly available fuel. It has closed top with two lids and a specially-constructed burner. Turn the valve, press the lighter and the Unified Range begins heating immediately by radiation and circulation, absorbing the cold air from the room and sending it out thoroughly sterilized and comfortably warm. No odors or impure gases. The range is connected with a flue. Instantaneous heat. No fires to kindle. No dirt or ashes. A spotless kitchen is possible with this remarkable double-duty range. Cooking the breakfast while heating the room saves gas, time and worry—it being possible to cook over the heater burner without loss of heating efficiency.

Thousands of Homes Enjoying these Ranges

More than 2,000 homes in the city of Chicago alone are supplied with the A-B Unified Range. They find it indispensable in warming the kitchen on chilly Spring and Fall days, saving trouble of building furnace fires. Also for making the kitchen comfortable on cold Winter mornings, long before the furnace fire gets started. A boon for the family with small children to be dressed early for school on these cold mornings.

15 Days' Trial in Your Own Kitchen FREE

This range MUST sell itself. It is sold, in fact, on the free trial—show-you plan. Your gas company will gladly connect this new range in your kitchen. Use it 15 days. Cook, bake and heat with it. Try the automatic oven heat control. Notice how quickly the heating section radiates pure, warm air. How quickly it will heat a large room. Notice how economical it is on gas. If you don't like the range, it will be removed promptly and without argument—your old stove reconnected, and you will not be out one penny. Investigate the benefits of this wonderful two-purpose range.

See Your Gas Company TODAY

"I like the Unified Range very much. We have tried the heating part of it and find it gives plenty of heat. I also get plenty of gas for cooking, and the gas bill is no more or any higher than it used to be, and it is so easy to keep clean."

A SALESMAN

Who Recognizes the Advantage of Selling on a Commission Basis.

We are not looking for the safety type of salesman who wants to be guaranteed against himself, because we would be afraid to hire him for the reason that he knows himself better than we know him.

We have no $25,000 jobs for salesmen. No salesman can become one of our executives in a month. We are not looking for the quick, slick, clean-up salesman. We do not sell real estate, books, insurance, etc.

We do have average salesmen earning $8,000. We do promote salesmen with sales records to executives. We are looking for 2 men with specialty selling experience for Central West territories.

Let's get down to "brass tacks!" We only want to interview salesmen who are sincere in their desire to make a permanent connection.

Remember, no quick clean-up here, but an opportunity which you will immediately recognize after talking it over with us.

Telephone Mr. Bache, Superior 0855, for a personal interview, or write to C. J. Howard, Incorporated, Sargent Building, St. Clair and East Superior streets, Chicago, giving age and selling experience last five years.

A RESPONSE TO OUR AD HAS OFTEN CHANGED THE LIFE OF A MAN, STARTED HIM ON THE ROAD TO SUCCESS.

In the sale of our new North Shore subdivision just opened we will take into our employ a few additional salesmen if satisfactory. You can become a permanent member of our organization with excellent opportunity for advancement. Our present subdivision is truly on the North Shore, adjacent to Lake Forest, and within the wealthy North Shore Estates district.

Our salesmen enjoy the full co-operation of our entire staff. Plenty of leads. We invite your investigation.

THERE IS ONLY ONE NORTH SHORE.

1120 Lake Shore Drive
CORNER OF ELM-ST.
The apartments in this building are spacious, exceptionally well lighted and ventilated and have every modern convenience for enjoyable living.

The total monthly operating cost of a five room apartment under our 100% co-operative plan is as low as $117.84; and for the seven room apartment as low as $169.40.

There is only one Lake Shore-dr., and it unquestionably is the finest location for residential purposes in Chicago. Its convenience and beauty have made it Chicago's fashion center and one of Chicago's most attractive real estate investments.

THINK THIS OVER.
1. THE BUILDING IS ON A CORNER. There is no other lot on Lake Shore-dr. available unless one wrecks an expensive mansion.

2. THE LAND VALUE of the lot at 1120 Lake Shore-dr. HAS INCREASED 30% since we first offered these apartments to the public, but we are still offering them at the original price.

3. OVER 80% OF THE APARTMENTS ARE SOLD. The building is a thoroughly successful 100% co-operative project right now.

4. ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS ONE. The names of the group of owners who will be your neighbors are available to you.

5. THE BUILDING IS CONSERVATIVELY FINANCED. It has only one loan owned by the New York Life Insurance company.

6. A FEW APARTMENTS ARE STILL AVAILABLE.

The equities range from $12,800 up. You may purchase an apartment in this building with as little as $4,500, paying the remainder out of income rather than capital. This is the time to take advantage of this exceptional opportunity.

PLANS, SPECIFICATIONS AND SCHEDULED PRICES WILL BE SUPPLIED UPON REQUEST.

Why not come with your family to the building and see these delightful apartments. There is no urge to buy—just courteous attention when you require it.

Live on Chicago's Gold Coast
Goethe Shore
Kitchenette Apartments
$85 to $145 Monthly

The Goethe Shore is set in the heart of Chicago's Gold Coast, in that narrow strip bordering Lake Shore-dr., between Lincoln park and the Michigan-av. bridge.

World Famous Location

Diagonally across a vacant lot or two lies the world famous Potter Palmer mansion—within a stone's throw a little to the south is the Edith Rockefeller McCormick residence—catercorner across the street is the world renowned Drake hotel.

Lake Michigan lies at the foot of Goethe-st., almost at the feet of the guests of the Goethe Shore.

Just far enough away to isolate our guests from its traffic noises is Chicago's most pretentious boulevard—Lake Shore-dr. The Wrigley building and The Tribune Tower are within easy walking distance. 35c cab fare to loop.

No other residential district in the world, not even the magnificent Park-av. section of New York City, can compare with the wonderful possibilities of 61 E. Goethe-st.

Prices
Extraordinarily Low

Now, for probably the first time in Chicago's history, it will be possible for the citizen of moderate means to live on the Gold Coast, within walking distance of his desk in Chicago's loop.

Until the Goethe Shore opened its doors, the family not prepared to pay a monthly rental of from $400 to $1,000 could not live in this marvelous location.

Goethe Shore apartments are offered at a monthly rental ranging from $85 to $145 a month—surely amazing value for furnished apartments of the better class—when one thinks of his neighbors as the business and social leaders of America—all within the sacred confines of this Gold Coast neighborhood.

Ten Minutes' Walk to Business

There is a growing demand for residence close to our business center. The business man of today desires to return as nearly as possible to the conditions of his boyhood, and be walked to work.

Chicago's streets are probably more crowded with automobile traffic than those of any other city in the world. This congestion on our boulevards with its consequent delay in the business man's trip from his home to his office has made it necessary for him to move in closer to business.

No Apartments Furnished Like These

Smartly furnished in the newest mode, complete in every detail, including linens, silver, glassware, china, electrical appliances, bric-a-brac, and all that goes to make up the comfortable, fashionable, and homey abode.

Waiting List Occupancy Soon

The Goethe Shore offers for popular demand Gold Coast apartments almost within a stone's throw of Chicago's most pretentious hostelry—The Drake—at prices you would expect to pay in outlying neighborhoods.

It is a foregone conclusion that we will have a waiting list occupancy almost with the opening of our doors.

LINCOLN

How to Own a Fine Car at Moderate Cost

Without any greater automobile investment than you are accustomed to it is possible for you to enjoy the supreme benefits of motoring—to own and drive a Lincoln.

Many Lincoln Owners—who, as a rule are able to chance cars as frequently as they desire—purchase new Lincoln cars from time to time; this puts us in a position to offer a limited number of motorists in this community excellent opportunity to obtain, at extremely moderate cost, the distinction and satisfaction that go with Lincoln ownership.

Due to the permanence of Lincoln design, time does not make a Lincoln out of date; the cars that we offer you are entirely modern in every measure of the word. They are the cars that you see and admire in every day use. Their performance and appearance scarcely suggest prior service. They carry exactly the same guarantee as when first sold.

Your satisfaction as the new owner of a Lincoln car, that is conceded to be the accepted leader, will be far greater than if you invest a similar amount in a car that cannot even be measured by the same standards. The smooth, powerful, silent motor and the ease with which the car travels the roughest roads is a revelation to any one driving a Lincoln for the first time.

In purchasing one of these Lincoln cars you do not pay the cost of extra equipment that is depreciated—this has all been absorbed. This enables us to quote prices that are surprisingly low. We will also accept your present car as part payment, extending convenient terms for payment of the balance.

In building the Lincoln the Ford Motor Company has definitely committed itself to the policy of keeping this car supreme. All materials are the best that an advanced metallurgical staff can specify; manufacturing throughout the Lincoln plant is held to the strictest precision standards known to modern engineering science. Actually, the Lincoln is built more precisely, from a mechanical standpoint, than a fine watch. It is built to endure.

The Lincolns referred to are, for all practical purposes, as perfect today as when shipped from the factory. They are ready to give their new owners the full benefits of Lincoln performance and enduring economy. We unconditionally guarantee these cars for 90 days and will provide free service for four months.

We would welcome an opportunity to discuss Lincoln ownership with you. Let us tell you in greater detail about Lincoln superiority and especially about the remarkable value our Lincoln policy makes possible.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

October 10, 1926

DOYLE HARMON, one of the best backs in the Big Ten last year, will lead Wisconsin into action this fall. The Badger leader is a great running back and an excellent blocker.

IOWA students and alumni will rely upon Paul E. Smith for the desired results in the Hawkeyes' big clashes this fall. Smith is an end with splendid possibilities.

AT MINNESOTA Coach Spears has the utmost confidence in Capt. Roger Wheeler to guide this year's Gopher eleven through a successful season. Wheeler will hold down one of the flank positions.

MARTY KAROW, one of the aces of Ohio State elevens for the last two years, is burdened with the captaincy of this year's eleven. Karow is one of the best running fullbacks in the middle west.

CONTINUING THE SERIES OF NATURAL-COLOR PHOTOGRAPHS OF FOOTBALL CAPTAINS of all the major varsity teams of the country, THE TRIBUNE next Sunday will present the leaders at Indiana, Purdue, Pennsylvania, and Columbia universities.

Home at last!

Up New York harbor in the sunlight, past Miss Liberty and the Battery, crowds at the pier, customs inspection, overnight on the Century—home!

Sally took Phil's hands and danced with him from one bright room to another.

"Look!" she cried, "ice and food in the refrigerator, fresh clothes for both of us, floors as clean as dinner-plates, a fire in the fire-place, and new cakes of Ivory everywhere. Oh, I'm glad I'm a bride!"

"I feel almost like a bride myself," grinned Phil. "But I'm only a husband who needs a wash. Lead me to the Ivory!"

Fads vs Safety ~ in the care of the complexion

Fads and fashions in dress add charm and variety to life.

But fads and fashions in complexion treatments are of questionable value, and may even be dangerous.

For instance, there is a fashion quite prevalent just now to the effect that soaps containing certain mysterious drugs and medicaments can work magic—effect cures, "feed" the skin, transform the complexion. There is another fashion for all kinds of marvelous "skin treatments" which cost fabulous prices.

As a matter of fact, however, physicians will tell you that having kept your skin clean, the less you "treat" it the better. And soap's function is to cleanse—simply that!

Every skin requires cleansing. Every healthy skin should be cleansed once or twice every day with a pure, mild soap; for such cleansing is the basis of skin beauty.

When you choose Ivory Soap for this purpose, you will be safe, and you will be sure of having as fine a soap for the skin as you can buy.

Dermatologists have found that soap-and-water cleansing is the only treatment generally needed to keep the complexion in good condition.

Therefore, if you will use warm water and Ivory Soap, and follow this with a dash of cool or cold water, and, if you like, a little pure cold cream, your uncertainty about complexion treatments should be at an end.

Ivory Soap is pure, mild, gentle and creamy white, as the best soap for toilet use should be. If you paid a dollar a cake, you could have no better soap.

PROCTER & GAMBLE

IVORY SOAP

99 44/100% Pure ~ It Floats

Guest IVORY—
the dainty new form of IVORY—5 cents

Ivory Flakes meets this important safety test:

Before you trust your costly fine fabrics to any soap in any form, a doubt naturally comes up in your mind.

"Is this soap really safe?"

Ask yourself: "Would I be willing to use this soap on my face?"

A soap which is too strong for your face is naturally too strong for your delicate and costly garments.

Ivory Flakes is simply Ivory Soap in flake form. Of course it fully meets this important safety test. For Ivory Soap, pure, mild, gentle, white—has protected the faces and hands of millions of women since 1879.

Ivory Flakes offers you a real margin of safety for cleansing the very finest garments you own. Many women wash all their clothes and dishes with Ivory or Ivory Flakes, thus saving their hands and preventing redness and roughness.

1—This offer is open to every girl—unmarried or widow—residing anywhere in the States of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan and Wisconsin, excepting professional beauties, such as stage girls or artists' models, and excepting employes of The Tribune and members of their families. It is free. There is no charge of any kind.

2—The Chicago Tribune will pay cash prizes ranging from $50.00 to $10,000.00 each and totaling $20,000.00 to the 56 most beautiful peaches themselves. See prize list herewith.

3—Peaches may be nominated by any relative or friend. To nominate a peach, simply send in her name and address. A Nomination Coupon will appear in The Chicago Tribune each Sunday. You may use this or write on a separate sheet of paper.

7—This contest is now open. Peaches should be nominated at once. No entries will be accepted after midnight, December 7th.

8—The judges will be a committee of three well known and reputable artists and writers. Their decision will be final and not open to question.

X-ray pictures reveal hidden imperfections

Doctors say even the healthiest-looking babies often show lack of one element

Soft bones, poor teeth, now declared common

Lack of one element in babyhood blamed*

Window-glass stops the effective rays of sunlight from going through

Even the healthiest-looking baby is apt to be developing incorrectly in a way his mother never dreams of.

This is the news the X-ray is revealing.

For the beginning stage of improper bone development is a subtle thing and hard to recognize superficially.

Long before deformities become visible, a slow process of defective development begins in the bone and tooth structure. It becomes soft, porous, spongy. Many of the tooth troubles of later years can also be traced to the important time in babyhood when the teeth are first starting to develop badly.

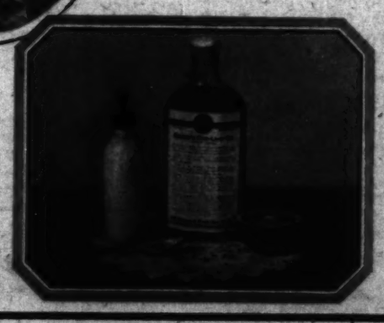

Without plenty of one definite element* the most carefully chosen diet cannot be used efficiently and damage inevitably results.

And because cod-liver oil is the richest known source of this vital substance it is now being urged for babies everywhere — even the breast-fed!

*Anti-rachitic (rickets-preventing).

Babies are sick less often when they get cod-liver oil

Leading baby specialists advise it

Prominent doctors, public health officials, infant feeding clinics, university medical authorities—declare: "To be on the safe side, give cod-liver oil."

They say, too, that other benefits follow its use. Children, as well as babies, are sick less often. Their resistance is increased—their growth is faster.

For cod-liver oil also contributes a second important food element—known to be necessary for growth and for the maintenance of health.

Some cod-liver oils contain much more of this helpful element than others—but Squibb's has been shown by actual test to be so rich in it that one teaspoonful contains as much as you would get in a pound of butter.

Vitamin A—for growth and resistance.

The modern idea of baby-care includes daily cod-liver oil

The importance of being careful about quality

How much your baby will be helped by his daily cod-liver oil depends largely on the quality you give him. For cod-liver oils vary widely in quality and effectiveness.

Important improvements in the methods of producing cod-liver oil have been scientifically worked out by the Squibb experts.

Methods which result in high purity and effectiveness. Methods which help preserve the vital values until the last spoonful is used.

MARK TWAIN'S LIVING DOUBLE—Noah Bruce of Somerville, Me., bears more than a little resemblance to the immortal humorist. He was plenty old enough to attend the reunion of the Three-Quarter Century club at Augusta, where he was photographed with a couple of youthful friends. And that's another point of likeness to Mark, for Noah likes young folks, too. (Photograph from Wide World)

ONE OF THE TAXIS THAT SAVED PARIS is to come to the national convention of the American Legion in Philadelphia this month. This battered old relic and another like it are all that remain of the fleet that rushed Gen. Gallieni's army from Paris to the front for the first battle of the Marne in 1914. Incredible as it may seem, it will travel under its own power to the docks at Cherbourg, and from New York to Philadelphia. (Photograph from Underwood & Underwood)

Fred Holton hardly dared ask:
"How much is that suite in the window?"

THERE, in the show window, was just the suite the Holtons longed for. Just the suite to add the final charm to their airy guest room. But a suite so smart, so distinctive, that it took a lot of courage to inquire its cost . . . and then came the welcome information that this was a Cavalier Suite, built and sold on the Cavalier plan of fine furniture at sensible prices.

Unmistakably fine

Cavalier bedroom and dining room suites put real beauty into your home. They're correct in design. Graceful in every line. Rich with the gleaming luster of carefully matched walnut veneer. Able to challenge side-by-side comparison with furniture that is much more costly.

But don't get the idea that Cavalier's beauty is all on the surface. There's truly fine workmanship in every Cavalier piece—unskimped construction—painstaking finish.

Fine construction guaranteed

Check this for yourself. You'll find every Cavalier piece is solidly made, yet without any him of clumsiness.

Look at parts that don't ordinarily show. How neatly finished they are! Try the drawers. They slide smoothly and easily. They're built with oversize guides and runners—and the sides and bottoms grooved together so they can't loosen.

Every Cavalier piece bears a guarantee of fine construction on the tag. Watch for it, and also for the figure of the Cavalier that appears only on the genuine.

Reasonable prices

Cavalier Furniture will teach you that beauty and good workmanship need not mean extravagance and the Cavalier dealer is an expert on making furniture dollars go further. There's one near you. He will help you find just the furniture you want at just the price you have in mind.

Decorating service

Film—Enemy of Teeth

To which modern dental science attributes many serious tooth and gum disorders

To Attain Clear, White Teeth and Firm, Healthy Gums, Many Authorities are Advising This Way to Combat the Dangerous Film That Forms on Teeth

AN EXHILARATING JAUNT is partly responsible for the brilliance of these smiles. But Miss Muriel Taylor and her escort, Mr. Ted Irwin, will tell you the major reason lies in the film-removing dentifrice called Pepsodent.

A WELCOME GREETING sparkles in the smile of Miss Marion Strasmich, as she meets a long-time friend. Its radiance is kept undimmed by gentle polishing of perfect teeth with Pepsodent.

THAT many of the commoner tooth and gum troubles, and most cases of so-called "off-color" teeth, are due to a film that forms on teeth which ordinary brushing does not successfully combat, is the consensus of today's dental opinion.

Run your tongue across your teeth and you will feel this film—a slippery sort of coating. Film absorbs discolorations and thus makes teeth look dull and dingy. It breeds germs and bacteria and invites tartar, decay and pyorrhea. It is a menace to tooth and gum health that must be constantly combated.

Thus dental authorities now seriously urge that film be removed at least twice every day—in the morning and at bedtime. One can't expect glistening teeth and proper gum protection unless this program be followed regularly.

To do so, obtain Pepsodent—a special, film-removing dentifrice most dentists favor. It curdles the film, then removes it and polishes the teeth to high lustre in gentle safety to enamel. It combats the acids of decay. It acts, too, to firm and harden the gums; thus meeting, in many ways, the requirements of modern dental findings.

Old-time dentifrices did not adequately fight film. That is why this modern protective way, as a twice a day habit in your home, and at least twice a year calls on your dentist, are being so widely advised today.

As film coats disappear, teeth whiten and brighten; gums become firm and healthy; smiles become more charming. Thus Pepsodent, advised by leading dental authorities because of its important therapeutic and prophylactic action, is a great aid to oral hygiene as well as to the beauty of teeth.

Accept this Pepsodent test

Send the coupon for a 10-day tube. Brush teeth this way for 10 days. Note how thoroughly film is removed. The teeth gradually lighten as film coats go. Then for 10 nights massage the gums with Pepsodent, using your finger tips; the gums then should start to firm and harden.

POPULAR IN YOUNGER SET are Misses Gladys and Mona Philbin, two of this season's debutantes, who illustrate the art of smiling charmingly. And charm in smiles largely rests on proper care of teeth. That's why Pepsodent, the scientific dentifrice, now is considered a chief beauty aid.

FREE—Mail coupon for 10-day tube to The Pepsodent Company, Dept. 1517, 1104 S. Wabash Ave. Chicago, Ill., U. S. A. Only one tube to a family.

SCRANTON LUSTRE-LACE

LUSTRE-LACE is the loveliest expression of the very modern vogue for richly luxurious curtains of silken texture.

Curtains of silk lace were once so rare that they could be found only in royal palaces. Even Scranton Lustre-Lace, when it was first produced, was too costly for popular use, but now the price has been brought within the reach of every beauty-loving woman.

Have your dealer show you Lustre-Lace. Scranton is the only maker of Lustre-Lace, so you can always identify it by the Scranton name woven in the top of each curtain. Genuine Lustre-Lace will not lose its lustrous beauty in the laundry, as is the case with many of its imitators.

Ask to see other Scranton draperies—Filet Nets, Lustre Marquisettes, Lustre Taffeta and Lustre Bedspreads.

Scranton products are carried by all good stores in Chicago districts and by leading merchants throughout the country. Space permits the listing of but a few names.

The Most Beautiful Car in America

Wide doors open upon an interior both luxurious and refined. Beautiful upholstery, over nested springs and cleverly placed arm rests give a newer comfort. Twin smoking sets, corner lights, commodious door pockets, inlaid walnut-finish panels, complete the air of charm.

Women will be quick to appreciate that there is no car built more easy to handle — more delightful to drive — than this newest and most beautiful Paige.

$1540 F. O. B. Detroit

Today — a brand new and smarter Paige 5 Passenger Sedan

A side view of this car presents a silhouette of entrancing beauty. Close inspection reveals hardware and fittings of perfect taste. The windows set in curved panels are of plate glass.

Clustered instruments, indirectly lighted, make the dash a thing of beauty. The steering wheel of solid walnut—all driving controls are within easy reach.

THERE is waiting for you at our showroom, today, a charming new Paige. It is a 4-door Sedan, mounted on the same chassis as the extremely popular Paige Brougham. This beautiful new body, tho' somewhat smaller than the biggest Paiges, is larger than most sedans. It is also less costly.

The costliest custom-built cars seldom present a more enchanting interior than that found in this newest 4-door Paige Sedan. Luxury is everywhere. You sit on finest mohair upholstery over nested springs, instead of cheaper, less attractive, less comfortable corduroy or cotton plush. You look at beautifully clustered instruments in one indirectly lighted panel. You admire the skill that so cleverly placed the arm rests, and inlaid the walnut-finish panels. Silk toggle grips, twin smoking sets, charming corner lights all enchant you.

See this Paige—soon—we know you'll like it immediately.

There's a New Landau Brougham, Too!

Forget—for a moment—that this Landau Brougham is the lowest priced of all the beautiful and charming new Paige cars. Forget it, at least, until you have seen and admired and driven the car itself. This car will give you not only all the power, speed, ease of handling and complete dependableness for which Paige cars have long been famous—but it will give you, too, a car of uncommonly fine appearance, equipped with conveniences and fitted with luxurious appointments never before affiliated in cars so moderately priced.

Mechanically, this newest Paige is even more dependable than the sturdy Paiges of old. It is replete with such advanced features as: Improved Paige-built Motor, none more modern nor better lubricated—Full High-Pressure Oil Feed to all Rotating Parts, including wrist pins, camshaft, auxiliary shaft and tappets—Counterbalanced Crankshaft—Silent Chain timing, with automatic takeup — Thermostat — Air Cleaner—Metal Oil Lubricated Universals — Springs 54 inches long—115 inch wheelbase—Shock Absorbers—Balloon Tires—Paige-Hydraulic 4-Wheel Brakes.

GLIMPSES OF CHICAGOLAND—At the left, Starved Rock, the "prairie citadel" of Illinois visited by James O'Donnell Bennett in his adventurings for The Tribune. The views in this state park, says Mr. Bennett, "are among the noblest on this continent." At the right, the Wisconsin state capitol at Madison. Built at a cost of about $8,000,000, it is the most beautiful of the nation's statehouses.

An "ordeal by heckling" featured a school being held at the English university, and the discomfiture of a young spellbinder caused the merriment. IOWA BRIDGE CHRISTENED IN MEMORY OF CHILD HEROINE—This steel structure, built by the Chicago & Northwestern railway over the Des Moines river between Boone and Ogden, has been named the Kate Shelley. It stands as a memorial to the 15-year-old girl of 1881 who risked her life by crossing the original trestle in the midst of a violent storm to warn an approaching train that the structure was about to go down. She won national fame and rich reward, and when she died in 1912 a special train carried mourners to her grave. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic)

Lovely ovals give length to the nails and enhancing slenderness to the whole hand

To shape your cuticle . . .
use this dainty liquid

LADY ROBERT PEEL the inimitable Beatrice Lillie of Charlot's Revue of New York and London, is one of the many distinguished women who attribute the beauty of their nails to Cutex. "Long ago in London," she says, "I learned how indispensable are the Cutex preparations in giving my cuticle the smooth roundness that on the stage is so essential."

THE most important part in keeping the nails well-groomed and charming is the cuticle.

Only by removing the old tissue that collects around the nail base can you shape the new in perfect ovals so that the lovely Half Moons show.

To meet this need, the greatest authority on the manicure perfected a safe antiseptic liquid that loosens and removes the old cuticle, leaving a perfect oval. It is Cutex. Use it regularly and see what shapeliness it gives your nails!

How to use Cutex

Wash hands and shape the nails. With orange stick and cotton dipped in Cutex, work gently around the base of each nail to remove the dry dead skin and shape the cuticle. Then pass the wet stick under the nail tips to clean and bleach them. Rinse the finger tips. The new skin is left firm and unbroken, the tips are white and stainless.

For a delightful finish, try the delicate new Powder Polish—or spread a drop of Cutex Liquid Polish over each nail. Complete and attractive Cutex Manicure Sets are 35c to $5.00. Separate preparations 35c.

6 Complete manicures—only 10c

Send the coupon with 10c for Introductory Set containing everything for the home manicure—the famous Cutex Cuticle Remover, the loveliest of powder and liquid polishes, Cuticle Cream, orange stick, cotton and emery board.

It Seemed Too Good to Be True . . . but I was afraid to smile as I said, "Yes"

I had only met Jimmy the evening before. When he asked me to his fraternity dinner dance at the Drake, it seemed almost too good to be true. I tried to smile with my eyes. I didn't want to let him see my teeth.

Don't ever let your teeth embarrass you. Use Colgate's . . . and flash a happy smile.

Colgate's Ribbon Dental Cream will make your teeth glisten gloriously. It will whiten them and bring out all their natural beauty. But even more important . . . it will help keep your teeth and gums healthy.

Colgate's penetrates every place where it is possible for germs and food particles to collect. It loosens these impurities at once. Then it washes them away, leaving your teeth and gums absolutely clean. Germs can't lurk in the warm, dark interior of your mouth when you use Colgate's regularly. Colgate's literally goes right into their hiding places and removes those causes of tooth decay.

Colgate's polishes and whitens teeth naturally. That's why more people in Chicago use Colgate's than they do any other dental cream.

And you'll like the taste . . . priced right, too.

Bad Teeth May Shatter Health and Happiness

Authorities Declare That Tooth Neglect Can Cripple Its Victims for Life

This might have been prevented

Few persons realize that the whole structure of good health may break down when teeth decay.

Just ask your dentist or physician. You will learn that rheumatism, heart disease, kidney trouble—even awful cancer of the mouth—can be traced to the germs and poisons of tooth decay.

Today it is recognized that tooth decay is a menace to the nation's health.

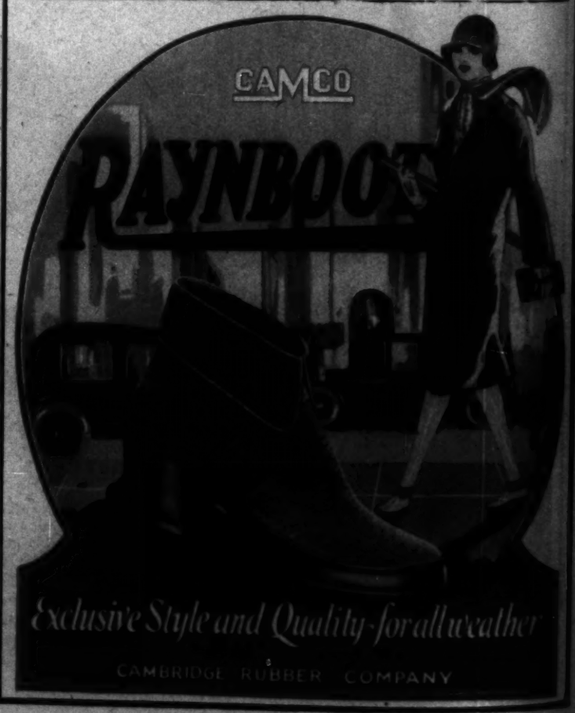

Much is being done to improve conditions. Colgate's Ribbon Dental Cream has always been in the forefront of this move for better teeth and better health. It is the preventive tooth paste. Use Colgate's to fight tooth decay before it starts. . . .

Give yourself a chance.

CHICAGO'S WACKER DRIVE NEARS COMPLETION—A small stretch of the new double-decked road along the south bank of the river was all that was to be finished when a flying camera secured this fine view. Arrow No. 1 points to the ramp at the west end of the drive, which runs down from Market street to the lower level. Arrow No. 2 shows the small section where the final touches were being made in this improvement. The third arrow indicates the east end of the drive. Here another ramp running between Wabash and Michigan avenues connects the street's two levels. Standing guard at the upper left is the majestic Tribune Tower, with the Wrigley buildings directly in front of it, and Michigan avenue's many new skyscrapers standing out boldly across the river.

WRACK OF THE SEA makes this one of the most amazing pictures that have come out of the Florida hurricane. No less than fifteen vessels may be distinguished on this battered sector of Miami's waterfront, ranging in size from the big one near the shore to the pygmies that cluster about it. Note the distance to which the boats in the foreground were flung. Others lay as far as three blocks inland when the tidal wave receded. (Tribune photograph)

CHICAGOANS CONQUER GIANT OF DEEP—The tarpon you see strung up was 6 feet 7 inches long and weighed 115 pounds. It was captured by this doughty trio off Pass Christian, Miss., after a 57-minute battle. The captors, left to right, are Herbert G. Shimp, Chicago capitalist and turfman; Eddie Hanson of Pass Christian, and O. O. Carpenter, former president of the Chicago Builders' club. And the rod held by Mr. Shimp brought in the trophy, one of the largest taken from the gulf in years. (Photograph from Underwood & Underwood)

We all like the easiest way—

IT'S human nature to prefer the easiest way of doing things . . . Practically every important invention that has marked the progress of the times has been aimed at simplifying some job or other. Take the typewriter, the sewing machine, or any one of a hundred others that you think of.

We are constantly studying out new ways to make things easier to do; partly because we want to speed up, get more accomplished; but also—and this must not be overlooked—because we like to pamper ourselves. About a great many things, to be really honest, we're all fundamentally lazy.

And particularly, we're lazy about some of the small important things of life.

Even in that simple matter of brushing the teeth—a daily duty we owe to our own well-being—many of us are negligent.

At night we're tired; in the morning we're in a hurry.

Realizing the truth of this, the makers of Listerine set out deliberately to formulate a dentifrice that would furnish the easiest, quickest way to clean teeth. In short, a tooth paste efficient even in the hands of lazy people—for in tooth brushing, at least, the word lazy applies to so many of us.

Listerine Tooth Paste is really very easy to use. It works fast. With just a minimum of brushing your teeth feel clean—and actually are clean.

You have the job done almost before you know it.

This is on account of the way Listerine Tooth Paste is made. It contains a specially prepared cleansing ingredient—entirely harmless to enamel*—plus the antiseptic essential oils that have made Listerine famous.

And how fine your mouth feels after this kind of a brushing. Then, besides, you know your teeth are really clean—and therefore safe from decay.—Lambert Pharmacal Co., St. Louis, U. S. A.

P. S.—By the way, Listerine Tooth Paste is only 25 cents for a large tube.

"—even for lazy people"

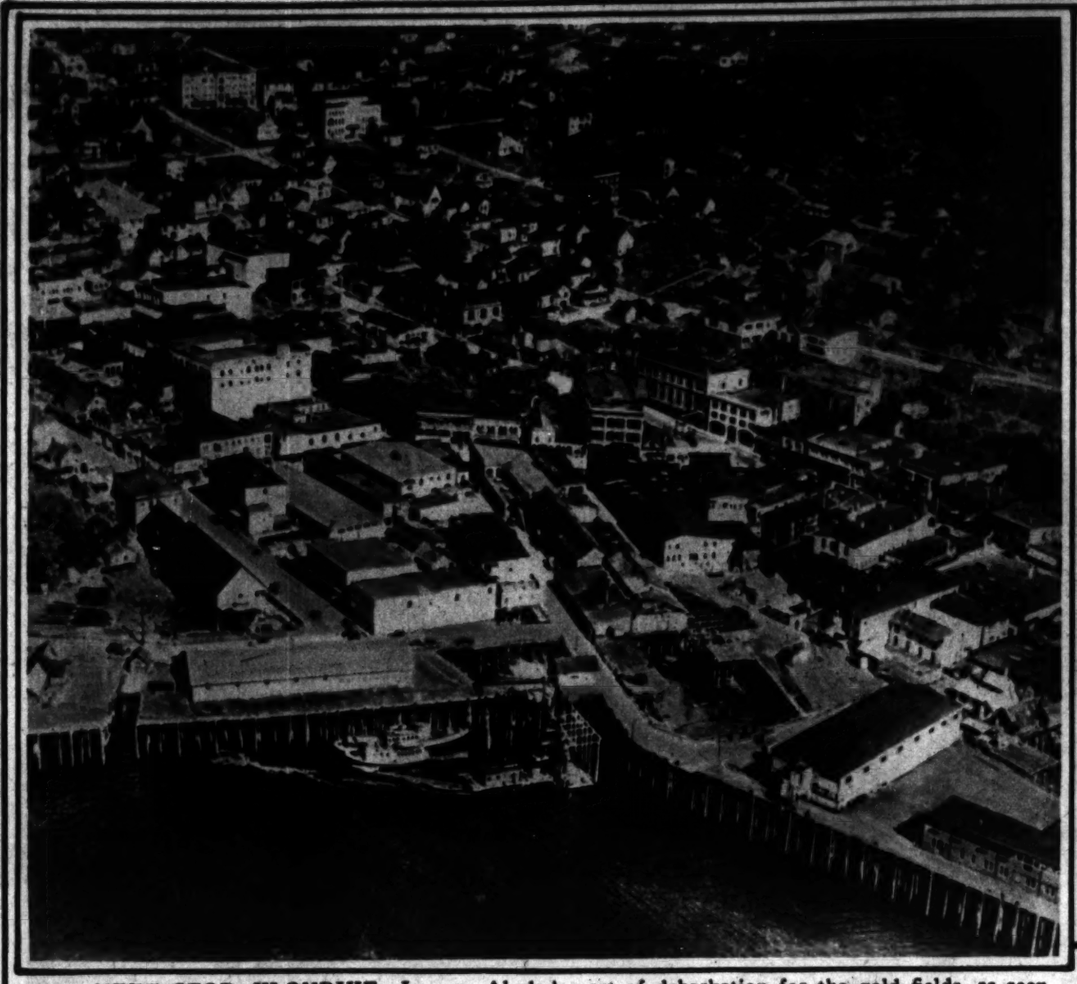

*This specially prepared cleansing medium (according to tests based upon the scale of hardness scientists employ in studying mineral substances) is much softer than tooth enamel. Therefore, it cannot scratch or injure the enamel.

At the same time it is harder than the tartar which accumulates and starts pyorrhea and tooth decay.

"Wait till your father sees those shoes!"

(For which conference we offer Father a little preliminary information)

"We want to regard the interests of our customers es carefully as we regard our own. We don't want to make a big profit at the expense of the consumer. We are sincere in wanting to give more leather and better shoes for less money. We take good care of ourselves only when we take good care of our customers."—GEORGE F. JOHNSON, President, Endicott-Johnson Corporation, to his Workers.

LIKE most businesses, the business of being a normal boy, or girl, has its excessive costs in some department or other. And it takes Mother to discover them! Usually she finds that it is costing entirely too much for the children's shoes. So Father is called into consultation. . . . What does he suggest? These facts may help:

Endicott-Johnson specialize in putting wear in foot*wear*. We say to our Workers: "Consider the natural carelessness of children; their untiring energy; the constant battering their shoes get. Design shoes to fit those conditions. Find out where children's shoes wear out quickest, then strengthen them at those points. Make shoes that give the longest possible wear per dollar. That's what parents want. Then add style and finish."

Such are Endicott-Johnson shoes. . . . Shoes based on actual wearing tests, on rugged boys and girls. Shoes made of leather specially tanned to withstand grinding and scuffing; leather produced at a big saving because tanned in our own huge tanneries.

But most unusual of all is the workmanship that goes into Endicott-Johnson shoes. It reflects the teamwork of 17,000 skilled tanners and shoemakers, living, playing and working together under ideal conditions. An "Industrial Democracy," we call ourselves—where direct incentives to each Worker make it definitely to his interest to help build "Better shoes for less money."

Boys' and girls' shoes $3, $4, $5. Smaller sizes proportionately less. Leading stores everywhere sell Endicott-Johnson shoes. Scores of styles—for men, women and children. Is Magnesia Nature's Way of Performing MAGIC?

From all over America come remarkable stories of how a little pure milk of magnesia is energizing and fairly revitalizing men and women. Giving to systems that have grown sluggish, the vital spark.

MISS M. HAD YIELDED to a chronic condition of unsettled stomach; "nervous indigestion" with the usual gas, and sourness. Taking soda, and resting after every meal. Then she tried milk of magnesia; she is back on horseback, riding far, playing hard, eating everything, enjoying life.

MR. F. AND DAUGHTERS are enjoying the seashore to the full. Less than two months since the father could eat but little—nothing fried—had even foresworn smoking. And the girls with weak stomachs that demanded diet; sea bathing nauseated both; the elder suffered alarmingly from constipation. The three are beach cronies now—the most active in an active circle. They laud the physician who introduced them to milk of magnesia—that marvelous corrective of acidity.

PERHAPS YOU, TOO, have acid stomach. Is your tongue coated mornings? Breath laden? Or elimination incomplete without cathartics? Try this delightful sweetener of the system! Pure, pleasing, palatable milk of magnesia. Three times as effective as bicarbonate of soda—and free from carbonic acid! Just be sure it is genuine milk of magnesia—Phillips.

DOROTHY W. was a frail little thing until her cow's milk was modified with pure milk of magnesia—after which she grew like a healthy plant. Hard curds cannot form in the stomach when magnesia is introduced. Nor will a child have colic or constipation later, if given a little milk of magnesia only occasionally.

Here is instant relief from heartburn; excessive eating, drinking, or smoking; acidity. Phillips is the original and real milk of magnesia endorsed by physicians and dentists. The same product they use in their regular practice, and recommend for your own use. So, familiarize yourself with the wrapper—and remember the name PHILLIPS

How proud and confident you are when your mouth and breath are always fresh and sweet as a child's!

Yours always if you keep the tiny Mouth Glands young

SO much depends on keeping six little glands in your mouth always active. They pour out natural fluids that protect teeth from decay.

But, unless we watch out, the mouth glands slow up. The formula to correct this was worked out in Pebeco Tooth Paste.

Brush your teeth with Pebeco. Instantly you get the sharp clean tang that leaves the whole mouth tingling and refreshed. The mouth glands are restored to normal vigor. The fluids they pour out cleanse and protect the teeth even where the tooth brush cannot reach. Use Pebeco daily to keep your whole mouth wholesome always.

The numbers show where they are—three on each side. The mouth glands are 20 times more active when we chew—but our soft foods do not exercise them. They slow up and decay begins. Pebeco contains an important salty-tasting ingredient that restores their youthful action.

With a Duo-Art to play for you, to rest you, to entertain or inspire you, home hours need never be dull.

Why Barbara decided to buy The DUO-ART Reproducing Piano

A RINGING doorbell, and a glance out of the living-room window, tells Barbara that Eleanor Wayne is coming to call. With the instinct to "set the stage" that is part of every true hostess' equipment, Barbara goes over to her new piano and touches a button near the keyboard. A shower of delicate, shimmering notes—a silver thread of melody soaring upward. Up, till, and pausing daintily at one bright-tinted tone, it drifts down—and is gone—

"Barbara goes to her new piano and touches a button."

"How lovely," says Eleanor, as they clasp hands in greeting. "'The Butterfly Etude'—but you were not playing?"

Barbara's merry laugh rings answer—"You flatter me, my dear; that was I. J. Paderewski. I—? That phrasing—? That fleet delicacy—?"

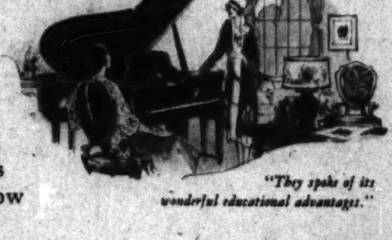

Eleanor, whose bent is decoration, turns to admire the exquisite Italian Period detail and two-tone finish of the Steinway Duo-Art Grand that is Barbara's latest and greatest treasure.

"But Barbara, why did you, who play so well yourself, ever decide to buy a reproducing piano?"

"Because I made up my mind that the children should not be brought up on my playing alone. Why, in this day, it's almost as bad as only letting them have one book to read—or only hearing one voice!"

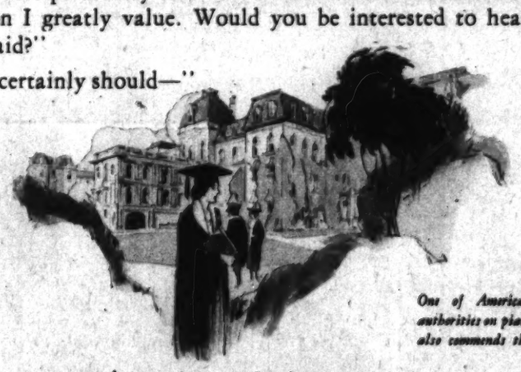

"And you decided on a Duo-Art because you could get it in a Steinway!"

"No, though that had much weight, of course. I picked up a magazine not long ago, in which I found excerpts from letters of both Hofmann and Paderewski saying they considered the Duo-Art 'greatly superior.' Also they spoke of its wonderful educational advantages for children. This set me thinking; as you know I am anxious to have the children know as much about music as they can, in the broadest and happiest way. So I wrote personally to two well-known music educators whose opinion I greatly value. Would you be interested to hear what they said?"

"They spoke of its wonderful educational advantages."

"I certainly should—"

One of America's leading authorities on piano literature also commends the Duo-Art.

Barbara goes to her desk and selecting two letters, reads from each:

"One is from Dr. Hollis Dann, head of the Department of Music Education, New York University. 'Not only have we two Duo-Art instruments in constant use in N. Y. U., but I also bought one for my home so that my own children would not be cheated of the world's most inspiring piano performance in the formative period of their lives.'

"The other letter is from Miss Kate Chittenden, Head of the Piano Department of Vassar College. Miss Chittenden, I believe, is considered one of America's leading authorities on piano literature. She says: 'For a child to hear the rhythmic integrity of Bauer, the flexible poetry of Paderewski, the sane fluency of Hofmann, the limpid classicality of Landowska, to mention only a few, must create a standard in the child's mind from which it can never depart.'

"These convinced me that a Duo-Art Reproducing Piano, and that only, would give the children the kind of musical education I want them to have, the inspiration of the actual playing of great classics—until they become familiar friends—until they not only know the music, but know when it is well played.

"And oh, there are so many reasons why a Duo-Art is so desirable and necessary nowadays. Do you remember those wonderful Paganini Variations that I went crazy over when we heard Bachaus play them? Well, I've never heard them played in concert since. They're terribly difficult—Yet here I have Bachaus' own recordings, and can hear them when I like."

Eleanor stirs her tea thoughtfully—"Does Jack like it?" she asks.

"My dear! wouldn't a man who loves music like an instrument that will play any kind he wants; the light operas, old ballads—why, he has even got his banjo out and plays with it every evening. And we all adore singing with the Duo-Art as accompaniment. The college songs and sea chantey are such fun in 'barber shop ensemble.'"

"He even got his banjo out and plays with the Duo-Art every evening."

Here a sixteen-year-old replica of Barbara appears with a friend—

"How do you do, Mrs. Wayne? Oh, Mother, may I play that new Gershwin fox trot for Cynthia?"

"Do you, a high brow musician, allow jazz, Barbara—and on your wonderful new piano?"

"I certainly do, my dear, when its such jazz as the Duo-Art plays."

"Girls, you'll both have two lumps, I suppose?"

* * * *

THE great piano artists of the world have made record-rolls for the Duo-Art, and this wonderful instrument is able to re-play these in your home in all their original beauty and individuality.

The Duo-Art is also a Pianola, with which you can play the music you love best—play it as you feel it at the moment. Nothing is more fascinating nor more beneficial than to be able to express music freely oneself.

And last, the Duo-Art provides you with a wonderful choice of pianos, for the Duo-Art is a piano, first, and before all else—a piano unequalled in musical equality and available for conventional hand-playing and for student practice.

The DISTANT SCENE

by Allen Raymond

ILLUSTRATED By R. F. JAMES

"Why, that's ridiculous," said Mary. "You're just about to have the time of your life."

Henry Lindley Thought Port Said, Singapore, Bombay, Spelled Adventure Until He Looked into the Eyes of Little Mary Bennett

"IF I could only be on board her!"

Henry Lindley stood two hundred feet above West Forty-second street, behind one of the thousand windows of a commercial beehive, looking over the midtown roofs at a freighter which was dropping down the North river toward the ocean.

"If I could only break away—get out of all this humdrum—today, and visit distant scenes!"

The thing to do, he day-dreamed, was to open this window and launch himself in a prodigious swan dive which would carry him over the roofs and the river. Soaring above the rail of the freighter, he would turn gracefully, feet first in the air, and bring his knees to his chin. He would clutch his shins with two hands and float like a soap bubble down the hatchway through an open door into the captain's cabin. His dive would deposit him comfortably seated across a table from the skipper. That worthy would look up, a little surprised, perhaps, at his unconventional entrance, but hospitably jovial. "Why, shiver my timbers, Hank!" he would say, or perhaps "Oho, my hearthy!" Naturally, his exclamations would be very nautical. "Why, blow me down," he would say, "if it ain't Hank Lindley! My man, I'm glad you've come. Twelve days to Marseilles, where Mama Bonnard cooks her bouillabaisse! Nine more to Port Said, where the camels come down to the sea! Then fifteen more to Bubbling Wells Road, where we'll ride in a rickshaw, dropping for strange jade idols that you can bring home to your girl."

"I haven't got a girl and I don't want one," Henry would answer, "not till we've gone on from Shanghai some miles and years."

Young Lindley's hand strayed upward to the breast pocket of his coat to feel the hard outline of his bank book. He couldn't go just yet, but maybe pretty soon. He turned and said goodnight to misjones, a stenographer, who after all was human, though only part of the office equipment.

"G-night, misjones," he said, and smiled. He was a tall, slender, well groomed young man, was Henry, with the pink clear skin of an athlete, two green eyes inclined to laughter, and an irrepressible curl in his yellow hair which had just naturally forced him to fight tough kids through his youth.

"G'night mistlindley," said misjones, looking after him, and under her breath she said not unkindly, "ya poor, lonesome kid."

Henry descended to the street, set his course for the subway, and soon was packed tightly into a shoved and hurled efficiently toward his red brick boarding house in Brooklyn. At Clark street he realized that he had had enough. He was one of those temperate persons who could take the subway or leave it. He wrestled up into the fresh air. This ten minute walk, which he frequently took as an alternative to the last few laps in the train, might not be quite so strenuous exercise as the subway, but it freshened him before dinner. It took him over a corner of Brooklyn Heights, where he could stand a glorious few minutes to watch the statue of Liberty facing outward, great liners going abroad, the tugs and barges and busy ferries of a harbor that called him to sea.

At this favorite corner of his there was a little bench before an iron railing. Henry strode, oblivious to passers-by, till he came to this bench. There was some female person of no consequence sitting on the farther end of it, he noticed, as he paused in front of it. He swelled his lungs with the salty breeze and set his mental feet for another dive like the one to the North river freighter. Nothing more romantic than a Fall River liner was thrashing the water, but Henry was almost ready to hum a stave or two about being set somewhere east of Suez when a slight feminine cough from the person of no importance made him acutely conscious that he was no Caruso.

He looked down toward her end of the bench. She was looking up at him. Why, upon his soul, it was that little Miss Bennett from his very own boarding house!

"G-good evening, Mr. Lindley," she said, hesitantly.

"Good evening, Miss Bennett," he said courteously, repressing a sense of annoyance. She was a pretty little thing, he had noticed occasionally, though somewhat pale and subdued as compared to a brace of more vivid young women who sat at her table, and who sometimes rallied him across the dining room with obvious coquetry.

THIS was the first time he had looked at her closely. He saw that her face was undeniably smudged and that two parallel water courses, barely dried, descended from her eyes. One of her hands was gripping a handkerchief. The girl had been crying.

"Why—why, Miss Bennett!" he protested. "Is there something the matter? Is there something I can do?"

She laughed and jumped to her feet. She brushed her wisp of lace across her cheeks and crammed it into a pocket of her suit.

"There's nothing the matter now," she informed him. "Everything's lovely in the best of all worlds. Are you going home?"

Something bitter beneath her laughter disturbed him. He looked at her more searchingly. Perhaps it is regrettable that so polite a young man should have stared so long. Perhaps it is not. For the longer he looked the more it was revealed to him that the girl, in her fragile way, was very lovely.

His gaze apparently disturbed her. She shook a defensive hand before her face and then set to work with the implements of a vanity case to make her face more presentable.

"Silly of me," she spoke between dabs. "You mustn't think I'm a sobbing Sue. But somehow, boats get me. Don't they get you, sometimes?"

Until she questioned him Henry had been wrapped up in appreciating the alluring absurdity of a pretty girl's making her toilet in front of him. The innocence of the creatures, thus giving away their secrets! Now that she questioned him, he was washed by another wave of sympathy. He understood her perfectly.

"Boats? Boats! They certainly do. They get me wild to go on them. Is that the way with you?"

"And then you can't," she laughed. They fell into step on the road toward home. "You've got to go to the office. Offices aren't so bad. But when I see boats I hate them."

"The best thing about a boat," asserted Henry, "is that it's taking you somewhere. Now, offices——"

"Offices take men places," the girl objected. "They're men's careers."

"They're all right for those that like them," admitted Henry. "I don't. I've got to get out and see the world before I settle down to a life in offices. Bombay and Singapore! The Fiji islands and Baffin bay! You can't tell me the name of a place I'd not like to see—and I believe I'm going to some day."

"When you're rich?"

"Long before then," he bragged to the perfect questioner. "I'd have gone long ago—but—I couldn't. Now, pretty soon, I'll be able to."

There was silence between them for the complete length of a block before the girl spoke. "I know," she said softly. "Mrs. Lindley was a beautiful person."

He flashed a quick glance at her and saw that her gaze was on the pavement. "Mother was a wonder," he said briefly.

Silence for another block.

"You were wonderful to her, yourself. Perhaps you don't know how much everybody in the house admired the way you and she were together."

"We had a good time."

"And now you're going away?"

"A few more months," he gloated. "When I've saved the money. All the way around the world."

"That's marvelous," she sighed. "That's what was getting me this afternoon. I think some day, somehow, I'm going to ride on the howdah of an elephant in India. I've been in love with the orient ever since I read about Xanadu."

"Xanadu?"

"I don't even know whether there is such a place," she giggled, "but it's spelled the orient to me ever since I read the poem. You must have heard it."

"'In Xanadu did Khubla Khan
A stately pleasure dome decree,
Where Alph, the sacred river, ran,
By caverns measureless to man,
Down to a dreamless sea.'

"Didn't you ever hear that?"

"I never did," said Henry humbly. "You must have read a lot."

"Not much. Just school things—and when I read to put me to sleep."

"I do that, too," Henry informed her. He was struck by how similar her tastes were to his. "Doesn't it beat the deuce?"

"What?"

"The way we live in New York right alongside people for months and never know them."

"It gets pretty lonely sometimes," she observed. "But that's when books come in handiest."

Such a sensible girl! And so brave! Sir Henry rode right gallantly to destroy that ogre of loneliness.

"I say," he offered in a gust of enthusiasm. "I'm the same way myself. We ought to go somewhere together."

"I'd love to, if you'd like to take me."

"Why, of course I would. You know, I was going alone to a travelogue tonight. On Paris! Wouldn't you like to go to Paris?"

"It must be beautiful."

That night in the subway on their way to the lecture Henry said to her, "You know, I've needed a friend for some time and never realized it."

That night at her doorway, on the second floor of their boarding house, they lingered long minutes before Henry could ascend his further flight. Before they shook hands politely on parting, Mary Bennett reached far down into her bag of wisdom and drew forth a brand new pearl: "Real friendship is perhaps the most wonderful thing in the world!"

Such a conservative statement Henry was not inclined to deny. At the corner theater next evening there would be a film entitled "The South Sea Siren," which would give them another foretaste of travel. Would they attend it together? Indeed they would.

YOU know how the movies are—when after desperate adventure, or cruel misunderstandings, the gorgeous girl comes to rest in the strong, sheltering arms of the young man with the prominent chin and faultless dress clothes? And the pipe organ is playing very softly and shakily.

On such occasions as these Henry was shaken by an emotion quite alien to restless rovings over high seas and burning deserts. He would be acutely conscious of what a dear, sweet girl Mary was, and how sensibly she had appraised the worth of true friendship. If only he weren't going away pretty soon!

Afterwards, eating sundaes, he would praise her for being so square a comrade.

"You're a peach, Mollie," he would pronounce with the finality of a judge. "No sentimental nonsense, but a perfect friend."

Mary would color ever so faintly and smile inscrutably. "Is it a good week, Henry? So the bank book mounts?"

He would show the precious cardboard covered ledger to her, risen to the sum of $1,347.78. "Getting up to the ticket mark," he would gloat. "Not long now, and I'll be gone. How's yours?"

"O, not so magnificent, but it's coming along."

Consider, then, the extenuating circumstances of that evening when Henry and Mary forgot that a real friendship without sentimental foolishness could be, perhaps, the most perfect thing in the world. For several months they had been seeing the pictures together, dancing together, starting to work together, meeting in selected rendezvous on their evening trips homeward, sharing the stories of their youthful experience, comparing their dreams, ideals, and bank accounts, and finding each other admirable. On the evening in question, which was Saturday, Henry's fortune had reached the stipulated figure for travel.

Their extravagant dinner in a Broadway restaurant of softly shaded lights, deft waiters, and distant music was by way of a farewell celebration. Henry's resignation had been accepted with regret by his boss, who had urged him to return to the commercial beehive when he got over his foolishness.

After they dined, Hank and Mollie rode upon a bus top to Grant's tomb, near which was a stone wall on which to sit and look at the river and the lights beyond.

"In a way, I hate to go," admitted Henry.

"Why, that's ridiculous," said Mary. "You're just about to have the time of your life."

"I know," he muttered.

He was surprised to find that a soft hand had fluttered down to rest upon his pair of clasped ones, and he turned to look down into a pair of eyes that were very close to his own. The night had lit them with star dust so that Henry gasped.

"I know exactly what you're thinking, and you mustn't," she told him. "I'm going to travel myself as soon as I get the chance. Probably we'll meet in London, or maybe on the Nile."

"I've half a mind to wait for you," he faltered.

She closed her eyes. "I wouldn't hold you back a day," she fibbed. "I'm so glad for you, Henry, that you've got what you want."

As her eyes reopened, Henry's lips were very close above hers. The young man was puzzled because she suddenly laughed aloud, as if she had discovered something highly amusing in his gaze. It was just as queer the way she cut her laughter short.

"It's been perfect, hasn't it, dear?" she breathed.

Her two hands now were clasped behind his neck, and before he had even recovered from the shock of that softly breathed "dear," her lips were squarely on his. Lightly at first, almost experimentally, as if questioning by sense of touch. Then as his arms closed about her, when he still was dazed by the sudden transformation of his dear, sweet sensible girl friend, she became a fierce flame of passion, burning against him.

What is the younger generation coming to? She kissed him hotly upon his mouth, unclasped her hands to tip off his hat and rumple his hair, and then her two lips beat against his two eyes and his nose. When Henry was roused to seek her lips with his, she just as quickly turned away from him. She commanded him to let her go instantly.

She broke free with an unexpected twist, swung to the sidewalk, and dancing backward, commanded sharply, "Don't touch me!"

"What did you do that for?" he demanded.

"Because I wanted to," she snapped. "It was just an experiment—silly—uncalled for—no excuse for it. It's all over now. It won't happen again. So accept my apologies and take me home."

With that, she started swiftly along the sidewalk toward the nearest bus stop.

"Wait a bit," protested Henry, overtaking her. "If—I'm walking—too fast for you—just reflect you need the exercise. Cooped up in an office all day the way you are. You're—interfering—with my free stride. Don't, Henry, please!"

"I said, 'wait a bit.'"

"Cave manning, Henry? Not a bit of use. Don't be as foolish as I was."

"You weren't foolish, Mollie, unless being fond of me is foolish."

"It would be," she jeered.

"I love you, Mollie."

"Don't say that. I won't listen."

"You've got to."

"I won't."

"Ah! But you will," he insisted softly. (She had known all the time that she would.)

"I love you and you love me."

She laughed, but a trace of tears was in her laughter. "It sounds like a song I heard once."

"The truest song you'll ever hear."

Photographs of Comfort

—how it is now proved that you sleep better on the MASTERPIECE BED SPRING

THE word "comfort" is one of the most abused words in the English lan; age. It is used—we maintain—altogether too loosely by manufacturers and salesmen of bed springs. When you are told that a bed spring is "the most comfortable bed spring made," are there any facts to help you believe or disbelieve this claim?

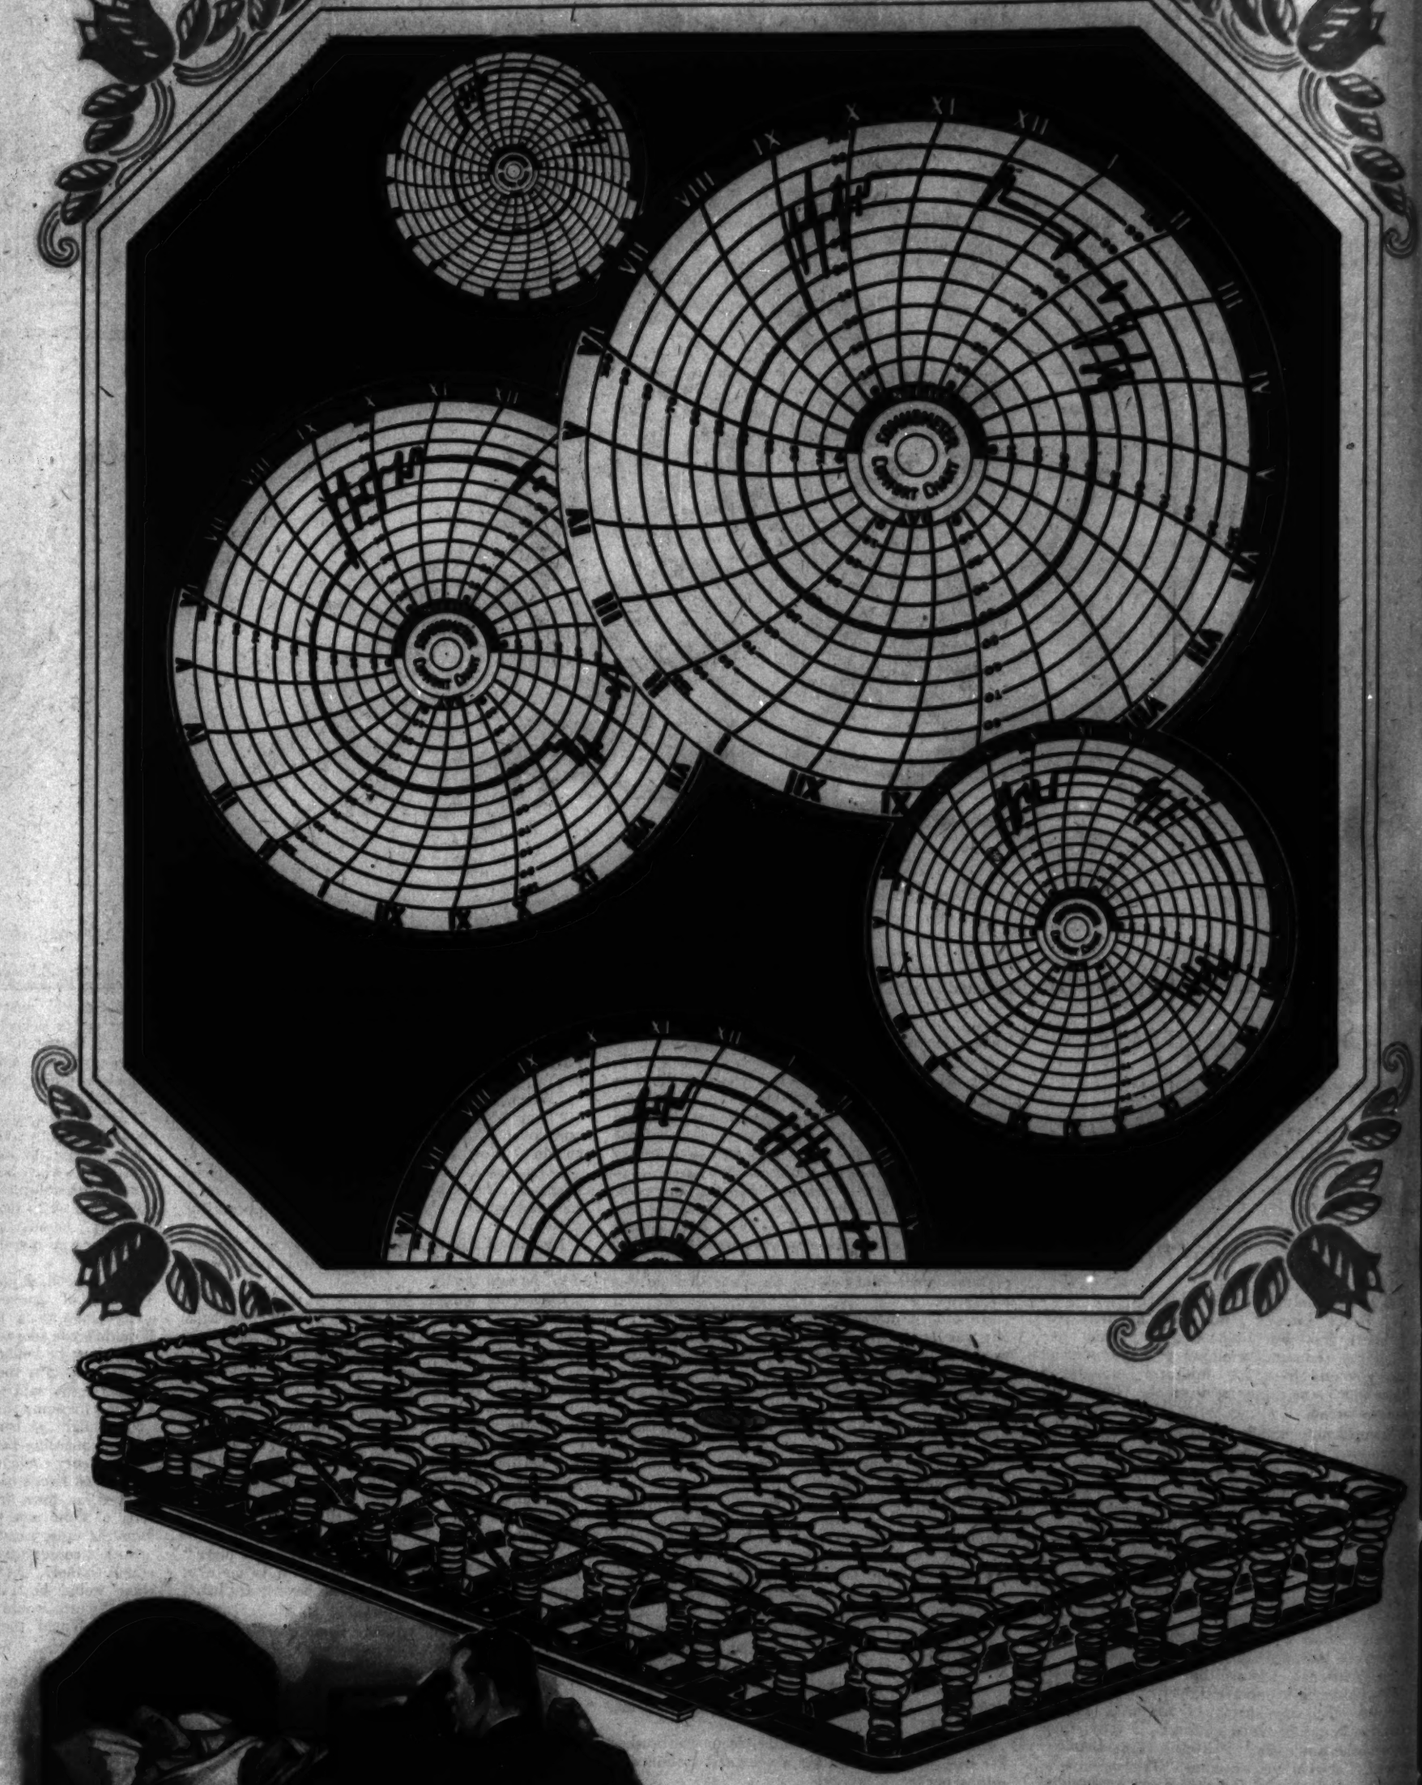

For after all, isn't the comfort of a bed spring a strictly comparative quality? We think it is. We believe that no one should buy a bed spring that is merely called comfortable. We have spent over fifty years trying to find a way to measure comfort in order that the public might have scientific facts instead of mere claims to guide them. After innumerable experiments of all sorts we have found a way, we think, to measure comfort.

The dictionaries tell you that comfort is a state of being at ease, quiet, restful. Comfort is the absence of a desire (either conscious or unconscious) to move or change position. Consequently you do not stir or toss about when you are comfortable. If then, there were a way to photograph or record your actions while asleep would not that record reveal the periods of comfort and discomfort you had experienced throughout the night? If you changed bed springs periodically and kept a record of the comfort you enjoyed on each and compared these records, you would know which spring furnishes the greatest comfort.

This is exactly what we have done to prove the average person sleeps more restfully on our Masterpiece Bed Spring. We constructed delicate recording instruments, called Somnometers, which register every quiver of muscles when attached to bed springs in use. We have made scores of comfort charts by this method. We have tested and re-tested, compared and re-compared, under conditions that leave no room for doubt. We have had tests made by disinterested parties. In the large illustration are reproductions of some of the comfort charts made in this manner. This is the way we can now photograph comfort, scientifically proving that the Masterpiece Bed Spring offers greater comfort.

And the actual experience of thousands of users verify all our experiments. We have in our files a most amazing collection of praises from users of the Masterpiece. All this permits us to make this unusual offer—without qualifications: Buy a Masterpiece Bed Spring from any Union Sleep Unit dealer. Use it a week, month or a year. Compare it any way you wish. If it fails to let you sleep better—definitely better—return it and get your money back without question. We encourage our dealers to make you this proposition. Write or telephone us for the name of a nearby dealer.

This is the Union Masterpiece Bed Spring. Above this are photographic reproductions of comfort charts as they are made on the Somnometer. The wavy line in the charts is made by a pantograph stylus as the chart slowly revolves during the night. The variations in the "line of comfort" are made when the sleeper stirs, tosses or turns over—actual photographs of comfort, hour by hour during sleep.

THE OTHER DAY -:- Second Episode in this Delightful Word Comic -:- By Donald Ogden Stewart

THE other day I happened to go to a tailor shop.

"I am going to get married," I began.

"So many marriages turn out badly these days, don't they?" said the tailor.

"My marriage is going to be different," I said.

"I hope so," said the tailor, and he shook his head sadly. "I certainly hope so."

"Well, anyway," I continued, "I would like to order a cutaway."

"How old are you?" asked the tailor.

"Thirty-one," I replied, "but I will probably take a thirty-five year old cutaway. I have always been large for my age," I added.

"Thirty-one," mused the tailor. "Well, well."

We stood there for a minute in silence.

"Why don't you wait?" said the tailor, at last.

"For my cutaway?" I asked.

"No," he replied. "Why don't you wait until you are older before getting married?"

"I came in here," I said, not without some impatience, "to get clothes—not advice."

The tailor shook his head and walked to the back of the shop.

"Mr Hunter!" he called.

After a few moments Mr. Hunter appeared. He was in his vest and shirt sleeves and carried a tape measure around his neck.

"This gentleman is going to get married," explained the tailor.

"Dear me," exclaimed Mr. Hunter.

"Mr. Hunter," said the tailor to me, "has had a very unfortunate married life."

"I would like a cutaway," I said.

"Certainly," said the tailor, and to Mr. Hunter he remarked, "the gentleman wants a cutaway."

Mr. Hunter nodded, took the tape measure slowly from his neck, and began mechanically to put it around my waist.

"Thirty-four," said Mr. Hunter.

"Thirty-four," repeated the tailor.

"We were very happy together," said Mr. Hunter—and then he added, "twelve and a half."

"Twelve and a half," repeated the tailor.

"They change," said Mr. Hunter.

"They change," repeated the tailor.

"Waistlines?" I asked.

"Women," replied Mr. Hunter.

"I'm being measured for a suit of clothes," I remarked, "not a woman."

"Nevertheless," said Mr. Hunter, "they change."

"Nonsense," I said, "everything changes. That's life."

"Eighteen and a quarter," said Mr. Hunter, and then he added, "have you known the lady long?"

"Three months," I replied.

Mr. Hunter sighed.

"That's a very short time," he remarked.

"A very short time," echoed the tailor.

"Do you want pockets?" asked Mr. Hunter.

"Yes," I replied.

"Inside?"

"Yes."

"Do you want children?" asked the tailor.

"Where?" I asked.

"In your home," replied the tailor.

"Of course," I replied, "and I want the pockets in the cutaway."

"Children are very noisy," said Mr. Hunter. "You will get very tired of them."

"How about hip pockets?" asked the tailor.

"We were very happy together," said Mr. Hunter—and then he added, "Twelve and a half."

"One," I replied, "on my hip."

"Eleven," said Mr. Hunter.

"One," I repeated.

"Eleven," said Mr. Hunter.

"Wait a minute," and he measured again. "Eleven and a quarter."

"Eleven and a quarter," repeated the tailor.

"Is your fiancée in good health?" asked Mr. Hunter.

"Yes," I replied.

"Are you sure?" asked Mr. Hunter.

The tailor shook his head.

"Ah, if one could only be sure," he sighed.

"Mrs. Hunter," said Mr. Hunter, "or, rather, the former Mrs. Hunter, was seemingly in very good health up to the day of our marriage."

"And then what happened?" asked the tailor.

"I would rather not go into it," said Mr. Hunter.

"Neither would I," I said.

"My wife," said the tailor, "or, rather, the woman who was formerly my wife, cost me—guess how much in doctors' bills alone?"

"I can't guess," I replied.

"Over four thousand dollars a year," said the tailor, "which is enough to keep a standing army supplied with ammunition and food for thirteen days and nights."

"Well," I said, "would you rather support a standing army than your wife?"

"Yes," replied the tailor.

"A standing army," remarked Mr. Hunter, "does not get hay fever."

"Did your wife have hay fever?" I asked.

"I would rather not talk about it," said Mr. Hunter.

"Do you want a single or double button coat?" asked the tailor.

"What are they wearing?" I asked.

"Well," replied the tailor, "that depends. For funerals—"

"This is for a wedding," I interrupted.

"For funerals and weddings," continued the tailor, "either the single or double button is correct."

"I would suggest a single button," said Mr. Hunter. "It's a little more fashionable."

"All right," I agreed, "single button."

"And a white vest?"

"Yes," I replied, "a white vest."

"I was married in a white vest," said Mr. Hunter.

"All right," I said, "dark vest, then."

"It won't make much difference in the long run," said Mr. Hunter, and then he added, "has your fiancée got good teeth?"

"That's another thing," said the tailor.

"Twenty-seven," said Mr. Hunter.

"Twenty-seven," repeated the tailor.

"THERE'S a dentist in South Bend," said the tailor, after a minute, "who was supported by my wife's teeth."

"What was it," I asked, "a vaudeville act?"

The tailor did not answer.

"Fifteen hundred dollars for bridgework alone," he sighed.

"I know," said Mr. Hunter. "When Mrs. Hunter went away—" and he stopped.

"What?" I asked.

"I would rather not say," replied Mr. Hunter. And then he added, "Would you mind stepping up on this stool?"

I stepped up.

"Twenty-nine," said Mr. Hunter, and the tailor repeated, "twenty-nine."

"A church wedding, I suppose," remarked Mr. Hunter.

"Yes," I replied.

"Episcopal?" asked the tailor.

"Yes."

"That's good," said Mr. Hunter.

"Are you an Episcopalian?" I asked.

"O, no," he replied.

"Mr. Hunter is an atheist," explained the tailor.

"Will you have silk linings?" asked Mr. Hunter.

"Only to the coat and vest," I replied.

"Naturally," said the tailor as he made a notation, "and where will you live after your marriage?"

"New York, probably," I answered.

"O, dear," said Mr. Hunter.

"What's the matter?" I asked. "Don't you like New York?"

"It's very difficult to get a divorce in New York," explained Mr. Hunter.

"And suppose I'm not thinking about getting a divorce?" I remarked.

Mr. Hunter smiled.

"Now step down, please," he said.

I stepped down.

"I wouldn't do it," said Mr. Hunter, a little sadly.

"Wouldn't do what?" I asked, belligerently.

"I wouldn't have silk linings," said Mr. Hunter. "It's just a little flashy."

"O," I replied, "I thought you were going to say that you wouldn't get married if you were me."

MR. HUNTER put the tape measure once more over his shoulders and gazed out of the large front window at the various people passing along the street.

"We're in for a little rain, I think," he remarked.

The tailor also looked through the window.

"When can you come in for a fitting, Mr. Johnson?" he asked.

"My name isn't Johnson," I said. "It's Stewart."

The tailor bowed slightly to an acquaintance who was passing.

"When can you come in for a fitting, Mr. Stewart?" he asked.

"The end of the week?" I suggested.

The tailor looked at Mr. Hunter. Mr. Hunter nodded.

"All right," said the tailor. "The end of the week."

Mr. Hunter spoke.

"Wasn't that Frederick Johnson who just passed?" he said.

"Yes," replied the tailor.

"That was too bad about his wife," said Mr. Hunter.

The tailor shrugged.

"It was to be expected," he said.

"Yes," said Mr. Hunter. "It was to be expected."

At the door I turned.

"Saturday morning," I said. "About eleven."

"Saturday morning, about eleven, will do very nicely," said the tailor. "Good day, Mr. Stewart—and thank you very much."

"Good day," I answered. "Good day, Mr. Hunter."

"Good day," said Mr. Hunter.

As I reached the street it slowly began to rain.

THE DISTANT SCENE ---------- By Allen Raymond

"A sailor song—I think it was—same chorus for frisco girls and London girls and Rio girls. Are you practicing, Henry, before your trip?"

"That," he rebuked her, "isn't worthy of you."

"If you were a little brighter you'd know it was my admirable of me. I'm not going to stop all your wonderful voyages."

"You couldn't," he boasted. "I'm stopping myself. Not stopping—just deferring them, so you can go with me."

"O! Do you think I'd let you?"

"Yes."

"Well, I won't. You might never go, and then you'd always be sorry."

"I'll never be sorry."

"Are you sure?"

Henry said he was sure. The moon looked down upon them as benevolently as a surpliced clergyman. The elms nearby were dignified pillars that arched and met at their tops in a fretwork of lace like those of a Gothic cathedral. Their lips performed the ritual.

"Dear me," say the nosy autoists. "What sights one sees on Riverside!"

OF course they were married—tremulously—in that famous Little church, being brasen New Yorkers. Naturally, Henry was so impressed by the serious implications of so great a ceremony that his voice cracked a bit on the responses, and Mary was so excited that she forgot her brand new silk umbrella—a gift of her sister, too. She left it right in the vestry, and it had to be mailed to her at Atlantic City.

Three days were sufficient for honeymoon with such a sensible couple, who hugged the delicious secret that soon they would be taking a honeymoon around the world—in laughing defiance at thrift—and at getting ahead in the world—and at all the prosy advice which a foolish world would give young couples. Henry and Mary were different, you can see for yourself.

They could start on the grand international tour for a year, they estimated, if they were very careful with their nickels and dimes,—or a year and a half at most. It was axiomatic that two people could live more cheaply than one. They would quit the expense of boarding, so that Mary could have the fun of keeping one room and a kitchenette. Their savings would mount and mount. Of course, New York rents were terrible—but they would not get much furniture, just a few nice things.

Henry found the room-and-two-thirds. Mary, in her few spare hours from business, stalked Seconand-hand-Song to his lair, that elusive Man-Who-Sells-Wonderful-Things. She trapped him down on Third Avenue, underneath the elevated, and that was an adventure in itself, just to find him, dicker with him, and superintend the cartage of new household possessions to the far-off Bronx.

She and Henry already had begun to travel. They had not boarded a liner, but by the time they found just the perfect dream of a place, within reason—and equipped it suitably—they had criss-crossed the trade routes of the great metropolis. They had explored its Farthest North in Harlem, and its great open spaces toward Corona. Several times they had been so engrossed in setting forth to each other the great truth on matters of importance that they had forgotten to get off the subway or the elevated at their destination, and had found themselves at such outlandish points as 245th street or Long Island City.

Mary could not help but blush sometimes, at instances like these, because she could see that people on the trains were looking at her with that smile of amused good will with which some impertinent elderly folk do look at obvious brides. She would tilt her nose in the air. Her correctly gloved fingers would stop toying with the covered outline of her wedding ring. She would talk to Henry quite distantly—perhaps a little haughtily—like a matrimonial veteran to whom a husband like Henry would undoubtedly be nice enough in his way, but nothing to get excited about.

Henry's feet scarcely touched the earth these days. He had attained supreme good fortune. To and from the office he would think of his girl. Why! Just list all the adjectives descriptive of wonderful women. Beautiful—gentle—wise—and good. Vivacious—wistful—gay—and true. Mary was the very personification of all of them, once you got to know her. And he, Henry Lindley, only an ordinary chap in lots of ways—not half so well-to-do, nor widely known a citizen as he would be some day, after the polishing education of travel—had been accepted by her for better or for worse, for richer or poorer, and all of that. Here was a miracle.

They invented a game called Lookit, which they played often on the avenues, evenings, rather than go to the movies, because they were saving tremendously.

"Lookit," Mary would cry ecstatically before some brightly lit store window, thereby scoring an unregistered tally. "Those darling curtains! That wonderful secretary! When we come home from China!"

"Lookit," Henry would exclaim delightedly, squeezing her arm and hurrying her to another great pane of glass. "That brand new liner. 'Eleven days of unalloyed pleasure await you on these delightful cruises.'"

An innocent game in which both players could win. One would never have thought that danger lurked in it. Yet it was during such a contest, the briefest season after their marriage, that Henry was astounded—shocked—grieved to the core to see how flamingly angry his perfect girl could be. Not only angry, but unjust to him.

"Lookit," Mary said, quite near their home. "That beautiful nursery! Those little blue chairs and table! And wouldn't a layette like that be just too perfect!"

"Uh-huh," he grunted indifferently.

"It's awfully expensive," she mourned. "That lace and all. But those patterns are easy, I'll bet."

"C'mon, c'mon," he tugged at her arm. "Let's get on."

She pulled her arm out of his with a swift yank which surprised him. She stepped back a pace and flashed him such an inexplicable glance of wrath that it startled him. Then she started to talk, so fiercely and wildly that she scared him.

"Henry Lindley, don't you touch me! You're selfish. You're the most selfish man I ever met. You pretend to love me. You never think of me."

She was talking very quietly, as if suppressing a force which might break forth in screams.

"Why, Mollie, dear!" protested Henry.

"Don't dear me! There's nothing dear to you but boats—and oceans—and Chinamen—and places on the other side of nowhere. I wish you'd go there. Go on. Tonight! And leave me alone."

Can you imagine that? Henry couldn't. Right out of a clear sky for no reason at all! Mary turned on her heel and started to run back toward their rooms. That angered him. He caught her in a few swift strides and seized her arm.

"Now see here, Mollie," he commanded. "Be reasonable. Tell me what's the matter."

"Let go of me. I want to be alone. Let go, I say! Do you want to strike me? I—I suppose you would."

"I might," he threatened, laughing at her desperation.

"Go ahead. Beat me. You're just heartless enough to. I wonder why I ever married you."

Henry stepped back. His face went white. "Why, Mollie," was all he could say.

Mary started to cry. "Go away, please. Go on. Go downtown and look up a ticket to Madagascar or Timbuctoo. And let me alone."

Again she started for home, but Henry would not let her go. "If you'll just tell me what's the matter," he pleaded, "perhaps I can help."

"Yes—you can help. By going to the movies. I want to stay home alone for an evening. Is there anything strange about that?"

"Seems funny," he muttered.

"Maybe it is, but I want to."

"You love me, don't you?"

"I don't know—maybe—if you want me to, terribly. But won't you go away? Do I have to be with you every minute?"

"No, indeed," said Henry coldly. He stopped short and the girl kept on. She looked back once, a few paces away, and saw that he was watching her. Then she broke into a run.

IT was a very wretched Henry Lindley some hours later who let himself into the husk of what had started to be a home. A forlorn young man. He had married a very wonderful girl, and in some inexplicable way he had disappointed her. Mary had said that she would love him if he really wanted her to, terribly—and of course he did. But he would never demand it. It was quite apparent that she did not care for him. As for him, he did not care for pity. He could not help but feel that Mary was very unreasonable. But what did that matter? The one brutal fact was that she had lost the zest for loving him, and was undoubtedly miserable at facing a lifetime of disagreeable duty or else—or else a divorce.

He turned the key in his lock.

A voice called "Henry?"

"Yes," he answered, doubtfully, and entered their room.

Mary was curled up like a small burrowing kitten in their single easy chair. The disc of light from a pendent bluebell over its back was like a halo, imparting its glow to her corn-silk hair. Two tiny blue slippers drawn up beneath her peeped timorously from the filmy shower of her negligee.

"Mary!"

"I thought you'd never come back," she squeaked, as if her voice was choking her.

"I—I thought you wanted to be alone."

She came across the room to him with the speed of a projectile and their figures merged into one.

"You must never leave me," she protested between kisses. "Not for a minute. Not even when I'm bad. I'm bad lots."

Henry chuckled.

"I'm sorry," she pleaded. "See how sorry I am. See how sweet I can be. You love me loads. More than anything. Tell me, please."

"Of course I do."

"I've got to be sure."

"Aren't you, Mollie?"

"I don't know. I've got to confess to you. Something terrible."

"Now that's nonsense. You don't have to tell me anything you don't want to."

"I have. I must. Are you sure that you'll always love me, Henry? Certain sure?"

"Why, sure. What's worrying you?"

"Even if I were wicked—as Messalina? If I should turn out to be a bobbed-hair bandit? Or a murderess? Would you love me if I broke your heart?"

"My desperate sweetheart! I couldn't help it."

"Sit there," she commanded. "See. I'll hold you down. You can't get up and go. I've got to tell you, Henry. I've ruined your life."

"So I notice," he smiled, and held her more tightly.

The MAGIC MAN By Hallie Erminie Rives

HOW THE STORY BEGINS:

DR. KARL ROSELIUS, "the wizard of Melton Park," discovers a process by which, for a few cents, he can make synthetic pearls that cannot be distinguished from the finest orientals. He is visited by representatives of the foreign pearl barons, who fear destruction of their trade and who propose that Roselius join them in selling his fabrications to the public as genuine. The chemist refuses, and announces that for reasons of sentiment he will destroy the formula. Mitchell Schuyler, scion of a ruined society family, hopes to repair his fortunes by winning the hand of Rose, Roselius' daughter. He keeps himself in funds by pawning the family silver at the shop of a fence, a woman known only as Meg, who lives at the back of the place with her son, Canuck. Canuck would be a "big time" crook, but lacks nerve, and his failures have brought him the contempt of Denny, Meg's handy man, and others of their stripe.

INSTALLMENT III.

Fritzi.

CANUCK'S earliest recollection was of a bright colored tomato can with which he had played, and which had bitten him so that his wrist had bled.

His glimpses of the outer world had been gained through a patched and smudgy pane beside which hung a lopsided picture enchanting in its bright tints, and his earliest treasures had been some bits of colored glass, retrieved from gutter and ash can, that, set in a row on sunny days, rainbowed the dingy window sill.

To his later recollection his memories of that time were a composite of crowds, jangling push carts, fire escapes wriggling with big eyed babies like fuzzy caterpillars in hot ashes, and grimy youngsters playing hop-scotch, or dancing to hand organs. The atmosphere of these memories was compounded of leaking gas and the odors of fried fish and overripe fruit, with occasional overhead gleams of a sky the hue of bluing water that sometimes warmed to wonderful tints of crimson.

The tomato can, the crooked chromo, the far sky—these spelled beauty; but beauty of necessity had played, as he grew older, but a small part in his existence.

The doctrine of property rights to which he was bred was a simple one. Those who had were those who had taken; those who took were those who grabbed a chance; and those who kept were the grabbers who were strong enough or cunning enough to get away with it. But he had not been a shining success at these early frays and forays. He had a sharp eye and a wiry body, he had reach and speed; but he lacked nerve, assurance, and courage. Where others snatched he sneaked. Where they strode he slunk and sidled.

"Meg's kid," people had called him at first, when they were not referring to him as "that Huchard brat," and in later childhood the name Canuck had come to stick to him like a burr. He knew that his mother and he had come to New York from Quebec, but he had no recollection of a father. This was one of the many subjects on which Meg—so she had always taught him to call her—was reticence itself. In those infantile years Meg and he had spoken together in French, but gradually the English had usurped the cradle tongue.

As for her, his early memories were strangely conflicting. There were stretches wherein he had fed like a plethoric little king on hot hamburgers and pie a la mode, and others in which his answer, when he begged for a nickel ice cream cone, had been a cuff or a snarl remembered with no more resentment than that with which any agile and neglected puppy remembers the kick of the butcher who later tosses it a bone.

There were longer, more frequent periods in which she was only a hard handed, taciturn shadow.

He had no memories of mother softnesses, cuddlings, or caresses; of wheedlings or solicitudes. His home life was all hard lines, without shadings, like an early Japanese print.

He could never have told how he learned first to read, and later, scrawlingly and with incredible effort, to write. A word here and a phrase there; at first the street signs, then the flaring headlines of the newspapers; at the last the friendship of a gin sodden wreck who had drifted from the harbor of better days to a bed on a City Hall park bench. He had taught him to figure with a piece of chalk and the asphalt for a slate, and Canuck had paid for the tuition with cigar butts fished from the gutters. It was for both, while it lasted, a lucrative partnership. Later he had had four years at school in Cherry street.

"Stop, Mitch! You've got to stop."

THIS period, which was like a rag carpet woven of dull browns and grays, at last had been rolled up and set aside, and a new era had begun. Three rooms instead of one, in a quieter, cleaner section; better clothes—even a nickel to spend now and then—and finally the pawnshop in the downtown backwater.

With this new era life had taken on a new complexion. The folk who came in and out of the shop and sat till late in the close shuttered back room, drawing cold hands or rolling the dice, were not of the ilk of Cherry street. Foppish and slippery or shifty and dilapidated, some hard and brassy, some unctuous and persuasive—all were concerned, as Canuck had early learned, with activities intimately associated, if in underground fashion, with the problem of his own and Meg's livelihood.

A screen stood across an alcove in the inner room, and Canuck retired behind this and made his toilet. When he reappeared he had shaved, and he wore a well cut serge coat and trousers, newly pressed, and a clean, soft white shirt with a gay tie.

At sight of his transformation Denny snarled, with a sudden showing of uneven teeth. Unkempt and negligent for days running, Canuck had a way of emerging suddenly in sartorial splendor, raimented in a fashion which Denny recognized as a badge of the modish class with which his predatory fingers were busy in his off hours in the crowds of street and station.

"That's right—go on and chase the skirts!" sneered Denny. "It's all you're good for."

But Canuck's only retort was a contemptuous grin.

"I know somebody that'll hand you a slam in the map," Denny snorted, "if you don't keep on your own side of the street!"

"Is sat so!" sneered Canuck. "Won't that be exciting!"

Denny's eyes flickered.

"Guess you think poking the bag at the Twenty-third street gym has made you a' sure enough champ!" he snorted. "You ain't got guts enough to lick the littlest wop waiter over at the dago's."

Canuck strolled out jauntily, his fists rammed in his pockets and a cigaret in his mouth, but the thrust had gone deep. In his heart he knew that what Denny had said was true. He was quick on his feet as a cat, and he had the science. But put him up against the real thing and an empty feeling the size of a dinner plate took him in the pit of the stomach, and his legs turned to boiled asparagus. It had always been so since he was old enough to use his hands at all. All he was any good for was shadow boxing, clever covering up, and fast footwork, and handing technical K. O.'s to an adversary on points!

Denny had scored.

Canuck spent the shank of the afternoon in aimless loitering, dined on chop suey, slaughtered a couple of hours at an Eighth avenue poolroom, sauntered into a cabaret in that gay and tolerant region where the skirt of fashion's night life now brushes the edge of what used to be Hell's Kitchen.

It was no new resort to Canuck. Most of them were more or less alike, but this had apricot colored walls barred with black stripings, and was lighted with quaint lanterns that wrapped its interior in a soft glow like curdled moonlight. It was the colors and lights that had drawn him back again and again—and Fritzi, who did her audacious dances there every night.

She was the Green Cockatoo's drawing card. Young, limber hipped, slender of shoulder, with breasts almost childlike in contour, hair black as a crow's wing, and bobbed and curled with ptiful exactness, face exquisite in its chiseling and its pallor accentuated by rouge and lipstick, eyes set off by undershadows as deep as those the Milanese beggar pencils to invoke the pity of the American tourist—she danced to crackling applause and fist whanged tables, flinging about her her swift, eager smile.

This had been her life since she had been taught, a tot of five, to kick her tiny pinafore to the wheeze of a mouth organ in a pre-Volstead gin mill on the Bowery. All her young years she had given of herself freely. She had never expected to eat her cake and have it too. She had eaten it early, and over and over, and the distilled juice of the fruit of the tree of knowledge, hot and spiced, had been on her lips when she first noted Canuck in the toneless background.

HE had been different from the rest of the smoky eyed, lolling jazz fans. He had never asked her for a dance till she sat down one night at his table, rallied him for his indifference, and drew him out on the floor to the snappiest fox trot she had ever known. For Canuck danced with the grace of the perfect bodily organism, as naturally as he breathed.

"Gee!" she had sighed, when the music stopped. "You're a swell dancer, boy! Why don't you dance more?"

"O, I don't know," said Canuck. "You never asked me before, for one thing."

He had danced with her twice more that night, and when he left she had gone with him through the hall to the outer door.

"What's poisoned you, kid?" she had said. "You ain't actually laughed once this evening."

She had been wearing a slinky dress of fuchsia red that molded about her like rain-wet silk, and her bare arms and shoulders above it, unbelievably white, poured forth some faint perfume that he had never smelled that made him slightly dizzy.

"Guess I'm sort of stale."

"Down on your luck?"

He nodded. "I was born on Friday the thirteenth and got the jinx pinned all over me."

"Never mind," she said. "Laugh it off. Got anything on tomorrow night? No? Well, if you're lonesome, come on around."

As she stood on the step in the doorway her face was level with his, and, on a sudden, before he knew what was coming, she had leaned and kissed him full on the mouth.

The first of many, that kiss had been!

Tonight Canuck sat down at a side table and ordered a Welsh rarebit, while on the dais at the upper end of the room the saxophones snored and trumpeted, and in the center the dancers trotted and circled.

A slant at the room showed him at the far end an unwelcome sight—a personage with sandy hair and an aggressive cowlick scowling into his goulash. This was Blondy Devitt, burly, florid, and loudly dressed, whose name as a lavish spender bore out his local reputation as a hooch handler. Once he had led the bunch in Fritzi's favor—the latest of a variegated string—and he took to Canuck, as the latter was well aware, like prussic acid to a cat.

Canuck stirred uneasily. Always heretofore he had satisfied himself before he went in that Blondy was not there. The very sight now of his hulking figure gave him the tingling of the scalp, the edge of nausea that, with him, was the avant-courew of fear.

The kind of fear that announces itself by an involuntary and abject cowering of all the muscles. It rode him at all times and in all places at the suggestion of bodily danger. He had never screwed his cringing courage to the sticking point but once, and on that occasion he had been shamed and stung to it by Fritzi's presence, when, on a crowded Coney Island boat, he had stood up to a pestilent and half drunken admirer of hers. A knife had been drawn, and he—who, beneath his sham bravado, had been horribly afraid—had received an ugly slash whose memento was a white scar from shoulder to breast which he would carry to his grave.

Canuck had no desire to try the issue with Blondy. For a moment he was tempted to leave, but the dance had ceased now, the couples were finding their tables, and before he could translate impulse into action, to a new outburst of syncopation Fritzi whirled into the open space to do her nightly stunt.

She was in sea green. Green gown of spangled gauze, green slippers and green stockings rolled below the knees that were dimpled and white as clotted cream. She danced tonight with the abandon of a passionate whirlwind. The white knees tossed high in the spangled foam, the arms beckoned more alluringly, the dry, hot mouth with its parted scarlet line smiled with wickeder insolence. The whole reckless little body pulsated like a tinted flame.

Her round finished, she whirled into the chair at the side table opposite Canuck, and, with elbows on the cloth, lighted a cigaret from the box he passed her.

"Where you been the last five nights? Come across with a good one, now."

"Nowhere," he said. "I can't stand this stuff every day in the week the way you can."

She made an inarticulate sound between her small sharp teeth. She hated this mood that was so frequent with him, knowing very well that when it possessed him she might as well be in Honolulu. It puzzled her, and what she could not understand angered her.

"You used to come pretty near every night without any funny look on your face," she said, resentfully. "I wish you didn't get those spells. Come on around to the flat afterward, won't you?"

Canuck had been drawing circles on the table cloth with the tine of his fork. He reached and patted her hand.

"You're a little slice of all right, Fritz. Don't you get the idea I don't know that! I'm damn poor company for anybody tonight."

Her hard eyes, so intolerably innocent, so ruinously wise, shifted at the touch.

"Well, if you're poor company for everybody else, maybe I should worry!" she said.

The music was beginning again, and she cast a look over her shoulder.

"Kid, I'm goin' to ask you to fade out. Blondy's here and he's been lookin' at us like his Adam's apple was chokin' him. He's been nursin' his mad for a long while and he's got too much booze aboard tonight. I don't want no close-up between you and him. Y'understand?"

"Guess you've got the right dope," he said. "I'll move on. I was just going, anyway."

"Come now, then," she said, hurriedly. "He's gettin' up. Don't look back, but keep with me till we get to the door."

As they crossed the floor, picking their way amid the tables, Canuck was outwardly nonchalant, but he was prey of an inward quaim, and the knowledge of his cowardice filled him with helpless rage. As they reached the hall a glance showed him the owner of the cowlick still negotiating a circuitous passage.

"Good night, kid," Fritzi whispered, at the street entrance. "You know why I don't want you in any roughhouse."

"Sure I know," he answered. "So long."

He went out into the crowd of the pavement as she turned to give an icy eye to the smoldering Blondy.

"'S lucky y' got the little dove-eyed dub out," he snarled. "You saved him something, all right."

"Yes? And what'd he have been doin' while you was tryin' it on, sweetheart? Wrappin' you around a table leg, most likely."

For answer he gave her an elbow jab that sent her reeling to the wall, and it took two waiters and the doorman to hold the raging fury into which it transformed her while he made good his departure.

A moment before Fritzi and Canuck came from the dancing floor two men, groomed and dinner coated and smacking of the polite world, had entered from the street. They were Ronnie Chaddos, genially known to lovers of polo for his patronage of the game, and Mitch Schuyler. After a somewhat stodgy hotel dinner and an act of a tuneless musical comedy, the Green Cockatoo had suggested itself to the former as likely to furnish a spiced fillip with which to round out the evening.

THE DISTANT SCENE By Allen Raymond

"I have. I've deceived you. I've been absolutely dishonest with you. Now I'm so ashamed—and sorry—and afraid of you—and I love you."

"What in the world?"

"Do you remember that day you met me on Brooklyn Heights? And were sorry for me? And we started to go around together? And I was crying? That wasn't at all what you thought it was, Henry. It wasn't an accident. I'd been there four afternoons waiting for you. The reason I was crying—most of it—was because you didn't come—and I'd tried so long at home to attract your attention—when you had no eyes for anybody but your mother. And I was afraid that even if you did come you wouldn't love me. And I wanted you to, Henry. Now that's the honest truth. I was waiting in ambush, like a scheming woman, to pounce on you. Not for your sake at all, but just for mine. Now, isn't that terrible?"

"That's awful," Henry chuckled proudly. "Such moral—moral turpitude scandalizes me."

Mary giggled hysterically and placed one warm hand across his mouth to silence him. "You've got to know it all, Henry. Maybe you'll leave me, but I've got to be honest with you. I knew you were crazy about travel because I'd been up in your room and seen all the books you'd read. So I played right up."

"But you do want to travel—honestly—it's not entirely make believe," Henry protested.

"Of course I do. Some time. Who wouldn't? But mostly, I wanted you—and—and—a home with you in it. I've been absolutely selfish. I've cheated you out of all your voyages. I wanted a baby boy, Henry, and now I've gotten it."

Henry gulped.

"I know that I've been miserable to you. And you've been dear. That's why I'm so ashamed. Won't you speak to me, Henry?"

Henry gulped again.

"You don't hate me?" Mary cried.

"Of course not."

"D—don't you think you'd love my baby?"

"Why, surely," Henry heard himself saying, dully. Poor child! He must make this more convincing. "It's wonderful, Mollie," he declared, while his heart sank. "Marvelous! I've always wanted a youngster—some day—it's splendid of you to give me one."

But he was under no illusions, now. He realized, walking back to the office to tell the boss he had quickly overcome his foolishness, that life had trapped him. He was no longer master of it, but its servant. Now that he stepped from the honeymoon's roseate haze to the cold light of reality, he could see a parade of the happy-go-lucky fellows he had known who had entered the alluring door called matrimony.

He had watched them desert their accustomed haunts and friends. He had watched their rollicking readiness for a game of pool or a free afternoon on the bleachers turn into a sobered steadfastness at jobs and at rendezvous which their fellows did not share. They dropped out. They assumed responsibilities. Unless they moved up fast in their offices, their immaculate, snappy garments of youth were turned to an ill-concealed shabbiness. They borrowed small sums for worries like children's shoes and rent and installments on furniture. Before long they were increasingly bald, and serious, and middle-aged. Only a few of them beat that venturesome unending game of rearing a family. Henry vowed to be one of the few, but it was not with careless heart. Rather like a gladiator, stripping for battle.

WEEKS passed—and months. The distant scenes of capped mountains, or coral islands in warm scented seas, or the glittering capitals of Europe which he had nursed in his imagination faded so far from his thoughts that they were like another world. He had other things to occupy him.

There was Mollie—poor girl—strangely altered and difficult—a creature of absurd vagaries, struggling with a burden, a very different person from the joyful pal of their early friendship and breathless awakening to marriage. There were fears from old wives' tales that he had to keep pushing from his mind—fears for his Mary, and the one great prayer that nothing must happen to harm her.

"Our baby will be a boy," she assured him continually. "We will call him Henry."

"A boy or girl," Henry lied consistently, "it makes no difference—as long——"

"I'm a big strong girl," Mary told him. "You needn't worry."

A boy or a girl, it made no difference. He must not let it make a difference. That would be too cruel to her. Henry was developing a streak of mendacity. Of course, he might have his hopes. But chiefly he had to have his eye on his work. The office had changed for him. It was no longer a minor interest from which one derived amusement funds or savings for voyages. It represented Money—with a capital M. There was no choice about Money. One had to have it. It was the most important thing in the world, because hung upon Money were food and shelter and life itself for three persons.

"The kid's a whirlwind," said Henry's boss.

Henry knew that the office's eyes were on him. It was a passing gratification. There were larger living quarters to think of—and a doctor—and a hospital—and a layette of finery worthy of Mary's child. Henry snarled with anger that progress was not faster, so the layette could be finer.

"It will be a boy," Mary told him, gasping upon her bed in the hospital, trying to smile while Henry held one of her hands.

It made no difference. Henry was tired. He was horribly afraid for the only person in the world who mattered. He couldn't help her.

"We will call him Henry," she assured him, looking straight into his eyes, that he could see she loved him. "He—he—will be a sailor—and roam the world."

Two nurses lifted her on a rolling cot. "Kiss me, Henry," she murmured, exhausted. The nurses wheeled her beyond a door where Henry could not enter.

The world stood still. Henry sat with his elbows on his knees, interminably. He twirled his hat in his hands. A big tear dropped on it. Then he knew that a nurse was standing beside him with her hand on his shoulder.

"Everything's fine," she was saying cheerily. "You just go out and walk around the block and have a smoke. I want to fix up this room. When you come back you'll see your wife and baby."

Henry realized that he was being pushed out of the place and that shortly afterward he was in the open air.

"Pretty snappy?" asked Mary, looking down at their son. The tiny red gnome was almost buried in a swathing blanket, asleep on her shoulder.

"You're wonderful."

"Isn't the baby beautiful?" Her fingers carefully brought the child to view from the obstructing wrappings.

"Marvelous," swore Henry. The baby's face, he perceived, was a malicious caricature of his own, ridiculous, yet so like him that he wanted to laugh, but wouldn't. Mary adored it. That was enough.

"Marvelous," he insisted.

Mollie had come back to him, safe and sound. The baby was husky, and might outgrow that singular appearance. Henry watched his wife draw one small hand outside the blanket. He stretched out an experimental forefinger across the baby's knuckles. The small fist opened miraculously, and closed upon his forefinger tightly. The baby's eyes opened one brief split second and looked into his. They closed and a smile wreathed the infant's lips.

"The devil!" said Henry to himself. "He's just as much amused at me as I am at him." Then something in his chest, beneath his left waistcoat pocket, gave an odd flip-flop.

"You little son-of-a-gun," he murmured, and, aloud proclaimed, "some man!"

"No nasty ol' girl's going to stop him from traveling," Mary vowed fiercely.

Henry laughed, a very condescending, masculine laugh. He was, perhaps, gazing at a scene more distant than the horizon of any tourist. He was gazing at his small son's distant future.

"O, I don't know," he reflected. "When my son grows up he's got to have the best in life."

"What's that?" asked Mary.

"Some one like you," he told her with swift humility—"and This!"

It would have been difficult to have entwined three persons more closely.

Waiting for their cloakroom checks, while Sandow went to bespeak a table, Mitch witnessed the comedy of violence which left Fritzi weeping tears of rage into her green spangles. A little knave of a dancer and a good looking young girl in hand-me-downs—so the incident recorded itself in his mind.

Later, as they sat watching her gyrations, Jake Rothschein, the cabaret's proprietor, stopped at their table, and when her dance ended he beckoned her and she sat a while and chatted with them to the accompaniment of Chandos' perennial pocket comb.

"A clever little skirt," said he, when she left. "If she could cut out the cocktails she'd be on Broadway."

ROSE'S talk with her father as to "biff-bangs" had looked further than the hour or the man. It had sprung from a newly attained consciousness that she had reached, or was reaching, some goal line, some hurdle, that must be negotiated if life is to be lived in fullness and perfection. She liked Mitch Schuyler genuinely. He answered in a hundred details to the ideal her fancy had built up when she thought of her own future presumptive marriage. She had seen his play of polo at Meadow Brook and had thrilled to its dash and élan. He sat his pony like a centaur. He danced to perfection.

But he had been just one among many, rather more than most, and conspicuous by reason of his wealth and all the rest of it; but, after all, one of the lot. Only lately she had found herself looking at him more closely, as circumstances seemed to be bringing them more and more often together. It had been some time before she came to realize that with this increasing propinquity circumstances had less to do than Schuyler himself. And the sensing of his deliberate purpose had disturbed as well as flattered her.

On this afternoon, however, as she sat with him on the lawn at Melton Park, Rose's problem had receded into the nebulous background.

It was not an afternoon, after all, for problems. A perfect autumn day that had followed on the heels of a night of storm, the air still pleasantly cool from the lash of it, but with the sun over all: a day of little cloud shadows chasing one another over the grass, of the hardy, delicious perfume of foliage roses, of fluting bird notes. From where they sat a wide vista showed the Sound, and the sea, skimming across the breeze-crinkled expanse, dotted with snail-like craft, discerned far Promethean contours swathed in the smoky haze of distance.

They were hatless and coatless. Mitch in the white flannels that so well set off the balanced lines of his figure and contrasted with the wholesome sunburn of his face, and she in a sport suit of lusterless green. The hedges were musical with the sheezy tinkle of crickets, and from around a corner came the recurring slap-slap of a tennis ball and a chanted score. She was sitting on an old stone bench; Mitch was sprawled on the crisp turf, flicking sycamore balls in the air and watching the keen play of youth that flashed and rioted over her face.

Suddenly he sat up and looked at her. "Have you found the porcelains you wanted for your Blue Garden?"

"O, yes," she said. "I found a pair of vases that are exactly the thing. Come and see them." She got up and they walked together along the twisting, leaf-strewn path to the sunken garden that was her especial pride. She had planned it herself, formal as to its fringe of blue Norway dwarf pine and its square central pool rimmed with cerulean tile. Blue tile also were the treads of the steps, and the pool held clumps of cat-tails and was enameled with water hyacinths. The only touches of brighter color were in the burnished yellow and purple leaves of exotic shrubs and the darting flame-red of Japanese carp moving vaguely beneath the surface of the water. At its sunrise end stood a charming bronze figure of a dancing child, and on either side of it, on twin pedestals, the two vases.

"There!" she said. "Aren't they simply perfect set in that spot?"

"Lovely!" he said. "The blue-of-sky-after-rain."

"Why, yes," she exclaimed, in delighted surprise. "That's the Chinese name for that particular glaze. How clever of you to know that!"

But he did not answer. He was examining them closely and she caught a peculiar expression on his face.

"I got them at the Gessler Galleries," she said. "You've seen them there?" Her thought leaped. "Why—it was the Gesslers who bought the Schuyler collection. I'd forgotten that!"

He nodded and smiled.

"It's great to know they're yours! You see, I was especially fond of the old things. They're Ming Shi. I bought them myself in Peking—some years ago when I was 'doing' the Far East one summer vacation. They came out of a filthy little junk that was jammed up against one of the big docks. I was standing in front of it watching a line of camels go by loaded with tea, with the usual beggars wriggling and yawping around my feet, when I saw the blue in the dirty window. I remember I paid a whacking price—hope you got them cheaper than I did!"

"I'd have thought them cheap at any price, I'm afraid," she told him. "I'd fallen hard for the color—just as you did. It's fine to love beautiful things, whether one has them or not, isn't it?"

"Yes," he agreed, "but it's finer to love and lose, too! The 'better to have loved and lost' business is more satisfactory in poetry than it is in practice."

"I know," she said, nodding. "Some things take a lot of courage."

It was the first time Rose had ever heard him refer in any way to the collapse of his expectations, and the allusion quickened her sympathy. She noted that his face was pale and that his hand was trembling.

"But you've got that. And with it you could do anything, and do anything—yes, and have anything—you chose!"

His eyes were on hers and she saw something flame up suddenly in them that startled her.

"Anything?" he repeated.

His voice sounded odd, overwrought. There was a sudden change in his whole manner. It was repressed, unnatural. The alteration swerved her from her mental balance, and some swift instinct made her drew back.

The thing she discerned was as unexpected to herself as to her. Up to the time they had entered the little sunken garden Rose had been to him a friend to an end. He had had a cool and considered resolve to marry her for the reason that she stood for all those things he counted could make the martyrdom of marriage endurable—money, youth, and loveliness. He had been enamored of her fortune, intrigued by her beauty, but that was all. In that moment, however, as they stood face to face, something had happened to him. A fierce and primal instinct had leaped from ambush upon him. Calculation, plan, assurance, all had bent before it, and it was shaking him as if a physical hand had him by the throat.

He caught her arm. "Rose!" he cried. "Rose!"

She felt herself crushed to him, felt his lips on hers—felt them with her cheeks rushing into a flame and her hands pushing him back.

"Stop, Mitch! You've got to stop!"

But he held her tight, his lips seeking hers again and again. "Kiss me, Rose!" he pleaded.

She wrenched herself away. "No, Mitch! Not—yet. I care a whole lot about you, but I don't know myself yet."

He found control with an effort. "How long does it take a girl to know herself, I wonder?" he said.

"I don't know," she answered, "but when it comes I'll be sure of it. And I'm not sure now, Mitch. That's the truth."

MISS THORP stood in the doorway of the great galleried room with the mullioned window in her uncompromisingly plain steel gray dinner dress peering through her pebble spectacles with her bleakest expression of disapproval.

Dr. Florian, the famous Belgian surgeon, Roselius' oldest friend, with his sister, the Baroness von Strohm, had arrived three hours late, and the dinner, which had been held for them, had suffered accordingly. Mitchell Schuyler had taken Rose to a dinner-dance at the country club and she was to bring him back to meet the house guests—she, Miss Thorp, disapproved of him. They were all presently coming up here to see the room, and she disapproved of that. It was to her sacred ground; in it had been begotten Roselius' triumphs, and for her his daily labor there had steeped it in consecration. Dr. Florian, if need be. The baroness, grudglingly. But Schuyler!

There was in her look, moreover, a blend of exasperation. Roselius himself was the cause of this. Fifteen minutes ago he had suddenly upset his coffee cup and, muttering something about his electric furnace, had bolted from the dining room, leaving her with the conversational bag to hold. She laid no claim to being a conversationalist.

Whatever her mood, however, she could never enter that room—such was the impact of its beauty and suggestion—without an instant's pause.

She employed this now in wrinkling her brow and squinting at the ensemble, as an artist at his handiwork. The lights of the silver sconces and the standing, carved torcieri were softly shaded, and the big central luster hung in a golden radiance as mellow as the glow of Sicilian amber. A low fire flickered in the big fireplace, rosying the wall tapestries with its shadow dance of flame and touching to a resemblance of quivering life their stilted woven figures. All was beauty and order, or order's seeming—save Roselius' littered desk, the one thing that was sacrosanct, even to her. She would sooner have chucked a coiled rattlesnake under the chin than have laid a finger on the smallest scrap of paper it held.

With attention to the ritual, which prescribed a corrective gesture, Miss Thorp smoothed a crease in a cushion, set a ruby velveted chair at a more effective angle, and crossed the room to the stairway.

"Governor!" she called.

"Well, what is it?" Roselius' big voice, from a room above, snapped and crackled with irritation. "Why don't you stay where you're put?"

"What must the doctor and the Baroness think of you, their host, ducking like that and leaving them flat?"

"Hélène doesn't know how to think and I don't care about Prosper."

He came out and glared down at her waspishly. "You're a hypocrite, Thorpie. You're crabbing because you've had to entertain 'em for five minutes! I don't mind Prosper, but I draw the line at jabbering idiotic tittle-tattle with the Baroness, and that's flat! No wonder the poor wretch never married. He couldn't get away from her long enough. Why didn't you turn on the radio? I suppose it's too late to give 'em the bedtime story about the three little bears."

"Are you coming down or shall I bring them up?"

"Ten thousand thundering tin devils!" he snarled. "I came up here to get the place fixed for 'em. Now I'm here I can't find a damned thing."

"What do you want to find?"

"Where's the book the Baroness sent me last Easter—that thing with the lilies and the cross on the cover?"

"It's here on the shelf."

"Get it and put it on the table, open, where the old dragon'll spot it. And for God's sake, Thorpie, see that the leaves are cut! Turn one of 'em down or something."

She stalked to the wall, found the volume, corrected the sin of omission with a hairpin, rumpled the leaves discreetly, and put it in evidence. Again his roar came down to her:

"Where's Prosper's silver framed photograph? The one he sent me last month with that new decoration the Austrian regent hung on him—the one that looks like a pewter tureen top. Vain old pouter pigeon! Gets twenty thousand dollars now to come to America for an operation on a pork packer's cerebellum—nobody'd ever guess that when we were students together he was as poor as a church mouse!"

"I haven't seen the photograph since it came," said Miss Thorp, resignedly.

Roselius waved his arms in outraged appeal to heaven.

"Haven't seen it?" he bellowed. You ought to have seen it! Where the devil's Petersen? I've rung the bell three times."

"Pardon me, sir," said the plump footman's voice in the doorway. "You told me to take the picture to the storeroom."

"Fool!" burst Roselius. "How could I have told you that when I want it here? Go and get it! Don't stand there with your mouth open like a bullfrog!"

Petersen shriveled out of the room, and presently the butler's serious visage appeared at a further door.

"The car has just brought Miss Rose and Mr. Schuyler from the club, sir."

"Ha!" Roselius thumped down the stairs three steps at a time. "Thorpie, get on down and bring 'em all up. So, Petersen! You have the photo. Good!"

As Miss Thorp and the lesser satellite withdrew, Roselius set the picture in its silver frame upright on his desk and took his stand before the fireplace, chuckling, his hands behind him beneath his ruffled up dinner jacket.

They flocked in together, Miss Thorp the bellwether, the Baroness limping on her cane and smoking a Russian cigaret of unbelievable length, lank and grim and a bit dowdy and dowagery, but with a humorous eye and that unmistakable air of caste that is the hallmark of the highly bred of the old world. She towed her brother, Dr. Florian, fifteen years her junior, in faultlessly fitting evening clothes, straight as the vertical dive of a pelican, slender, suave, and sardonic, with high forehead shiny as a new silk hat, and spiked mustachios, brilliant, ironic eyes, and hands slight yet strong, with taper fingers sensitive for the delicate adventuring of brain surgery.

She was the Green Cockatoo's drawing card.

ROSE, a single green leafed gardenia lying white against her simple chiffon gown, brought up the rear with Schuyler.

Roselius and Florian offered a unique illustration of the theory that contraries attract one another. Whereas Roselius was built like a bear, the surgeon was slight, statuesque, and dapper. Roselius' pink face was eloquent of full blood and energy; Florian had the pallor and repose of the scholar. The studs, links, and waistcoat buttons Roselius wore with his dinner suit were Ural chrysoprase, and a huge pigeon blood ruby, cabochon, gleamed on his finger. Florian disdained even a seal ring. Roselius' Gargantuan frame seemed registering a perpetual protest against the useless irk of clothes; Florian's garments, one could perceive, were the outward and visible signs of an inward and spiritual grace, from the knife edge of his trousers legs to the gold pince nez which he wore with a flat black ribbon.

Different as chalk and cheese in habit, temperament, and beliefs, in their post-graduate days in Vienna they had gravitated to one another as if by some atavistic law of attraction, and there had grown between them the fast friendship that had survived all the years since then.

Florian's appreciative gaze swept over the perfect interior.

"Ah!" he said in genuine admiration, in his very British English. "But you do yourself well, extremely well! This is—what shall I say?—palatial!"

"Isn't it!" said the baroness. "Palaces are all red and gold and stuffy and impossible. Come, Roselius, and show me things."

Her cane went tap-tapping, with him stopping to examine now an escritoire at which Marie Antoinette quill-penned her stilted letters with their uneven, twirly handwriting, now a jeweled ikon that had blazed in the blue domed oratory of the ill fated Nicholas in the little palace at Tsarskoe Selo.

Meanwhile Florian had been looking about him with the eye of a connoisseur, at the canvases, the Beauvais tapestries, the time smudged missal on the long carven table. He turned to Rose.

"A wonderful workshop, or studio—one hardly knows what to call it." He pointed to the doors opening beneath the gallery. "What are those?"

"The workrooms and laboratories," she told him. "This is only where father does his thinking and writing. The door at the end of the gallery leads to the west wing of the house."

Florian looked at Mitch. "You've been here often, bien sur, Mr. Schuyler."

"Heavens, no!" Mitch answered. "I've never seen it before. I'm mighty lucky to be here now. I'm the tail to your kite, sir."

ROSE was laughing and talking with some constraint. The scene with Mitch that afternoon in the Blue Garden had disconcerted her. Not that she had not expected something of the sort, but the reality had held, in some subtle sense, disillusionment and something akin to dismay. The evening's engagement for the country club with Mitch had been of long standing or she would have broken it.

She need not, however, have feared. Mitch had no intention of repeating what his cooler judgment had pronounced a tactical blunder. That evening she had caught in his eyes no glint of that strange light they had held when he snatched her into his arms in the garden. There had been only the old time note in his voice, the deference; the savoir faire, the easy assurance of camaraderie. That was what she wanted—to return to the old familiar basis till she could know where she stood.

The baroness' voice came to them.

"The book I sent! And it has been read, too! I am complimented and touched, Roselius. You see, you were quite wrong, Prosper, when you said he wouldn't care for it!"

"What?" Roselius bridled. "How dared he say such a thing! I'm astonished at you, Prosper!" He looked at the doctor reproachfully over his shoulder.

The baroness again:

"And Prosper! Here is your photograph, on his desk, just as you keep his on yours! How well it looks, the cordon that the dear regent conferred on you!"

Roselius beamed.

"A daily inspiration to me, Prosper, that picture! Thirty years ago, in Vienna, we hadn't a mark between us to bless ourselves with. And now here you are the most famous surgeon in Europe, and one of the three richest men in the world sending for you half around the globe. God knows what you'll charge him!"

"Ah!" cried the baroness, tapping with her cane. "How can one know how much to ask him till one knows how much he will pay?" She sighed. "So much money there is in this America! Poor Prosper! He has une clientèle la plus chic but we have no more millionaires left in Belgium since the great war!"

"I bet he's not suffering!" said Roselius. "Why doesn't he stay over here, anyhow?"

The baroness sniffed.

"God forbid! It's too gay a life here for him. Your old women are so young and your young women are so old! And the children. Mon dieu! How sophisticated! Even the babies here know where they come from!"

Florian bent his gaze on a picture. "Giorgione. I thought that was in the Uffizzi."

"No," Roselius said, "it was in the Dorio collection. I got it when the prince died."

"Extraordinarily fine!" said Florian. "And those jades! Superb! You leave such things lying out like this night and day? We should have them in a strong room."

"Shush!" said Roselius. "I've got a small army of watchmen about the place." He glanced at Rose, and twinkled. "As for burglars, they'd better mind their eye. Rose's room is just up that stairway, and she's a dead shot—eh, Seth?"

Florian looked mystified, and Rose explained: "That's his favorite joke. You see, some summers I go out to a ranch in Wyoming. I won a pistol for a prize this year shooting glass balls with the cowboys, and now Rah-rah calls me 'Sure Shot Seth.' He was a famous desperado who once lived out in Jackson's Hole."

The Baroness shuddered.

"What a country!" she ejaculated.

She sat down on the davenport and felt in the bead bag that dangled from the crook of her elbow for her cigaret case. "This is where you make all your wonderful discoveries, eh, Roselius?" She pointed to the bars of dyed silks gleaming through an open door. "What are all those pretty stuffs? Are you making rainbows?"

"I'm trying out colors," he said. "To find which have the greatest persistency. Colors get tired, and when they do they cover up their heads and go to sleep. Then we say they fade. I'm trying to find a way to keep 'em awake.'

"Do you mean they're still there?" asked Schuyler. "I thought when a color faded, it went."

Roselius strode to the rack, chose from it a bright red strip.

"Watch," he said.

He stuffed it into a test tube and set the latter over a spirit lamp. It smoked, smoldered, blazed up, and crumbled down into gray ash. He poured into the tube a colorless liquid from a phial, and the red that had blazed in the unburned texture rushed into the mixture, instinct and alive. He held it up.

"You see," he said. "The color was not destroyed even by burning. It only seemed to be. A millennium before Christ the Phoenician baby's little rag doll is thrown on the dust heap. Three thousand years afterward I dig from the ground a wisp of something black. I burn it in my retort, and liquefy the gas, and in that liquid is the blue that was in the Phoenician baby's little rag doll's apron."

"Bravo, Charles!" exclaimed Florian. "I wish I could lecture as well as that to my clinique!"

"Most interesting!" said the baroness. "Don't think you're to stop yet. What is in that filthy looking pot?"

He took up the dinted alembic from its tripod and held it toward her. "Smell it."

She bent over it. "Ugh! How perfectly vile! How can you have such nasty stuff in this exquisite room! If I were Miss Thorp I'd throw it out when you weren't looking."

"I'd throw her after it if she did! That is the refuse from a gas retort that we call coal tar, and it is one of the most magical of substances. You think it has a noisome smell?" He set down the crucible, took a tube from the jumble on the desk before the great window, and uncorked it. "Try this."

"But how heavenly!" she exclaimed. "It's like wood violets and harvest apples together. You don't mean to say——"

"Yes," he said. "That foul smelling mass holds prisoner a hundred perfumes and essences, from the fragrance of the trailing arbutus to the musky odor of the swamp lily. It's black as the Earl of Hell's riding boots, but it gave my silks their colors. It furnished the anesthetic that Prosper used in Chicago to put to sleep the brain he dissected with his damned little knives—God save me from ever getting into his clutches! It holds a dozen poisons as deadly as a cobra's venom, gases whose inhalation is as fatal as prussic acid, explosives that can wreck cities."

HE paused and looked at them with a sudden boyish smile that illuminated his whole face.

"One more thing I made from it," he said. "Something I've been keeping a secret—even from Thorpie here. I'm going to show it to you all."

He went to the wall, pulled aside a tapestry, and disclosed a steel safe, set in the masonry. He turned the combination swiftly, swung down the lever, and opened the heavy door. He drew out a small drawer, took from it a shallow box covered with black velvet, set it with a flourish on the table, and lifted its lid. Then he stood one side, rubbing his hands, and chuckling.

They ringed it about with exclamations, for there lay there against the white satin lining a necklace of Orient pearls, perfectly matched, whose creamy purity veiled an iridescence that was soft as a misty moon glow.

Florian set his pince nez, and bent over the box.

"An imitation? Incredible!" he said, under his breath. And Rose cried, "O, Rah-rah! Could you keep such a marvelous secret, even from me?"

Pearls! Mitch craned his neck to look. Roselius—no wonder they called him the wizard!—had found a way to make them. And such pearls! No filled glass beads or wax coated with fish scales!

The baroness took up the lustrous string, and laid it against her arm. "Merveilleux! What a skin! Roselius, tell us you are lying!"

He threw back his great head, and laughed with delight.

"Ho!" he roared. "That's one on the poor old oyster, isn't it? There's absolutely no test they won't pass. What do you think of that!"

"And you say, sir," said Schuyler, "that you made them out of coal tar?"

"Of course, not wholly," explained Roselius. "The base is a phenolic condensation product with formaldehyde, shaped in a temperature of two hundred degrees centigrade—there in my electric furnace. I cover that with layers of antimony and stannous chloride. So far that's not so different from what the oyster does. Last of all—and this is where I improve on the mollusk—I put it in an atmosphere of helium and I bombard it with a ray beyond the ultra violet, one that the eye can't see. And what does that cunning little ray do? It disintegrates some electrons of the helium atoms and plasters my little pellet with them—and there you have that marvelous luster!"

He put his arms akimbo and wagged his head at them.

"I defy any expert living to tell it from the real. I had three of them here the other day—they represented the three greatest pearl industries in the world. I wouldn't like to guess how much they'd pay me for my little secret."

"You'll form a company, Roselius," nodded the Baroness, "and pouf! the real pearl trade is finished. Well, I don't care. I never could afford any."

"No," said Rose. "He isn't going to do it. I can see it in his eye."

Schuyler looked at her in surprise and the Baroness turned with an astonished, "You're not, Roselius?"

"No she's right. I'm not."

"Why not, pray?"

"He can't bear to put the oyster's nose out of joint," said Florian, indulgently.

"It would put a lot of things out of joint," returned Roselius. "That's the trouble. As for money, the more I get the more of a nuisance it is. I wouldn't give a shout in Sheol for any more. I made these pearls only to see if I could find out a bit more of the way nature makes beautiful things. I wasn't thinking any further than that. After I had succeeded, I saw my infernal prying might raise the devil generally. So I quit. I destroyed all but a few of the pearls I had made—just enough to show you all how clever I am! The secret, which is the chemical formula of the composition and the measurement of the ray I use, is tucked away in that drawer of the safe there—the very last page of a black memorandum book that looks as if it might be only my laundry list. One of these days there'll be a wisp of charred paper in a saucer on my desk and that'll be the end of the Roselius synthetic pearl—all but the fun I've had making 'em."

The Baroness dropped the necklace in the box and spread out her hands.

"And we say in Europe the Americans are money mad!" she said.

TEMPTING MENUS FOR THE WEEK by Jane Eddington

Fruit of the Sweet Potato

THE song about the sweet potato vine is southern. The sweet potato and yam are essentially from Dixieland, and Dixie is proud and even boastful of this fruit. Its denizens will tell you that slowly or rightly cooked it is much more like a fruit than a vegetable.

The moist, and juicy, and most sugary sorts of sweet potatoes—they even speak of them "down south" as luscious—come from south of the Mason and Dixon line, while the drier and mealier sorts, particularly when boiled, are derisively labeled Yankee. Tidewater Virginia considers the coming of oysters, crabs, and sweet potatoes a delightful prospect, and in South Carolina they have claimed that the sweet potato was the most eatable, delicious, and valuable of all root crops, and highly prized as such, being superior to all the others as a food for both man and beast.

The moist sweet potatoes lend themselves to dessert uses, and some of the southern recipes for preparing sweet potatoes to be served as a vegetable yield a product in all ways comparable to a dessert, especially such a product as that called frosted sweet potato or marshmallow sweet potato, etc. It is extremely like a fine pudding.

These moist sweet potatoes may, it has been claimed, contain ten times as much sugar as the dry sorts, and, say our southern friends, all sorts require more cooking than we of the no'th give them. Long, slow baking dries out some of their high water content, and may give a caramelized product such as the French reject as a vegetable. In one southern recipe it says that "If the sweet potatoes are roasted in the ashes in true plantation style, one cooking generally suffices, but otherwise they are better treated to two."

In South Carolina they bake them, let them get cold, then bake them a second time. And besides this they caramelize them or cook them in sugar and sirups, after they have been once cooked, so giving a second cooking. And they cook them deliciously with meats. The mere mention of 'possum and sweet potato seems to be a great appetizer.

New Beauty

Miss Virginia Hannah.

"The feathery fine, fluffy Black and White 'Incense of Flowers' Face Powder surely adds new beauty to my complexion," says stunning Miss Virginia Hannah, 175 Rogers Avenue, Brooklyn, New York. FASHION STAGES ANOTHER EVENING PERFORMANCE

by Corinne Lowe

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—Just as a little curtain-raiser to the formal winter season here are a few dance and dinner gowns inspired by the autumn openings. To be sure, no really well-bred autumn begins until about the first of December. New York is, in fact, still wrapped deep in her summer cocoon and will until much later do the town houses and apartments emerge from their chrysalis.

In the meanwhile, however, many a fashionable woman comes down to town to see what Paris has been up to. And she is already planning the costumes that will dazzle her world in December. It goes without saying, therefore, that we whose social season is not so laboriously delayed are equally alert regarding the subject.

As I have previously remarked, the bolero and the tier are the stars of this little curtain-raiser. This, however, does not deny the presence of an admirable supporting company. One of the first of these is the inset belt.

Here is a feature of the up-to-date dance frock that is repeated again and again in all the collections. Although used quite independent of fabric, there is no gainsaying that it finds its greatest congeniality with the chiffon and georgette models.

And how these fabrics have maintained their hold upon the winter! Like the wings of a gigantic butterfly, chiffons in every clear and delicate and vivid tint outstretch against the background of velvet and moire and lame. Some of them show the same extreme simplicity that marked those of the summer, but others glisten with crystals and rhinestones and beads. In both their variety of detail and their gamut of color the chiffon of this winter is a perfected product of many seasons of experimentation.

But to go back to this inset belt. We find it in our first model at the left, a clear vivid green chiffon. As usual, this belt is a functionary in the court of the bloused corsage. In front this movement is apparent, but it is even more decisive in the back. The trimming employed is a scroll pattern of crystals and green beads. These same ornaments are massed rathed solidly on three narrow panels attached to the skirt. Finally, they finish the rounded neck-line.

Now as to this skirt. It is turned under and has that puffed effect reminiscent of Scheherazade's trousers. Such skirt sentiments are not exclusive with this model. They have been launched—these puffed skirts—by many of the big Parisian establishments, and it all depends upon how slim and tall you are as to whether you will react properly. Undoubtedly it takes these aforesaid gifts to carry off this garment satisfactorily.

Here is one way for a skirt to find its way about the knees. Another is the draped route. That draping from side to side at the front of the garment belongs decidely to the latest era of skirt thought.

It sometimes happens, too, that the skirt of our evening attire is just about as important as a man at a sewing circle. It doesn't count. It merely "comes along." An excellent example of this is provided by our second model from the left—a moire in the most ravishing tint of turquoise. The bodice of this is submerged under tiers—not the ordinary variety, but a brand new kind that has as many arches as a Roman aqueduct.

Close observers may detect that there is a waistline indicated by a brief interval between the fourth and fifth tiers and that the last two of the series belong properly to the skirt. Nevertheless, the impression made is that of a whole set of tiers with a tiny little skirt thrown in as a premium.

Speaking in general, it may be said that no skirt hem wants to be so bourgeois as to lead a regular life. There is a considerable tendency toward lengthening the skirt in the back—a tendency that goes hand in hand with a similar decline in the waist-line—and our model with the puffed skirt may, in fact, conform to this idea. However, the chief accessory to the irregular hem-line is the drapery or panel.

Draperies! Those forms that used to gather about the templed Acropolis in the golden hour of Greece never went in for more excesses of drapery than do we today. We swing these graceful folds from almost every point of the anatomy, but we are especially partial to the shoulder. Indeed, shoulder-draperies redeem from severity and prissiness many an evening model left untrimmed except by this feature.

In the center sketch we show one of such models that owe almost everything to that shoulder fold. This frock is made of geranium red chiffon and its voluminous drapery dips some inches below the hem. For the rest, the model employs three overlapping folds, the top one of which is tied and falls into streamers. Also, it endorses two little shaped tucks right at the center of the bodice.

As I have said, the bolero either takes place or is impersonated in a thousand different new evening models. As I have also said, the bolero is sometimes detachable and made of a contrasting material. This latter detail belongs to a great fashion wave that has lately swept over both daytime and evening apparel.

This is the jacket. We have a perfect passion for it. We can't get enough of it. So, if we have no excuse for donning one, we invent an excuse. Notable in a long series of inventions are those afternoon ensembles called "Cocktail" costumes which Martial et Armand suggest this autumn for the thé dansant. These ensembles are made of velvet and they invariably include a sleeveless jacket.

Hand-in-hand with these new costumes goes our fourth sketch. This represents a chiffon frock in the new and fashionable red known as rouge de Chine—the Chinese red with a hint of yellow. The frock is made simply, with a flared and picoted skirt, and it is supplemented by a matching velvet jacket with a lattice-design of brilliants traced all over its surface.

Even more spectacular is the jacket effect at our extreme right. Undoubtedly the corsage of this gown was borrowed straight from man's most formal attire and the credit is extended to those long panels in which the coat terminates. It is made of black velvet in combination with black lace. Under the lace is posed the rose-colored metallic tissue which achieves the inside collar of the coat.

Both the inset belt and the turned-under and puffed hemline are celebrated in this light green chiffon model trimmed with crystals and matching green beads.

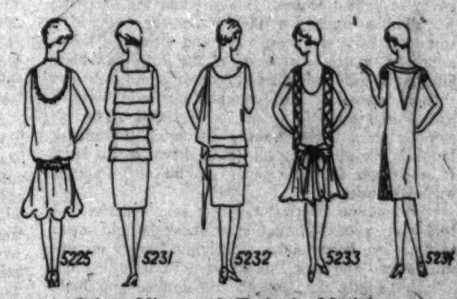

Second, a turquoise moire develops a slightly different tier technique.

In the center, a geranium red chiffon with one of the popular shoulder draperies is followed by a Chinese red chiffon topped by a sleeveless jacket traced with brilliants.

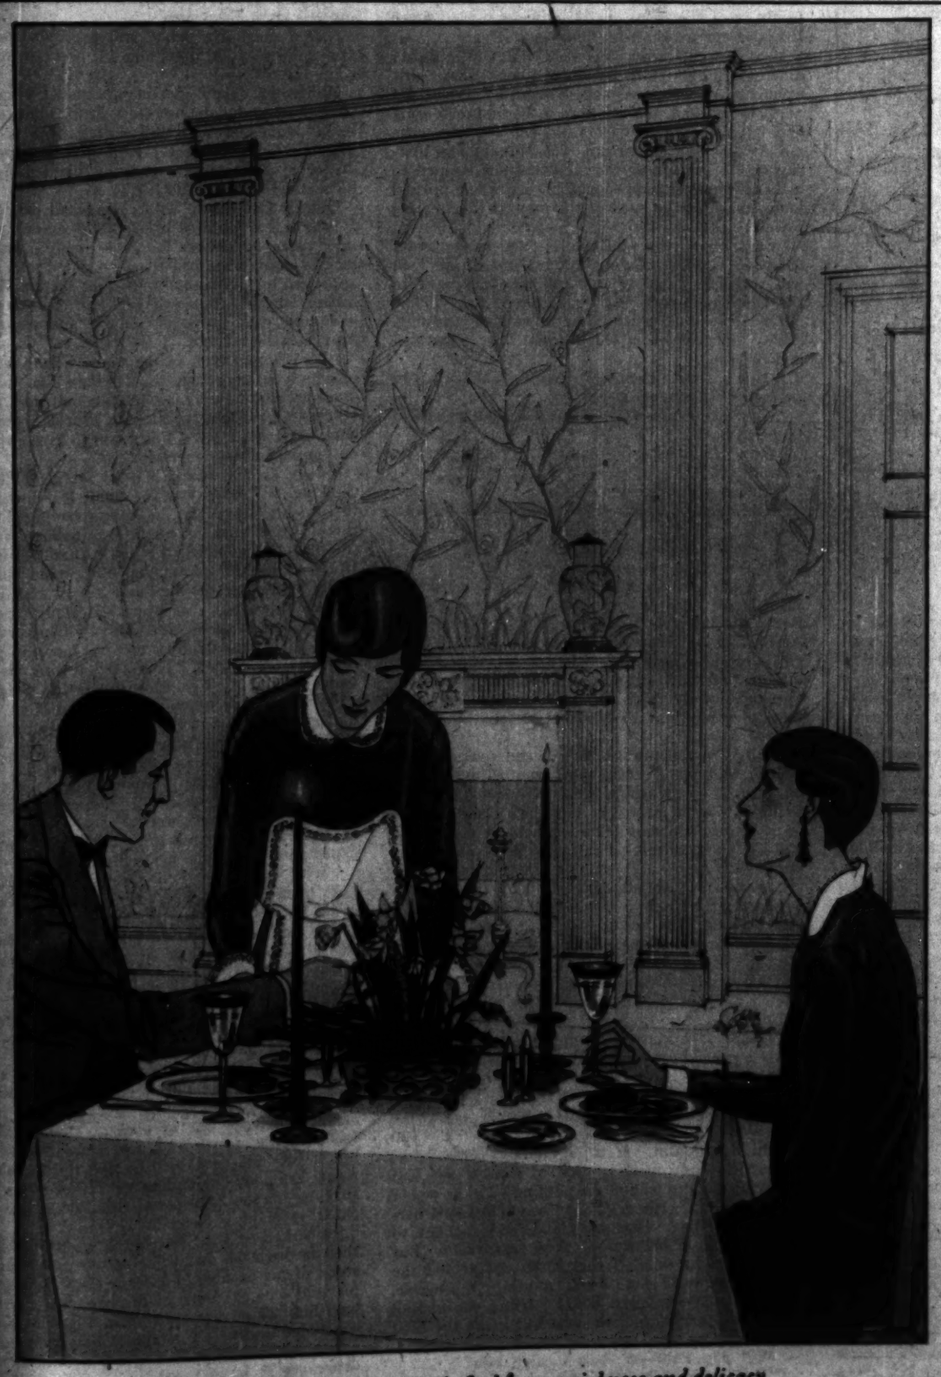

A jacket frankly borrowed from man's "claw-hammer" coat is the salient point of the last model. This is developed in black velvet with silver buttons and is combined with black Chantilly lace over metallized rose-color tissue.

How the Modern Housewife Finds a New Richness and Delicacy in Her Fried Foods

THE electric iron, the vacuum cleaner, the new electric refrigerators and many other new inventions are all helping to make the modern housewife's work easier and her home better.

But long before these household helps were perfected, Mazola was recognized by the wide-awake housewife as the perfect vegetable fat for all sautéing and deep frying.

She found a new richness and delicacy in her foods fried in Mazola.

And why not? Mazola is made from the hearts of fully-ripened corn kernels—and is itself as delicious and wholesome to eat as the corn from which it comes. It is a genuinely pure vegetable oil—and such knowledge convinces every woman that her foods must be better when Mazola-fried.

If you have never tried Mazola for frying, get a can from your grocer and follow this recipe for French Fried Potatoes:—

Wash and pare potatoes. Cut in eighths, lengthwise. Let stand in cold water at least one hour. Dry thoroughly between towels and fry in deep, hot Mazola. Sprinkle with salt.

When you eat these deliciously crisp, golden brown potatoes notice the entire absence of grease—the entire absence of any greasy flavor. This simple demonstration will explain to you the nation-wide popularity of Mazola for frying as well as for salad dressings and shortening.

The JOB AND THE GIRL

By Robert T. and Will S. Gidley

He Couldn't Win the One Till He Had the Other; So He Tried Strategy, and It Worked with Reverse English

A MAN and a girl just bordering on womanhood sat in the bay window of a cosy and inviting living room and watched the approach of a little blue roadster which had just turned in at the driveway.

The man looked just what he was—a keen, successful banker, who had early learned that the health and mental contentment brought about by a judicious combination of work and play is far more to be desired than a seven figure bank account. His hair was a crisp, assuring gray, his complexion was clear and pink, and his blue eyes twinkled merrily behind gold rimmed glasses.

The girl was unmistakably his daughter. Her eyes were blue, and one knew at a glance that they could twinkle quite as merrily as her father's. At this moment they were dreamy, and a shade of annoyance and anxiety lurked in their clear depths.

There came the whir of a motor as a blue roadster rounded a final bend in the driveway and halted. The girl turned from the window and spoke appealingly to her father.

"He will be here in a minute, dad," she said softly, anxiously. "What shall I tell him?"

"We talked all that over last night, Doris—and you decided."

"I know—but it seems so—so cruel; and O, dad, I know you agree with me, but Sidney means well, and perhaps we are both expecting too much of him. But if you say so, dad, my ultimatum will be, as I told you when we talked it over: No job, no wife!"

Roger Emerson, a big man with the tender heart of a woman, looked at his motherless daughter thoughtfully, and a look of dreamy tenderness replaced the twinkle in his eyes.

"You're just like your mother, Doris," he said quietly. "When she made a decision it was usually a just one—and she always saw it through! And you will do the same!"

The door opened to admit a slim, good looking young man whose eager eyes became less confident at the sight of the father.

"It's a peach of a day, Doris," he said with a smile that illy concealed his nervousness, "and the old boat is just weeping to go."

"Sid James, haven't you got that radiator fixed yet?" chided the girl. "W-e-ll, I'll go—but I can only spare an hour."

For the first ten minutes of the ride they chatted gayly of trivial things. Then, when the blue car had rumbled across a wooden bridge, the young man turned it from the main road and guided it along a narrow, wooded drive where the grass had been allowed to grow unmolested by traffic and now and then a reproving bush reached out and slapped against the side of the car as it passed. The car stopped in a little clearing bordering a running brook. The girl knew he would drive to this spot. It was their favorite picnic ground and fragrant with memories.

"I love you, Doris," the boy said eagerly. "I told you yesterday what your answer would mean to me. I've been waiting and hoping every minute since then—and now I'm almost afraid to hear it."

"That's just the trouble, Sid James—you have no confidence in yourself. And so you're going to lose in love just as you do in business. I'm sorry—and I don't mean to be horrid—but I don't want to marry a man who doesn't believe in himself."

"In other words, I'm a failure!"

"No, I won't say that. You're simply not a success. You're content just to get by."

"But if you will marry me——"

"Sid, have you been to see Morton Wells yet about that position?"

The boy reddened. "Look here, Doris, you don't understand. I haven't got a fighting chance for that job. If I had, you can bet I'd go after it. Every experienced engineer in the state almost has in an application. What chance has a cub like myself to interest Morton Wells? Besides, he's a stranger to me. I wouldn't know him if I saw him, and I simply haven't the nerve to go to a complete stranger and ask him to try me in an important position of that sort. Surely you're not going to let that come between us, Doris?"

"O, Sid, you don't understand. It's the principle of the thing. You simply aren't willing to take a chance on yourself—and you can hardly expect me to take a chance and marry you. I'm sorry—but I can't. And now we must be getting back."

The ride home was a silent one. At the door Doris held out her hand.

"I'll be stopping in tomorrow," Sidney said hopefully. "We can still be friends."

"Yes, of course; but I'm going away for a while. This will have to be good-by."

"But Doris!"

"Good-by, Sid!" And she was gone, leaving a crestfallen young man to clamber into his blue roadster and glide away so sedately that he evoked an astonished comment from the old gardener.

"Well, well! What ails the boy? He's makin' the curve on all four wheels. Durned if I don't think he's been turned down."

SIDNEY drove slowly all the way back to town. Down deep in his heart he knew Doris was right—and he gloomily wished it were otherwise. After all, it was not entirely his fault. His parents had never really given him a chance to grow up. He had always been coddled and watched over instead of being allowed to strike out and do things for himself; and as a result self-confidence had never come to him. His twenty-fifth birthday found him with a thorough grasp of the theories of civil engineering, very little practical experience outside of his summer school work at college, and the helpless feeling of a baby.

The next afternoon Sidney motored out to the Emerson place. The butler's statement that Doris was not at home did not surprise him. Doris usually kept her word. The butler, it seemed, was in an uncommunicative mood, and Sidney finally betook himself to the garage. He had never liked the Emerson chauffeur, but the fellow had a mercenary eye and should be easy to bribe.

Carson was working on the car and in a disagreeable mood, as usual. Perhaps that partly accounted for his astounding behavior when Sidney rather cautiously broached his errand.

"Come outside, young feller," he said gruffly. Sidney followed him to the low hedge that bordered the drive.

"Now, then, I suppose you're going to offer me money to be civil to you and answer your questions?"

Sidney brightened. It was going to be very simple after all.

"Why—er—yes! Such were my intentions. I really don't expect some people to be civil without being paid for it."

Then the unexpected happened. The chauffeur reached out a greasy paw, placed it on Sidney's immaculate shirt bosom, and pushed, maliciously and vigorously! The result was highly successful—for the moment—as far as Carson was concerned. Sidney was precipitated over the hedge and lay on his back in the grass, waving his white flanneled legs in the air like an overturned beetle. When he arose he was for perhaps the first time in his life fighting mad. He usually found it too nerve racking and tiresome to lose his temper.

Perhaps the chauffeur was unprepared for what followed. Certainly he was the larger man of the two, but it is equally certain that he went down in ignominious defeat before the assault that was as intensive as it was short lived. When Carson finally rose to his feet one eye was closing and he had the dazed appearance of a man who has found retribution swift and bitter. Sidney stood watching him, the gleam of battle still in his eyes.

"Young feller," the chauffeur said admiringly, "don't ever let me get familiar with you again. It ain't good for my eyesight. About that question you asked me a spell ago, Miss Emerson has gone to Lakeside to visit her aunt."

"Thanks," said Sidney grimly, reaching in his pocket. "I dislike being pushed over hedges—very much. And now here's your money."

"Nix! Keep the coin! I may be a crank, but I'm no bloomin' profiteer. And good luck to you, Dempsey, old top!"

MENTION Lakeside to a red blooded, big chested viking who directs the energies of a vast corporation, and in addition is able to find strength and courage for after dinner speeches, and he wilts completely and deserts his office to haunt sporting goods emporiums and complain of pains in his head and other symptoms demanding a long rest. It is a little town with a big reputation as a haven for tired business men. A pretty lake and a good trout brook furnish excellent fishing, and the mountains range themselves picturesquely about the place, guardians of its peace and seclusion.

Sidney had stopped in Lakeside once over a week-end. On that occasion he had met several people, including a judge who had been harsh enough to call him a public nuisance, and a motorcycle policeman who possessed a speedy motorcycle, indeed. Doris had an aunt who lived there. Her name was Emmalina Sedgewick.

Sidney remained in town just long enough to get a supply of gasoline and oil and his bags, and then started. What plans he had were somewhat hazy and illogical, and made no provision for the thunderstorm that descended upon him just about midnight. Frankly, it was a whale of a storm. Nothing really essential to its success was omitted, and at times it was difficult to tell if it was merely raining or if by chance the car had strayed into a lake and was playing submarine. Finally a fallen tree loomed across the road and the car stopped. Sidney was at the end of his trail for the time being.

The storm lasted about an hour, but the obstructing tree was still there in the morning. It was undeniably a glorious morning. Sidney, however, did not feel in a glorious mood, and he suddenly recalled that he had eaten no supper and was on the verge of starvation. The blue lake sparkled a welcome through the trees, and he caught sight of smoke curling from the chimney of a cabin of some kind near the water's edge. He made a bee line for it.

The cabin door was open and a gray haired man in khaki shirt and trousers was frying bacon in a skillet. The sizzling of the meat and the aroma of hot coffee were irresistible.

"Hello," said Sidney, "may I come in and dry myself?"

The man turned his head and focused keen but kindly gray eyes upon Sidney in mild surprise.

"Sure," he said.

The cabin was small, but neat and orderly. It looked comfortable. There were only two rooms, one serving as a combination living room, dining room and kitchen, the other as sleeping quarters. The door between the two was closed.

Sidney took a chair near the fire and awaited developments. He had already placed his host as being one of that genus known as the T. B. M. Possibly he was the owner of a chain of Help Yourself Lunchrooms, trying the outdoors cure for a torturing conscience or indigestion—or perhaps both. No matter; he was preparing breakfast anyhow—and Sidney was half famished!

Presently the meal was ready. The host drew an extra chair up to the table, smiled in friendly fashion, and said: "Won't you join me at breakfast? And, by the way, we haven't been introduced yet, I believe. We've got to have a handle of some sort to call each other by."

"O, I know your name already," confided Sidney. "I saw it on your boat outside when I came in. It is Williams—John Williams."

Sidney's host smiled approvingly. "Glad you noticed it," he said. "That will save me the trouble of telling it. Williams is a good old Yankee name and no one need be ashamed of it. What's yours?"

The young man grinned. "O, I'm Sidney James—and two-thirds starved!"

"Good. Same here!" exclaimed the older man. "Let's get to work."

The bacon was delicious, the coffee excellent. Mr. Williams might be a tired business man and a full blown magnate of some sort, but he certainly knew how to cook.

While they ate Sidney told the story of his night ride, and the older man listened and smiled.

"You're just about a mile from Lakeside," he said when Sidney had finished, "but the road that is blocked doesn't go there. You made a right turn about half a mile back when you should have gone to the left. Are you expecting to stay in town long?"

Sidney suddenly felt a desire to tell the whole story. His host was the picture of optimism and good nature.

"Why—er—I don't know. It all depends. I hardly know why I came at all. You see, there's a girl in the case."

Williams allowed a mischievous smile to crinkle the corners of his mouth. He looked now like a gray haired boy.

"Ran away without leaving any address, eh? And you had to bribe the housekeeper, or perhaps it was the butler?"

"It was the chauffeur, sir. And I didn't bribe him—I licked him!"

"So much the better. Mine needs the same treatment. And now about this girl. Want to marry her, I suppose?"

"I am going to marry her!"

"Good! That's the way to talk. What's the girl's name?"

"Doris Emerson."

"Good sensible name—very likely a sensible girl."

Sidney nodded. "I came up here with a hazy idea of kidnaping her and all that sort of thing, but I've changed my mind. It would only make matters worse."

"Very likely. Depends on the girl. However, there is no need of hurrying back. I've an extra bunk here in the cabin, if you care to stay. My son usually spends his vacation with me, but he can't get away just now—and I like company."

"Say, that would be fine! You're sure I won't be in the way?"

"Glad to have you—and say, I'm going fishing in about ten minutes. Want to go?"

"I'm on!"

Sidney enjoyed himself immensely. He found his host entertaining and a good story teller. The difference in ages was soon lost in a mutual interest. Before the trip was done the elder men was calling his companion "Sid," and Sidney felt as though he had known Williams for years.

Only one incident occurred to mar the day's pleasure. As they were eating their lunch by the water's edge a saucy little motor launch purred by within a hundred feet of them. The only occupant was a girl in a blue middy. It was Doris.

Sidney rose to his feet and waved frantically, calling her by name. She saw him—there was no doubt of that. Furthermore, she must have recognised him, but if so she gave no outward sign. Just once she glanced toward the shore, then calmly, with superb indifference, she turned away as though she had found the view quite devoid of interest. In a moment the motor boat had passed out of sight behind a clump of trees.

"Did you see her?" groaned Sidney, settling back on the grass. "Isn't she a wonder?"

"Rather nice boat," commented his companion dryly, "but why all the fuss?"

"Hang the boat!" exploded Sidney. "I mean the girl. Isn't she a dream? That's Doris—the girl I'm going to marry!"

But Williams was in a teasing mood. "Better take the boat, Sid," was all he said. "You'll find it easier to manage."

A girl who thought she came from a family of failures—that was Jessica Hill. . . . She gives a heart throb to the powerful short story in next Sunday's rotogravure magazine:

FIRST RATERS

NEXT morning, yielding to an irresistible impulse, Sidney drove to Lakeside. Aunt Emmalina's home proved to be a pretty place, colonial in its architecture, with a broad expanse of shaded lawn sloping gently down to meet the lake. The massive white porch columns and the beautifully proportioned entrance door with its shining brass knocker seemed to lull some of the uneasiness out of Sidney's heart.

It was unthinkable that the inhabitants of such a hospitable looking home should harbor a bulldog. It was as incongruous as a pretty girl with brass knuckles or a sand bag. Yet there was a bulldog.

Sidney discovered the animal just about the instant the dog discovered him; hence the race was a fair one, but uncomfortably close. Sidney swung himself up into a sapling just in time to avoid a personal contact that would have been distasteful to him. The world had suddenly become black and treacherous, and if Doris had at this moment emerged from the house and peppered him with a shotgun, he would not have been unduly surprised.

As a matter of fact, Doris presently did put in an appearance, but instead of a shotgun she carried a bright green parasol. Her costume itself was a wondrous vision of filmy white, from lace trimmed hat to dainty slippers. She looked adorable in a combination of white and green. Even the embarrassed lover from his precarious perch in the tree could not fail to notice that.

"Lie down, Bluster!" she commanded, as she leisurely approached the foot of the tree. The bulldog growled a protest, but obeyed.

"Nice, gentle cyclone of a dog you have there! Thought the confounded critter was going to eat me up!" remarked Sidney, glaring vengefully down at the now quiet bulldog.

"O, it's you, is it?" said Doris coolly, glancing up at the swaying limb to which he was clinging. "Don't you know you oughtn't to climb a little tree like that? You're too big and careless. Suppose you were to break off a branch—Aunt Em would never forgive you. She's crazy about that tree."

"O, she's crazy, all right," growled Sidney bitterly. "I suppose she'll be out in a moment to attack me with poison gas, seeing her bulldog failed to get me! Nice way to treat callers—she should have lots of them!"

"O, were you calling on Aunt Em? I don't think she knows you. Besides, she is irritable this morning. Perhaps you had better go away without seeing her."

"Don't worry, I'll go away, all right. Just call off the bloodhound and watch me."

"You needn't be so cross about it. I can't help it if Buster doesn't like you. Besides, tramps are so scarce here that he rarely gets a chance to chase any one—and he just loves it."

"No doubt! He looks like that sort of a dog."

"I'll call him over toward the house—and you had better go at once, and be sure to close the gate carefully behind you, for Buster is so restless and determined I may not be able to hold him."

"I've got a cure here in my pocket for that restless feeling if he gets another spell of it while I'm around," said Sidney vindictively, and the rather unsatisfactory interview was at an end.

From the safe side of the gate Sidney watched Doris and her canine pet enter the house. A daring scheme was taking form in his mind—a scheme so brilliant and scintillating in its character that it almost terrified him. It wasn't quite fair—and Sidney liked to play the game straight—but at least it was harmless. He put it aside, but it returned to fascinate him with its possibilities. He turned away from the gate only to retrace his steps and gaze with a strange defiant expression at the boat landing where a saucy little launch bobbed up and down on the waves. Then he started for his car, which he had left on the opposite side of the roadway, with a springiness in his step and a gleam in his eyes that denoted a decision made, and let the consequences go hang!

IT was several days later, each an eternity in length—or at least so it seemed to Sidney—before he found a favorable opportunity to try out the dazzling scheme that had taken possession of his brain.

The summer sunsets on the lake at Lakeside are something to marvel at. Doris had been sitting on a camp stool transferring the swiftly changing pinks and purples to her sketch block with long sweeping movements of her brush. The combination of water colors and a brilliant sunset does not tend to encourage idleness.

When the last touch of color had faded from the clouds, Doris sighed and laid down her brush. For a time she sat, her face cupped in her hands, a dreamy, faraway expression in her eyes. A twig snapped with a loud crackle and she started and looked around apprehensively at the thick mass of evergreens just back of her. There was no one in sight, and she emptied out her water jar and began to pack her artist materials into her little canvas bag. Then, before she realised just what was happening, she felt herself lifted gently but firmly from the stool, and was being carried down the lawn toward the boat landing.

It is a well known fact that different girls do different things under like conditions. Some girls would have screamed and struggled. Doris did neither. Instead, she lay limp in her captor's arms, and it was only after she had been placed in the motor boat and the engine was putt-putting merrily on its way across the lake that she seemed to realise what had happened. Then she sat up and looked hard at the back of the man at the steering wheel.

"Sid James," she said coldly, "unless you want to spend the rest of your natural life in jail, you will turn this boat around and take me back to the landing at once!"

The person addressed did not even glance around. "Why not call dear old Buster?" he suggested maliciously.

A long silence. Then scornfully: "I thought you were at least a gentleman."

"Also a quitter—which I'm not! I would be if I turned back."

"O!" Then after a moment, "Where are we going?"

"To interview Morton Wells."

"You must be crazy. He's a hundred miles from here!"

"I can't help that."

"W-e-ll! I'm not going a step farther!"

"Perhaps you are going to jump overboard and swim back! It will be a long, wet swim for you! Better not try it."

"Sid James, what has come over you? You're not a bit like yourself."

Sidney did not answer at once. He was busy watching for the little camp fire beacon light that was to guide him to his destination. Presently he saw it.

He half turned toward the girl and spoke crisply. "Now, look here, Doris, you wanted me to call on Morton Wells about that job—and I'm going to do it. As a matter of fact, he's right up here on a fishing trip and I know where he's stopping, and I'm going to talk to him right now—and you're going with me!"

"As you are an able bodied man and I am a helpless girl, I suppose you will have your own way," Doris shot back. "But I don't believe a word you have told me. You are a quitter and only bluffing!"

"Wait and see," was Sidney's only response, but he felt the hot blood mount to his cheeks at the taunt.

"I happen to know Morton Wells by sight," said Doris suddenly. "I met him once at a reception. So your confederate—whoever he is—hasn't got a chance. He'll go to jail, too. Lakeside has a wonderful jail—and not an engineer, civil or otherwise, in it—yet!"

Sidney felt faint. If what Doris said was true, he had certainly made a mess of things. He had got Williams into trouble for nothing—and he rather liked Williams. His only hope was that Doris herself was bluffing. She was clever and thought to scare him out of his project. Yes, that was it. But somehow as he shut off the power and guided the launch toward the shore he felt anything but heroic.

Sidney made a fairly clever landing considering the circumstances, and when he had made the boat fast he turned to Doris.

"Will you walk—or shall I carry you?"

"Well—I won't walk!"

"As you choose. It's a pleasure to carry you, I assure you."

Doris lay in his arms, a limp and precious burden. Her eyes were closed, and in the semi-gloom her face looked pale and tired. Sidney began to feel like a brute. He almost wished his brilliant scheme had never crystallized, but it was too late to turn back now. He picked his way carefully to the cabin and tapped with his foot upon the door. He wondered what sort of actor Williams was going to be. And he also wondered about several other things equally unpleasant and disturbing.

THE door opened after a proper pause. The tall, rugged frame of Williams stood outlined in it. The crucial moment had arrived.

"Hello, young man, what can I do for you? Why" (in well feigned astonishment), "by George, you've got a girl there! Not injured, I hope?"

Sidney felt relieved. The man was playing well his part. There was just the proper amount of surprise in his voice. The deception was perfect.

"No, she's all right. Just a bit tired, that's all," said Sidney. "We're lost and saw your light—and here we are."

"You youngsters come right in!" Williams' voice fairly boomed with good nature. He drew up a chair, and Sidney placed Doris in it, whereupon she coyly opened her eyes and said sleepily, "Where am I, daddy?" Sidney looked at her suspiciously.

Williams bustled about and made her comfortable and insisted on brewing a cup of tea.

"My name is Morton Wells," he said presently, "and just as soon as you are rested I'll guide you to your destination."

Sidney introduced Doris and himself. Doris smiled sweetly. Sidney alone saw the determination that lurked beneath her smile.

"I believe I had the pleasure of meeting you once at the Van Ordens," she said calmly. "My father often speaks of you, so I feel quite well acquainted, indeed."

Sidney was watching Williams sharply. Would he stand the test? He did.

"Why, of course, I remember you now. You're the image of your daddy."

Inwardly Sidney groaned. He feared Doris' cleverness—and a trap. But if she was planning to lure him into some false statement she seemed nowise disposed to hurry the matter. For a while they talked of things in general. Then, true to his word, Williams steered the conversation to the subject of the new terminal station that the big railroad magnate was planning for his road.

Then it was that Sidney talked as if nothing in the world mattered but Morton Wells' terminal station. He waxed eloquent, and as he drove home his arguments one by one with the precision of a trip hammer, he began to realise that he was making a favorable impression. The older man was listening closely; now and then he put in a question that surprised Sidney by its importance and implied knowledge of the situation.

When Sidney finished his host remarked half appreciatively, "It's not such a bad scheme, my boy, but I'm afraid it won't do. It's too expensive and involves buying too much additional property."

Sidney was prepared for this. Williams had warned him that it would be necessary to bring forward objections from time to time as they talked, to make the interview appear natural and not excite the girl's suspicions.

"All I need is a pencil and paper and ten minutes more of your time, and I'll prove to you that I am right."

Williams laughed. "You're a hustler, young man. Go ahead and demonstrate. Railroading, or anything connected with railroading, is a hobby of mine. Once I thought I'd be an engineer or conductor myself—guess every boy plans along those lines some time in his life."

Quickly but surely Sidney sketched out his plan. It was in his mind so clearly that every line went into place as though he were merely tracing it from a copy underneath. The older man nodded approval, but it was only after an examination that became almost tedious that he laid the sketch aside and said "Dee-light-ed!" slowly and expressively. And then he added:

"I guess you win, young man! That is a good scheme you've got there. I would like to talk it over with you more at length—but not tonight. I guess we can get together in my office some day next week, can't we? I'm going to give you a try-out as consulting engineer."

Sidney simply stared. What could Williams be thinking of? This was the point at which he was to turn him down flat, as it was arranged between them. And then, as he had apparently tried for the big job and failed through no fault of his own, Doris, as he had reasoned it out, would quite naturally take pity on him and marry him in spite of his failure, since at heart she really loved him. Of this he felt sure. And now Williams was spoiling it all by pretending to give him the position to which he aspired. This was carrying the make-believe too far. For once in his life Sidney was stumped, and all he could do was to blink vacuously and gaze dumbly at the man who was overplaying the part of the big railroad magnate.

"Come, young man, what do you say?" spoke up the latter briskly. "Going to give me a chance to talk the matter over with you at my office when I get back there next week?"

Doris and Williams were both looking at him expectantly awaiting his reply.

"Why, of course," he managed to blurt out. "At your convenience, Mr. Wells." What else could he say?

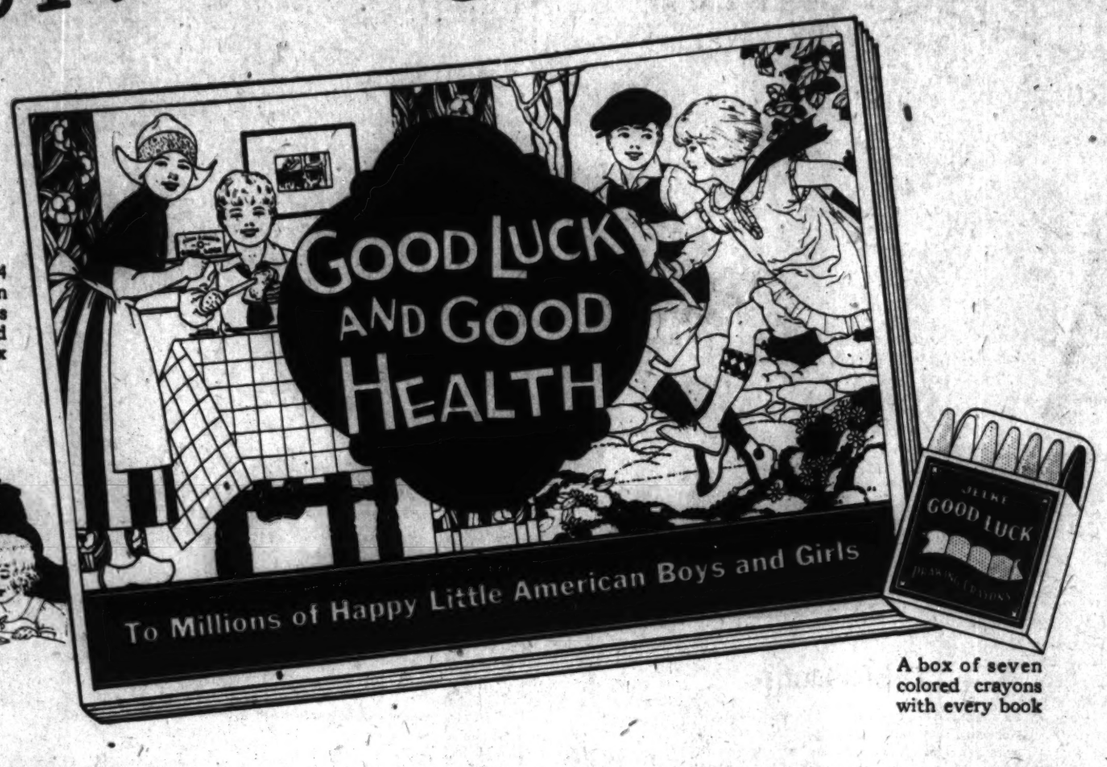

The sail back across the lake to Aunt Emmalina's was a silent one. The air had become chilly and Doris snuggled up close to Sidney in search of warmth, and in the darkness his unoccupied arm stole about her shoulders and she settled down comfortably and allowed it to remain. For the moment he had won, but what was to be the result when she realised the trick he had played upon her—when she found that he had deliberately deceived her?

His conscience was working overtime as the boat was creeping nearer and nearer to its destination, but it was not until he had tied up the launch at Aunt Emmalina's landing and they were slowly strolling up the lawn toward the house that he decided to make a clean breast of it.

"I've lied to you, Doris," he began quietly; and then he went on and told her the whole miserable story of his accidental meeting with Williams and his wild scheme (born of his great love for her) to pass him off on her as Morton Wells. "Now," he concluded sadly, "I simply can't let you go on any longer thinking that I've put that deal across—because it isn't so!"

But Doris only squeezed his arm the tighter. "Don't be a goose, Sidney," she said softly. "The job and the girl are both yours—if you want them! The man you have just interviewed is Morton Wells."
